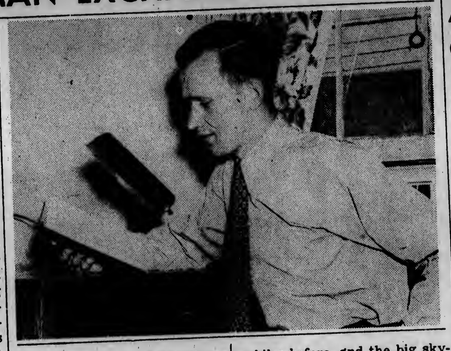
Twompnell has a great football heritage to live up to. His father was Knute Twompnell, a coach of note. Three of nis brothers, Choo-choo, Leon and Doak are now playing pro ball. Whether or not Reds will play in the pro ranks is questionable. He might very well turn to basketball or baseball for a living since he also excels in those sports. Intimates agree that graduation will probably send Reds to the Jai-Alai courts.



Immortal

This column believes that it has chosen the only logical candidate for its "Player of the Year" award. In his last game against a strong Bolivia U., Twompnell broke the league record by having fourteen consecutive passes intercepted and also kicked seven field goals, one a seventy-yard angling beauty. We know that the rest of the sports world will acclaim him as immortal. . . . Portait of a sportsman.

INTERVIEW

with a GERMAN EXCHANGE STUDENT

by George Ferguson

"Americans generally are more friendly than their European cousins", is the opinion of Hubert Blaesi, European exchange student who arrived here recently from Germany.

Chosen from a large group of hopeful applicants, by the US High Commission for Germany, Hubert arrived in New York in August, with 300 fellow students, aboard the Italian liner "Brasil". The young Germans spent three weeks in the "big city", pending final arrangements for transfer to their respective universities. During this period, there was ample time for sightseeing, which the students greatly enjoyed.

"I was particularly impressed with the friendliness and helpful spirit of neighborliness displayed by the people in this country", Blaesi stated. "We have never seen so many automobiles before, and the big skyscrapers are really amazing", he continued. "In Europe, most people ride bicyles, unless they are particularly wealthy, and you rarely see a building higher than eight or ten stories."

Blaesi hails from Bruchsal, in north Baden, a part of the picturesque Rhine Valley. His home town, a commercial city of 20,000 inhabitants, was 80% destroyed or damaged by Allied Air raids during the recent war.

"After putting in my application for an American scholarship, I continued with my studies at Heidelberg University, never dreaming that I actually would have the good fortune to be chosen for study in America," the 21-year-old Sophmore related. "Then, one day when I returned home from classes, there was a letter of acceptance from Villanova College, waiting for me. Needless to say, it made me very happy."

Asked what he thought about the difference between the American and European educational systems, Blaesi stated that in Europe there was more academic freedom, while technical colleges, like Villanova, in this country, turned out highly trained engineering graduates, with a more practical knowledge of their profession, than their European counterparts.

SHOOK-UP JOURNALIST: Contrary to popular demand this column is back in the ink again this week due to the picture shortage which has hit the office . . . There was every type of pic on this page last week imaginable including an ad for Phillie cigars . . . The only thing that was missing was PAUL ARIZIN in a Robert Hall drape model . . . The only article that had any punch last week was the editorial—the editor has been punched at least thirty times . . . Of course he was always punchy . . . The statement that an upperclassmen made to yours trooly last week to the effect that "No one is dependent upon the Villanovan for publicity" can now be pidgeoned-holed after last week's terrific expose on the Senior Prom . . . Couldn't say it last week but, therefore, I'd like to take this opportunity to congratulate JOE RUGO and his class on a very beautiful prom.

BILL CORUM BOREDOM: In a recent edition of the N. Y. Journal-American that gravel-throated columnist who hides behind the title of Bill Corum made a statement that should make Villanovans boil. After relating Army's schedule he babbled forth with "The rest of the time it plays pitty-pat with love taps from Hobarts, Susquehannas, VILLANOVA or some such practice session opponent" . . . Mr. Corum has evidently overlooked the fact that Villanova trounced the Black Knights in scrimmage along with the fact that Villanova, last year was second only to Notre Dame in offense.

CAMPUS QUICKIES: The short notice that appeared in the chow-hall—"G.I.'s lead to slaughter by fake call to chow" with the notation in pencil "Don't let this happen to you" . . . Let's keep the officers out of the Enlisted man's mess . . . Bill Landis renting tuxedos and ties outside the dining hall . . . It was difficult enough to jump the trenches around Belle-Aire Hall but now maintenance is adding to the confusion by erecting snow fences. . . . Paul SOLLAMI making arrangements for the Soph Cotillion . . . The piece of paper that was found on the floor of the field house certainly has some very interesting dimensions listed . . . Evidently it belongs to the feminine love interest in the play Hasty Heart.

SURROUNDING SITES: Chestnut Hill's Mask and Foil production takes place at the college in the woods this this coming week-end . . . The name—"Pride and Prejudice"— very appropriate title for a play from the Hill . . . Let's put on our boots and take the journey up there to enjoy the theatrical endeavors of this Fall Stock Company . . . Ralph Clanton "an actor in the pure Shakespearean tradition" had the girls form a neighboring college eye dazzling him last week—such long hair . . . Rosemont's tea house filled with smoke—doesn't anyone inhale in that place . . . Two girls cat-calling at Immaculata "But he said that the suit wears like iron—I know, deah, it's beginning to get rusty."

CHRISTMAS AT HOME: In a few weeks Villanovanes will be enjoying the warmth and comfort of their homes at Christmas time. They will be buying gifts for their loved ones trimming Christmas Trees, and watching their younger brothers and sisters waiting impatiently for Santa Claus. Nice to think about isn't it? There will be other children, however, who will be without a family, in fact, without much of anything at Christmas time and these are the St. John's orphans. You men can give these children a Christmas through your donations to Operation Yule. Help those who can't help themselves. Remember—A MAN IS NEVER SO TALL AS WHEN HE STOOPS TO HELP A CHILD.

Band Visits Washington For Georgetown Game

Altar Society Has Change Of Rules After Meeting

The Sanctuary Society adopted two new amendments to its constitution at a meeting last night in 215 Mendel. The new provisions are intended to standardize the manner of serving Mass and other Chapel exercises, and to provide the society with a method of raising funds for future operations.

Rev. Edwin Grimes, O.S.A., has returned to the post of moderator of the Sanctuary Society, which he vacated upon the arrival of the Rev. Thomas Purcell O.S.A. four years ago.

Fr. Grimes and David Anthony, the president, have arranged a list of activities for the coming year. They plan an uninterrupted recitation of the Holy Rosary when the Blessed Sacrament is exposed on First Fridays. The society also plans to put on an informal dance and outing some time this Spring.

Picture Shown

Plans were also laid for the regular monthly Mass of the Society, which is held on the Thursday before the First Friday of each month.

After membership cards were distributed the members closed the meeting by viewing the motion picture "You Can Change the World." The excellent picture was produced by the well known Fr. Keller, of the Christopher Movement. It starred such Hollywood notables as Ann Blyth, Irene Dunne, Bing Crosby and Bob Hope.

"Darktown Strutters Ball" Sets Off Dance

Saturday was band day at Griffith Stadium. Rousing Music and precision drill proclaimed the presence of the sixty piece blue and white clad Villanova marching band.

Halftime entertainment was set off with an eye-opening dance step self accompanied to the tune of "Darktown Strutters Ball". Following rapidly with a brassy march, "Invercargil". The "Alma Mater" concluded the half time performance and the volume from the stands indicated the loyal turnout of fans.

The second and final trip of the marching band is scheduled for Nov. 18, when they invade the town of the iron kettles. Band members have expressed their disappointment in missing the Soph Cotillion but have found some solace in plans being made for a dance in Boston after the game.

They have also been invited to give a concert in Lawrence, Mass., about thirty miles from Boston, Sunday afternoon. The Boston trip will conclude the activities of the organization for the year. Father Handran will begin rehearsals for the concert band right away. A full schedule is foreseen as many new invitations have been received, in addition to the usual commitments.

Accounting Society Elects Jake Ervin President

Group Addressed by Mr. Linsalata

The Accounting Society of Villanova held elections at a recent meeting of the C&F Auditorium. Faculty moderator, Mr. Joseph Linsalata presided over the assembly, assisted by John Holland.

Officers elected to serve throughout the coming year are: Jake Ervin, President; John Gounis, Vice - President; Al Hevey, Secretary; Bill O'Brien, Treasurer and Jim O'Keefe, Librarian.

Prior to the elections, Mr. Linsalata addressed the group. He outlined a program of activities for the current year, and read the financial reports from the previous year.

Lists Aims

Mr. Linsalata listed the society's five primary aims: to have all senior accounting majors take the American Institute of Accountants examination; to assist in the publication of a proposed Commerce and Finance magazine; to present a representative group of C.P.A.'s at future meetings in order to further publicize Villanova's Accounting School; to secure a bookshelf of current accounting material in the college library; andto hold the annual dinner.

Frosh Orientation

drastic change in this time-honored ceremony, unless to strengthen the existing regulations.

One Commerce and Finance student said, "Freshman orientation was a lot of fun for me, but better organization and stricter regulations could be enforced. I think heavier penalties should be enforced on the offenders." His views were seconded by his fellow classmates, although no one wants orientation too severe.

An engineering student suggests a "special new student pin" for prompt identification of all freshmen, so they may be more easily recognized.

Another enthusiastic Arts student said: "Freshman orientation was a whole lot easier than I thought it would be. It is a wonderful 'get-acquainted' idea. Orientation gives the freshman a feeling of unity and college spirit."

Wait Until Next Year

Practically all the frosh agreed that the orientation was a lot of fun and they are looking forward to next year, when they will be initiating the newcomers.

Father Touhy urged all freshmen who have any problems to drop in and see him in his office on second floor of Mendel Hall. He said he will do all he can to help the freshmen.

A photographic contest is now open, being sponsored by Chesterfield cigarettes.

Photographers have the chance of submitting three photos of student models taking the Chesterfield Mildness test. "Open 'em, Smoke 'em, smoke 'em," are the three steps. Pictures are to be taken on campus, and poses should be similar to those of the current Chesterfield series of advertisements as appearing in the Villanovan.

The current deadline is November 6, 1950.

There is a $50 first prize for the campus winner.

All entries should be mailed to Campus Merchandising Bureau, Inc., 274 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Student Council

Council Paul Davis is bringing the proposal to the attention of the administration, and will present the reply at the regular meeting next Monday night.

Two Vacancies Listed

Two vacancies in the Council were also noted at the last meeting. One occurred when Dick Spance resigned because of illness, and the other came about when Christopher O'Keefe was dropped from the Council as a result of his repeated and excessive absences from meetings. Both Spence and O'Keefe represented the senior class.

Further business of the meeting included the acceptance of the constitution of Delta Pi Epsilon, business fraternity, referring Belle Masque's request for Council representation to the Ways and Means Committee.

The following Council committees were appointed:

WILDCATS WIN OVER GEORGETOWN, WILL FACE DETROIT FRIDAY NIGHT

Frinzi Goes Wild to Pace 20-14 Victory

By Harry Range

With speedy halfback Mickey Frinzi setting the pace the Villanova Wildcats fought their way to their second win of the season by a 20-14 count over Georgetown last Saturday at Griffith Stadium.

It was a greatly improved Main Line club that handed the Hoyas their fourth setback of the campaign. Most conspicuous was the pass defense which intercepted four of Frank Mattingly's aerials and allowed the Georgetown quarterback to complete only 9 of 25 attempts.

Intercepts Three

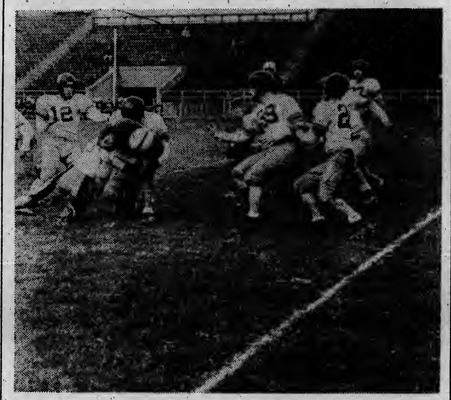
In the defense department Frinzi shone. The 160-pound back from Phillipsburg, N. J., intercepted three passes, one of which was converted into a 52-yard runback into pay dirt, and was instrumental in blocking at least eight others.

The Hoyas moved to an early lead in the first four minutes of play. After receiving the opening kickoff the Wildcats were forced to punt and five plays later Georgetown led 7-0 as a result of Ralph Charney's 14-yard plunge offtackle, and Dick Haesler's conversion.

O'Boyle Completes Nine

In the second period, Neil O'Boyle, who completed nine out of 16 passes, tossed a 40-yard forward to Joe Rilo who scooted over from the 17. Bob Haner's attempt for the extra-point was blocked by the Hoya forward wall.

Mattingly then decided to take to the air, and, after the Wildcat's had failed to capitalize on Tom Green's interception, attempted to hit Gus Fornaciari in the deep flat. At this point Frinzi dashed in, scooped up the ball faked out Hoya Dick Doyle, and dashed the distance. This time Haner's kick split the uprights.



A punt by Frinzi early in the third quarter placed the ball on the Georgetown 12. Two plays later Dan Simeone recovered a fumble on the eight to set up the Wildcat's third touchdown.

Halfback Johnny Geppi took an O'Boyle pitchout and, following a key block by end John Bogan on the seven, went over for his first score of the season. Haner's kick was good and the Mainliners led 20-7.

Paglucia Scores

The fourth quarter was all Georgetown as Mattingly did a beautiful job of running the club. The Hoyas passing and running attack rolled into the end zone once with Gino Paglucia ploughing over from the one. On two other occasions the Hoyas threatened and only the fine Villanova pass defense stopped the Blue and Gray from scoring.

RUTGERS BACK HALTED

The principals in this shot were camera-shy and preferred to remain anonymous. Bud Holland and Red Morris look on in last Friday's 150-lb. game between Villanova-Rutgers.

Inexperienced Motor City Team Has Impressive Record So Far

Titans Seek Revenge on Cats. 13-13 Tie With Tulsa Shows Them as Team to Beat

Villanova's much-traveled Wildcats are off again on one of their weekly jaunts as they travel west to meet Detroit on Friday night.

The Motor City Titans promise a lot of trouble for the Mainliners, too. Not only do they have a better won-lost record, but also in the only meeting of mutual opponents the Detroiters tied Tulsa, 13-13. Villanova dropped its tilt with Tulsa, 27-6.

So far this year Detroit has swamped Hillsdale and Wayne, beaten Wichita and Drake in Missouri Valley Conference play, tied Tulsa and bowed to Marquette. In addition, it's been a long time since the big boys downed the Wildcats, so all in all it looks like Jim Leonard's charges will have their hands full this weekend.

At the season's outset, it appeared that Coach Chuck Baer would be able to field a capable, experienced line, but a largely untried backfield. With six games under their belts, however, both the forward wall and the ball-carriers have proved capable of playing good football. Competition in the Missouri Valley Conference has been exceptionally keen this year, and the Titan sophomores have had their baptism of fire.

Detroit's starting guards are the team's outstanding linemen, Alex Smail, who received honorable mention on the Chicago Tribune's All-American list last year, excels on defensive at the left guard spot. Offensive chores are handled by co-captain Nick Galante. On the right side, Ed Wood handles both the offensive and defensive assignments. Wood was named to the Catholic All - American and All - Conference teams last year and seems headed toward similar honors this season.

Left tackle Dan Kerins sees action when the opposition has the ball, and is replaced by

Alex Smail, Detroit

Stan Gondek when the Titans gain possession of the pigskin. Lee Witmer plays both ways at the other tackle with Jack Kennedy understudying him.

Sophomores Pete Bonnani and Gene Bradshaw have nailed down the defensive end position; while co-captain Tom Costello is a standout as an offensive wingman.

Three - year letterman John Pacho is a dual-purpose pivotman, backed up by Bill Dooling on offense and Ronnie Nasser on defense. Nasser often switches to the other side so that he and Pacho may both back up the line at the same time.

The Detroit roster lists 24 backs, twelve of whom are sophomores and only seven are lettermen. The starting quartet boasts of four veterans. The Titan offense is directed by quarterback Johnny O'Connor, who has made great strides in the passing department this year. Ron Howath bears most of the ball-carrying burden from the left half slot. Speedy Jack O'Leary at right half and hard-running Mike Groggins at fullback are the other busy leather-luggers in the Detroit backfield.

ACTION IN GEORGETOWN TILT

Kittens Wallop Rutgers, 26-0, As Macreary Stars

NYU Outruns VC Harriers; Barry Wins for Frosh

By Thomas E. Sheehan

The final meet of this year's cross-country season was held on the Villanova campus, last Saturday, and again it was the same old story, as the Varsity bowed to the Violets of New York University 17-38. The only good part of the afternoon was the Freshmen's victory over the visiting yearlings by an 18-37 count. This was the frosh's only chance to show themselves this year and they certainly made a good appearance.

In the Varsity race, Gordon McKenzie and Howie Jacobson tied for first place. Two more Violets came across before George Thompson could put the Wildcats in the scoring column. Art Klepper took sixth place to beat Lou Rementeria of the victors. The other Villanova points were supplied by Joe Birch, Jim Brown and Larry Paturzo, who finished 8th, 9th and 10th, respectively. The Varsity course measured 5¼ miles.

However, in the freshman race the Wildcats really looked well. John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer ran one, two the entire race and finished almost a minute and a half before the rest of the field. Barrys time for the 3¼ mile jaunt was 18:02, while Dwyer's time was 18:12. The Mainliners had their five men in the first seven finishers as Bart Moynahan, Joe Gaffney and George Eberle rounded out the Villanova score. Ray Lopez was the first man to finish for the visitors.

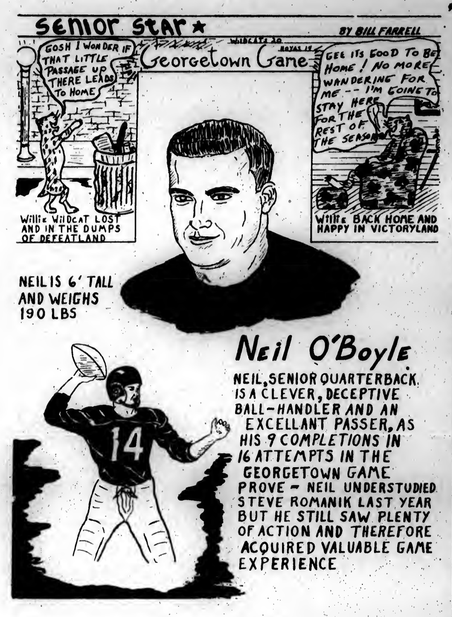
The N. Y. U. varsity had previously beaten Rutgers, St. Johns and Kings Point.

Fleet Fullback Hits Paydirt Three Times

By Bud Russo

The Wildkittens came back from last week's defeat to claw a surprised Rutgers team, 26-0, Friday in Villanova Stadium. Fullback Joe McCreary scored three of the four TD's.

This lopsided score was due to the efforts and the improvement of the team as a whole. Outstanding as they were in the previous game, Dick Miller, a guard; and Joe Billera, a half back; Bud Holland, end; and Adolph Hoch, guard, played inspiring defensive games, as did Rowe and Alter. But the outstanding man on defense was Lou Maeiro, who broke up play after play.



Team Shows Improvement

Hard blocking and good tackling, plus a spirit of working together, was the main difference between this and last week's game. In all some 439 yards were rolled up, while Rutgers did make 191 yards, their greatest bid stopped short on the eight-yard line.

Villanova received first and drove to the 4-yard line. A holding penalty plus a fumble forced them to kick from the 47. Rutgers returned the kick, but another holding penalty put the ball on the Kitten's own 27. On a pitchout around the right end Joe McCreary ran all the way, 73 yards, for the first touchdown. Neary's boot was good.

Aerial Display Scores

Rutgers received, but Ed McKnight intercepted a pass on the 50. Bob Heller fumbled and lost 13 yards, but made it up with a 44-yard pass to Jim Gallo. Another 10-yard pass went to Joe Billera who went all the way to make it 13-0. Neary couldn't get his kick off.

IN THE ENEMY CAMP

By George Scanlon

DETROIT

The Detroit Titans managed to stop the nation's individual offense leader, John Bright of Drake University and earned a 14-13 win. Detroit's eleven is one of the nation's top defensive clubs, which will be looking for their first conquest of the Mainliners in eight years come Friday night.

BOSTON COLLEGE

A game Boston College eleven went down to their sixth consecutive defeat, administered by highly favored Georgia, 19-7. Georgia's second half outburst was the telling blow to Denny Myer's charges. Bee Cee's backbreaking schedule rolls along with Penn State facing the Eagles in Beantown this week. The Maroon and Gold's big problem is to find a consistent passer and some linemen to open holes for their running attack.

ST. MARY'S

California kept its record unblemished Saturday, downing stubborn St. Mary's, 40-25 before 40,000 fans. The Gaels outscored California's reserves in the second half when they scored all their tallies. St. Mary's 2 wins, 3 losses and one tie may not be an impressive record, but the Gaels are an offensive minded club which, when right, can be dangerous.

MIAMI

The whip-like arm of Jack Hackett and the uncanny catching of end Ed Lutes paced the high-flying Miami Hurricane to its fifth consecutive victory at the expense of Pitt by 28-0. Hackett exploded in the second half and it was Pitt vs. Hackett as the 21-year-old junior passed the Panthers dizzy. The Hurricane's next obstacle to a clean slate will be Georgetown with the game being played in Miami's Orange Bowl.

KENTUCKY

Vito Parilli, a quarterback magician with a full bag of tricks, led Kentucky to a 28-14 victory over powerful Georgia Tech. Parilli was the whole show with his great passing and ball handling. He completed five passes in a row for Kentucky's second touchdown march which covered 80 yards. Halfback Shorty Jamerson found a hole off guard and romped 54 yards to the end zone to wind up the Wildcats scoring spree.

With the season half over the Villanova opponents thus far have shown some definite All-American nominations. Leading contenders are Vito Parilli and Bob Gain of Kentucky with Jack Hackett of Miami also running close to honors.

INTRAMURALS

The Soph-Frosh field meet, and the I-M football championship game between Fedigan, winner in the Mendel division, and the standard bearer of the still undecided Austin race, loom as the main events for this week.

Fire When Ready

In anticipation of the field meet, the Sophs have organized a strong line-up to throw against the Frosh in all the events, and are confident to an overall victory. On the other hand the embryo collegians, when approached on the subject, merely flash a sly smile as if to say, "Just wait, big boy."

So if you long for an afternoon of real excitement to break the monotony of studies, why not drop around to Mendel Field tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. Your satisfaction is guaranteed.

Managers to Meet

A meeting of the managers of all basketball teams, resident and day-hop, is scheduled for this Thursday at four o'clock. Mr. Powers stressed the importance of this meeting, in which rules for this season will be discussed. The first games are scheduled for Nov. 6, so this will probably be the only get-together of the managers before the opening. Team lists must be into the I-M office (112 Alumni) before Nov. 3.

Fedigan Undefeated

Fedigan won their section of the football league last Thurs. with a decisive 14-2 victory over Good Counsel. The Feds started early when Loughlin intercepted a Counsel pass on the thirty. On the next play, Don Stefanik rifled a strike to McGuckin in the end zone. This was the first of fifteen completions for the tall Chicagoan, most of them in the first half. Towards the end of the opening quarter Tom Irish, standout Counsellor back, fumbled a bad pass from center in the end zone, and the Feds had two more points. Midway in the second period, Stefanik cut loose with anther long aerial, again to McGuckin, and the fleet halfback scampered the remaining distance for his second T.D. This play covered 55 yards. In the second half the Counsellors stiffened and threw the vaunted Fedigan attack back on its heels time after time. This defense was led by Markham, Caputo, and Holmes up front, while Irish, Fanilli, and Brick batted down the aerial thrusts.

The Counsellor score came in the final quarter when Russo broke thru to nail Stefanik in the end zone.

On the ground for Fedigan it was Watson, Feds high scorer, ploughing thru holes opened by Halloran, Reismier, and Jameson, while Clancy, Till, and Barbary were the thorns in the side of the Counsellors passers, rushing them to an extent that they completed but two all afternoon.

The Alumni Ramblers took a protested game from the Austin club 6-0 on Wed. A pass from Decker to Driscoll in the last ten seconds broke the scoreless deadlock, and gave Alumni their first victory. The protest is on the grounds of the ineligibility of one of the Ramblers players.

Austin bounced back the next day with a 33-0 massacre of the Fire House 5&4. Morris and Abdelle both scored twice and Bronson once, while Dinger was the mainstay on defense.

The Austin Ramblers split in two games, downing the Barracks 12-0, and then bowing to their brothers from Austin by a first down margin 5-1. The game ended deadlocked 6-6.

Two others games in the Mendel division ended in victory for the Alumni All-Stars and the Mendlecases. The victim both times was Delurey, who ended the season without a victory. For the Mendlecases it was Johnson on a fifty yard excursion and a pass, Baird to Ackerman, for the extra point in a 7-2 victory. Delurey's deuce came in the third period when Hayes downed Johnson in the end zone.

In their final outing of the season The Delureyites bowed to the All-Stars 19-6. Brady, Driscoll, and Megna collaborated for the three Alumni tallies. A pass Becotte to Fay chalked up the season's only tally for the Delurey gridders.

Intramural Tennis

For the first time since the war Villanova College will crown a Campus Tennis Champ.

On Monday, October 8, the Intra-mural Tennis Tourament started. All first round matches are to be completed by Wednesday, October 18. The finals of this tourament will be held Monday, October 30, weather permitting.

Cooke, a left handed stylist with an all around well developed defensive game, proved too much for Melconian defeating him 9-7, 4-6, 6-3.

During the past summer, Cooke worked at the Tudor City Tennis Courts of Elwood Cooke. Mr. Cooke in his amateur days was always ranked among the first ten in the United States. It is easy to see that under such a fine tutor, "Red" has picked up many of the fine points of the game. Although no relation to Elwood Cooke, our "Reds" Cooke sure would like to have a lot in common with the former; that is, his fine tennis technique.

Although, he was beaten in the first round by Cooke, Melchonian with his doubles aprtner, Pat Highland, stands a better chance, in the doubles tournament. They have drawn a first round bye and in the quarter finals, their opponents will be Cooke and Aissa. Perhaps, this time Vahe will stop the rampaging "Reds".

Interview Students for Cadet Program

Juniors and Seniors interested in officer opportunities in the U. S. Air Force will have a chance to find out all the answers next week right here on campus. A United States Air Force Aviation Cadet Selection Team will be here from the sixth to the tenth of November, room 102 Mendel Hall.

Provides Information

According to Maj. Clayton M. Doherty, who is making arrangements for the team, this visit is one of the many being made to accredited college campuses this year by U. S. Air Force officers. It's purpose is to provide college graduates with information on Air Force officer training. The Selection Team will be ready not only to answer all questions but also is equipped to process any Villanova men who qualify.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 5...THE GNU

"I gnu the answers . . . but I wasn't talking!"

The debating team couldn't make much use of this non-talkative baby . . . but one look at his "literary leanings" tells you that tests don't buffalo him. 'Specially those tricky cigarette tests! As a smoker, you probably know, too, that one puff or one sniff—or a mere one-inhale comparison can't prove very much about a cigarette!

Why not make the sensible test—the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test. You judge Camel mildness and flavor in your own "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) . . . for 30 days. Yes, test Camels as a steady smoke and you'll see why . . .

Recent writers see in the definition a fore-shadowing of a new era in Catholic devotion. They see in our Atomic Age the beginning of a new Age of Faith, like the exalted period of devotion to Mary in the days of the troubador. On November the first the Men of Villanova will give expression to that devotion when they hail their Queen at Mass and at the Altar Rail. Already have they generously subscribed to the erection of a Shrine in her honor. And to proclaim to the outside world Villanova's deep joy on this occasion the College Administration has prepared a Marian display in the foyer of the College Library. It proclaims the history of Mary's Assumption in theology, literature and art.

Sophomores Complete Plans For November 17 Cotillion

Chairman Flaherty Reveals Ticket Sales Due to Begin Today

Hubert Flaherty, Chairman of the Sophomore Cotillion, announced, following a meeting of the dance committee-chairman yesterday, that final plans for the Cotillion had been completed. The dance is to be held in the Field House Friday evening, November 17th, from nine to one.

Flaherty reported that Dan O'Connell, co-chairman of the ticket committee had informed him that tickets would be on sale in the Pie Shop beginning today, and later in the week sale will commence in Mendel Hall.

Drive Begins This Week

The chairman added that Jim Glavin, publicity committee chairman, and his committee had finished publicity arrangements. The big "get to the Cotillion" push will begin this week, Glavin stated.

Ed Corini, decoration committee chairman, announced that the decorative theme would be centered on a "Harvest Moon" chord. Corini and his decoration crew will invade the Field House next week.

A Week's Vacation

There will be no issue of the VILLANOVAN next Tuesday. This break in publication is made necessary by the rush of class work and extra study for quarterly examinations.

The next issue of the VILLANOVAN will be out Tuesday, November 21. All news for this issue should be in the office Wednesday afternoon, November 15.

Council Gets No On Query About 3 Days

Chairman Informs Students of Answer

Chairman Paul Davis informed the Student Council last night that the administration could not grant the request for three more days at Christmas.

Davis and Fr. McLoughlin had visited the offices of the President of the College, Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A. during the afternoon. They were informed at that time that it was impossible to cancel classes for those days because the time could not be made up later.

Therefore Christmas Recess will begin as scheduled after the last class Wednesday, December 20.

Arts Man Puts WVIL Back In Commission

Taking time out from his heavy routine of classes and other duties, Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O.S.A., WVIL moderator, has organized a crew of student mechanics to put the campus radio station back on the air. Leading the crew is Timothy Donovan, an Arts major who gained electronics experience while in the Navy during the war.

Donovan explains that the chief difficulty is in attempting to retrace the steps of John

Belle Masque, the Villanova College dramatic society will present "The Hasty Heart" in the Field House Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, November 19, 20 and 21.

"The Hasty Heart," a play telling the story of a second World War field hospital, will present nearly an all male cast. The lone exception will be Miss Mary Leavy, of Rosemont College, who will fill the lone female role.

Portrays Sick Scotsman

The play is the story of Lackie, a Scotsman, who unbeknown to himself, has a limited life to live. He is sent to a southeast Asia field hospital to spend his final days. The other patients of the hospital try vainly to comfort and amuse the doomed Scotchman, but he constantly spurns their efforts.

Jack Rowe is featured in the lead role of "Lackie." Miss Leavy will portray the nurse—the only feminine part in the play.

The stage setting is nearing completion, through the efforts of the Belle Masque stage crew, Mr. Jacob Krupa and the semin-

Hotel Biltmore Site Of New York Club Dance During Thanksgiving Recess

Bids on Sale for Five Dollars Apiece

The Biltmore Hotel will be the site of the annual New York Alumni Club dance Saturday evening, during the Thanksgiving vacation. Joseph McCabe, President of the club, made the announcement to this paper last week.

Bids will be sold on campus by representatives, Frank Gobes, and Jack Muratori at a cost of five dollars each. About one hundred tickets are on hand for purchase by the student body. Those remaining will be sold to the alumni from the Metropolitan area.

The date has been changed since last year to Saturday, November 25. It will be, as in the past, an informal dance. Gobes has suggested that those secur-

NFCCS Sponsors Dance on Sunday

Combo Entertains At Field House Social

The Villanovan Combo will play at the afternoon dance being held next Sunday in the Field House. The dance is being sponsored by the National Federation of Catholic College Students as a part of its current drive to raise funds for the Overseas Service Program.

Villanova's Senior delegate, Courtney Fleming, expects a large attendance since he has advertised the dance at all other Catholic colleges of the Philadelphia area.

Regional Conference Last Sunday

Last Sunday delegates from the seven affiliated Catholic colleges and many Villanova students attended the regional conference held on campus in the C&F Auditorium. At the meeting Fleming asked aid from the other senior delegates in publicizing the dance in their own colleges. He distributed two posters to each senior delegate, and also suggested a plan to have the senior delegates from the affiliated colleges act as hosts and hostesses at the dance.

Public Inspection of College Library To Be Held at December 'Open House'

N. Y. Artist to Unveil Presidents' Portraits

Public inspection of the College Library will take place for the first time Sunday afternoon, Dec. 3. Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., College president, has made available the facilities of the Library and extended an invitation to friends of the College to take part in the "open house" demonstration.

Part of the afternoon's ceremonies will include the unveiling of newly-acquired portraits of Villanova's Presidents painted by Patrick A. O'Connor, famous New York portrait artist. The paintings were donated by a member of the Friends of the Library group and will hang in the Villanova Room.

Staff To Be At Jobs

Thirteen staff members regularly employed by the Library, and several part-time student assistants will be on hand, performing the jobs they do in an ordinary working day. Other special arrangements are being made to show the services offered the student by the Library.

After the unveiling ceremonies, tea will be served by the Friends of the Library. This is a group which aids the work of the Library and generously aided the Augustinian order in the construction of the new building two years ago.

Newest Campus Structure

Presently the newest building on campus, the Library was built two years ago at a cost of about a half-million dollars. Formerly the Library facilities had been located on the ground floor of Austin Hall, where the student lounge is now. In its

Reckoning

A whole quarter of the school year has already passed. And it's one of the time-honored traditions of the College that at the end of each quarter we take inventory of what we've learned. That is the question, what have we learned? Well this week should answer that.

But whether or not you have missed the educational opportunities so far, there is still time to make up for it before January. It's your ball.

Commerce & Finance

by Father Barthley

A C&Fer From 'Way Back

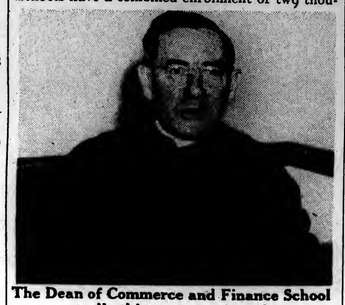
As Told to Jim Glavin

Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., has been Dean of the School of Commerce and Finance at Villanova College since September 1922. In a recent interview with this reporter, Father Bartley proudly pointed out the fact that when he became Dean twenty-eight years ago the registration of the school was thirty students.

C. & F.

"Today," stated Father Bartley, "the school has about nine hundred and seventy students." Father Bartley noted, however, that last year was the peak year for the school. The 1949-50 year found over one thousand students enrolled in Commerce and Finance Courses.

Employment



Employment opportunities for Commerce and Finance school graduates today are approximately triple of what they were twenty-eight years ago. Father Bartley recollected that while employment opportunities have tripled during this period, the national income has increased by about four times.

Forty-one Years

Father Bartley recalled that he began teaching at Villanova in 1916. "I first came to these grounds in 1909," Father said. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1918. After serving four years on the faculty he was raised to the position of Dean of the Commerce and Finance School in 1922. In 1928 Father assumed the Deanship of the extension, night, and graduate schools, also.

Growth

This year the extension, night, and graduate schools have a combined enrollment of two thousand, nine hundred and eighty-two students. With a Commerce and Finance student-body of about a thousand students, one can readily see why it became impossible for one man, even one as capable as Father Bartley, to handle both chores.

The Dean of Commerce and Finance School recalls thirty years of work.

Thus, Father Bartley has recently concentrated his full attention on the Commerce and Finance school and has turned over a well-oiled extension and graduate school to its new Dean, the Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O.S.A., former Dean of Arts and Science.

The Largest

The Commerce and Finance School, with the exception of the war years, has been the largest individual school of those comprising Villanova College since 1927.

A Building of Its Own

With the increased enrollment in the C&F school came the building of the Commerce and Finance building. The structure was erected in the building years of the early thirties, when Fedigan Hall and the Field House were also erected.

"Marketing," announced Father Bartley, "has been the favorite major for a long time." He added that Accounting, too, was a popular major course.

Alumni

Annually, Father hears from about eight hundred graduates of the school. "I hear from them by letters, postcards and Christmas cards," He stated that many of the graduates are now successful businessmen in such fields as real-estate, insurance, merchandising and law.

As the interview ended Father took pride in pointing out to your Villanovan representative that it was the Commerce and Finance school that started the paper in 1928. It grew to such proportions that the entire school finally took it over, pointed out Father Bartley.

The Flickers

ALL ABOUT EVE: Another 20th Century Fox picture has again hit the jackpot of Academy Award material. As star-studded as possible, the cast incluues: Bette Davis, Anne Baxter, George Sanders, and Celeste Holm. There is a comparative newcomer, Gary Merrill, who does a very passable job as the love interest for Miss Davis.

Miss Baxter . . .

The whole picture is laid in the setting of the contemporary world of the stage and follows the unwholesome career of an aspiring actress, portrayed by Anne Baxter, from extra to star. Miss Baxter uses Bette Davis and all others to gain her "place in the sun." The only person she cannot deceive is the cold critic, George Sanders.

The whole plot offers a dramatic challenge which the cast had to overcome to be convincing. The stars rise to this challenge and come up with a collection of performances that should merit every audience's applause.

And Bette Davis

Although Anne Baxter has the lead role, Betty Davis steals the show. She plays the reigning actress whom Anne uses to her own purpose. In the part she is perfect, and her love affair with a younger man, Gary Merrill, is as convincing as one would want it. There are many people who cannot stand Bette Davis, but even they should find her performance in this movie enjoyable. The supporting cast excels, especially George Sanders at his best as a suave, sardonic critic. This is one picture which lovers of good drama should make a must on their list.

THE NEXT VOICE YOU HEAR: This movie is an attempt to show what would happen to the world if God suddenly spoke over the radio and said He would be with us for a few days, as exemplified by the Joe Smith family. Unfortunately the whole thing is a flop. In the first place, no one seems to get particularly excited, and in the second place, nothing much is done. Joe, to be sure, learns to drive more carefully, but he also gets drunk because he is afraid. Mrs. Smith gets hysterical during a big storm yet she still has her baby. It seems to me that the whole thing could have been done without God in the picture, or better still, not at all.

TIPS FOR THE NEIGHBORHOOD: See "Louisa" when it gets out your way. For sheer comedy without a serious thought, this is the best. It concerns young love at the age of 65. We guarantee a pleasant evening while seeing this movie.

MANNERS FOR MALES

by Bill Brenninghouse

Seldom in the history of the written word has there appeared a book as influential and far reaching as Dr. O. Twomp's latest effort, "Poise For Boys." Twomp, who is familiar to all as the author of such self-help books as "Semaphore for Rich and Poor" and "Personality Through Weightlifting", has brought forth a book which young college youths have found to be invaluable to social success. Just a few examples of the solutions Dr. Twomp offers to typical problems of young gentle men will show its incalcuable worth.

On A Bus

Case L672. While boarding a bus a young man selects a seat beside a housewife carrying many bundles. He inadvertently seats himself upon a lemon meringue pie which the housewife had set beside her. SOLUTION. The young man remains unexcited. He keeps his seat and looks neither to the left nor to the right. If the housewife leaves first, the young man rises and tips his hat. If he must leave first, the young man rises, tips his hat and proceeds to leave the bus by walking down the aisle backwards, subjecting neither himself nor the housewife to the least embarrassment.

At Dinner

Case DF19. A young man, dining at the home of a lady friend, elbows his coffee into the lap of the young lady's mother. As the shocked lady rises her gown is ripped to shreds since the young man had placed his chair on the lower ruffles of said gown. Since this causes her to lose her balance she grabs the tablecloth, which follows her with all its contents on to the floor. SOLUTION. The young man remains calm and unflustered. He turns to his young lady friend and suggests that that they dine out. They leave immediately, thus avoiding all embarassment.

About Automobiles

Case Q53. In driving his automobile the wrong way down a one-way street, a young man collides with another automobile killing its five occupants and setting fire to a nearby tenement. A policeman arrives and wishes to apprehend the young man. SOLUTION. The young man remains unruffled. He requires the policeman to prove his identity and authority. If the policeman refuses, the young man takes a revolver from the glove compartment of the automobile and shoots the policeman for unjust persecution.

Yes, Dr. Twomp has given the youth of the world something to shout about "Poise for Boys" is a must for every young youth under twenty-five years of age. Its philosophy can be summed up in one phrase. Dr. Twomp advises everyone to, "Stay loose."

Displa y Here Shows Evidence

Documentary evidence illustrating the traditional acceptance of the Assumption by Church and man is now being displayed in the lobby of the College Library.

Arranged by Rev. Michael O'Donnell, O.S.A., curator, the exhibit shows references to the Assumption which date from the fifth century. Taken from liturgy, art and literature, the examples shown reflect popular acceptance of the doctrine centuries before its recent promulgation as a dogma by the Pope.

The oldest liturgical reference shown is the mention made of Rome's celebration of the feast of the Assumption some time before 496. This is found in a copy of "The Sacramentary of Gelasius" written before the author's death in that year. In chronological order, the next reference comes in a copy of a sermon on the Assumption preached by St. John Damascene about 727.

Early in the 1500s, the display shows, St. Thomas of Villanova preached seven sermons on the doctrine of the Assumption. One of these is shown as well as various references by other saints in other liturgical works.

Popular belief in the Assumption has been prevalent for centuries, as the Library exhibit shows. Mary's bodily glorification was the subject of Fra Angelica's painting in the fifteenth century, and a work by Juan de Juanes one century later. El Greco painted this subject in 1613, as did Murillo in 1668.

Covering the field of secular literature, the display shows mention of the Assumption in the Divine Comedy of Dante (Paradiso Canto 25, lines 127-28). Current literature also reflects popular acceptance of the dogma, as shown by articles in contemporary periodicals. Most impressive of these is the article in a recent edition of Life magazine included in the exhibit. This issue contains not only a reproduction of El Greco's Assumption, but an informative exposition by Graham Greene, noted writer and Catholic convert.

Not Here?

by Jim Griffin

"Where shall the word be found, where will the word Resound? Not here. There is not enough silence . . ."
—Eliot.

Silence . . . the space between the tickings of a clock, between footfalls on a dark street. It is a world of its own, where space and time meet, and stretch out to infinity. Then the blast of a horn or the wail of a far away siren, and silence snaps like a twig, and infinity rushes in, damming everything up into a tiny segment. Matter is material again, space is position, time is a procession of passing moments.

Silence is a fascinating thing. It is mute, and yet offers the best conveyance for profoundity. It is the one thing we cannot hear, and at the same time the one thing most worth while listening to. It is a time, the time most vital to our existence as men, as beings possessed of immortal souls.

For God is polite. He waits his turn to speak to us, so that His words come best in moments of silence, and not at all in the din and clatter of modern life. This makes it very convenient for us if we want to avoid what God has to say, for it is necessary then only to bury our ears in the noise we call good times; or at least so it seems.

Actually, it is not so simple. For noise, no matter how loud or boisterous, is always discontinuous, and the commas which punctuate it are moments of silence, haunting moments if there are things we do not want to hear.

On the other hand, if we sincerely want to know God, and know what He wants us to know, we must seek our moments of silence. And these moments are most effective when they continue somewhat beyond the inevitable clicks of a frantic day. If they take the form of short, thoughtful pauses they can be very effective; and if they could only stretch into a daily four or five minutes in the back of the chapel, they would become infinitely so.

Try it some day. Stop in, and just listen to the dead still, the cool quiet of a church at noonday. Sometimes it may seem annoying, but that is a sign that it is needed.

NEW MASCOT ENDS OLD TRADITION

Count Villian IV—Last of Villanova Nobility

Count Villan IV will be the last of Villanova's live wildcat mascots.

His death marks the end of a tradition which was started back in 1930. College officials have decided that a student dressed in the skin of a wildcat will be the new mascot attraction, because veterinarian's have stated that such felines are subject to fits and cannot live in this weather. Skits will be put on with the new mascot as the star performer.

Count IV

His Lordship, the Count, came from the Florida Everglades with the compliments of the Florida Commission. He remained here only six months as he arrived in April and died in September of this year.

And Count III

His predecessor, Villan III, was given to us in the summer of 1947. He had a colorful career. He was spirited away by Georgetown students in November, 1947 and appeared at various games, driven around the field via the Villan Chariot. His fame was further enhanced when he received his first letter —a letter from the Georgetown mascot "Butch", a dog. He died during the summer of 1949.

Villan II lived at college only one year. He is the only cat that has been stuffed and is on display in the Alumni Office. The original Count Villan survived an equally short time.

COUNT VILLIAN IV

THIRD ORDER IN ACTION

By David F. Jones

Last week we discussed the general purposes and history of the Third Order of St. Augustine. In this article we will attempt to outline the actual work done and the benefits shared by the members. They meet at regular intervals, usually twice a month here on campus.

At the meetings they recite approved Augustinian prayers, and listen to short instructions on their religion and its obligations. Here also they lay plans for the practice of the Spiritual and Corporal Works of Mercy. Once each month the entire membership hears Holy Mass in a body.

The members of the Third Order also share in all the indulgences and other spiritual benefits that are granted to the members of the First Order. They wear under their clothes a small cincture as a symbol of the purity of their lives. One of the special privileges which the Tertiaries hold most dear is that of being buried in the habit of St. Augustine.

There seems to be a very mistaken idea prevalent around the campus that the Third Order is some sort of secret society, that its members must join for life, and that its membership is restricted to a select few. The truth of the matter is that the society is open to all, both male and female. It is true that the Third Order here at Villanova is composed only of men, but the practical facts that the student body is completely male and that the organization is yet in infancy here explain this circumstance. In many local parishes the Third Order has both men and women as active members.

Despite many difficulties inherent in beginning such an organization, the Villanova branch of the Third Order is growing slowly and surely from the seeds of spirit and enthusiasm which founded it. For those who wish to become members in the near future there will be a reception of new members in December and March. Anyone wishing to join, or to secure further information, should see the Rev. Henry J. Eagan, O.S.A., the moderator, or inquire at the Chaplain's office.

In Lincoln, Nebraska, a favorite gathering spot of students at the University of Nebraska is Hermie's "Inn" because it is a cheerful place —full of friendly university atmosphere. And when the gang gathers around, ice-cold Coca-Cola gets the call. For here, as in university haunts everywhere—Coke belongs.

Ask for it either way . . . both trade-marks mean the same thing.

Operation Yule Far Below Goal; One-Third Collected

More Funds Needed For Bigger And Better Christmas For Tots

Operation Yule moved into its third week of activity, with classroom collections still behind par. The goal of $1500 needed to make the project a success is far from being realized. Although $500 has been collected, more contributions on the part of the students are necessary to make the operation successful.

This years Operation Yule is being planned on a bigger scale than previous years. An all out effort on the part of the committee in charge is in progress. With strong support from the student body, this can be the best Christmas yet given to the orphans at St. John's.

The contribution asked from the student is small. The project is a big one, with each small contribution necessary. No student should let the opportunity to help these boys slip by. The project is one of the most worthy performed by the student body. "A man is never so tall as when he stoops to help a child".

Cullen Junior Outing Chairman

The Junior Class last week added a new activity to Junior Week with the planning of a class outing. At the class steering committee meeting last Thursday, this activity received the unanimous approval of the group. Tom Cullen, former vice-president of the class was appointed to chairman the function.

Scheduled for the third of May, this activity promises to be one of the most popular of the social week. Something new in the realm of Junior Week entertainment, it promises to add variety to the week.

Harry Mason, in charge of Blazers, spoke to the committee in regard to the companies contacted. Expecting a large demand for the jackets, Mason is attempting to get the best price and quality blazer.

Lambda Kappa Initiates 40 Pledges In Alumni Hall Gym

Under the direction of Murray Seitchik, president of Lambda Kappa Delta, 40 new members were initiated into the fraternity Monday night, October 30. Initiations were held in the Alumni Hall gymnasium.

The pledges were blindfolded and subjected to a mild inquisition. This was followed by the usual painting of the pledges' faces and hands amid much spirited clowning by the old members. After crawling around on their hands and knees the initiates, still blindfolded, stood before a wire recorder and told what they thought of the proceedings. The new members then cleaned themselves up and adjourned to the Biology lab in Mendel Hall.

Sandwiches, cokes and cigarettes were distributed to everyone and the recording was played back to the new members, who did not know that they had spoken into a recorder microphone.

Comments of the new members after the initiation gave a general impression that they enjoyed the rather doubtful pleasure of the initiation. But they indicated that they are looking forward to next year when they will be on the other end of it.

Chem Group Visits Chestnut Hill

Villanova's Chemical Society will go to Chestnut Hill College this Friday night for a joint meeting and dance with the Chemical Society of C. H. C. All science students of Villanova are urged to attend this meeting which will feature a discussion on "The Recent Advancements in the Study of the Rare Metals."

The relation of the subject to Medicine and Physics will be considered by Barbra Higbee and Sue Wentworth, of Chestnut Hill, while John Greene and John McDonough will cover Industry and Warfare for Villanova. After the main speakers the subject will be opened for a panel discussion.

Refreshments and a dance are planned to make the meeting a social as well as an intellectual success.

'CATS UNSUCCESSFUL IN DETROIT; KITTENS CONQUER CORNELL, 7-0

Joe Billera TD Beats Little Red

By Bud Russo

The Wildkittens gained their second straight shutout, downing Cornell's Big Red, 7-0, at Goodreau Stadium last Friday.

Charlie Bottino led the Kitten attack with 82 yards for five tries. In all, the Main Line Kittens rolled up 218 yards, while the defense held the Cayuga Warriors to 155 yards.

Lou Maeiro and Rich Miller again were the bulkwarks of defense along with "Dolphus" Hoch, Ed McKnight, Joe Billera and Jack Rowe.

Billera Scores Only T.D.

The only score came in the first quarter, with Joe Billera taking it across from the 32. Frank Neary made it 7-0, with his boot between the uprights.

The game was nip and tuck all afternoon after that, with both sides threatening but neither able to reach the double stripe.

Mainliner's Drive Falls Short

Early in the second quarter another tally by the Main Liners was just missed when a pass from Lemmer to McCreary was seemingly good, only to bobble out of the fleet fullback's hands. In the third quarter, Bill Lemmer's quick-passing led the Villanova team on a 61-yard drive that fell short, four yards from paydirt.

Cornell, led by Smith their quarterback, Bell and Jessen, drove to Villanova's 40 where they kicked. Bottino took the Kittens out of a hole on the next play by galloping 14 yards to the 25. After an exchange of kicks Bottino again lugged the ball for 29 yards to Cornell's 19.

Villanova end, Jim Gallo, is hauled down by Cornell tacklers after snagging a pass which gave the Kittens a first down. QB Bill Lemmer (41) looks on.

The Red Men then took over on a fumble.

Big Red Threat Stopped

Cornell's last threat came when in eight plays, they reached the 29-yard stripe. On fourth down with one yard needed for a first, they were held. A minute later the game was over.

The job that the defensive team was doing was quite good. The biggest improvement is at the ends, where Coach Joe Restik has turned out very good sweep-stoppers in Bud Holland, Bill Landis, Fred Morris, and Jim Gallo.

Next Saturday the Kittens will celebrate Armistice Day at Princeton. A win over the Jerseyites would certainly bolster the lightweight's record, despite their loss to Navy in the season's opener.

18-7 Loss Results From Fumble and Blocked Punt

Geppi Scores Mainliner TD; Zuber's Two Returns Brilliant; D'Alonzo Injury Felt

By Joe Corcoran

Villanova's Wildcats, plagued by bad breaks and unable to capitalize on their own opprrtunities, were humbled by Detroit University, 18-7, in the Motor City Friday evening. The defeat, the 'Cats fourth in six games this fall, was administered on the wet turf of Detroit Stadium before 9000 fans.

Taking full advantage of two blocked kicks and a Wildcat fumble, the Titans, after spotting Villanova seven points in the game's opening moments, struck for single tallies in each of the game's first three periods. The victory was the Midwesterner's first in the past six games of the rivalry and only their fifth triumph in 18 contests waged between the two clubs.

The Leonardmen threatened on four occasions in the first half, but with the exception of John Geppi's three-yard touchdown slash, this attack bogged down as the goal line drew near.

O'Boyle, Geppi Lead Attack

Rain and 30 degree temperature hampered the Mainliners throughout the second half when they garnered the meagre total of 47 yards. Neil O'Boyle and Geppi led the visitors' attack, O'Boyle passing for 96 yards on 9 completions in 21 attempts, and Geppi carrying a dozen times for 50 yards. Walt Zuber added a few bright notes, too, with a 42-yard return of the initial kick-off and some fancy running from scrimmage.

The 'Cats began the game as though they meant to rout their hosts, marching 56 yards in 10 plays to inaugurate the scoring. After Zuber returned the kick-off, he alternated with Pete D'Alonzo and Geppi in moving the ball to the Detroit three. from that point, Geppi sliced over and Bob Haner toed the seventh point.

Titans Score Two in First Half

Shortly afterward, Mickey Frinzi's punt was partially blocked and the Titans gained possession on the Villanova 32. Mike Goggins, powerful U. D. fullback, needed but three plays to score, his final thrust starting from nine yards out. Sam Cipparone's conversion attempt failed and the 'Cats still led, 7 to 6.

Detroit added another tally on the first play of the second period. Lee Witmer, a standout in the Titan line, broke through and blocked another Frinzi boot on the six. The ball bounded into the end zone where Dan McKenzie fell on it for six points.

During the remainder of the half, Villanova dominated the play but failed to score after reaching the 16, 33 and 2-yard lines. On the last threat, Detroit took over with only 20 seconds remaining, after thwarting attempts by D'Alonzo and Geppi from the two.

The final Detroit touchdown came as a result of a fumble in the waning moments of the third stanza. Recovered on the Wildcat eight, the ball was carried over three plays later on a one-yard smash by Goggins.

Odds and Ends

Pete D'Alonzo still showed the effects of the foot injury which handicapped him in the Georgetown game. Pete carried the ball 11 times for 43 yards . . . the squad entrained immediately after the game for Villanova where they have a two-week rest and preparation period before meeting Boston College

Keats Concentrates On Coming Contests

With Turkey Day only 16 days away, the jig-saw puzzle of college football should be shaping itself into some sort of identifiable form. In other words, the men should be separated from the boys, the reliable winners from the habitual losers, and so on. But, week after week, Old Man Upset rears his ugly head and Ye Olde Forecaster loses another handful of hair. So, with hair restorer in hand, head clear again—here is what should happen on the gridiron next Saturday:

Alamaba to keep rolling over Mississippi Southern.

Arkansas to boil Rice.

Army to edge New Mexico by at least 50.

Texas to bulldog Baylor.

Clemson to keep Boston College unhappy.

Penn's "Reds" too bright for Brown.

California to coast by U.C.L.A.

Cornell to regain its balance against Colgate.

Colorado to take Missouri against the President's wishes.

Dartmouth to upset Columbia. The New Yorkers won their "game" of the year.

Detroit to keep Duquesne winless.

Georgia has too much for Florida.

Fordham's Ram to butt Georgetown, but the Hoya might bite back. A close one.

Princeton still on top of the Ivy League after the Harvard tussle.

Illinois over Iowa as the "I's" have it.

Michigan to bounce Indiana in a Big 10 bout.

Kentucky's "Babe" will knock off Mississippi State.

Vanderbilt to make L. S. U.'s joy short-lived.

Maryland to crawl past North Carolina.

Notre Dame will taste victory over Pitt.

Ohio State's powerhouse will batter the Badgers of Wisconsin.

Northwestern to put Purdue in reverse.

S. M. U.'s aerial circus will fly over Texas A. and M.

IN THE ENEMY CAMP

By George Scanlon

BOSTON COLLEGE

A winless Boston College eleven was handed its sixth defeat in a row by Penn State, 20-13. Sophomore Phil Anders killed the Eagles' hope of a upset with his fine running. The Beantowners played their best ball game to date as fullback Ed Petela was responsible for all the Bostonians' scoring.

L. S. U.

The Louisiana State football powerhouse finally lived up to their high preseason rating by mauling Mississippi 40-14. Kenny Konz, behind the monstrous Bayou line, could have named his own score. Mississippi conquered Boston College, 53-0, thus comparative scores would reveal that L. S. U. is 79 points better than Boston College, which isn't a very pleasant result as the Villanova-Boston College game is rated a toss-up.

KENTUCKY

Unbeaten Kentucky unloosed battering Bill Leskovar and speedy Will Jamerson to blast Florida 40-6 in snow and rain. Kentucky's the nation's number 5 college football power amassed a 26-6 halftime lead. The Wildcats now have won eight games without a defeat—the only obstacle in their remaining 3 games is Tennessee.

MIAMI

The University of Miami Hurricanes ran wild in the fourth period Friday nite to wallop Georgetown, 42-7, to remain unbeaten. The victory was very costly as Jack Hackett, the 146-pound passing wizard hurt his shoulder and may be out for the remainder of the season. The Hurricanes are practically "in" as being unbeaten if they whip their traditional rival Florida in 2 weeks.

Georgetown's Hoyas must face Fordham in Yankee Stadium, Saturday and will be a passing duel between Hoya's Frank Mattingly and the Ram's accurate Dick Doheny.

On the prediction side we look for Kentuck to roll over Vanderbilt, St. Mary's to eke out Nevada, Miami to down Louisville Tulsa to win over Oklahoma A. & M., Fordham to wallop Georgetown and Detroit to murder Duquesne.

GRADUATION LOSSES HIT COURT QUINTET; BERTHS A TOSS-UP

By Harry Range

Not only does Wildcat basketball tutor, Al Severance, face the almost impossible task of replacing his All-American center, Paul Arizin, but he must also find an entirely new starting combination for the coming hardwood campaign.

Graduation took Captain Leo Wolf, stellar guard and his running mate, Joe Hannan, along with Tom Sabol and Brooks Ricca, a pair of great point getters who operated at forwards. In addition the Wildcat's reserve strength of Perry Del Purgatorio, Jack Crossin, John Weglicki, and Shy Raiken was also lost via the diploma route.

Only three lettermen, Tom Brennan, Tom Dolan, and Ben Stewart, return from last season's squad which won 25 of 29 contests.

Of the three, Severance will likely call upon 6 foot 5 inch Tom Brennan to step into the mighty shoes of Paul Arizin who is now starring for the Philadelphia Warriors. Brennan, a junior saw plenty of work during the 1949-50 campaign and looked good in the pivot. It was big Tom's extra-period field goal which gave the Main Liners a one point victory over North Carolina State at Raleigh last year.

Frosh to Fill Gaps

While they lack experience, the Wildcat freshmen squad showed several potential varsity starts last year. Coached by "Maje" McDonnell, of the Philadelphia Phils, the yearling club went through an 18 game season undefeated.

High on the list of varsity material is Nick Maguire, fiery sharpshooter from South Philadelphia, who is a fine playmaker and a great drive in artist.

High-scorer Larry Hennessey and Sam Glassmire are certain

Sophs Humble Frosh In First Annual Field Meet

In the first annual Soph-Frosh field meet, the Sophs won out in a tough struggle that wasn't decided until the final whistle had blown.

The Sophs started off fast, winning the first two events with ease, but were caught by surprise by a thrilling Freshman comeback that tied up the score going into the final event.

Cummin Clancy, anchor man on the Soph chariot relay team, composed of O'Donnell, Matton and Flaherty, pushed O'Donnell across the finish line with a thirty yard lead over Minser, whose running mates were Quinn, Cormack, and Anger. Captain McDonnell's Tug of War squad then took the second event in quick succession by outtugging Mark Cormack's huskies, to give the Sophs a comfortable ten point lead.

Frosh Take Pigskin Heave

Then the roof caved in as the rookies took first and second honors in the football throw, first and third in the three-legged race, and first in the kicking contest, to tie the score at thirty all. It was Mike Quinn, former New Jersey high school javelin champ, heaving the spear 60 yards to chalk up five points and Keller following up with three points, while Brown was the lone Soph scorer, with two. Bader of the Frosh then came through with one of the prize upsets as he outbooted Clancy and Flaherty to take another first, while the two Sophs placed second and third respectively. This brought the Soph lead down to 22-18, and their former confidence was visibly shaken.

Three Legs Better Than Two

In the next event, the three-legged race, the Frosh would have gone ahead had it not been for the thrilling comeback of Jim Maher and John Gillman, former Regis High and LaSalle Academy cinder stars. Trailing the two Frosh entries by twenty yards at the halfway mark, the duo put on a terrific closing spurt to garner second place by one foot and lost to Miller and DiMarsh by only two yards. This set up the tie score going into the football game.

The big Soph line led by Clancy, Ackerman, and McDonald and an alert secondary which intercepted five passes, were the main factors as the Sophs won 12-6. The Freshmen completed only two passes, one a 55 yard effort on the last play for a touchdown, as Joe Ranieri and Hubert Flaherty played heads up defensive ball all day. After a scoreless first half, Larry O'Hearn snagged two aerials in the end zone, one 10 yards thrown by Sollami, and the second a 40 yard strike by Brown. The Frosh score came when Mike Quinn, after being knocked back to the 2 yard line on the preceeding play, reared back in the end zone and threw to Jack DiMarsh who raced 33 yards after snaring it.

Nice Going, Frosh

Without slighting the Sophs for a job well done, we wish to express our heartiest congratulations to the Freshmen, who came out on the field with the few men they had, and although outweighed and outclassed in every event, played their hearts out and almost upset the apple cart. If there's such a thing as a moral victory, you have one, fellows. Villanova's proud of you, and we're expecting big things of a class with spirit like that.

Simpson Wins Division Race

Simpson won the Austin division crown with a 25-0 victory over the Fire House 5&4 last Thursday. This gave them an undefeated record with five wins. DiJoe was the big gun as he scored three TD's, one a fifty yard return after intercepting an aerial chucked by Westhead. Turzo scored the other six pointer also on an interception. For the Fire Housers it was Bogarty doing some nice running, but lacking the punch to take it across the final white line.

Frosh Gridders To Meet Army Friday

Villanova's Frosh grid squad will wind up their two game schedule next Friday when they face the Army Plebes at West Point.

The junior Wildcats will be looking for their second victory at government expense. Previously they walloped the Navy fourth classmen, 38-19.

Pacing the Mainliners will be their sharp eyed quarterback McNicholas who passed the sailors silly. Addiego the halfback who catches passes as well as runs will be in there also, in addition to that big Frosh line.

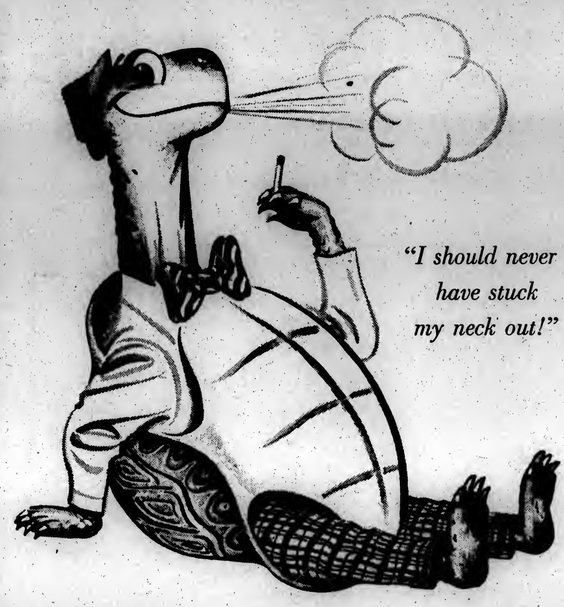
Dinner-Dance Topic For Talk At Senior Meeting

At a meeting of the Senior Class last Thursday evening, the class decided to hold the traditional Dinner-Dance on June 2.



No location has been agreed upon, but connections have been made with the Ben Franklin Hotel and several other hotels in the Philadelphia area. President Joe Rugo appointed Bill Gormley and Larry Gallen as co-Chairmen of the affair.

Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O.S.A., newly appointed Moderator of the class was introduced and gave the Invocation. He also stated that a letter of good luck and best wishes was received from the former Moderator, Rev. Thomas P. Purcell, O.S.A. Fr. Burke replaced Fr. Terrapin's head was spinning — didn't know if he was coming or going! But he slowed down to his own speed — decided there was no need to rush. And he was right, too! College President Attends Two Education Conventions

Travels to Hershey And Erie for Talks

Villanova's president, Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., attended the conventions of two educational associations last month. Fr. McGuire was present at the Annual Convention of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities held at the Hershey Hotel in Hershey, Pa., on Monday and Tuesday, October 16 and 17.

Chief subjects of discussion were: A. The effects of the present world crisis on higher education; B. Colleges and the proposed universal military training; C. College facilities in the event of national mobilization.

Re-elected President

The Association pledged efforts to both state and national government in the occurence of any future emergency. Fr. McGuire was re-elected president of the association and member of the executive committee.

At the Catholic Education Association of Pennsylvania held at Erie, Pa., October 20, 21, 22, Fr. McGuire delivered the opening address at the first session in the auditorium of Gannon College. The keynote of the meeting was "Truth, Not Guns" and the convention's subject was a critcal evaluation of Catholic college education in the State of Pennsylvania in the light of Papal Encyclicals.

BETA LAMBDA PLANS FOR ELECTIONS

Ballots have been mailed to members of Beta Lambda for election of officers in the education fraternity.

Beta Lambda was chartered last March and a program of activities aimed at acquainting the seventeen active members with professional problems is now being planned. Tom Eichman, a graduate of last June, and Tom Russo are acting officers until the new executives are installed.

Education School

Membership is open to education students who have completed six hours of education and have a 2.5 average in education subjects and a 2.0 average in other subjects. Meetings are usually held once a month.

Convention

John Veltry and Tom Russo attended the bi-annual convention of the fraternity in Pittsburgh last week and will report the conclusions of the convention to Beta Lambda at the next meeting.

President's Uncle Dies

The student body of Villanova extends its deepest sympathy to Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire O.S.A. on the death of his uncle, Rev. Owen B. McGuire, D.D.

Fr. McGuire's death at 86 marks the end of a brilliant career as a writer and lecturer, which began in Ireland where he received his early education. From there he went Austria where he was ordained to the priesthood. Fr. McGuire later studied at the North American College in Rome. He held the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology.

Fr. McGuire came to America shortly before the turn of the century to teach in upper New York but soon after returned to Rome to write for various Catholic publications. From there he was sent, as a missionary, to the Canary Islands where he contracted malaria.

He was sent to his final post in Elmira, N. Y. in 1933 where he lived at St. Joseph's Hospital until his death.

Kane, a recent graduate, who originally assembled the set from whatever war surplus parts he could obtain. Kane left few directions behind when he graduated, though, and the crew of students has found the job of working with the maze of wires and tubes a difficult one.

Fr. Rongione and the student directors of WVIL were momentarily dismayed when they heard Donovan's report that a power transformer, worth about $50, may have to be replaced. Donovan is planning to contact Kane to see if he may be able to suggest a simpler way of making the electrical connections.

Both the moderator and the students believe that things are at last going well with the station. They are hoping that the first staff meeting will take place within the next two weeks.

Chairman Bruderle Reschedules Speech

The second lecture in the 1950-51 Villanova Forum series, originally scheduled for Wednesday evening, December 6th, will not be held that evening. A basketball double-header at the Palestra has forced Mr. Charles Bruderle, Forum chairman to reschedule the lecture. He will announce the date in the next edition of this paper.

Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O.S.A., Ph.d., Professor of Philosophy at Villanova, will deliver this second lecture. His topic will be "Human Rights and the Individual," fitting in with the general Forum theme of "Human Rights and Natural Law."

New Date

Chairman Bruderle stated that several dates are under consideration for the second lecture, and that a night as close to the original date as possible will be chosen.

Chow line cutting also came under discussion. It was decided that future offenders will be warned this first time. The second and each succeeding offense will cost the errant student one dollar each time. 'Villanovans' Play For 400 Couples

A gayly decorated Field House, attractively trimmed along a "Harvest Moon" theme, was the setting of the annual Sophomore Cotillion last Friday evening.

Approximately four hundred couples danced to the music of "The Villanovans" at the affair. The Cotillion was the social highlite of the year for the Class of 1953.

The "Harvest Moon" theme, replete with cornstalks, was effective. The decorative endeavors were handled by Ed Corini and his decoration committee.

Committees

Chairman Hubert Flaherty and the Sophomore Class President, Paul Sollami, were in charge of arrangements for the Cotillion. They were assisted by Corini; Dan O'Connell and Harry Quigley, ticket co-chairmen; Bob Radcliffe and his refreshment committee; Jim Glavin, publicity chairman; and, Bob Landers, head of the program committee.

Chairman Flaherty expressed his appreciation for the work done by all the committees and

New Villanova Stadium Planned; Drive Underway

A new and larger stadium for Villanova College is the aim of a fund-raising drive launched by athletic authorities last week. Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Moderator of Athletics, disclosed the plans in several meetings with student groups.

Stadium Needed

He pointed out that Villanova has urgent need of such a stadium if its ambitious athletic program is to continue to expand. Such a staduim, said Father McKee, is a necessity if outstanding home schedules, which the students and alumni have long yearned for, are to be arranged.

Funds for the stadium are to be raised as soon as possible so that building may begin as soon as such construction is permitted. The funds are to come from Alumni, friends, and students of the college.

Thanksgiving Dance Marks Recess For New Yorkers

Biltmore Site Of Annual Alumni Hop

This Saturday evening the New York Alumni Club will be host at the annual Thanksgiving recess dance. The Bowman Room of the Biltmore has been selected for the affair.

A last minute reduction in the price of student tickets has brought down the bids to four dollars each. Earlier the price had been set at five.

Biltmore New Site

An informal affair, the Turkey-day hop has been held for the past three years. Though the Statler has been the site for the affair the club has selected the Biltmore this year for the dance.

Some fifty tickets are still remaining on campus and they may be obtained from either Frank Gobes, 305 Fedigan or Jack Muratori 8 O'Dwyer Hall. The last-minute boys will be able to obtain tickets at the dance, though the representatives hope to sell most of them before leaving the campus.

SYMPATHY

Sympathy is extended to Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A., on the death of his mother, by the Villanovan staff and the student body.

Masses will be celebrated in the college chapel for the happy repose of her soul.

Library Exhibit Set For Dec. 3

Guided tours showing the daily functions of the College Library and a display of the recently painted portraits of Villanova's 21 presidents will be the two highlights of the first public demonstration of the Library facilities on Sunday afternoon, December 3.

Formal invitations from the College President were sent this week to parents of the upperclassmen, members of the faculty, and friends of the College. Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., Librarian, expects a large number to take advantage of this opportunity to inspect the new building from top to bottom.

1st Demonstration

"Before this time," said Fr. Falvey, "we haven't been able to show visitors the building with all its facilities in operation. The demonstration will give us a chance to show just what the Library is, and how it works." During the demonstration thirteen regularly employed staff members will perform the jobs they do every day, showing services offered by the Library. A number of students will be stationed throughout the building to guide visitors and explain the Library's building and functions.

President's Uncle Dies

The student body of Villanova extends its deepest sympathy to Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire O.S.A. on the death of his uncle, Rev. Owen B. McGuire, D.D.

Fr. McGuire's death at 86 marks the end of a brilliant career as a writer and lecturer, which began in Ireland where he received his early education. From there he went Austria where he was ordained to the priesthood. Fr. McGuire later studied at the North American College in Rome. He held the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology.

Fr. McGuire came to America shortly before the turn of the century to teach in upper New York but soon after returned to Rome to write for various Catholic publications. From there he was sent, as a missionary, to the Canary Islands where he contracted malaria.

He was sent to his final post in Elmira, N. Y. in 1933 where he lived at St. Joseph's Hospital until his death.

Thanksgiving

Global war threatens us, a war which might very well cost us our lives. Even now the country is involved in a Korean war. Yet despite this and despite the trials we face every day we have many blessings, much for which to be thankful. It is a custom to mark a special day for that each year. Gratitude will be foremost in our hearts this Thursday.

The custom was born amidst the hardships suffered by the early settlers of New England. They faced greater trials and dangers in an immediate sense, than we do today. Yet those hardy pioneers, realizing that they had been provided with many gifts, took time to offer their thanks to God. They had just reaped their first successful harvest. They felt immense satisfaction in what we take for granted. Their gratitude was not expressed because of expensive clothes, a new carriage or greater wealth, but merely because they had gathered enough food to last them through the coming winter.

Now the country has grown to be a land of plenty. We are not concerned with lack of food but face the problems of what to do with the excess. We strive for the machines and inventions which will make life more pleasurable. Materialism is the philosophy of everyday life.

In such environment it is a wonderful thing to continue this custom. Maybe it is with a bit of that Yankee pride that we maintain this as a uniquely American tradition. Quite possibly it has simply grown with the country from the days of the New England colonists as part of our heritage. Whatever be the cause, it is a beautiful thing when all across a nation families gather around festive tables to give thanks to God.

Patrick J. O'Connor

Irishman, Artist and Athlete

People expect an artist to be an eccentric person. They don't generally picture an artist six feet tall, healthy as a lumberman, and built like a fullback.

Patrick J. O'Connor who recently painted portraits of Villanova's 21 presidents, fits both descriptions. His appearance shatters the common conception of an artist. He is huge, a few inches over six feet tall, broad in shoulder, and young looking enough to be mistaken for a varsity football prospect.

Yet he is also unconventional. He'd have to be to sport the flowing beard that covers half his face and a good portion of his shirt-front. He'd have to be to wear the baggy tweeds that mark a person as an intellectual of sorts.

ARTIST

By Self Portrait

Twenty-One Portraits

At any rate he is a person who has contributed much to Villanova's traditions by portraying in oils the College presidents, from Fr. O'Dwyer, first president 1842, to Fr. McGuire, present executive. These portraits will be unveiled early next month.

O'Connor's project in Villanova tradition began last August when he was commissioned by a friend of the Library to undertake the job. For his models he used photographs that appeared in the 1943 centennial edition of the Belle Air Yearbook. He usually paints only live models, but in this case made an exception. "After all," he said," it would be quite impractical to have the men pose in person when some of them have been dead for fifty years."

His Achievements

These 21 portraits, O'Connor admits, are examples of his best work. From a man with his artistic background that statement means a lot. He has exhibited at leading national and international exhibitions, including the Paris International Exposition of 1937, the Paris Salon, the Museum of Modern Art in Amsterdam, and the New York World Fair in 1939. O'Connor has also conducted successful "one-man" exhibitions in Paris, London, and the Rheinhardt Gallery in New York.

An Athlete

Formal education for the bearded O'Connor was, as he said "rather informal. I was born in Paris and from then on lived and learned wherever my family happened to be in Europe or America." A one-time boxer, swimming champ, and professional wrestler, O'Connor now devotes his time to sculpturing and painting in his downtown New York studio-apartment.

Some Day . . .

The artist admitted that all the Villanova portraits are good. "But my best work," he declared, "went into the portrait of Fr. Fedigan. You see, the Library displays a portrait of the priest done by Thomas Eakins, the greatest American portrait artist. Eakins had not yet become famous when he did that work. Like him, I paint the priest before I have achieved fame. Perhaps someday people will come back to Villanova to study my work like they do to study Eakins'. And if that ever happens, I would like my portrait to compare favorably with the one by Eakins."

Mr. O'Connor poses with one of his paintings.

Elements Of A Language"

" . . . sounding brass, and tinkling cymbals . . ."

Love . . . what is it? . . . why is it? Since the beginning of time, men have thought about it, and their thought has been reflected in their writings. Philosophers, poets, and ordinary men in the street have turned their attention to it . . . it . . . because it is vital.

Basic

For love is the single unifying factor in all the lists of virtues, vices, emotions, tendencies, and motivations, which offers the code-key for the complete rationality of human life.

The Romans had two words for it: caritas, and amor. Caritas to them meant the spiritual, intellectual love of friend for friend, of man for God. Amor was the love of passion, of which the flesh was an indispensable characteristic.

Fitting . . . And Not Fitting

In a certain sense it was fitting that there should be two words for love, because the two kinds of love are indeed different. And yet, in another sense, the English is more fitting when it uses one word for both. For amor is actually a reflection in the flesh of the higher, more spiritual, caritas. And it shares in the dynamic nature of the caritas, for it is a vital factor in life and action on the material plane, just as caritas is indispensable for life on the spiritual level.

Indispensable

Perhaps indispensable is one of the best words that could be used to explain the function of charity in the spiritual life. For it is the value-giving factor in any effort or action which humans perform. And at the same time, it is the one thing which explains why a man should devote himself to God and God's purposes.

God Towards Man

And from the other point of view, charity explains God's concern for man. It explains why He implanted in him a sense of the natural law, and why He followed this with a clear cut body of revelation, so that it became as simple as possible for man to find the right course towards his eternal salvation. It explains the perpetual care which God exercises in protecting his Church, his agent in preserving and interpreting this law. And most important of all, it tells us why God took a human nature and came upon the earth to earn our salvation, why He willingly suffered the tortures of His passion and crucifixion.

The Ultimate Basis

Thus the whole of Christianity can be summed up in this one idea. The whole of Christian law is built with this idea as a foundation; from application of this idea has evolved the entire history of the saints; and around it revolves, or should revolve, the daily life of every Christian. God laid enormous emphasis on Charity; and is our own emphasis upon it proportional?

WHAT'S THIS

By Bill Breninghouse

Of all the innanve, meaningless, trite, and puzzling phrases in the English language, none surpasses the complete nothingness of "Who's who." We now have a "Who's Who in the American Pretzel-bending Business," "Who's Who in Brown Prep," and "Who's Who in Eastern Intercollegiate Field Hockey." Oscar Twomp's greatest triumph thus far has been in making "Who's Who Among American Mental Patients."

Why? or Who?

Just who is who? . . . and why? It seems that in every organization some members stand out. Some stand out like sore thumbs and some are rocks, wheels, etc. Everyone knows who the rocks, wheels, etc., are. Nevertheless there is bound to be a "Who's Who?" The people who are "who" usually have nothing to do with this arbitrary listing. Men like Oscar Twomp know not who to thank for being "who." His work in the asylum has always been outstanding. No one needed to tell him or anyone else just how wonderful it was.

Transcendental

Assuming that it is possible for anyone to be "who", who decides who is "who?" Can someone who is not who know who is who? If so, who is this who who knows who is who? And then again, anouldn't these lists be more properly called "Who Are Who." This problem defies explanation by any known system of philosophy. Plato and Aristotle who made "Who Was Who When" never even approached the problem of the copulated interrogative personal pronouns. Modern day thinkers may be completely unaware of the who, who made them who.

Are You?

When one is asked, "Who is Sylvia?" the answer is evident; but ask a man, "Who is Who?" and chances are he will be without an answer. Who can tell us who knows who is who? No doubt the world is waiting for an answer to this vital question. If you approach a person and ask, "Are you who?" the consequences may be serious. It vexes the mind, indeed.

Oscar . . . and Who?

Our modern age has produced an idividual who may be able to tell us who knows who can tell us who is who. That man is Oscar Twomp, now engaged in post graduate work at Norristown U. Twomp has approached the problem in a new light. He believes that he who knows who is who will also know who wasn't who. Oscar intends to ask someone who wasn't who, who knew that he wasn't who in order to know the man who knows who is who. And there is the answer to the problem. Do with it what thou wilt.

Orphan's Christmas Fund Sponsors Hop-Hop Dec. 1

Committees Making Last 'Class' Appeals

Operation Yule committee will hold a Hobo Hop in the Field House, Friday evening, December 1st. Proceeds from the dance will aid in defraying the expenses of the Christmas party for the orphans of St. John's.

The committee announced that only old clothes, such as dungarees, will be permitted to be worn at the dance. No one wearing coat and tie will be admitted.

$700 Behind Schedule

Jack Kelly, committe chairman, pointed out that this is the final week of classroom collections for the fund. Collections are being made in all Religion classes.

The committee requested full co-operation of the student body in its concerted drive to reach its goal of $1500. The latest report showed the drive $700 behind schedule.

Much help is still urgently needed by committees. Any student interested in the success of Operation Yule is requested by Operation Chairman Kelly to contact the chairman of the phase in which he is interested. The chairmen are: Gifts, Don Briggs; Refreshments, Joe Gilboy; Public Relations, Tom Fucigna; Entertainment, Tom Curran; Band Concert and Party (in February), Ted Fernandes.

GRATITUDE?

Readers of The VILLANOVAN often do not fully realize the obstacles that confront the staff of this newspaper in meeting its deadlines. For examples, it was only despite a serious obstacle presented by DPE that this issue got to press. Hoagies and cold drinks graciously presented to the staff last Thursday evening seriously endangered the publication date of this issue.

COLUMN COMMENTS: A very interesting and intriguing item was obtained this week via the College Newspaper Exchange. The tabloid of Merrimac College, that New England monument to the ambitions of the Augustinian Fathers, proclaimed that, henceforth, Merrimac is to be raised to a co-educational status after four years of masculine solitude. This announcement leaves much to be questioned. Was the change brought about because of an acute shortage of Bean-Town males or because the boys grew tired of hiding behind the protecting walls of their sanctuary and finally decided to let the peaches-and-cream-clan corral them? The men of Merrimac having women constantly pursuing them must be experiencing a most terrifying existence. However, one should give the devil his due, within four years, they have done what Villanovans have tried to accomplish for over a century. This change-over from shirts to skirts will probably mark the end of the Boston dynasty on this Main-Line campus.

COTILLION CAPERS: Congratulations to HUBE FLAHERTY and his entire crew for their fine showing at the Harvest Moon cotillion . . . The frieze which adorned the side wall was very realistic, in fact, PAT KIRLEY and JAKE MORAN ran into the wall while attempting to enter the farmhouse.

SURROUNDING SITES: The fem diploma-distribution center from across the tracks is going slightly social . . . Many a Villanovan was seen checking the stacks at the card party on Saturday . . . H-m-m! Didn't find a marked card in the deck . . . Some of those gals certainly know how to give a fast shuffle . . . FRANK SCERBO was tea drinking with JOAN THEARHAUF at the Roseland Lipton Limp on Sunday . . . That was quite an idea for a tea dance—You put the tea-bag in your mouth and drank hot water . . . One gal became quite flustered when asked if she was married. "Of course not, I'm nobody's fool" to which DON McCOURT replied, "Be mine"!

TURKEY TROT: Tomorrow, Villanovans will be boarding trains for home. Thanksgiving is that time of the year when a college man goes home, shakes his dad's hand, kisses his mother, hugs his sister, and then dumps his moldy laundry on the floor, puts his dusty-shoes on the sofa and says, "Gee, it's great to be home." Dad does the talking (it's probably the only chance he'll get), Mom stays in the background and smiles for she knows her turn will come, and sis sits down to listen to the tales. They are glad you're home and so are you. Yes, there is a great deal for which to be thankful when you have a HOME.

YULE TIDE TOTS: Paying an unscheduled visit to St. John's Orphanage to lay the ground-work for the forthcoming Christmas party, we were overwhelmed by the spirit which these tots have for Villanova. A group on K.P. caught us going into the dining room, and immediately we were surrounded. Would you like to hear the Villanova fight song? Sure! So off they launched into "V for Villanova." The song was, to say the least, letter perfect.

Soon—Not soon enough for him—Santa's helpers will sled in from their Main-Line work-shop, bringing a touch of happiness to fill a void in these parentless and homeless hearts at Christmas time. Won't you please help make this their biggest Christmas. Give generously today and tomorrow to a child's Christmas. REMEMBER: A MAN IS NEVER SO TALL AS WHEN HE STOOPS TO HELP A CHILD.

Spanish Club Plans Nite; Play and Songs Featured

Rosemonites Acting; Glee Club To Sing

In a meeting of the Spanish Club held November 9, it was decided to hold "La Noche Espanola" on December 5. The annual affair was moved up from December 7 to enable the students to take advantage of the long weekend starting on December 8.

"Adelita"

The featured attraction of this cultural affair will be the play "Adelita Wants to Learn English" written especially for the occasion by Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator of the club. The main parts will be played by Miss Leonora Munoc of Rosemont, as Adelita, and Anthony Tranelli and Miss Elizabeth Tarlston, also of Rosemont, as her parents. A glee club will entertain with Spanish songs.

Speaker

Many distinguished visitors including the Consuls of Spain, Chile, Argentina, Peru, Columbia, and Venezuela have promised to attend. Dr. Ricardo Suadra, Consul from Nicaragua, will be the main speaker at this cultural gathering.

Admission is free, and therefore restricted to members of the club and their guests. Invitations are being sent to such local girls' colleges as Immaculata, Rosemont, Bryn Mawr, and Chestnut Hill and "Muchas senoritas" are expected to attend.

Ditches Closed, As Heating Plant Nears Completion

All underground piping for Villanova's new central heating system has been completed, Mr. G. Auth, professor of mechanical engineering, announced this week.

In addition, the tunnel under the Pennsylvania Railroad right of way has been finished. The ditches which marred the college grounds for many weeks past, have been filled in, and the soil reseeded.

Mr. J. T. Dever, College Comptroller, announced that four contracts have been let on the heating plant project. Mechanical, underground, and tunnel work was done by one firm the Cumbustion Engineers of Philadelphia, while the building contract was awarded to McCloskey & Company. Consulting Engineers for the job are Gilboy and O'Malley, of Scranton, Pa.

The plant will be equipped with two Combustion Engineer Boilers, with provisions made for a third, if necessary. Heating capacity for the present boilers will provide steam for all existing campus buildings, plus a 100 percent increase in load.

N. R. O. T. C. Fall Dance Set For December First

The annual fall dance of the NROTC Unit will be held on Friday, December 1st, this year. The Penn Sheraton Hotel was selected as the site and Moe Jaffe's orchestra will provide the dance music.

Preparation

The NROTC recreation committee headed by Bill Breninghouse as chairman with Lou Oberle and John Gloria, the coordinators of activity. These men directed the preparations for the dance.

Admission will be free as the money comes from the Recreation Fund, which is made up of funds collected from the Midshipmen during the year.

It is expected that there will be a heavy attendance as all the Officers of the staff and Midshipmen have been invited.

NFCCS Plans Next Dance; Claims Last One Is Successful

Encouraged by the success of the Sunday afternoon dance held on campus November 12th, Courtney Fleming, Senior Delegate to the National Federation of Catholic College Students is making plans for another dance to be held shortly after the Christmas holidays.

More than 400 students from Villanova and local girls' colleges attended the first NFCCS dance in the Field House. Music by the Villanovans' Combo marked one of the few times that "Live" music was presented at an afternoon dance.

According to Fleming's plans, the combo will play for the next dance. To counteract the apparent shyness of the Villanova men, he will introduce several "Sadie Hawkins" numbers, and an occasional "Paul Jones."

Fleming gave much of the credit for the success of the first dance to publicity, directed by Joseph Mullin. He also praised the work of NFCCS Treasurer, James Aylmer and Junior Delegate, Thomas Abrams.

Band Supports Team With Performance At Boston

Their appearance at the Boston College game on Saturday and an informal concert in Lawrence, Mass., Sunday afternoon brought to a close the 1950 season for the marching band of Villanova College.

Bus Ride

Though performing before an unfriendly audience, the marchers drew the plaudits of the crowd with their snappy marching and humorous antics. The latter included a pseudo-injury replete with a substitution in an act called "the tired drummer." Band members, fatigued from the long bus ride the night before, considered the title very apt.

The band returned to college yesterday morning, having been excused from their classes for the day.

VARSITY FACES TOUGH L. S. U. FRIDAY; B. C. BOWS TO WILDCAT MIGHT, 29-7

D'Alonzo Makes 3 To Lead Attack

By Ted Fernandes

The Villanova Wildcats proved too much for the Eagle of Boston College, last Saturday, at Beantown, and conquered the New Englanders 29-7. The skirmish was hard, fast and rugged, but the Main-Liners were in complete control from start to finish.

Pete D'Alonzo fired the Villanova offense, scoring three, six pointers personally. Big Pete smashed through the Eagle line time and time again, tearing off big hunks of yardage. The "Bull's" running mates, Geppi and Zuber threw around plenty of speed priming the "hill-toppers" for the slaughter. Neil O'Boyle made with the magic from the quarterback spot, trifling and calling plays. The line played heads up ball for sixty solid minutes driving the Northerners attack into the turf, plus leading the offensive barrage.

'Cats Score A Safety

Villanova scored early in the tussle, when the Eagles were caught behind their goal. Big Tom Green and Frank Rehac dropped Ed McKinnon, Boston safety, in his own end zone. The 'Cats collected two points on this and were "rarin' " to go.

The Eagles kicked off and Villanova let go with everything. A mixture of end around, passes, runs and crashes put the Villanovans on the Boston three-yard line. Johnny Geppi was hit hard and fumbled, the enemy recovered, but they were forced to punt out of the danger zone. Franny Dunn snared the kick and galloped to the Eagle thirty. Zuber knifed down to the twenty for first down. Mighty Pete D'Alonzo shattered the defense and was finally stopped on the two. On the next play the big fullback bucked over for a T.D. and Bobby Haner converted. Villanova led the parade 9-0.

Mainliners Show Power In Drive

In the second period the Wildcats scored again on a sustained drive from their own forty. Geppi reeled off ten yards placing the ball at midfield. D'Alonzo charged to the forty-six, Zuber reached the thirty-seven and Johnny Geppi legged it to the fifteen. Pete D'Alonzo broke things up in general carrying to the two, and going over on the following try. Haner failed to make the extra point but Villanova led 15 to zero.

Eagles Score One

B. C. started a fire when work horse Ed Petela wrought havoc, catching Tom McBride's passes and running from his fullback post. Petela set up a B. C. touchdown on the Villanova one foot line and Ed McCauley lugged the mail over for the sole Boston tally. Petela split the uprights and the score was Villanova 15, Boston College 7.

The next Wildcat score came with seconds remaining in the half. Paul Tompko intercepted a McBride pass on the Eagle

John Geppi hits the Eagles line with a very able assist by Fullback Pete D'Alonzo and Guard Nick Liotta. This was only part of the day's doings in which the Boston College lin ewas shattered many times.

Bayou Tigers Expected To Use Strong Ground Attack

Wildcats To Fly To Baton Rouge Thursday; Squad Confident After Boston College Win

By Bob Forsyth

This week the most traveled team in the United States, the Villanova Wildcats, will try out that "new"mode of tranportation, the airplane, when they fly down to Baton Rouge, Louisiana, to encouter the Bayou Tigers of L. S. U. this Friday night.

This game will mark the commencement of a new intersectional rivalry for both teams. Though they have played many of the same opponents over the years, the forthcoming engagement will be the first time that the schools play each other.

It is interesting that this first clash is taking place in a year in which both teams have declined from their former positions as national ranking teams, and, in which, this deadline was not expected. This is particularly true of the Bayou Tigers who were picked by many to gather all the laurels in the Southeast Conference this year. Their relapse was occasioned by both a very tough schedule and one inherent weakness, the lack of a T-formation quarterback to replace Charley Pevey of last year's Sugar Bowl squad.

Kentucky Mutual Foe

Coach Gaynell Tinsley's Louisianans opened the season against Kentucky and, though losing 14-0, held the latter to their lowest score of the season. It is almost impossible to judge the Wildcats and the Tigers by their comparative scores against Kentucky. For the two touchdown edge which favors the Tigers in this comparison is mitigated by many circumstances such as the fact that Kentucky and L. S. U. are conference rivals and that the Wildcats faced Kentucky when they were at Mid-season form.

After rebounding against the College of the Pacific, the Tigers suffered two consecutive beatings at the hands of Rice, Georgia, and tied Tech, before they managed to resume winning ways. Up to date they have a three won and four lost record. This, however, is not a true testimony of their strength, as Coach Jim Leonard well knows. Any team with a huge veteran line and fast backs such as Billy Baggett, Lee Hedges, Jimmy Roshto and Elbert Van Buren, the brother of the redoubtable Steve, must be considered a serious threat.

Wildcats Ready

The Wildcats returned from Boston happy over their victory over Boston College. Not that the Eagles were a too formidable foe, but the onsideness of the Villanova victory indicated to the coaching staff that the boys are playing their best ball. Especially gratifying was the return to form of Pete D'Alonzo, and the hard running of Walt Zuber and Johnny Geppi, all of which indicates that the Bayou Tigers had better sharpen their claws for the meeting with their smaller bretheren.

Kittens Shut Out Penn, 38-0, In Season's Final

Lemmer Tosses Two T.D. Passes, McCreary and Bottino Score In Rout of Red and Blue

By Bud Russo

Last Friday on a cold windy day, Villanova's Wildkittens trampled a weak Pennsylvania University team, 38-0, at River Field. This was the Kits' third shoutout victory and gave them a season's record of three wins and two losses.

Kits Play Their Best

The Kittens played a heads-up ball game on both offense and defense. In all Villanova's offense ran up 440 yards, with the defense, up to the last play, holding the Quakers to 12 yards.

Joe McCreary and Charlie Bottino led the attack, with Bottino looking his best. The scoring was done by McCreary, Morris, Bottino and Thomas, with Bill Lemmer tossing two of them.

On defense Ed Wolf stood out, especially with his crushing kick-off tackles. Tom Parise, Adolphus Hoch and Dick Miller held the middle capably; while Nugent, DeVittis, Battle, Landis and Dwyer also filled their positions well. The line was backed up very ably by Tibbets, Maeiro, McKnight, and Thomas.

Recovered Fumble Sets Up T.D.

The first quarter was tightly played, with both sides fighting hard but neither being able to do much. Things changed, however, in the second quarter; Bud Holland recovered a fumble and five plays later Joe McCreary scored from the 24. Lou Maeiro intercepted a pass, which set the stage for a touchdown pass by Lemmer to Fred Morris from the 12. Again late in the quarter, Bottino scored from the eight, after setting it up with a beautiful 24-yard run from the 32.

In the third quarter Bill Lemmer, from his own 32, tossed a thirty-yard pass to McCreary who then went all the way. Thomas then kicked the first extra point.

Joe Billera set up what should have been the next touchdown with a forty-five yard punt return, but the Kits lost their chance with a fumble on the three. Soon after, Bottino took it over from the 28. Thomas scored the last T.D. on a two-yard plunge, which followed a thirty-yard run by McCreary. The longest pass play of the day didn't score, as Skip Morrisey passed to Frank Neary who went to the nine before being brought down, after a gain of sixty-four yards.

Lost To Princeton

Villanova traveled to Princeton two weeks earlier only to have Princeton win 31-26. In the most exciting game of the year. Joe McCreary put on a one-man show as the scored four times and ran up some 261 yards. Priceton scored first and their wing-back Hungerford, sweeping the ends, was their ground gainer. It was a terrific game up to the last three minutes, when a "slow" clock gave Princeton their last touchdown and the game.

Coach Jack McConville did a fine job this year, with his assistants Dom Pendino and Joe Restick. Joe will take over as coach next year. The nucleus and core of next year's team will be experienced, even with the loss of such key men as Joe McCreary, Charlie Bottino, Jim Gallo, George Strohlein, Jack Rowe, Jerry Battle, Vince Cella, Bill Dwyer and Jack Ronca.

Those returning next year to bolster the club are Parise, Miller, Matton, Cagliotta, Lawton and Laughlin at guards; Alter at center; at tackles, Hoch, Nugent and DiVittis; at ends, Holland, Possilico, Landis and Morris; in the backfield, Billera, Maeiro, Neary, Wolf, Tibbets, Thomas, Goeringer, Schmitt Lemmer and Morrisey.

JORGE'S JOTTINGS

By Jorge Scanlon

The Villanova football team, band and loyal fanatics stormed into Boston last weekend to test Bee Cee's athletes and New England's hospitality. Captain Johnny Bogan and his teammates mauled the Eagles to the sweet tune of 29 to 7. The game was highlighted by some foul play on the part of Denny Myer's hopeless eleven. Trainer Jake Nevins and Doc Nicholas had a busy afternoon patching up the victorious Cats. End Frank Banas and Johnny Geppi are among those carrying the marks of the battle.

The NCAA should check on Vilalnova again, because a certain Widcat received pay for play. John Bogan won the kick-off coin tossing ceremony and the umpire gave Bogie the coin. It was a shiny new silver dollar, so we ask you to keep the incident quiet.

The team has agreed to fly to Baton Rouge for the L. S. U. game, and to go by rail to the St. Mary's game. Barring future accidents the Cats shoudl be in top shape for the coming contests.

Pete D'Alonzo's foot is responding to treatment much to B. C.'s discomforture. Just to make sure one Eagle lineman tried to take Pete's shoe off.

Jack McConnville's 150's end-end a successful season zy trouning Penn, Friday afternoon. That rumor about Jack entering the Trappists is unconfirmed at this time, he finally obtained a used Parka. After he and his charges shivered through the Princeton and Penn games.

Look Magazine has picked Villanova's Basketball team as 15th in the east; maybe if they had witnessed the Cat's showing against the Warriors in a scrimmage last week they would be more impressed. The team is whipping into shape and look like they will win quite a few tussles. Nick Maguire sprained his ankle, Thursday, but it is believed he'll be ready for the opener against Iona College. Alumnus Paul Arizin is making a big hit with the Warriors; while former teammate Toad Hannan is wowing Wilkes-Barre with his crowd pleasing play. Toad has been nick-named "Handsome Joe" and may try Hollywood to cash in on his good looks.

short time to live. "Lackie's" story is unwound in the play, a story that holds attention throughout.

John Rowe, in the lead role of "Lackie," is ably assisted by Mary Leavy, "Nurse," and James Clarkin, "Yank." Every role in the play is well done.

The sets are an outstanding attribute of the presentation, and the costumes, featuring the scotsman's "kilt," are effective.

The curtain will go up or the final time for "The Hasty Heart" this evening. Students tickets are priced at seventy-five cents, and general admission is one dollar.

forty and raced to the twenty-six. Neil O'Boyle pitched a touchdown pass to Joe Rilo and Bobby Haner added one, the score now stood at 22-7.

D'Alonzo Romps

The final score was the greatest of the day. The 'Cats started out by snagging another B. C. aerial, the honors went to Al Shanen on this one. Zuber carried to the Eagle forty-two, and then D'Alonzo racked up a forty-two yard junket good for paydirt.

Defensive laurels go to Tony Morrallo, Nick Liotta, Tom Green, Frank Rehac, Al Shanen, Bob Haner and Mickey Frinzi for their great work in keeping B. C. winless so far this season.

Intra-Mural Basketball Under Way As Twelve Games Are Played

By Dave Maynes

The 1950 I-M basketball season got off to a flying start last Monday with 43 teams entered in five leagues, three resident and two dayhop. The campus cagers form the A, B, and C leagues, while the American and National leagues are represented by teams formed from the "cash and carry" students.

Twelve Games Played

In the American league, the Gunners started slowly, but came back with 46 points in the second half to garner a 70-23 victory from the Barracks No. 3. Mullen, Germano and Doyle were high for the victors with 10 counters each, while Decker hit for 8 for the Barracks.

The Fedigan Flyers led by Rowe and Halloran with 15 each, downed Ballyshannon 52-34. Oels was top man for the losers with 14. The next day Ballyshannon bounced back with a 43-11 victory over the Liz Kids, as Cush and Plunkett hit for 12 each.

In the only game played in the National league, the Warriors, led by Ruggerio, Niccolo and Creamer who scored 51 points among them, downed the Rawheebs 59-14.

The Fedigan Big Five buried Barracks 4 under a 78-37 landslide, in the A league opener. Every man on the Fed. quintet scored in the double figures, led by McEntree with 24. McElroy and Pross had 10 and 11, respectively, for the losers.

The Alumni Toppers grabbed a close 41-31 decision from the Austin Fourflushers, after leading by 3 points at the half. Flynn and Scanlon each scored 11 for their respective teams.

Close In B League

Perry scored 13 as the Doms downed the Barracks No. 2&3 46-26. Carter had 12 in the Berrypickers losing cause.

Olmstead, Naganes and Gillman collaborated for 28 points as the Austins Hotshots won the B league opener from Alumni Beavers 32-23. Fleming and Bradley were high for the Beavers. The Alumni Characters walked away from the Barracks No. Stars with a 40-9 victory, as Cauceglia garnered 10. In one of the closest contests of the week, Bergan and Heiser led the Fire House 5 to a 33-30 triumph over the O'Dwyer Clowns. Mahar was high for the nite, however, with 16, as he almost pulled the game out of the fire for the Clowns with a five point splurge in the last minute.

In the hardest fought game of the week, the Fedigan Quints squeezed out a 31-30 victory over the Alumni Pistons. After trailing 13-22 at half time, Jameson and McCune were the sparks in a thrilling come-back.

Fedigan Takes Grid Title

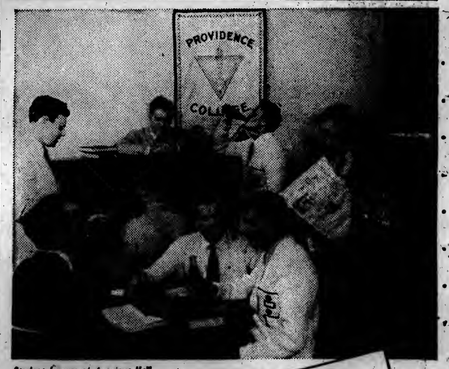
Before 175 chilled spectators, the Fedigan turfmen won the I-M Football crown last Thursday by downing a game but outclassed Simpson nine, 25-0. Unleashing the most dazzling array of tricks shown by an I-M team this year, the Feds started off fast, an Don Stefanik tossed to McGuckin in the end zone after two minutes, and then followed it up with a six point excursion from the 10, six minutes later. In the third period tall Don passed to Wright and Brennan for two more TDs, and then scored the extra point on a pass from Watson.

Simpson put together their best attack in the final canto as they rolled from their 7 down to the Feds 13, but Father Time was against them. For the clock ran out as they picked up a first down on a pass from Knecht to DiJoe.

Hats Off to Delurey

Your scribe would like to give his special "Sportsmanship" award to the gridders from Delurey. Although they lost all five games by big scores and were out of the championship race after the second loss, they showed up with plenty of men for every game, and played as hard in the fifth contest as they did in the first. That shows real grit, to keep coming back for more after taking it on the chin three or four times in a row.

I-M Tennis Champs Beat West



Winning the four singles matches and dropping only the doubles match, the I-M tennis champs beat the Phila. West. Catholic High racqueteers, 4-1. Pat Highland started off with an easy 6-1, 6-1 victory over Iceeley. In the closest and most exciting match of the afternoon, Villanova's Vahe Melconian, after dropping the first set 5-7, came back to take 6-0 and 9-7 victories from Mench. Terry Cocke defeated J. Kuo 6-0, 6-1, and Jack Rosegan defeated Donahue 6-1, 6-2 to complete the Wildcat sweep in the singles.

In the only doubles match, Wein and Bockert of West-teamed up to defeat Brandt and Lovelace 6-4, 6-3.

This was the first of many extra-mural matches being arranged by the I-M director, Mr. Eugene Powers, in which the winners in various I-M sports will participate.

I-M Council Meeting

The I-M Council will meet on Wed., Nov. 29, at 4:30. All members should make a special effort to be there, as a resume of the recently completed football season, and plans for future events will be discussed.

DELTA PI MU, ART FRAT ORDERS MUGS; PREMEDS HEAR TALK

Consider Initiations; Fr. Sullivan Speaks

DPM

Last Tuesday evening Delta Pi Mu held an important meeting in room 215 Mendel Hall. Preliminary orders for frat pins and mugs were taken. The most important phase of the meeting consisted in the planning and organization of initiations of new members.

Each new member will be required to have a regulation-size frat paddle to present to an upper classman during the initiations, which are to take place in December. President Muratori stresses that each member have a paddle ready in time, or forfeit his right to be initiated as a full pledged member of the fraternity.

At the close of the meeting the fraternity raffled off tickets to the Belle Masque production, "The Hasty Heart."

LKD

LKD held its second meeting of the year Wednesday, Nov. 15th, in 215 Mendel. Rev. R. M. Sullivan, O.S.A., Dean of Arts and Sciences, was the principal speaker.

Father Sullivan spoke on his relationship as Dean of Arts and Sciences with pre-med students, and also with the deans of the graduate medical schools. He stated that in his capacity as dean it was his responsibility to visit the various medical schools and sell to them the products of the Villanova pre-med school. Fr. Sullivan also outlined for the members the method used in arriving at the recommendations which are sent to the medical schools. After this he answered questions put forth by members of the fraternity.

McGuire, O.S.A., College president, and Robert Resnick, Senior Arts student, will welcome the guests at a convocation. This will be held either in the C&F Auditorium or the Field House, depending on the expected number of guests.

Following the meeting, activities will switch to the Library building. Tours of the entire building will be conducted and demonstrations of the facilities shown. The main point of interest will be the Villanova Room, where portraits of College presidents since its founding in 1842 will be shown for the first time publicly. Patrick J. O'connor, New York artist who painted all the portraits, is scheduled to be present in the Villanova Room during the program.

Besides the portraits, other features of the demonstration will be shown during inspection of the reading room, periodical room, Seminars, music room, and office facilities.

At the end of the tour, Fr. Falvey said, tea will be served by the Friends of the Library, an off-campus group that aids the Library in its service program.

C & F Fraternity Preparing To Initiate New Brothers

Highlighted at a meeting of DPE, C&F frat, last Thursday evening was completion of initiation plans for incoming members.

Co-chairmen Chris Kelly and Herb Walters reported that sufficient applications are being prepared for those desiring to join the frat. A complete obstacle course for initiation has been planned.

President Bill Knecht reported that the Student Council had accepted the new constitution at the last meeting of the Council. It was prepared last year, but alterations had to be made before approval could be rendered.

Orders were taken for Senior Frat Pins by Charles Root. The members decided to keep the same design that has been used for the past two years. Ted Pryzbylowski also took orders for fraternity mugs.

After the meeting refreshments were served by Social Chairman Don Briggs and his associates.

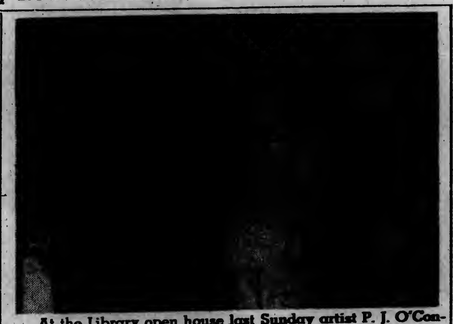
Library Open House Shows New Portraits Of Presidents

More Than 1000 Parents and Friends View Paintings Done by New York Artist



Touring the Library building as guests of the College president, more than 1000 parents and friends of Villanova students viewed for the first time last Sunday afternoon the 21 new portraits of College presidents since 1842.

Presentation of the portraits highlighted the open house sponsored by the College to mark the first public inspection of the new Library building. During their inspection guests saw in addition to the pictures, demonstrations and exhibits that explained the facilities and services of the Library during an ordinary school day.

Spirit Rally To Hail Return Of Team From Last Game

Students To Greet Players Thursday At Pennsy Station

Two thousand cheering Villanova students are scheduled to greet Pete D'Alonzo, hero of last Sunday's victory, and his 1950 Varsity Football teammates at Villanova Station next Thursday, on their return from the St. Mary's game in California. Final arrangements will be announced later for the rally in honor of the team whose last victory over the Gaels gave them a season record of 4 wins and 5 losses.

Under the auspices of the Student Council a huge pep rally is planned to give the team a real "Welcome Home" reception at the station. The students, led by the college marching band and the varsity cheerleaders, will roar their appreciation to a team that has fought gamely through one of the toughest Villanova schedules in college history.

Present arrangements call for Mr. Robert Whelan, Business

Coke Machines To Be Installed In Two Halls

Carroll Gets Kappa Phi Seat In Council

Coke machines will be installed in Austin and Fedigan Halls. This was made possible through the efforts of the Student Council and will be placed in the halls within a week. After a short period the results of the undertaking will be studied by the administration. At that time, a decision will be made in regard to supplying machines for all dormitories. The administrative authorities will not tolerate any tampering with these machine, and if such an incident does occur they will be removed, and the issue will be dropped.

Kappa Phi Kappa, the newly formed education fraternity, was declared eligible for council membership. John T. Carroll has been elected as its representative.

The homecoming rally for the football team was scheduled for Thursday morning and placed into the hands of the Spirit Committee.

Fr. McFadden Speaks Dec. 13

Forum Picks Date For Second Lecture

Wednesday evening, December 13th has been chosen as the new date for the second lecture in the 1950-51 Villanova Forum series. This change was necessitated due to a conflict with a basketball double-header at the Palestra.

Villanova Author-Professor

Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O. S. A., Ph.D., Professor of Philosophy at Villanova College, is to deliver this second lecture in the series. In connection with the general Forum theme of "Human Rights and Natural Law," Father McFadden will use as his topic, "Human Rights and the Individual." Father is a well known lecturer and author. Among his books is "The Philosophy of Communism," used widely as a textbook for college courses.

'Hamlet' Is Aim Of Belle Masque

Preliminary tryouts for the proposed spring Belle Masque production of "Hamlet" were held last night in the Radio Station. According to Rev. William Krupa, O.S.A., moderator, tryouts are being held this early in the school year to determine whether or not the dramatic social will be able to produce the difficult Shakespearean tragedy. If the drama is presented, it will be in accord with the Belle Masque tradition of presenting one modern and one classic play each year.

'Hobo Hop' Brings Operation Yule Close To Goal; Men Signing For Orphan Day

Take me to see Santa?

Operation Yule moved closer to its financial goal last Friday night with the holding of a very successful Hobo Hop. Under the chairmanship of Joe Hall, the dance provided the funds necessary to make up the deficit in the projects requirements. With a large crowd in attendance, the dance provided an unusual twist to the social calender.

Saturday, December the 16th, marks the first phase of Operation Yule, the orphans outing. The orphans are to be picked up in the morning, all 440 of them, on a first come, first served basis. A student picking up an orphan at 8:30 will be asked to provide him with lunch, and at 11:30, to take him to dinner.

The suggested order of the day is as follows. First, to see Santa Claus, then a trip through Toyland, with the purchase of a gift for the orphan. From there the students are free to provide any form of entertainment that they desire, provided that the boy is

Stormbound Men Face Double-Cuts

Reliable sources stated that it is probable that all students who incurred double-cuts Monday, November 27th, due to the storm and travel difficulties, will have those cuts excused.

An official announcement on this matter has been lacking due to the absence of Rev. Edward McKee, Vice-President, who is traveling with the football team.

Individual Responsible

Each individual student is urged to see Father McKee, on his return, if he has a problem in this matter.

How About It?

The Spirit Committee is planning a rally. They hope to bring a crowd out to meet the football team on the return from the St. Mary's game this Thursday. When the plans were mentioned at the Student Council meeting there was a bit of hesitation.

If things come off as badly as they have in the past it would be better not to have anything. Yet the team deserves better treatment. In a review of the past fiascoes, criticism was leveled at the elected Student Officers in particular. They have exhibited little of the spirit and drive for which reasons they were elevated to such posts. These posts have always been an honor, not because of the post itself, but because of the work such persons have to take upon their shoulders. It is evident that many who are willing to take the honors have been shirking the work.

After promises upon the part of the Council, Committee-Head, Bill Creamer decided to go ahead with the plans. To be a success it will require nothing more from the average student than a little thought and ten minutes of his time.

Needless to say the team has had a tough time of it this year. Even to say that it has made a good showing and deserves our support is commenting on the obvious. Put yourself into their places. How would you feel after traveling the country all season long, doing well despite some mighty tough breaks, having to come back to an empty reception?

How about some spirit Thursday!

New CE Laboratory
Another Step Up for Villanova Engineering

Villanova's increasing importance as an Engineering College was emphasized this week, with the establishment of a new laboratory. This marks the initiation of the recently developed Soil Mechanics course.

Soil

Properly defined, Soil Mechanics is a study of the physical and structural properties of soil as an engineering material, and the application of fundamental principles for the design and analysis of building foundations, earth pressures, and soil stabilization.

Recently Developed

According to Mr. Charles Georgi, Civil Engineering Instructor, this study has been in the development stage for several years. During this time, standard tests on soil were compiled, and standard equipment worked out, in order that tests in the laboratory would more nearly tell the story of what will happen under field conditions, when the structure, road or airfield is erected.

Mr. Georgi in the new laboratory.

The Problem

Crude methods of estimating what is going to take place in soil as an engineering material is no longer adequate for newer, taller, and more elaborate structures, roads, etc. When steel or concrete edifices are built, stresses can be determined very closely, thus giving economy of material, and more assurance of permanence. In soils, engineers are trying to do approximately the same thing, but they are faced with a very non-homogeneous material. The same identical substance may act very differently under various conditions. For example, a man can walk on sand, but not on quicksand. In the latter, which is like any other sand, the material is subjected to an upward flow of water, and therefore will not support a load.

Some Possibilities

During erection of underground structures, vibration of the surrounding material may cause excessive settlement of adjacent structures, resulting in such phenomena as the "Leaning Tower of Pisa," in Italy. A newly located well may produce excessive settlement, as it will lower the water table, permitting soil to consolidate.

CE 217

The Soil Mechanics course, an elective for seniors majoring in civil Engineering, will commence in February. Entitled CE 217, the subject will carry three credits. There will be two lectures, and one 3-hour lab period, per week. Duration is one semester. Prerequisites include CE 233, Math 132, and CE 227. The new laboratory (formerly known as the Concrete or Highway Lab), will be fitted out with the latest technical equipment, at an estimated cost of $5,000. Mr. Georgi will be the instructor.

FINNEGAN'S OTHER HEAD

By Bill Brenninghouse

Oscar Twomp is a normal American youth. He has spent less than three years in prison and hasn't been arrested in months. Some things, however, puzzle him greatly. Take what happened just the other day. A new guy moved in down the hall. Gus Cicron was drafted, leaving an empty sack. This empty straw pile was soon occupied by this boy, Finnegan. No first name, just Finnegan. He was an average looking boy, didn't talk much and had no friends. Nobody paid much attention to him until the day the package came.

"Fragile"

It was a small wooden crate with "Fragile" all over it. Finnegan carried it up to his room and opened it. Oscar was in the room at the time visiting Ellsworth Rignooli, Finnegan's roommate. They heard a strangled gurgle as Finnegan opened the box and then a voice, well versed in slang epigrams, poured forth a stream of bitter abuse at Finnegan. Startled, Ellsworth and Oscar looked into the box and found themselves eye to eye with what proved to be Finnegan's other head. Finnegan, seeing their bewilderment decided to explain.

The Story

It seemed that Finnegan was not a normal child, he was born with two heads. A marvelous piece of surgery removed Finnegan's other head from his body. Instead of dying like a normal disbodied head, this head stayed alive, grew both physically and mentally, and became a burden to poor Finnegan. No matter where he went his other head would follow. He had tried to abandon it many times, but it always managed to get back, usually by talking someone into mailing it to Finnegan. By this time, it was becoming quite embarrassing. Finnegan's other head was persistent and rude. It spoke very vile language and insulted anyone it met. Oscar sympathized with Finnegan but could think of no solution to his problem.

An Idea

Finnegan's other head was becoming quite bored when the discussion rolled around as to whether or not it was human and what was the morality behind killing it. It began berating the three of them with a flood of invectives. Finnegan said that it wouldn't be too bad if it could only keep a civil tongue. It made a top sergeant sound like Aunt Jenney when it came to colorful and effective abuse of the English language. There were only three or four words in its vocabulary that pass an editor's blue pencil, and those it said with a nasty tone. It was a menace indeed.

What Happened

Ellsworth, Oscar and Finnegan got together and planned the demise of this foul-mouthed monstrosity. They nailed it back up in its box, filling it up with sawdust. Then they had a friend who was flying to Europe drop it off halfway across. This, they thought, was the end of Finnegan's other head. The box, however, drifted over the waves and finally landed upon a sandy beach where it was recovered by a singing bandleader who, at last reports, still has the thing.

World Problems

By Jim Griffin

December, 1950. How far have we come since VE day? How far does it seem that we will go? From our point of view as young men, the future is not bright. International problems seem to become more insoluble as each detail appears, as each move and counter-move unfolds, sweeping us on to the third world war which many are growing to accept as inevitable.

But More Basic

These, of course, are foremost in our minds, since they threaten us personally and immediately, and the educations and opportunities to which we look forward. But they are not the only matter for concern, nor even the most important. A more basic and a more vital issue than that of foreign affairs is the condition of man's relationship to God. For our relations with God will determine our relations with other men, and therefore form the key to our world problems.

But these, too, are discouraging. Materialism and atheism seem to be the vogue; and the threat of immorality is now towing behind it the even more alarming tendency towards amorality.

To An Observer

From the observer's point of view the situation is discouraging, even depressing. But as Catholic college men, we are much more than mere observers in this confusion and turmoil we call the world scene. For to us falls the responsibility of leadership. We alone have the standards which are too high for apathy and despair, too well-founded to yield to any situation, no matter how depressing or discouraging it may seem. We alone can point out the only true solution: man's recognition of God, and His place in man's affairs.

A Good Time

And this week is a good week to think about such things. For Friday is December eighth, the feast of the Immaculate Conception, the one sinless being of all mankind. We have then very special reasons for asking the intercession of Mary in this time of need. For Mary, the Immaculate Conception, is our Mother and our patroness, and has promised us peace if we would but come to her and ask. In fact she has pleaded with us to turn to her beloved Son through herself, that the world might be spared the horrors it is inviting upon itself. She is waiting eagerly our requests, that she might obtain for us the favor she so badly wants us to have. How then can we fail to respond to the golden opportunity which Friday will offer?

The Story Of The Goodreau Tradition

By Robert J. Quinn

How did one football player inspire an entire college?

It took writer, Bob Quinn, almost two months research to uncover the almost forgotten facts behind Leo Goodreau.

We of Villanova have great traditions. From the courage of her early foundations to the honesty displayed in last year's athletic statements, Villanova is rich in worthwhile memories.

The Villanovan who inspired his college's most cherished tradition--Leo Goodreau.

And among the finest of these is the memory of Leo J. Goodreau.

To most of us today Leo Goodreau means little more than a name at the entrance of the Stadium, or a dedication found in this paper every week. Few here remember the lanky boy as he registered in the fall of 1927. Surely none of those present when the Stadium was dedicated that year realized that one of the marching Frosh would die on that same field within a year. The story of Leo Goodreau is the story of one who was almost inconspicuous in life, but nevertheless great.

Freshman Football

Shortly after arriving on the campus, Leo tried out for the football team. Under the newly installed Freshman Eligibility Rule the former All-New England Interscholastic Quarterback was denied a spot on the Varsity, so it was not surprising that he became the most promising man on the Frosh squad.

The First Victory

It was Leo Goodreau who snared a fifteen-yard pass and raced thirty more for the first touchdown recorded in the Villanova Stadium. This touchdown, incidentally, enabled Villanova to christen her stadium with a victory. It was fitting therefore, that four years later Villanova rechristened her stadium to the memory of Leo Goodreau.

Acknowledgement is extended to Mr. Harry Stuhldreher, former Head Coach of football at Villanova; Mr. Joseph Schiavoni of the Philadelphia Inquirer Library; and the Villanova Library staff.

And The Whole Season

But Leo's fame did not rest on a single game, or even on a single sport. He consistently played a rough brand of ball and his combination of spirit and ability forced frosh Coach Callaghan to keep him in every game as much as possible. Only when he was knocked unconscious in the Boston College game did he leave for more than a few moments.

Behind The Plate

Yet despite his profiency as a quarterback, Leo showed even more prowess as a catcher on the baseball team. In fact, during the baseball season coach Charles A. McGeehan predicted that, "a major league career lies before him if he desires it." Leo Goodreau was truly a great all-around athlete.

The Freshman Dance

Notwithstanding the heavy demands of athletics, Leo salvaged enough time to help conduct the Freshman Dance in the Spring of 1928. This dance was still a relatively new idea, and it needed a man of leadership, ability, and determination. Under Leo's direction it was the most successful dance to be given by a Freshman Class.

His coach, Harry Stuhldreher, who was counting on Goodreau to play quarterback.

The Class of 1931 was grateful and appreciative of the abilities of Leo Goodreau. Shortly before the year ended they elected him Class Secretary.

And The Frat

Early the following fall Leo made another move that further established him as a man of action. While still a Freshman he had joined the Epsilon Phi Theta and was dismayed to find that they hadn't held a single meeting in over a year. His many complaints went unheeded.

Against The Precedent

As a Sophomore, with the support that could be mustered from others that desired an active fraternity, Leo petitioned first the fraternity and then the school authorities. Again his petitions were disregarded. Despite the existing tradition that there would be only one fraternity to a school, Pi Omega Phi Arts Fraternity was founded, and by their success proved that reasoning by precedent is fallacious. Within weeks, the new Frat became the most popular and active society on the campus. Other societies, particularly Epsilon Phi Theta, were forced to rejuvenate, and the school spirit flourished. Leo Goodreau had proved that a lackadaisical feeling has no place on the Villanova campus.

Freshman football squad pictured above first appeared in the 1929 edition of the Belle Air. Little did they suspect that one in their midst would die the following season, only to live forever in the traditions of Villanova.

Scholastic Success

Surprisingly enough, Leo maintained his scholastic position in the upper section of his class despite all his social and athletic activity. In fact, "so pronounced was his all-around ability," said Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher, "that we figured him to be the regular varsity quarterback in his Sophomore year." But Leo was never given the time to become All-American —the time to show the rest of the world his true greatness.

September

Leo played hard, and perhaps on that brisk September afternoon in the stadium he tried too hard. He had been calling offensive plays in a varsity-frosh scrimmage. The freshman, battered and muddy, lined up in a defensive pattern duplicating Loyola of Batlimore, Villanova's opening game opponent.

The Last Play

Goodreau barked the signals and the ball was fired back. A halfback took it and the lithe quarterback, "a demon at both leading interference and carrying the ball" according to contemporary sports articles, sprang forward to clear a path. Anxious to prove their worth, the freshman charged forward and the two teams piled up.

When the players arose, Goodreau was lying on the ground, face down, moaning. A fellow player attempted to assist him to his feet and the injured boy shrieked with pain.

Broken Vertebra

Rushed to Bryn Mawr Hospital, he was found to have broken the cervical vertebra. Paralysis set in, and the two specialists called in gave him almost no possible chance of recovery. Although suffering greatly, he remained conscious and rational most of the time. He had the nurse read the football scores to him, expressed a keen interest in various college activity, and continually mentioned that he would be set in the opening game against Loyola on the following Saturday.

As Scheduled

Shortly after his injury was recognized as fatal, the question of cancelling the opening, or even the entire football season, became prominent. When word reached him, he humbly pleaded that such an act would be unfair . . . even to him. As a result the team played as scheduled, and, dedicated to the courage of Leo Goodreau went on to an undefeated season.

"Im Tired Out"

On Monday evening, three days after his accident, Leo realized the impossiblity of his fight. To his coach, Harry Struhldreher, he said, "I've given the best that is in me to this fight—I'm tired out—I can't hold out much longer." Late that evening, Leo was given the Last Rites, and at seven o'clock the following morning he fell into a coma. He began calling football signals, and continued until he was totally unconscious. At 2:18 P. M. on Tuesday, Leo Goodreau passed away.

Present when Leo died, Father O'Leary said, "It was a beautiful but a sad scene. Outside teammates, classmates; inside priests, doctors. To the last Leo maintained that same staunchness of heart which marked him on the football field."

Solid Ranks

The following morning, the last remains were borne into the College Chapel by former teammates on the football squad. Only the members of the immediate family were present, along with the entire student body, as a Solemn High Mass was sung by the President of the College. No eulogy was spoken, for none was needed. After the Mass, solid ranks of eight hundred students lined the drive from the Church to the gateway, as the funeral cortege bore the body of Leo Goodreau on the first lap of his final journey.

A Memory, And A Tradition

So it was that on October 2, 1928, Leo J. Goodreau became a memeory, and his courage became a tradition; a spirit which lingers with all Villanovans, ever guiding us toward finer achievements.

Next time you pass the plaque on the stadium, or see the dedication in this newspaper, stop and think of Leo Goodreau; One of the finest men who ever entered Villanova: Scholar, Athlete, Gentleman—" He was more than just a great man. Leo Goodreau was a great Villanova man.

The Goodreau Memorial Plaque still remains at the entrance to the stadium, in tribute to the player who died on the gridiron. This plaque was presented by Goodreau's classmates during the services in May of his graduating year which rededicated the stadium to his honor.

CAGERS STOP IONA 77-59 IN DEBUT; 'CAT GRIDDERS TRIUMPH IN FINALE

D'Alonzo Runs 50 Yards for First TD

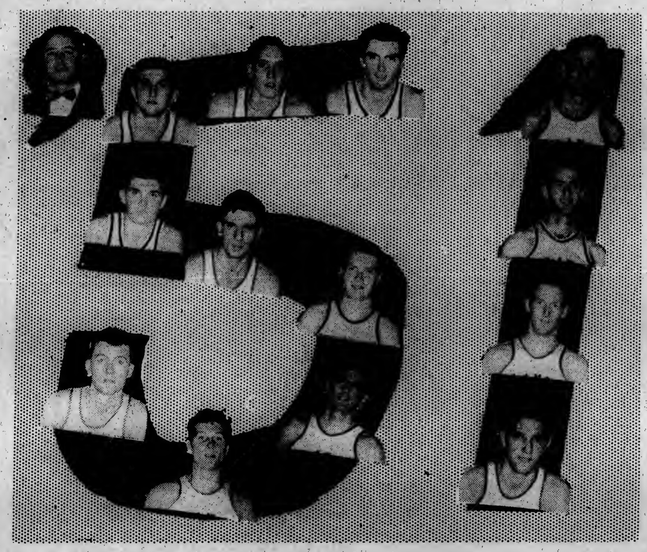
By Ted Fernandes

The Villanova Wildcats wound up their 1950 gridiron season last Sunday afternoon in an ocean of mud at Kezar Stadium, San Francisco, whipping the "Galloping Gaels" of St. Mary's 13-7. The rainsoaked turf expelled any thoughts of a fast ball game and the burden fell upon the powerhouse runners of both teams. It was D'Alonzo versus John Johnson in a mighty duel of fullbacks, with "Big Pete" stealing the show as he bucked and churned his way through the Californians' line.

D'Alonzo Scores Early

Three and one half minutes after the opening kickoff D'Alonzo crumpled the left side of the St. Mary's line chugging 50 yards to draw first blood. This the most spectacular run of the afternoon stunned the begrimed Gaels. Haner tacked one point on D'Alonzo's T.D. in a very unorthodox style. The pass from center was high and Frinzi pitched the pigskin to Haner in a desperate attempt to run it, Haner leaped high and passed to Joe Rilo in the end zone for the conversion. The remainder of the first half was a slipshod affair with fumbles galore and neither team scoring.

Gaels Strike Back



St. Mary's bounced back in the third period with John Henry Johnson bulling the Villanova line into the mud. John Henry finally slithered over the goal after a long drive from midfield. In the attempt at converting Johnson tucked the ball under his arm and slid over the zero stripe equalizing the score at 7 all.

The Wildcats fought furiously to regain the lead, but the Geals checked them time and time again by recovering fumbles and breaking things up in general. Late in the final period Villanova, by a combination of re-

Ross Wins Nat. AAU X-Country Run

The 1950 National A. A. U. Cross Country title belongs to Villanova's perpetual motion man, Browning Ross who won the honor in Boston, November 23rd. The 5' 8" little giant won this coveted title over a strong field, beating such talented harriers as Curt Stone, formerly of Penn State, and teammate John Joe Barry. The six and a quarter mile course was covered by Browning in a near record time as he won handily over Curt Stone and John Barry who finished second and third respectively.

Browning's many achievements were highlighted by his great indoor mile performances, and the honor of being a representative of the U. S. A. in the 1948 Olympic Games. Browning also has had an international running career. Besides appearing in the Olympic games in the 3000 meter steeplechase he and George Guida toured Europe's cinder tracks. Both boys gave fine accounts of themselves as they won more than their share of medals.

"First Place Ross"

Browning has no college eligibility remaining and thus has run his last race in Blue and White colors. His collegiate career could be summed up in three words, "First place Ross." Whether Browning was at his best while running the long grind of cross-country or the mile and half-mile runs would be very difficult to ascertain. His style was a steady unfaltering stride with a blazing burst when the tape was in sight. While running cross-country for the Wildcats he was usually followed across the finish line by teammate and close friend George Thompson.

Browning's only problem of being the victor in so many tests is what to do with his ever growing collection of awards.

Villanova-Tampa Open Palestra Doubleheader

Pennsylvanians Star for Floridians; Univ. of Maryland Faces Quakers in Finale

The first of sixteen scheduled doubleheaders at the University of Pennsylvania's Palestra will be played tomorrow night.

The University of Tampa will provide the opposition for Al Severance's Wildcats in the second game of the first twin bill. The Floridans, who compiled a 20 and 14 record last season, including a loss to the Wildcats, will bring an experienced quintet to the Quaker City.

Three of the Tampa starters might well be remembered by court fans of the Philadelphia area for their high school play. Bill Mullin is a local product who starred at Brown Prep, while George Montz and Jack Booros received their early court traning in the Allentown schools. Montz, a setshot artist, was a member of the three-year State Championship team at Allentown High School. Booros was captain and high scorer at Allentown Central Catholic.

Certain to be in the starting line-up for Villanova is Larry Hennessey, 6 foot 3 inch forward from New Rochelle, N. Y.

NOTICE

Student tickets for basketball games played at the Palestra will be sold at the Field House ticket office only. Ticket sales will close at noon on the day of each game: Student tickets . . . $.50 . . . will NOT be sold at the Palestra.

Jack Rowe Is Chosen Captain Of 150's

Villanova's 150-pound football team has elected center Jack Rowe honorary captain for the 1950 season.

Rowe, a senior from Wilmington, Delaware, replaced the injured Bob Fitzmeyer at the pivot post last season and has been a fixture in the Kittens' lineup since that time. The captain-elect saw sixty minutes service, handling both the offensive and defensive chores. As a high school athlete he received all-State honors as center and captain of the Archmere Academy eleven.

In addition to his football ability, Jack possesses quite a bit of acting talent. He most recently starred in the Belle Masque production of "The Hasty Heart."

Hennessy Scores 24 To Lead Attack, New Team Clicks in Win

By Harry Range

The sophomore studded Villanova five got off to a flying start with a 77-59 win over Iona College last Saturday night at the Main Line field house.

Al Severance'e current edition has only two holdovers from last season but the new Wildcats cagers, paced by Larry Hennessey's 24 points, showed the same fight that was symbolic of the Arizin-led five which won 63 of 80 contests in three years.

Hennessey, who incidentally lives in New Rochelle, N. Y., the home of Iona, was extremely accurate with 11 field goals in 24 attempts and two for three from the foul line. The 6'3" soph was decidedly the difference between the two clubs as he hit consistantly from just outside the key hole.

Big Larry was the last minute choice of Severance to replace the injured Nick Maguire.

Iona got off to a quick lead on field goals by J. T. Kelly and Jim Lyons and for five minutes it looked as if they might pull away. However, Hennessey's field goal gave the Wildcats a 12-11 lead after seven minutes of play and from that point it was all Villanova.

The halftime score found the Main Liners ahead 37-29.

Share Scoring

The second half saw the scoring being shared by Sam Glassmire, Jim Mooney, and Tom Brennan as the Wildcats pulled away. Under the boards it was all Villanova with Brennan, Mooney and Ben Stewart taking rebound after rebound.

Villanova, which has not lost at home since Manhattan turned the trick in 1947, looks to have another good season if Saturday's performance is any indication. The 1950-51 edition is a well balanced club with almost any man capable of bettering 20 points in a game.

Frosh Win

In the preliminary the Villanova freshmen topped the Iona frosh by the identical 77-59 score. The Junior Cats were paced by Ed Cunningham with 15 points while Jim McCormack led the New Yorkers with 22 markers.

All-American Teams Reach Low-Point Of Popularity

By W. Jay Kay

That season of the year is back again. Everyone from Grantland Rice to your Aunt Minnie is picking All-American teams.

From the press boxes and publicity agents across the land a stream of lyrical prose assails the ears and eyes of the helpless public. Bob Zuppke, former coach of the "Fighting Illini", has defined All-Americans as "Players who have weak opposition and a poet in the press-box."

In this day of specialists and two platoons, the old master's words are most appropriate. We have All-American tackles who have never made a tackle and All-American guards who have never thrown a block.

In order to make everybody happy and to make certain that all sections of the country and every major conference is represented the selectors pick second, third and fourth teams and so on ad nauseum. When the honorable mention list is included, it appears that everyone in the nation who has appeared on the gridiron in the past season is named.

Some years ago, Frank Leahy stated that the best back in the country, in his opinion, was Charley Hunsicker. Charley was a halfback for Florida University and now is in the pro ranks. To our knowledge Hunsicker did not make any major All-American teams.

Of course, what Charley lacked was a good publicity agent and a high-priced team playing a high-powered schedule. Early this season, a sports writer made the claim that Mr. Leahy picked his team's All-American candidate before the season and then told the publicity department to get into high gear and plug the player selected.

A good indication of a player's worth is the opinion of professional football scouts. Last year the Baltimore Colts had the first choice of any college player in the land in the annual player draft. The player announced as the first choice was Adrian Burk, quarterback of Baylor University. Unless you were an avid fan or read well down the list of All-American selections, chances are you had never heard of Adrian Burk.

So we are waiting for Oscar Twomp's selections. They are sure to be as accurate as any other All-American popularity contest.

Library Open House

the Friends of the Library, explained the purpose of the open house, Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., president, welcomed the visitors, and Robert Resnick, senior Arts student, spoke on the advantages of the new building from the student point of view. The Augustinian provincial, Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., also addressed the guests.

Following the talks, activities were shifted to the Library proper. Fifty student guides conducted a tour of the building, pointing out notable features and directing guests to the special demonstrations.

Artist Also Present

The chief point of interest was the Villanova Room, in which the presidents' portraits will hang permanently. During the open house Patrick O'Connor, New York artist who painted the entire group, was present to answer questions about the portraits. The 21 works had been donated by a member of the Friends of the Library.

Other features of the tour included inspection of the music, periodical, and reading rooms, the book stacks, and staff quarters. During the afternoon all members of the Library staff were present to show the jobs they perform during a working day.

At the end of the tour, the Friends of the Library served tea to the guests.

Fedigan Places Three On All Star Team Clancy, Stefanik, Watson Are Champs

By Dave Maynes

The managers of the Mendel League placed three Fedigan gridders on their 1950 "Dream Team". Big Don Stefanik was the only unanimous choice in a close balloting that also placed two Delureyites.

The line-ups—

E Bill Decker (Alumni) and Jim Healey (Mendel).
T Cummin Clancy (Fed.); Paul Solfani (Good Counsel).
C Jim Dugan (Delurey).
B Don Stefanik (Fed.); John Watson (Fed.); Dick James (O'Dwyer); Ed Mergens (Delurey).

Honorable mention:
Jamesen, Natiello, Driscoll, Markham, Flynn, Heigl, Irish, Baird, Caputo, Till and Becotte, Wright.

The Austin League selections have not yet been returned, but they are expected to be ready for the next issue.

Doms Drop Close One

In the A league's big game last week, the Fedigan Big Five came from behind a 27-30 halftime deficit to hand the Doms their first loss in three games by a 57-52 count. Brennan scored 22 and Lemmer 13 as the Feds kept their win string intact and took over first place. Arrey and Behan had 17 and 12 respectively for the losers. The next nite, the Doms turned a 5-point halftime advantage into a 66-42 win over Barracks No. 4 as Perry garnered 21.

"Igor" Konoski, 6' 5" center for the Austin Crows, personally outscored the Good Counsel team as he hit for 33 in the Crows' 83-32 victory. Russo was high, with ten, for the Counsellors.

Mendel handed the Good Counsel cagers their second straight defeat the following nite as they came out on top of a 34-24 score. Owczykowski led the Mendeleers with 9, and Hettrich had the same for the Counsellors.

The Alumni Toppers took their second as they downed Barracks No. 4 66-28. Falkowski lead the way with 18, and McElroy was again high for the Barracks with 11.

The Mendlecases won a 2-0 forfeit from the Barracks 2&3 in another game in the A league.

Knights & Caps Take Two

The barracks Knights came from behind to beat the Barracks Stars 31-25 as Quinn had 10, and then added the Austin Hotshots to their list of victims the following nite in a close 44-40 tussle. Sable was the main threat with 15, but Narganes of the losers was right on his heels with 14.

The Alumni Caps gathered their win victory from the Barracks No. 1 47-33, and the Alumni Characters 51-36. McConny of the losers grabbed scoring honors for the nite in the first game, while the Caps' Honan, Cullen and Byrnes all hit in the double figures against the Characters.

The Fire House 5, led by Bergen with 16, downed the Alumni Beavers 58-28, although eight of the Beavers broke into the scoring column.

McConny garnered 22 as the Barracks No. 1 broke into the win column with a 39-21 victory over the O'Dwyer Clowns. Mahan scored 7 in the Clowns losing cause.

The favored Fedigan Quints bowed to the Swishers 45-32 in an exciting C League game. Maffie led the Swishers to victory with 16 counters, while Jameson had 13 in defeat.

Barracks No. 1 won a 2-0 forfeit from the Austin Hayseeds but bowed to the Alumni Pistins 31-23 in their next outing. Quesne had 10 for the Pistons.

The Austin Ramblers also split two games, downing Barracks 2&3 64-27 as McGrath, Bufalino and McDonough collaborated for 52 points, but then falling before The Austin Refugees 55-48 in a thriller. Jordan and Dente were high for the victors in this game with 18 and 16 points respectively.

Furriers Win Overtime

Dave Leahy's deuce in a sudden death extra period gave the Furriers a 54-52 win over the Aces, in a real pulse-stopper. Trailing 20-26 at the half, the Furriers fought an uphill battle all the way. McHue of the Aces grabbed scoring honors, however, with 20 counters.

The Aces bounded back into the win column the next nite with a 62-63 win over the Liz Kids. Every man in the Aces' line-up hit for at least ten in this encounter. Wood had 15 for the Lizzies.

The Furriers luck ran out in their ensuing game with the Gunners as they bowed 50-39. Germano had 15 for the game's individual honors.

Hughes had 16 for Ballyshannon but it wasn't enough as the Rumrunners grabbed a 44-34 victory. Donato led the victors with 13.

The Runners did too much running for the Flames in the second half as they turned a 4 point mindway advantage into a 49-24 win. Cuini garnered 9 for the Runners, while Gorman had 10 for the Flames.

Warriors Win Third

Creamer led the Warriors to a 33-15 victory over the Hawks, as he hit for 13 tallies. Neville had 6 for his losing team.

The "V's" took the Alumni Darbies into camp 38-25 as LeFever took scoring honors with 14 points.

St. Mary,s Game

coveries and line smashes set up a shot at the goal, and D'Alonzo delivered the bacon. Haner failed to convert but D'Alonzo's touchdown was enough to land the victory for the 'Cats.

'Cats Defense Stiff

Villanova's defensive platoon gave the Gaels a taste of the blitzkreig, casing plays and mauling runners. The secondary backed up the line so effectively that hardly a play passed without a backer aiding in a tackle.

Eight men played their last game for the Blue and White. Important backs such as D'Alonzo, Geppi, Frinzi and O'Boyle leave the Main Liners in June along with line standouts Johnny Bogan, Ray Mantone, Ted Oroski and Mike Kerwin. These men have given their all for the Wildcats and will be sorely missed come graduation.

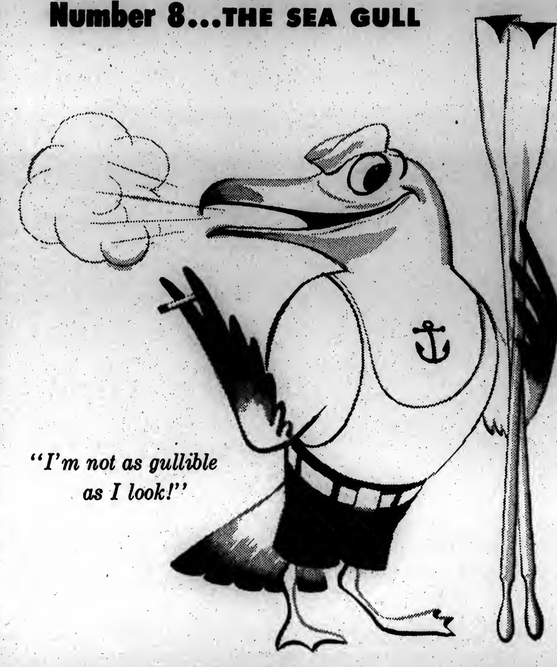
Selective Service Summons 235 Men; New Law Disregards Postponements

Up to this date 235 letters have been sent by the school to draft boards for postponements of the induction of 1-A students.

Previously draft boards were compelled to grant postponments, but on Nov. 29, because of a new ruling, they have the power to draft students right out of school. School authorities feel, however, that these letters will still be honored, and they request all students who receive notice to report to notify them of this action so that no time will be wasted in seeking postponment.

Several Reservists Called

At least 12 Villanovans have been called so far because of their classification as reservists.



All NROTC members who are in their third or fourth year will receive postponment until their schooling is completed. First and second year students are subject to call, though this seems improbable at this time.

CHRISTMAS CLOTHING

The annual Christmas clothing drive sponsored by the Villanova Inter-Racial Club is now in progress and will continue until December 12. Students are requested to place anything they wish to donate (clothing, children's toys, canned foods, etc.) in the receptacles placed in various places throughout the campus.

Number 8...THE SEA GULL

"I'm not as gullible as I look!"

Maybe our little over-water friend is just fishing for a compliment. On the other hand, he may have reference to all these quick-trick cigarette tests you hear about nowadays.

Well, he's not the only one who's been at sea. Frankly, how can you judge a cigarette by a swift sniff? Or another cigarette by one fast puff. What's all the rush about, anyway? When it comes to making up your mind about cigarette mildness, we think you'd like to take your time.

That's why we suggest:

The sensible test—the one that you make on a day after day, pack after pack tryout for 30 days. It's the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test! Simply smoke Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days. Let your own "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) be your proving ground. When you've tried Camels as a steady smoke, you'll know why . . .

More People Smoke Camels

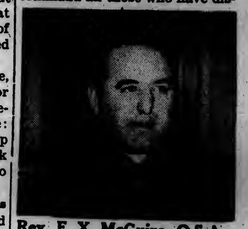
President Feels Responsible



"I would feel responsible for any accident that might occur this evening, if I do not call the dance off," McCabe stated.

The storm struck the metropolitan area early Saturday morning. It lasted over 18 hours and caused a million dollars worth of damage. (This was the second disaster to hit New York during the ill-fated Thanksgiving recess. Seventy-eight were killed in a crash on the Long Island railroad late Wednesday evening, and although Villanova students were traveling home that evening, none of them were involved.)

The New York Alumni have not announced the new date for the dance, but it will be held at the Biltmore during the Christmas vacation.

Presidential Vote Delayed by Check

One of the highlights at a recent meeting of the Marketing Club was the selection of administrative officers for the year. Final tabulations showed the election of Richard Hartman, Vice President; Anthony Tranelli, Secretary; and Warren McDermott, Treasurer. The office of President was not voted upon pending administration approval of the candidates.

Guy Matteo, who presided, appointed four committees for governing duties during the year. Selections of committee chairmen will be decided by the various members, and will be announced at the next meeting. Matteo outlined all functions of these groups and expressed a desire for a high degree of participation by all members in the club.

Biltmore Remains Site of Affair

Friday, December 29th, has been chosen as the date for the New York Alumni dance. The officers of the New York Club were able to procure the Bowman Room of the Biltmore that evening after cancellation of the dance at Thanksgiving.

The arrangements have remained the same as they were for the dance at Thanksgiving. Bids will go for four dollars on campus with dancing from nine till one. Tickets will be available at the door.

The dance had to be cancelled at Thanksgiving because of the storm that hit the city on the day the dance had been scheduled.

Student Rally Greets Football Squad On Return From California

Overcast skies, blustery winds and failure to suspend classes failed to dim the enthusiasm of five hundred cheering Villanova students who vociferously welcomed home the football squad last Thursday morning.

Yielding to shouts of "We Want Leonard," head coach Jim Leonard addressed the group briefly. He thanked the students for the warm reception, and told them that it was a "fighting Villanova team" that won over St. Mary's.

Students draped themselves over the Pennsy station and its approaches a half hour before the team arrived. They burst into a roaring din as Coach Leonard and the team fought their way through them.

Loud were the cheers that greeted the members of the football team as they disembarked from the train at Villanova Station last week. It was the completion of a successful trip as they met and defeated St. Mary's of San Francisco, 13-7.

WVIL on Air As Repairs Are Finished

Keenley Announces New Regulations

George Keenley

Radio Station WVIL will be on the air, in a limited sense, within a week, reported co-manager Skip Keenley.

At the initial meeting of the year, held last Tuesday, Keenley pointed out that there are several reasons for the delay. He mentioned the short circuit which started all the trouble, and the difficulties encountered in recruiting an outfit of technicians.

The near-impossible task of discovering the correct ratings of the transmitter's units was also blamed. The technicians, he concluded, have solved most of the problems and will have the station functioning soon.

A disciplinary code will be put into effect this year, Keenley declared, both for the benefit of the new and old members. An expected address by the new moderator, Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O. S. A., had to be delayed due to Father's parochial duties.

Campus Lights For Christmas

Christmas lights, which annually adorn the trees on the Villanova campus during the holiday season, will go on this year the evening of December 18th.

The tradition of the lights was begun fifteen years ago, in 1935, when the Maintenance Department introduced the innovation by decorating one tree near the chapel. Each following year more and more lights were added to the display until it reached the proportions that completely decorated the campus last year.

Cover Campus

Each year the lighting begins at the east end of the Commerce and Finance building and extends across the campus to O'Dwyer hall. Over 5000 bulbs are used in the undertaking. Each tree is to be lighted individually this year, with special emphasis, as in previous years, placed on the blue spruce west of the Chapel.

The project is annually viewed by many motorists from the Lancaster turnpike, as well as the students and many visitors to the campus.

Second Forum Set For Tomorrow Night

Fr. McFadden
Speaks this evening.

Fr. McFadden Speaks In C&F

Tomorrow evening the second lecture of the Villanova Forum series will be presented in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 8:30 p. m. The speaker will be Rev. Charles J. McFadden, O.S.A., Ph.D., Professor of Philosophy at Villanova College.

Father McFadden's topic will be "Human Rights and The Individual," fitting in with the general theme for the forum this season, "Human Rights and the Natural Law."

Villanova Graduate

Father McFadden was graduated from Villanova College in 1932 (A. B.). He received his Doctorate of Philosophy at Catholic University of America in 1938. Father is well known to Villanova and its friends, having taught Philosophy here since his arrival in 1939. Before coming to Villanova he was an instructor in Philosophy and Ethics at Catholic University during 1938-39.

Author

Father McFadden is a widely known lecturer and author. Among his numerous books are "Metaphysical Foundations of Dialectical Materialism," and "The Philosophy of Communism." The latter is considered the most authoritative analysis of communistic philosophy to-

C&F Revamps Curriculum

Courses Examined For Possible Changes

The Commerce and Finance School is presently undergoing a reappraisal of its curriculum. This was revealed last week by Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., Dean of the Commerce and Finance School.

Father Bartley said that all departments of his school are "examining their courses and sequences so that they may improve the curricula in any possible way."

The material garnered from this reappraisal will be compiled in time for the course of the school to be correctly listed in the 1951-52 College Catalog.

Devore Highlights Last Night's Football Banquet

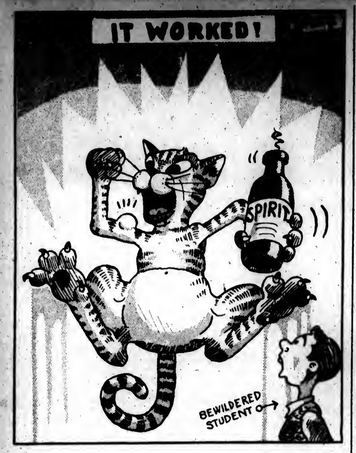
Joseph Freney '27 Gets Loyalty Award

Joseph D. Freney, Villanova '27, received the Villanova Loyalty award last evening at the 29th annual football banquet.

Hugh Devore, head coach of New York University's eleven, and wartime coach of Notre Dame, his alma mater, was principal speaker at the Ben Franklin Hotel.

Toastmaster was George Walsh, sports director of WFIL-TV.

Loyalty Award



The Loyalty award, which Mr. Freney received, is presented annually for "zeal in Alumni matters, outstanding loyalty to the Alumni Association and unselfish service in behalf of all things Villanova."

Gold football helmets were presented to Senior members of the squad. Various other prizes and awards were also given out at the dinner.

Surprise Party

Two dozen travel-weary men were on the train that pulled into the Villanova station last Thursday morning. They had just completed the last game of a football season that took them east and south and west throughout the country. And they were tired. The last game was a victory, but a disheartening one played in ankle-deep water on a flooded field.

As the train brought the men back on campus they raised their weary bodies out of the seats and prepared to disembark, as usual, to a dreary, empty station.

But this time the train chugging down the line found its noise being drowned out by the shouts and cheers of 500 students who had turned out to welcome their team back.

Surprise? You bet it was. Heartwarming? Even Coach Leonard choked up. This was the first time all season they returned from a game to such a rousing welcome — cheers, songs and plenty of spirit. The same spirit the players showed on gridirons all over the country during the season. It finally showed up here at home.

The rally was a success only because of you if you were one of the 500 who showed up. Okay, this paper predicted last week a turnout of 2000 —we were glad to see one quarter of that number. And the students who were there made up by their spirit for these who would have left class, but couldn't—for those who could have left the bridge game in the Pie Shop, but wouldn't.

Thanks for putting the Wildcat back to his feet again. You showed that the old spirit isn't entirely dead. Our only regret is that this rally happened at the end of the season instead of at the beginning.

War in the East

Propaganda Is Biggest Red Weapon

By Joseph Mao
as told to Gerald Micallef

Joseph Mao is a senior electrical engineering student at Villanova. He came from Shanghai, in the province of Crekiang, China, to this school in 1947.

Mao has received many letters from China since 1947. Despite strict censorship he has been able to secure considerable information in connection with the Korean crisis. This interview took place about a week ago.

"Communist propaganda is plentiful and effective in China, and anything that happens that is not beneficial to the Communists has little chance of ever being heard by the people." This seems to be about the most important thought in the mind of Joseph Mao, Chinese student studying at Villanova. Everything that he thinks about concerning China is considered in this light. He therefore receives little satisfaction when our troops accomplish successes.

Joe Mao is from the Province of Chekiang. When he left that place in 1947 there was little Communist activity there, and practically no general acceptance of it, he said.

Communists Troops From All of China

Today, however the Communist dominated portion of China is very large. Troops are recruited from all of China, not just Manchuria, as many people believe. All of these troops are being moved to Manchuria, Mao stated, and then to Koreo. In a letter he received recently, a friend told him that all of the Russian technicians, teachers, and other educated persons who were stationed in Shanghai were moved north. This, he estimated, would be more than two thousand specially trained Russian Communists. Possibly these people are being sent to strengthen and spread their creed of hate in Manchuria and to be away from" . . . a possible invasion by U. N. and Chinese Nationalist forces in southern Communist China."

I asked Joe if Manchuria was a part of China or a country by itself. "It is just like New England, which is the northeastern part of this Country. Manchuria is that part of China."

Drop the Atomic Bomb?

Then we hit solid ground. Since so many people are being moved to Manchuria, and then to Korea, I asked Joe if he thought that the United Nations troops should drop an Atomic Bomb in Korea. He immediately thought of the vicious propaganda machine of the Communists because he answered with an unhestitating "No."

He then qualified his answer. Since the people would not know that we had fallen back on the most destructive device known to mankind the Chinese would not clamor for the end of hostilities. "They would not become demoralized," he said. "And if they did hear about the bombing, the Communists would word it in such a way as to make the United Nations appear to be the aggressor.

China Should Remain Independent

"China should not have fought. They should have remained independent." "They fought only because a few leaders wanted them to fight," Mao said, which has often happened in other countries, too. "The Chinese people do not like Communism. Tradition of the country is contrary to their way." Nearly everyone knows that the Chinese people have always wished to "live and let live," so to speak, and this is truly opposite to Communism's dialectic materialistic idea of control of the world.

How many Chinese troops are in Korea and are they behind their cause? Mao answered that "I don't actually know but I believe it is possible that 800,000 Chinese troops are in Korea now. But the average soldier there does not want to fight, as most soldiers do not want to fight."

Lives Mean Nothing to Leaders

Reverting back to the Atom Bomb he said that it would " . . . only kill people." Its effect would be only on the number of men fighting, not on the people's morale or even on the morale of the leaders of the country and of the war. Lives mean nothing to the latter and the former will probably never hear about it. All of this, of course, was blamed on the strict censorship and strong propaganda now controlling the country. He said that the people may listen only to certain radio stations. This brings to mind the days of war in Europe, with Germany and Italy, when the same dictatorial situation was enforced by the enemy leaders.

A Trip To The Palestra

By Bill Brenninghouse

Young Oscar Twomp, desiring to see a college basketball double-header set out one dark and dreary evening for that scene of athletic contests known as the Palestra. Things didn't start off too good. No sooner had Oscar left his hall for the P&W than an addle-brained, moronic, obtuse, incompetent automobile driver almost ran over him while driving his car as though it were as midget as his mind. The turnpike was crossed without casualty and the P&W soon whisked Oscar and his friends to the Palestra, with an assist from the "El" of the PTC.

Feature Game First

The feature game needs no recounting. Oscar's team won handily, displaying a fast, aggressives tyle and a terrific scoring punch. After the main game Oscar went down from the smoke clouds which at times had obscured the numbers of the players and purchased himself a hot dog and a coke. He didn't mind paying eighty-seven cents for this tasty meal but it seemed as though the hot dog was a bit leathery.

Preliminary Game Last

Returning to the scene of the battle Oscar settled down to watch the other game. It was the first time in his memory that the preliminary game was played after the feature game. The home team won only because the visiting team refused to score. This winner team played as though the floor was made of hardening cement. They had a center who looked like a pretty fair ball player but his teammates evidently didn't think so since they tried their hardest to keep the ball away from him.

As this preliminary game progressed it became evident that one of the home team was saving himself for the Senior Prom and another had his hands covered with blisters from shooting so much. The team theme song seemed to be "To Each His Own." One boy got an assist when he accidently dropped the ball while attempting a shot.

Early All-American

Metropolitan sports writers have been boosting a certain member of this team as the successor to a boy who graduated from Oscar's school who was considered by all to be the country's greatest. This is akin to comparing a mewing kitten to a roaring lion. The kid is undoubtedly good but he will never approach the greatness of the Tall One, especially on that team. Oscar knows that the city's paper will be full of his exploits since his school has a habit of producing All-Americans long before they prove themselves worthy.

Oscar's Team Played Well

And so Oscar left the Palestra convinced that it was a good deal and that despite the inconvenience of transportation it was worth the extra money to see his team meet some of the country's top teams in the remaining games. Also, the other team had scheduled some good teams for the preliminaries.

Joseph Mao, left, answers one of the questions put to him by writer Gerald Micallef. Mao expressed many views on the Chinese situation during this interview last week in the electronics lab. Mao is in the engineering school.

American Attention in Far East

"America paid little attention to the Far East a few years ago," Joe Mao said when interrogated concerning a possible reason of the present situation in Korea. "If she had paid more attention, this would not have happened." Should we now withdraw from the mess before we make it worse? "If the U. N. withdraws now one one will have confidence in it. The people who have fought in Korea since July will have died in vain."

The only other fighting in that immediate sector is between the Communist troops and guerilla fighters. These troops number about one and a half millions persons, and their number is increasing. This made me wonder that if our troops go to the Manchurian border, will these guerilla fighters join the U. N. troops to wipe out the affliction of Communism in the Far East?

World War Three Is Coming

All hope of such a rosy situation faded when Mao answered that "I do not think that we can avoid a third world war." He explained that he believes the entire world will be at war with the Communists, who will fight under the undenied arm of Russia. The Korean situation is just another step toward Russia's hope of world conquest, Mao believes.

Draft Talk Sweeps Bull Sessions

By Bob Cullen and George Ferguson

What does the average Villanova student think of the draft, and the present international situation? Because of the prominence of these topics at the present time, this newspaper decided to conduct a student opinion poll on the campus. Results of this poll were both enlightening and varied.

"When Will They Call Me"

Typical reaction to the draft question was not ' "Will I be drafted?" but "When will they call me up?" With 270 students already notified by their local boards of 1-A status, conversation on this subject reached a peak this week, matched by discussions on the near-disastrous United Nations retreat in Korea.

Now that a million Communist Chinese troops, together with the regrouped and re-equipped North Koreans, are massing for a knockout blow at the Allied Army, the question is raised: "What will the United Nations do?"

Student Opinions From Interviews

Campus interviews revealed the following student opinions, in regard to the causes of today's present situation:

1.—Failure of the UN Supreme Command to realize the actual gravity of the Communist menace.

2.—Failure of the State Department to face the problem realistically.

3.—Selling out of UN in its efforts to establish peace, by selfish business interests, international financiers, and certain "neutral" countries.

4.—Failure of the United Nations to do its primary job — establish and maintain peace throughout the world.

5.—Attempts of certain European nations to promote appeasement policies. Agreement among the students was unanimous on the following points:

1. If Allied troops are forced to carry out a "Dunkirk" operation from Korea, we must return with overwhelming strength, to liberate our Asian allies from the Red yoke, and restore UN prestige.
2. We must arm Western Europe, and the Federal Republic of Germany must be included in any rearmament plans.
3. The Soviet Union, at an hour of her own choosing, will attack the West, with her military and air forces.

Crisis Could Have Been Divided

From these opinions it seems obvious that Villanova College men are overwhelmingly of the opinion that the present crisis could have been avoided, had an honest and universal effort been made. At the same time they feel (admirably) that no matter how it came about, we're in it, and we'll stay in it until a just settlement results.

the PASHA PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

SHABBY CHAPEAUX: During the recent deluge of the elements, the students of this institution have adorned their craniums with many striking, if not outlandish, block blankets. Evidently the current fad is to see how ridiculous one can make a ten dollar Stetson. The results are shocking to say the least because these Beetle Bailey-Bonnets have taken on the appearance of gift tokens from Hop-a-Long-Cassidy. Keep a sharp look-out on the next day of heavy precipation.

FOTO-FACES: Juniors prepare now for the Prom Queen photo contest which will get under way soon after the Christmas vacation. The photographs must be 5/7 for this contest. Mr. Frank Palumbo has consented to act as a judge along with another prominent Philadelphian. Sorry, but class officers and chairmen may not enter their fiance's photograph.

BILLBOARD BOUNCING—The billboard which has kept a vigil on the Pike for a number of years is no more. Yes, the loyal sentinel of Villanova College was felled by the wind rather than by the wrath of athletic enthusiasts. It was formerly used to publicize the Home football tilts, however, with existing schedules it could readily give way to a Burma-Shave sign.

LIBRARY LURKING: The many visitors to the library were very much amazed with the system which is in effect along with the wonderful music room and book collections that are present in the building. Villanovans who attended the affair were also impressed. They hadn't been exposed to the music room since the last open-house.

COCA-CALLING: Some men are never satisfied with their lot. Now they want the Council to pass a bill which will provide for the installation of Rum machines. For these individuals a sour bit of news has come to the foreground because from all indications they might have to do away with the mixer. Although the coke machines have been passed by the Council, the motion must go through other channels which are apparently delaying the final passage.

TELEMISSION: One of the members of the Psychology department was called in as a consultant by a very prominent Philadelphia psychologist. The case deals with a youngster who has an inferiority complex due to the absence of a television set in his home. The little fellow has been so miserable and melancholy that he has caused the separation of his parents, and has been on a hunger strike for two weeks. From first observations, the psycholgists have agreed that it is all for the best because the parent sdidn't get along anyway and the youngster was too fat for his age. It just proves that high powered advertising does do some good when it enters the family circle.

RING REALIZATION: The members of the Junior Class may pick up their rings on the 18th of this month in the lounge of Austin Hall. The balance which is due on the rings must be paid at that time. The Juniors are reminded that none of the rings will be sent to their home but that they must obtain them here on the campus. Remember December 15th.

CHRISTMAS CAPERS: Don't forget to put your signature on a form for the orphanage trip this week. Your cooperation during the collection and Hobo Hop activities have enabled the Operation Yule drive to go over the top, financially. However, your part in the operation doesn't conclude with your donation. Regardless of the amount in the treasury, the program will be considered a failure if one of those parentless tots is left in the Orphanage on the 16th of December. It is up to you men to make this the greatest Christmas ever witnessed by your little brothers, because without their hand in yours during the Christmas Season, their holiday will be incomplete. Here is a chance for you to help a child and an opportunity to rectify a mistake made by men when they neglected to help a child two centuries ago. REMEMBER: A MAN IS NEVER SO TALL AS WHEN HE STOOPS TO HELP A CHILD.

"Most people live on a lonely island . . ."
—Richard Rogers

"I'm as lonesome as a coyote."
—William Saroyan

Do you ever remember feeling a touch of hopeless isolation, a sort of recognition of your own incompleteness coupled with the feeling that you completely walled-in, with no possibility of bridging the gap between yourself and the rest of existence?

Around You, But Separated

The normal reaction is to find society, to call up some friends or to go out and get some entertainment. But sometimes every attempt to overcome the mood is futile. You find people all around, talking, laughing, apparently enjoying themselves immensely, but distinct from and outside of yourself. You are just "living on a lonely island" and the churning sea of life is all around you, but separate from you, so that you can neither become part of it nor it part of you.

Universal

Such moods come to everyone, to men with happy marriages and to "gay divorcees", to people of wealth and social position, and to sharecroppers who have barely enough to survive.

It must be so, for such a feeling is a direct effect of the nature of man. For God designed him to seek himself, and the yearning can never find reward of permanence in anything less the infinite. The creature strains to find its goal, seeking one thing after another and rejecting them almost as quickly as they are achieved, as quickly as it finds that the satisfaction which they offered was only a psuedo-satisfaction, a poor imitation which seemed to gleam, but was actually only a reflection.

The Real Thing

But true satisfaction will result from these things which bring man nearer to his goal of infinite perfection, to his God. It is the wisest of men, therefore, who directs every effort towards his eternal salvation, for he alone can never have the feeling that his efforts are futile. And he alone can never experience the sensation of "living on a lonely island", for even in the most desolate mood of isolation he can be encouraged by the fact that he HAS a purpose which makes him and integral, indispensable portion of creation, and that he is taking definite steps to fulfill that purpose.

In Superior, Wisconsin, the favorite gathering spot of students at the Superior State College is the Cafeteria because it is a cheerful place —full of friendly collegiate atmosphere. Pan-American Unity Is Plea of Spanish Night Speaker

Students Entertain Spanish Consuls At Annual Fete

"Unity among all the American nations is essential for world peace." So said Dr. Charles Cadwallader, President of the Pan American Association of Philadelphia, last Tuesday evening at the Spanish Club's annual "Noche Espanola."

Speaking in the C&F auditorium, Dr. Cadwallader emphasized that Russo-American relations have passed the talking stage and that a combined American front will maintain world peace longer than if we are disunited.

Dr. Cadwallader was substituting for Dr. Ricardo Cuadra, the scheduled speaker, who had to return unexpectedly to Nicaragua. Dr. Carlos Quinnones, consul from Columia; Dr. Pico Rodid, consul from Venezuela; and Dr. Carlos Cassal, consul from Argentina; were among the large audience at the affair.

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator of the club, acted as master of ceremonies.

Augustinian Product

Dr. Cadwallader also pointed out in his brief talk that he, too, had "suffered" the teaching of the Augustinian fathers. He studied at the Augustinian University in Madrid, "El Escorial", often called, as he put it, "the eighth wonder of the world."

After a short intermission the feature of the second part of the evening was presented. It was a play, "Adelita Wishes to Learn English," written, directed and produced by Father Lozano. The cast was composed of Villanova and Rosemont students. Miss Leonor Munoz, Miss Elizabeth Tarleton and Miss Joan Crossley of Rosemont, and Carlos Pou, Anthony Tranelli and Frank Cauz of Villanova were featured in the play.

Fesco Named New Mendel Bulletin Ed.

Publication Planned For Spring Issue

Difficulties preventing the early publication of the Mendel Bulletin have finally been ironed out, and moderator, Rev. C. F. Kropp, O.S.A., appointed a permanent staff last week.

Out in Spring

Publication of the Bulletin is scheduled for the spring semester. Although it had been a quarterly when last published eight years ago, the mazagine this year will take the form of an annual. When published it will include articles relating to all branches of science and research.

All students interested in contributing articles to the Bulletin should contact Murray Seitchik in room 348 Mandel, or one of the other editors. Editor Fesco has said that he will call a general staff meeting shortly before the Christmas vacation.

Cafeteria Service

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock Gimbel Brothers will open their Co-Workers Cafeteria to students and the orphans. The whole project has been taken over by Gimbels staff, but is strictly a non-profit arrangement. Each student and his child will receive a turkey dinner with all the trimmings. Santa Claus will be in the cafeteria during the entire day. Each child will receive a balloon and a toy chosen by the buyers at Gimbels.

All personnel of Gimbel's will be dressed in Mother Goose costumes for the entire program, and several clowns will provide entertainment. Gimbel's party will last for at least two to three hours. Its cost is nominal, and will eliminate the necessity of standing in line for dinner and to see Santa.

Gimbels Will Pay

Since Gimbels will bill the committee for the entire afternoon, it is necessary that those students who wish to take advantage of the offer do so immediately.

The place to sign up is the chaplain's office, and the price is $3.40. This covers two turkey dinners ($2.00), one balloon (.25) and one toy (1.35). This sum must be paid when you sign in the chaplains office, and it's first come—first served, as provisions have been made for only 200 students. General Chairman John Kelly suggests that all interested students sign up immediately.

No preliminary arrangements have to be made for the party at Wanamakers, but all students who are going to take out an orphan must register with the chaplain.

Two Plans

Villanova students will pick up the orphans during Saturday Morning. Students and their charges may attend both parties, and it is suggested that they attend at least one of them.

CAGERS WIN OVER TAMPA, LOYOLA; FACE LOUISVILLE FIVE ON SATURDAY

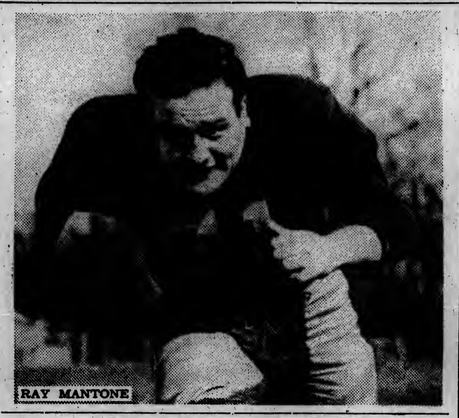
Fast Breaking Cards Feature 6' 7" Center

The Villanova Wildcats will face their toughest opponent so far this season when they tangle with a strong Louisville quintet at the Palestra Saturday night.

The'Cats will have their hands full with the Kentuckians too, because it was Louisville that handed last year's squad one of their four losses. Graduation has hit the Cardinals pretty hard though, and Coach "Peck" Hickman, is looking around for replacements for the five new members of the Louisville Alumni Association. Included among these are Kenny Reeves and Glenn Combs who wreaked such havoc in upsetting Villanova last year.

Three First Stringers

On the credit side "Peck" has Lochmueller, Dick Robinson, and Bob Brown back from last year's first string. Lochmueller a giant 6'5" forward had a 10.5 points per game average last year to rank third on the squad. He features a classy one handed shot and a greedy paw on the rebounds.



Robinson is 6'4" and an old hand at center. He favors a hook shot, but he's a little too eager to mix it up on defense. He was the cause of a lot of opponents rating high in the charity toss department last year. Bob Brown at 6'3" has height to spare and speed too, which fits in well with the fast break system the Blue Grass boys use. He averaged 10.3 points per session last year.

Good Reserves

The Cards also have two good reservists coming up to round out what appears to be the first team. Bob Naber was number six man last year. He is listed as a forward, but can and does play guard. He scores in spurts but he is fast, and he likes to get in under the boards and show off his good defensive play.

Bill Sullivan saw limited action last year, but Coach Hickman believes he'll leave the bench warming to others this year. He is only 5'10", but he is

RAY MANTONE

Football Banquet Honors Mantone As 1950 Captain

D'Alonzo, Frinzi Get Awards; Senior Stars Hailed at Ben Franklin Last Night

Ray Mantone, elected 1950 team captain by his teammates last week, received special honors along with Mickey Frinzi and Pete D'Alonzo last night at the football banquet in the Ben Franklin Hotel.

The banquet, 29th to be held by the Philadelphia Alumni, also honored the other senior football players by presenting each of the men a gold football helmet. The entire 1950 football squad, local sportswriters, and several hundred alumni attended the affair and joined in honoring the senior stars.

Mantone at Tackle

The three squad members given special honors had proven themselves the stars of the past season. Mantone, a fiery tackle from Phillipburg, N. J., began his bid for fame in 1949 when he stepped into the cleats left vacant by lineman Lou Ferry. That was a rough assignment for any man to fill, but Coach Leonard had no fears about Ray's ability.

Mantone merited Leonard's confidence the first season, but showed his best form this past season by pounding opponents from Boston to California. After winning three football letters at Villanova, Ray gained national recognition with honorable mention on Collier's "All-East" squad. He has accepted an invitation to carry the colors of the Main Line Wildcats into Rebel country during the annual Blue-Grey game at Montgomery, Alabama.

D'Alonzo at M. V. P.

Most valuable player of the 1950 team, Pete D'Alonzo, is a charging fullback from South Orange, N. J. Bucking from the tailback slot that Ralph Pasquariello willed to him after last season, the "Blue Bull" has battered and fought his way to a position of greatness right next to last year's ace touchdown-maker. In fact, Pete may follow even further the footsteps of Pasquariello if he signs with the Los Angeles Rams who want to add his name alongside that of "Big Ralph" on their roster.

Considering the fact that Villanova won only four of the nine games this season it is almost impossible to believe the record D'Alonzo has made. Pete scored ten times, and accumulated 833 yards in 145 carries, 5.75 yards average.

Carried the Mail

In the tradition of a faithful carrier, D'Alonzo toted Villanova's mail through snow and rain and heat and cold this season. Slogging through Miami's mud or freezing in Detroit's cold, this faithful courier proved that he couldn't be stopped. About the best tribute paid to him all season were the sighs of relief from opposing linemen when Pete took a breather during a game.

Mitey Mickey Frinzi was without a doubt the most consistent player this season. On defense or in the attack, the little Phillipsburg, N. J. halfback gave

Severance Clears Bench In Two Easy Victories

Freshmen Come From Behind to Win Second Straight, 76-73, Over Loyola

With Coach Al Severance clearing the bench in both contests, the Villanova five went on to their second and third straight victories, netting decisive wins over the University of Tampa and Loyola of Baltimore.

The Main Liners inaugurated the double headers at the Palestra for 1950-51 season last Wednesday with a 90-63 lashing of Tampa and won their 25th consecutive game at home the following Saturday by virtue of a 64-44 romp over Loyola.

Maje McDonnell's Freshman clug registered their second win in a 76-73 thriller over the Loyola frosh in the prelim at the Main Line Field House.

Two Records Broken

The clash with Tampa saw two floor records broken at the U. of P. court. The 153 point two-team total topped the previous Palestra mark while Villanova's 90 is the highest ever scored by one team there.

The Wildcats got off to a quick start against the Floridans with Larry Hennessey tallying three successive field goals to put his team ahead. Co-Captain Nick Maguire, who had not started due to an injured ankle, was then put in, and from that point the Main Liners moved out and were never in trouble.

The South Philadelphia sharpshooter was deadly accurate in racking up 23 points for high scoring honors. Nick hit 10 for 12 field goals, mostly drive-in shots.

Glassmire & Brennan

Sam Glassmire's floor work and Tom Brennan under the boards were big factors in the Main Liners' win. Glassmire was all over the hardwood and was credited with six assists and 15 points.

Jim Montz of Allentown was high man for Tampa with 17 markers.

Although not up to their performances of their previous two encounters, the Wildcats nevertheless won easily over Loyola. The ball handling did not match that of the Iona and Tampa tilts and the 32% field goal average was 7 under that registered against Tampa.

Stewart High

However, with the exception of the opening two minutes, the contest was clearly all Villanova. Ben Stewart paced the victors during the first half and wound up as top scorer with 13 points. Nick Maguire netted 11 and Larry Hennessey 10.

Again Brennan and Glassmire played a major part in the win. Sam was stellar on the floor and contributed five assists while Towering Tom's 12 rebounds were high and for the night.

Ed Doherty paced the Baltimorians with 14 markers.

Behind 38-50 at Half

The freshman game was a thriller all the way. Loyola held a 50-38 halftime edge but the Junior Wildcats rallied with 38 points to the losers' 23 to put the game on ice late in the second half.

Paul Anisko, 5 foot 10 inch guard from Elizabeth, N. J., led the home team with 20 points.

Leading the varsity scorer are Larry Hennesy with 48 points a 16 per game average and Nick Maguire with 40 for 13.3 per game.

Frosh Court Squad A Balanced Outfit; Average Over 6 Ft.

The current edition of Villanova Freshmen Basketball shapes up to be a fine club. In their play thus far they have shown plenty of ability and hustle. Averaging over six foot the club is well balanced with height and speed.

Cunningham 6'5"

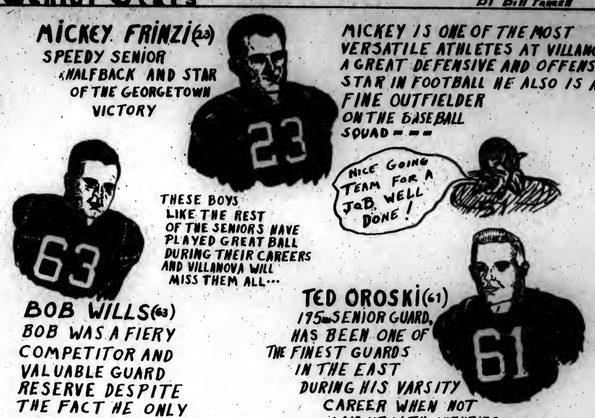
The tallest man on the team is "Big Ed" Cunningham who hails from New York City, where he played ball at Manhattan Prep. Ed's 6'5" frame and weight of 210 pounds makes him a tough man under the boards. His many scholastic honors were topped by his being picked to play in the East-West game.

All State

Paul Anisko and Frank Stahl, the small speedster of the frosh, both possess sensational drive in shots and play a firery brand of ball. Both boys were all State, Anisko won New Jersey honors while "Kentucky" Stahl grabbed a berth on the Blue Grass all state team.

The fine all around play of Horst Kluger and John Imgrund will be a large factor in the junior Wildcats season. Horst calls New Rochelle, New York his home while John lives in West Orange, New Jersey. Also hailing from Orange are Danny Paris, Mike Lopete and John Soley. Paris also starred on the gridiron for Orange high; while Hike Toprete captained Columbia High's quintet.

Malvern Prep



Malvern Prep has made two contributions to "Maje" McDonnell's squad in John Ward and Tom Brachen. These two fellows resemble a Mutt and Jeff combo. Ward is 6'4" and Bracken reaches only 5'9". Bill Bracken, Pete Foster and Dick Rabb round out the Blue and White's roster. Dick Rabb represented St. Rose of Belmar, New Jersey and was a teammate of Steve Gepp. Bill Braddock played for Iona Prep and was all-Met while Pete Foster was all-State for Red Bank High.

Six Footers

This year's team has twelve members, six of the topping the six foot mark. They may be booked to continue to play a winning and crowd pleasing brand of basketball.

I-M Basketball Hits Into Fifth Week, Seven Teams Still Remain Undefeated

The Fedigan Big 5 and the Alumni Toppers kept their win strings intact with decisive victorys last week to share the top roost of the "A" League with 3-0 records. The Feds put a victory over Mendel under their belts by a 61-p3 score as Brennan hit for 18 points to lead the individual scoring for the nite, while Ackerman was high for Mendel with 10.

The Toppers grabbed their victory from the winless Good Counsel five, 57-20. Falkowski had 10 in the Alumni win.

The Austin Crows kept in the race with a close 43-39 triumph over Barracks 2 & 3. Cananan was high for the Crowds with 15, but it was Konoski's field goal in the last half minute that broke a 39 tie, and Scanlon's clincher in the final seconds that were the high points in a real thriller.

Caps Lead "B" League

The Alumni Caps continued their winning ways in the "B" League with a 56-47 win over the Fire House 5, to take over first place in that league. Homen took scoring honors with 25 counters as he hit from all angles. O'Malley and Bergen kept the Fire House in the game most of the way with 13 each.

The Barracks Knights bowed to the Alumni Characters 49-27 for their first loss, and dropped into second place. Brabson was the ehro in the Characters big victory, as he cut the meshes for 16 points.

Barracks 1 took a 38-14 decision from the Barracks Stars for their second straight win as McConney led the way with 10.

Swishers Undefeated

The Swishers tightened their grip on first place in the "C" League with a 56-47 win over a good Alumni Piston team. Maffee was the big gun with 17, while Bossan was right on his heels with 12.

The Ramblers held their second place perch with a 42-34 victory over the Fedigan Quints. Buffalino led the Ramblers with 20 counters, and McCune and Jameson both had 10 for the losers.

Barracks No. 1 won a 2-0 forfeit from Barracks 2&3.

Gunners Upset

The Liz Kids rose upon to the heights by knocking off the high flying Gunners 32-30 in an ex- baseball citing overtime contest. Germano of the losers was high for the nite with 10, but Maggione's long screamer in the extra canto was the bigthrill.

The Aces tied the idle Furriers for second place with a 47-29 win over Ballyshannon as McCue hit for 13 points.

In the other American League game the Fedigan Aces kept in a first place tie with the Rum runners by virtue of a 57-27 verdict over the Black Flames. Kershaw was high man for the Feds with 19, while Pilot had 10 for the Flames.

Warriors Lead National

The Engineers split in two games in the National League, taking the V's into camp for their first victory of the young season, 34-24, but then losing out 2r-26 in a last period spurt put on by the Alumni Darbies. Kane of the Engineers garnered 24 counters in the two games, while Kenney was high man for the Darbies with 12.

Good Representation On I-M Council

The I-M Council this year is composed of nine students, representing many of the student groups and organizations in the college.

Bill Klucsarits and Bob Fox are the hard working senior managers —the men who directly aid Mr. Powers in the administrative work. An example of their fine work was the smoothness with which the entire I-M program was run during the past week when Mr. Powers was snowbound at home for three days. They deserve plenty of credit for the fine job they're doing.

The resident students are represented at all the meetings by George Scanlon, Bob Lovelace, and Jim Selgrath, while Vince Doyle and Pat Gigliotti are the councilmen for the day hops.

Paul Sollami and yours truly represent the Student Council and the Villanovan, respectively.

Father Dunne is the Moderator of I-M Athletics.

Football Captain

good account of himself. Frinzi has been on the starting line-up since his sophomore year.

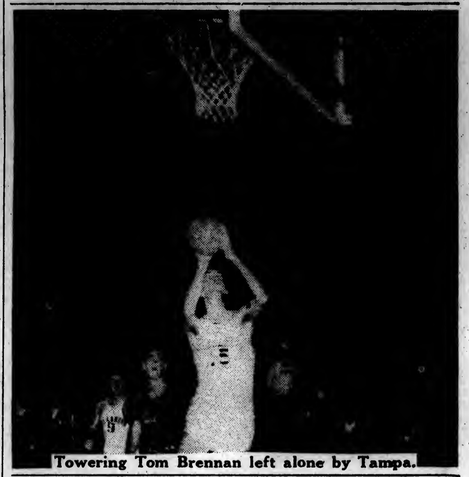
Frinzi Tallies 33.4 Yard Average

Making gains on the ground was second nature to him, but punting was his specialty. His punting average for this season was 33.4 yards. At Boston Mickey kicked a 51 yarder, and again in California's mud he sent another sensational boot halfway across Kezar Stadium's muddy gridiron. A whiz at pass interceptions, too, Mickey grabbed three against Georgetown, and ran one of them back 48 yards for a T. D.

Another star with three football monograms, Frinzi won just as much distinction on the Villanova baseball diamond. He has both football and baseball offers from the professionals. His present plans favor a future in baseball.

IN THE SPORTLIGHT

From time to time columnists, or writers of columns if you prefer, must take time out to bestow their public congratulations on some one. Prominent men in the field such as Walter Winchell and Harry Range kittenishly refer to this as bestowing orchids on the honored head in question. We privately hold that this quaint old custom is being foisted on the public by the florists of America. Why the orchids or even dandelions we could hand out to Villanova's great and near great would keep Jeanettes and the Bouquet Shop at full production for moths.



Digging into our bushel basket on any given day we could bombard such sundry notables as the Varsity Billiard team, Oscar Twomp, the intramural basketball refs, the Ajax A. C., Al Severance, the Phillies, O'Dwyer's T. V. set, and Mid'n. Dave Bannerman who won the Army-Navy game in 2:07 of the sixth round.

Yet, so what. If we gave carnations instead of orchids the place would look like a prep school for floorwalkers. Still we'll cling to the old customs and offer our sincerest congratulations to the football squad on the close of their season. In particular we congratulate Ray Mantone on his being seected captain. The team's record wasn't the best ever, but we think Ray's great playing will be remembered long after the scores are forgotten.

This isn't exactly in the field of congratulations, but here it is anyway.

Our late departed and lamented sports editor Bill Canino has rallied round the flag and joined the Air Force. This bon-vivant turned soldier was warned that some one would get his number some day, and sure enough it happened. There is no doubt that Mr. Warren Austin realizes that his position in the U. N. is even more secure since Canino has come in on our side.

Basketball season is upon us once again and Villanova appears to have fieded a better than average team despite the prophets of gloom. You woudln't know it by the usual rpsh of expert predictions and dope-sters sheets which have blossomed forth on the stands. A fan must look long and hard for a mention of the Wildcats. One magazine has a cover boy who resembles Paul Arizin quite a bit, and another says that Nick Maguire is a promising sophomore—way back on page 80 somewhere, and that's it.

Larrabee is 6'7"

Among the prominent fledglings is big Wayne Larrabee, a 6'7" skliner. Only a sophomore, the big boy from Indiana has impressed Hickman. He is a natural for center, and will be used to relieve "Shorty" Dick Robinson. Roy Rubin, a 6'1" guard, came all the way from Brooklyn to play. Rubin seems reluctant to shoot, and is a little slow. However he is a fine ball handler and a cool customer on the floor.

Cards Meet SetHall First

Louisville will have played five games before they take on Villanova. Up to this writing they have downed Kentucky Wesleyan, Georgetown, and Tampa. They have yet to face Mississippi State and Seton Hall. They meet the Hall in their Eastern debut on Friday. Needless to say all eyes will be on South Orange as two of Villanova's toughest competitors meet. Their schedule is tough and tight, but last year the Cardials were real giant killers. They mowed down some strong clubs before they fell apart at the end of the season.

Face Mount Monday

Next Monday night in the last home game for Villanova before the holidays, the Wildcats take on Mt. St. Mary's. The Mount is not noted as a powerhouse, but the letdown after a tough Louisville fight will be in their favor. This game will be in the field house. The Frosh will meet Penn's youngsters in the preliminary.

Arizin Number Three Pro Scorer; Tall Paul Has 19 Point Average

Tall Paul Arizin, Villanova's All - American and Collegiate Player of the Year last year, is proving to the Pro's what all Villanovans knew last year — that he's the greatest!

A recent Associated Press dispatch called Paul "the talk of the league (National Basketball Association" and the man who "has provided the spark which has carried the Philadelphia Warriors to the top of the Eastern Division."

Dropping in a sensational nineteen point per game average, Arizin is topped in pro ranks only by Large George Mikan of Minneapolis, and Alex Groza of Indianapolis. Says the AP of Arizin's scoring prowess: "The former Villanova ace has been scoring at such a blistering pace that even the big boys—George Mikan and Alex Groza—are turning around to take a second look." In his last four NBA games Paul, presently suffering from an injured hip, has dropped in 102 points.

Arizin has made an impression on the pro's. No mistake about it. Matt Goukas, sportscaster who airs all Warrior home games consistently refers to Paul as "The Miracle Man from Villanova." Said Nat Holman, coach of the CCNY collegiate champs, after viewing Arizin in New York: "Arizin is perhaps the greatest inside shot in the history of basketball." Ed Gottlieb, Warrior coach, said after a recent Warrior victory: "We had four great ball players and a miracle named Arizin on the floor tonight."

Paul Arizin, as Villanova center, was "College Player of the Year" in 1950. As the ace of the league-leading Warrior five he seems to be a "shoo-in" to be the NBA's "Rookie of the Year."

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 9...THE MARSH HEN

"For a while they had me swamped!"

Seems like this confused fowl got mixed in a metaphor and was almost turned into a guinea pig. The story goes she got caught in a welter of quick-trick cigarette tests . . . one puff of this brand, then a puff of that . . . a sniff, a whiff — a fast inhale and exhale. And then she was supposed to know all about cigarette mildness! Is that the way to treat a lady?

And is that the way to judge a cigarette?

We think not. That's why we suggest:

The sensible test — The 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) we believe you'll know why . . .

BANQUET HONORS '50 FOOTBALL SQUAD

The nineteenth recipient of the Loyalty Award, Freney expressed his gratitude for the honor bestowed on him by the Philadelphia Alumni. "I am accepting this award," he said at the banquet last night, "not for services rendered, but rather as a challenge for me to live up to the records set by previous Award winners."

JOSEPH D. FRENEY, ESQ., '27

Eighteen Previous Winners

Presented to Freney by Joseph J. Duffy, '37, President of the Philadelphia Club, the Loyalty Award is a silver trophy, in the shape of a large football. On it are engraved the names of all eighteen previous recipients.

The first Loialty Award was presented posthumously to Charles A. McGeehan '12, at the football banquet in 1932. Three subsequent winners, J. Stanley Smith, '93; Martin J. McLaughlin, '14; and Thomas M. Dalton, '12, have died since they received the Award in 1933, '34, and '35.

Member of Phila. Bar

This year's winner a resident of Wynnewood, Pa., and a member of the Philadelphia Bar Association. After receiving his B.S. in Economics from Villanova in 1927, Freney studied at Dickinson Law School, where he received his Law Degree in 1932.

Since 1935 Freney has practiced law in Philadelphia, and has been admitted to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, Superior Court of Pennsylvania, and the County Court of Philadelphia.

An Active Alumnus

An active alumnus, the Award winner has been Treasurer of the Villanova Club of Philadelphia in 1935 and president in 1936. He also served as chairman of the 1934 and 1935 Footgall Banquets, and is a member of the Loyalty Fund Committee.

In addition to honoring Ray Mantone, 1950 team captain, the Banquet last night also paid tribute to Nick Liotta and Joe Rilo, team captains-elect for the 1951 season.

1951 Captains Named

Since 1937 it has been the custom to elect a game captain prior to each contest and then at the season elect a team captain for the entire year. Prior to 1937 a captain was elected at the end of each year to lead the squad for the following season.

PETE D'ALONZO

Reverting to the former policy, next year's varsity chose two of its outstanding players during the trip from California.

Other speakers at the banquet included President of the College, Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A.; Very Rev. James A. Donnelon, O.S.A., chairman of the Athletic Board; and Head Coach James Leonard.

Operation Yule Plays Santa In Climax of Orphan Drive

College Men Treat Kids In Town Saturday; Junior Party at St. John's Today

"Operation Yule" will climax its activities this afternoon when members of the junior class sponsor the annual Christmas party at St. John's orphange.

Special Parties This Year

Something new was added to the outing this year with special parties arranged by the "operation" committee members at Gimbels and Wanamakers department stores. To avoid the rush and waiting in lines that usually accompanies Christmas shopping, arrangements were made to have the students and their charges receive special attention at both stores. Most of the students took part in these special parties, which "Yule" chairman Jack Kelly considered successful.

At the party this afternoon, members of the junior class will entertain the orphans under the Supervision of the Sisters of St. John's.

Party from "Operation" Funds

According to Kelly, general "Operation Yule" chairman, this party is the object of the financial drive held for the past few weeks. Although he has reached no final total of all the money collected in the drive, Kelly put the figure as close to $1300.

The major portion of this money came from classroom donations and donations from anonymous friends off campus. The "Hobo Hop", held on December 1, added $200 to the fund drive. Final figures will be published by the chairman at a later date.

Carols, Services Mark Beginning Of Recess

Rosemont Girls Sing, Fr. McGuire Speaks In Chapel

Glee Club Sings for Rosemont, WVIL

The holiday atmosphere which enveloped the campus a week ago with the unveiling of this year's Christmas lights display, grew last night with the annual pre-Christmas Chapel Service, and will rise to a roaring crescendo tonight as the college Glee Club presents a full evening of carolling.

Last evening the Very Reverend Francis McGuire, O.S.A., President of the college, delivered his annual Christmas message to the students in the college chapel. The chapel service was also highlighted by a program of Christmas music presented by the Rosemont Glee Club.

Glee Club Carols Tonight

The Villanova College Glee Club will wind up the pre-Christmas festivities tonight, having scheduled a full agenda for the evening. A brief excursion of carolling to Rosemont, followed by a half-hour stint over WVIL, will preceed a Glee Club tour of the campus with the college band.

Tickets For N. Y. Dance, At Biltmore, On Sale

Postponed Affair Set for Dec. 29

The New York Alumni representatives on campus are still attempting to sell tickets to the dance at the Biltmore. This dance was postponed from the Thanksgiving recess due to the near hurricane conditions that prevailed that evening.

Friday evening the 29th of December is the date for the dance. That will be the evening before the usual New Year's Eve activities. This was occasioned by the fact that the Alumni would be working during the week between the holidays.

Bids For Four Dollars

Bids for the affair will go for four dollars. The same ones will be used that were printed for the first - scheduled Thanksgiving date. They may be obtained on campus from Frank Gobes, in Fedigan Hall, or from Jack Muratori, in O'Dwyer Hall. They may also be obtained at the door the evening of the dance. However students should introduce themselves because tickets will be sold for five dollars to others.

To Be at Biltmore

The annual dance is an informal affair that highlights the social season of the New York Alumni Club. Usually held in the Hotel Statler, the dance was transferred to the Biltmore when it was possible to obtain the Bowman room. Dancing will be from nine till one.

Students are advised that they should make up a party of Villanovans as well as others who might be interested in the affair.

SANTA MEETS THE BOYS

One of the thrills in store for the boys of St. John's on their trip to see Santa, was the party at Gimbel's. During the party Santa took on the boys in what looks like a free for all.

Spiritual Equality Guide To Peace, Declares Speaker

Philosopher Speaks to Large Audience

A near capacity audience in the C and F auditorium heard Rev. Charles J. McFadden, Ph.D., O.S.A., deliver the second lecture in the 1950-51 Villanova Forum series, last Wednesday evening, December 13th. His topic was "Human Rights and the Individual."

Fr. McFadden discussed his subject in the light of hisorical struggles which have for about three and a half centuries surrounded the evolution of individual rights. He illustrated clearly that "spiritual equality is the key to world success."

Rulers Are People' Servants

According to the lecturer, Saint Augustine, real father of democracy, set forth the idea that no man might rule unless that right to rule has been delegated to him by the people themselves. Rulers, therefore,

Along The Way

Every year, at this time, almost all of us take a moment out to do a little thinking. Another year has gone by. Many things have happened. There were successes and failures some happy moments and some sad. It might have been a much better year, but then we look forward to a new year for all of that.

Awaiting this year's close we see many clouds on the horizon. The headlines swell each day with the news of threatening war. Korea is not a victory as we thought it might be. No one knows how long it might last, or for that matter if it might not set off a larger conflict.

Whether or not war is imminent, certainly there is mobilization. The draft will affect all of us. Others will face higher taxes, frozen wages, and shortages. Though Lloyd's of London gives odds of fifty-to-one against war by September, 1951, we are reticient about facing the next twelpe months because of much of the news which we read and hear.

Yet despite war, atom bombs and mobilization life must go on. Man will live by earning his bread with the sweat of his brow in war as in peace. There will be days of sadness but also days of happiness. Man is always vulnerable to such feelings.

Hardship brings us to a new understanding. We view things with different eyes. There is a sense of appreciation for simple pleasures and beauties. We become less selfish and live more as a part of the world and less in a world of our own.

Ernie Pyle became famous by writing not only about horror but about the more wonderful sides of human nature. He discovered a beauty in human relationships in time of war.

Whether war or peace, this is certain: each day we must work toward our salvation, and each day that passes brings us closer to death. When that final day comes the important thing will not be whether we lived till ninety or died at twenty-one. What matters is how the books balance when our account is closed.

This world was never made to be a bed of roses and it should not be construed as such. The beauty in the world which whets our appetites is a mere reflection of an existence beyond this. Heaven is our ultimate goal, not prosperity, or world peace. They are, at best, only the ways along which we struggle.

Your goal will mean a happy new year on that day when thou wilt be with Him in heaven.

A Guest Editorial

At that time there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that the whole world should be enrolled. This enrolling was first made by Cyrinus, the governor of Syria; and all went to be enrolled, every one into his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and family of David, to be enrolled with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass, that when they were there, her days were accomplished, that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her first-born Son, and wrapped him up in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds watching, and keeping the night watches over their flock. And behold an angel of the Lord stood by them, and the brightness of God shone round about them, and they feared with a great fear. And an angel said to them: "Fear not; for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, that shall be to all the people; for this day is born to you a Saviour, Who is Christ the Lord, in the city of David. And this shall be a sign unto you: You shall find the Infant wrapped in swaddling clothes, and laid in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly army, praising God and saying:

Glory to God in the highest; and on earth peace to men of good will.

Gospel for the first Chirstmas Mass

He Saw Santa-

Two editions ago this paper printed a picture of one of the St. John's orphans over the caption, "Will you take me to see Santa?"

Last Saturday over 400 Villanovans answered the orphan's appeal, and took him and the rest of the young boys to see Santa Claus. By luck one of the VILLANOVAN staff members was given charge of the same youngster whose picture we printed.

Our man had a good time—using the kid as an excuse to visit toyland and play with electic trains. And so did the orphan enjoy it, if this letter he wrote Sunday is any indication. We got it yesterday in time to publish. It needs no comment.

Letter From An Orphan

J.M.J.

Dear Jack,

Thank you very much for taking me to see Santa Claus yesterday. The rest of the boys went to thank the other Villanova boys who took them. We pray for you all. We hope you will be at the party on Tuesday.

Your friend,
Billie

MAYBE?

By Jim Griffin

There was a star at the top, and colored lights twined down, and round, and round, and gleamed green and red and blue through the white strands of angel's hair. And underneath were the presents, long and short, fat and thin, wrapped in tin foil and multi-colored ribbons, with little trees and Santa Clauses peeping from every fold. And there was a little town scene, a quiet village with a few houses, a park, and a couple of quiet figures. And MAYBE, there was a crib, with a few shepherds, a bearded St. Joseph, a mother and her Child.

Too Bad

It's a shame that we must say MAYBE when we mention Christ in the American Christmas scene. Because Christmas is the birthday of Christ, and a celebration which excludes the one celebrated is pointless, even foolish. It is a sad circumstance when we must qualify the inclusion of the Saviour in the festivities which arise from His arrival here. For Christ became Man for no other reason than to re-win for humanity the chance for eternal salvation; He was born at Bethlehem for us, wholly and entirely, and for no other reason. How then can we be so selfish as to take advantage of the joy which His birth brings to mankind, and yet refuse to include Him or any thought of Him in our celebration?

If We Are Wise

And even if we are selfish, we will include Christ, if we are truly wise. For with Christ in the picture of our Christmas joy, we will have definite insurance that our joy will be genuine joy, and not merely the artificial thing that pleasure substitutes. And we can have further insurance that our joy is purposeful, and profitable, for Christ will not allow a favor towards Him to go unrewarded.

Make It What It Is

So let's make sure that at least in our own personal Christmas scene there will be no maybes about our God. Let's put Him right in the center of our whole Christmas celebration, along with His mother and St. Joseph. Christmas time is a happy one, but we can insure that it will be as happy as possible only if we make sure that it is what the name says it is—CHRISTmas.

REINDEER AND OTHER PEOPLE...

Bill Brenninghouse

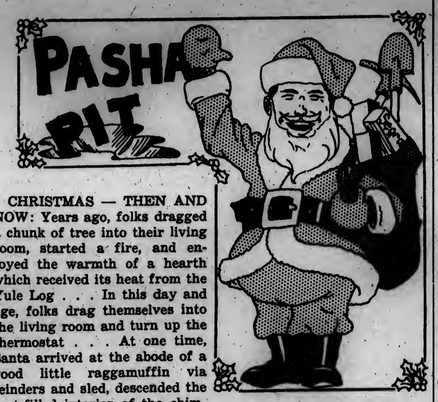
There comes a time in every young man's life when he begins to doubt a lot of things. The biggest crisis of Oscar's young life came the day that he wondered if there really was a Santa Claus. When old man Twomp heard young Oscar's question about the subjective reality concerning the venerable, white-bearded, old gent he evaded the question completely by refering Oscar to the Answer Man.

Is Santa Claus For Real?

Oscar decided to find out for himself whether or not Santa was, as they say in the vernnacular, "for real." He wandered over to the local department store where Santa was enthroned in the toy department. Santa was glad to see Oscar and was very surprised when he learned that Oscar doubted his true existence. Wasn't he fat and jolly? Didn't he have a red suit and a big white beard? Of course he was real.

Os car had his reply ready. If this guy was the real Santa Claus who was the guy across the street in Gimbelberger Brother's toy department? Was Santa trying to confuse him? Santa wasn't the least bit set back by Oscar logic. Of course that was Santa, too.

He Can Do Anything



Santa Claus isn't restricted by any mere physical laws of nature. He could be anywhere, anytime, and even in more than one place at one time. That's why Santa Claus is so great. No man, no matter how powerful he is, can do anything as well as Santa Claus. Why, on one night Santa Claus visits every kid's house in the world.

When Santa Claus get his orders from all the youngsters he flies back to his workshop at the North Pole and his little elves help him load up his sleight with all kinds of wonderful things. On Christmas Eve Santa takes off into the air and delivers the stuff all over the world.

Believing Is Seeing

Santa told Oscar that if he watched for him on Christmas Eve all he had to do to see him is to believe that there is a Santa Claus. If he believed hard enough he would soon see Santa and his reindeer flying across the sky. He must remember, though, that Santa can not be seen by those who do not believe in him. They would rather see seven little airplanes spell out New Blue Sunoco than have eight little reindeer spell out MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Oscar went home convinced that he was kind of stupid ever doubting that Santa Claus was real. Old Turgam Twomp was'nt too smart when it came to Santa Claus and other important people. Christmas Eve would find Oscar looking for Santa's sleigh, sure that he would see the reindeer and their MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL.

CHRISTMAS — THEN AND NOW: Years ago, folks dragged a chunk of tree into their living room, started a fire, and enjoyed the warmth of a hearth which received its heat from the Yule Log . . . In this day and age, folks drag themselves into the living room and turn up the thermostat . . . At one time, Santa arrived at the abode of a good little raggamuffin via reinders and sled, descended the soot-filled interior of the chimney, delivered the child's gifts and then scurried to the house next door. Does he do this now? Of course not, now Santy arrives in a Cosmopolitan convertible, ring the door-bell delivers the gifts, and then sits down to watch television and to partake of a bottle of Coke. In the past, people were delighted at the thought of receiving or sending friendly greetings to their many friends. In the modern era, people are more delighted if they don't receive many friendly greetings to their many friends. In the modern era, people are more delighted if they don't receive many friendly greetings from Harry Truman . . . The days of the candlelighted Christmas tree gradually evolved into the "If one goes out, they all go out" tree lights which added a bit of adventure to the Christmas Season . . . Now, through modern scientific research, we have developed the independent tree lights . . . In fact, they are so independent that the tree is completely engulfed in darkness during the greater portion of the Yuletide.

CHRISTMAS CONGRATULATIONS: A word of sincere appreciation and thanks to chairman Jack Kelly, the Operation Yule committee, and all of Villanova for the magnificent work of charity that they performed for the St. John's Orphans. It was your cooperation and enthusiasm which made this one of the most successful years for this project since its founding. YOU DIDN'T FORGET TO HELP A CHILD.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE: This is the season of the year when a young man's pocket turns inside-out in his attempt to purchase a gift for the little gal back home. Yes, after four months of taking other girls out he turns to the fem of his dreams, hoping that she won't forget him when the time comes to exchange gifts. This predicament always gives rise to the question of whether or not he should also purchase a gift for the girl at one of the surrounding sites. In order to solve this perplexing problem, it is advisable for the individual concerned to forget girls and become acquainted with a third.

CHRISTMAS CAROLING: The old adage regarding the mountain that came to Mohamet was proved to be a statement of truth this week when a group of Rosymonite a Chorus -gi-er-I mean Choristers made a trip to the campus to give their renditions of various Christmas carols. The gesture met with much approval and the gals did a wonderful job despite the fact that 750 pairs of eyes were glaring at their trembling tonsils.

GOODBYE 1950: The next time we meet will be in 1951. This will be a big year for all of us and one of momentous decisions in regard to everything but the Armed Forces which is being taken care of very nicely by General Hershey. Leaving you with this sobering thought I'd like to wish each of you a MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR.

Christmas Customs' Origins Traced

If you have ever wondered about the origin of many of the Christmas traditions, the place to find your answers is the lobby of the College Library.

For the past week, and until the Yule vacation begins, the Library is giving its second annual Christmastime display. Arranged by Rev. Michael O'Donnell, O.S.A., curator, the display has as its theme Christmas traditions throughout the world.

Origin of Traditions

It depicts first of all Christmas celebrations in many foreign nations and explains the origin of various national traditions. The yule log of England, for example is explained, as are the origins of Christmas carols in Czechoslovakia and the presipio, or crib, in Italy. The Christmas tree, the display shows, originated in Bavaria. Pine was chosen because it was a pine that sheltered the Holy Family from Herod on the flight to Egypt.

American traditions, as can be seen, combine most of the customs of other lands, and add a few very typical ones of their own.

Religious Side of Holiday

Showing Christmas as a religious occasion, the display presents an illustrated version of the Gospel telling about the birth of Christ on the first Christmas night. Various artistic inpressions of the stable scenes are also shown.

As was presented for the first time in the new library building last year, the Christmas Crib will again be arranged in the corner of the lobby, next to the entrance to the reference room.

NOTICE

Students are reminded that the Mathematics Office which previously was located in Room 113 Mendel Hall, has been moved to Room 110 Belle Air. Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O.S.A., Dean of the graduate and extension schools, now has his office in Room 113 Mendel Hall.

Belle Masque Places New Pledges Into Campus Chapter

Lambda Pi, Villanova's Chapter of the National Honorary Dramatic Society, Alpha Psi Omega, held its fall initiations last Thursday evening on the Field House state.

The initiations were presided over by Cast Director Bob Resnick, assisted by Bill Brenninghouse, Frank Pitocchelli. During impressive ceremony four pledges were accepted into the organization.

Four Men Pledged

The pledges included Joseph Maiale, Jack Muratori, Gerry Battle, and Steve Keiss, all senior members of the Belle Masque Dramatic Society. Also in attendance was Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., Club Moderator and several other members of the fraternity.

Qualifications for membership are based on service rendered in each major production. The next initiation is scheduled to be held in April, following the Belle Masque Spring production. All four of the Lambda Pi pledges have been active members of the Belle Masque during their years at this college.

Pledges Are Arts Men

Maiale is a member of the Arts school. Battle, another Arts student, is a senior. Muratori, who is also copy editor of this paper, is a senior English major. Keiss, another member of the copy staff, is also an arts senior.

Delta Pi Mu Takes Pledges Through Initiations In Mendel

Frat Has Almost One Hundred With New Men

Muratori, 'Brothers' Do Paddle Swinging

Delta Pi Mu, the Arts Fraternity, held its only initiation of the year for its new members Tuesday evening, December 12. Under the direction of Jack Muratori, president of the frat, the initiation of 48 pledges took place in Mendel Hall. The new members increase the number of members to nearly 100.

Brothers Swing Paddles

The pledges were blindfolded before they took on the many hazards their "Big Brothers" had prepared for them. Starting on the second floor, where they were exposed to their paddle swinging sponsors, the long line of pledges made their way to the basement. Here they underwent the final stages of their initiations.

According to President Jack Muratori, most of the new members took the initiations in their stride and some even went so far as to say it was fun. All pledges agreed however that next year would really be fun, when they are on the right side of the fence.

The horrible scene shown above took place in Mendel basement when Delti Pi Mu took in new members last Tuesday. Some say though that it wasn't that bad.

he stated, are people's servants. This manner of Christian thinking characterized medieval states, at least in principle.

If any one must be blamed for abandoning this Christian concept of ruling, Father McFadden stated, "the label must be put on the Protestant Revolution. Especially in England, this upheaval had huge effects. As a result divine rights of kings became a popular doctrine.

James Denied Pope

Papal authority was denied and under James I this doctrine assumed its blackest character. Opposition to this denial of human rights came from three sources, namely: Parliament, Separatist groups, and the Catholic Church. After this were the revolt of 1688, the American Revolution, and the French Revolution, which found man striving for political equality.

Marx's theory, pointed out Father McFadden, is that man is essentially an economic and not a political being. Again we see man trying to represent himself as other than a spiritual thing.

Man Has Purpose

"Every nature in the universe," the priest said, "had been created for a definite purpose." By progress, a nature achieves its proper end, and each nature follows laws which are like unto its essence. This is the Christian concept of man.

In our present-day world, Fr. McFadden explained, we find two extremist governments, the liberal state and the communist state. The former exercises a hands-off policy while the latter is an all-controlling state. Between these two extremes is a happy medium which must be found if we're to have social harmony.

Aim Is Spiritual Equality

In conclusion, Father McFadden asserted that to live in peace, "we must first of all strive for and obtain spiritual equality."

At the close of the exercises Forum Chairman Charles Bruderle announced the next lecture in the series will take place January 22, a Monday evening. On that occasion Mr. Frank Sheed, noted author and publisher, will speak on "Human Rights and the Family."

Delta Pi Epsilon To Publish Frat's History

John Weglicki Will Head Research

A manual pertaining to the establishment and historical significance of Delta Pi Epsilon will be published by the fraternity.

This was decided at a meeting held last Wednesday, December 13th, in Room 201 C&F. John Weglicki, past president, has been selected as chairman of the Research Committees. These committees will have the task of comprehending and forming a uniform pattern of all material relating to the history of Delta Pi Epsilon.

The Initiation Committee announced that pledges for the current year will be brought into the fraternity on the 11th of January. Sophomores and Juniors will be accepted into the organization.

President William Knecht declared that any member who is absent from three consecutive meetings, without a reasonable excuse is eligible to be permanently excused from further participation in the fraternity.

It was also announced that the next monthly meeting will be held in the middle of January.

Dr. James Paff Examines Careers In Medicine

An address concerning careers in medicine for those who fail to gain admittance to medical schools was delivered to the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity last Wednesday.

The speaker was Doctor James Paff, Professor of Anatomy at the Hahnemann Hospital School of Medicine in Philadelphia. He explained that for those who are truly interested in the sciences associated with medicine, but who could not gain admission to the medical school, that—there is a crying need for teachers in those same schools.

It was announced that the next meeting of the fraternity will be January 10.

the resumption of classes following vacation. Thus, vacation will begin after the student's last class on December 20th. Classes will resume on Thursday, January 4th, at the regularly scheduled hours.

"Schola Cantorum" Sings In Chapel; Plans Retreat

Thirty-Eight Members Perform Each Week

The thirty-eight men who sing as the students file in and out of choir weekday evenings compose an organization that is officially known as the "schola cantorum."

The new choral group is now under the unofficial moderatorship of Rev. Edwin Grimes, O.S.A., college chaplain. But, Father Grimes proudly asserts that this is truly a student group, a group under almost exclusive jurisdiction of responsible students.

Sings On Fridays

The choir naturally concentrates on church and liturgical music. In addition to the evening chapel singing chores, the group also sings at Friday mass.

Additional activities are presently being mapped for this group, including appearances at the annual scholastic High Mass and at the annual retreat.

Phillies Treas. Speaks To Accountants

George Harrison, a CPA who is Treasurer of the Philadelphia Phillies, spoke on the business end of the nation's pastime, last Wednesday at the monthly meeting of the Accounting Society in the C&F auditorium.

Baseball accounting, according to Harrison, is one of the most important operations connected with putting any team on the field. After giving a brief history of the game and explaining the current system used in operating both major and minor league clubs, the accountant elaborated on the opportunities for qualified accountants in baseball. "Baseball", he said, "is one of the best fields for a young accountant to enter."

John Ervin, president of the Society, revealed that the American Institute of Accountants examination will be held in April. Also discussed were tentative plans for the annual dinner.

Carols, Services

Ellen Solodow and Nan Holland followed. The program was concluded with Solemn Benediction and the recessional "Angels We Have Heard on High."

Arrangements for the chapel presentation were handled by Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., chaplain of Villanova College, and Mother Basil, S.H.C.J., of Rosemont College.

Other Choral Selections

The choir selections at the service were: "Lo' How A Rose 'Ere Blooming," "See Amid The Winter Snow", (solo by Ellen Solodow), "Coventry Carol," "Rocking," and "Silent Night" (solo by Nan Holland).

Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., Moderator of the college band and Glee Club has announced that he desires all students to join in with the band and glee club as they tour the campus singing their carols this evening.

Inter-Racial Club Sponsors Annual Drive For Clothes

The annual clothing drive, under the sponsorship of the Villanova Inter-Racial club came to a close last week. As a whole, taking in the entire Philadelphia area, the drive was successful, but the drive on campus was dismally inferior to last year's.

The club wishes to thank all who aided in the drive.

January 8th, at 7:30 P. M. in 213 Mendel Hall, the club will hold the first of a series of evening monthly meetings.

Cats Face Three Topflight Clubs Over Holidays

Detroit, Tennessee and N. C. State Strong

The Yuletide season will provide no rest for Al Severance's undefeated quintet as they face three topflight opponents. The first test is North Carolina State, a hot favorite to win the Southern Conference title and make a showing in the post-season tournament play.

All American

Sam Ranzino everybody's all-American is the big gun for the Wolfpack and is assisted by two skyscraping sophs, Bob Speight 6'8" and Bobby Cook 6'4". State is one of the tallest teams in the country with eight men topping the 6'4" mark.

Coach Everett Case's five is paced by Sam Ranzino's sensational scoring, with his variety of shots and great faking Ranzino scored 684 points last season. Paul Hovrath when "on" with his overhead hook shot is unstoppable and his 6'7" comes in handy under the boards. The game will take place Dec. 20th at Raleigh, N. C. before 12,000 fans. The mainliners will travel by air for this big one.

Detroit Strong

The University of Detroit had it's greatest cage season in it's history last year winning 20 of 26 starts. With their starting team of last season returning the Titans figure to be a "sleeper" in the national outlook. outlook. Leading Coach Bob Calihan's charges is towering Norm Swanson who as a soph last year scored 387 points. Swanson is 6'6" and posseses a deceptive jump shot that makes him a constant scoring threat. John Kerwan and Don Bernef's height and speed add to the titan attack.

McNamara Captain

Captain Bren McNamara, playing his fourth season as a regular, is the team's best long shot and is a defensive man par excellence. Playing beside McNamara at guard is Skip Gleeson who is the same kind of ball player as McNamara, good defensively, a terrific ball handler and a fine shot. Detroit has ambitious hopes and should provide the 'Cats with plenty of trouble.

Tennesse

The Blue and White's "vacation" ends with Tennessee providing the opposition. The "Vols" lost all five regulars of 1949-50 but have a strong squad of sophs. If the rebels develop as expected they will make a good showing in the Southeastern race. Burt Keenan and Hank Kinzel are looked for to carry the brunt of the scoring.

The Mainliners have established themselves as being capable of taking on the best and holding their own. Stressing team play the Wildcats are improving with each game and great things are expected to result.

'51 Grid Schedule Posted; Army And Penn State Added

Next year's edition of the football Wildcats will face the strongest and most ambitous schedule in the history of the Mainliners.

Army returns to the list of opponents, after a two - year lapse, in the first game for both clubs. The Cadets will go out to start a new winning streak at the expense of the Wildcats, before a home crowd at Michie Stadium in West Point.

Army to Be Powerful

The last time the teams met, in 1948, Villanova bowed to the Black Knights by a 27-0 count. Army will probably be very strong, because in times of emergency, the best athletes in the nation naturally gravitate to the service academies.

After Army, the 'Cats will take on the Nittany Lions of Penn State, in the first home game for the Blue and White gridders. In 1949, Penn State fell before Coach Leonard's forces, 27-7, and next year will be out to avenge that setback.

Battle Kentucky Again

The Wildcats will then travel to Lexington, Ky. to meet their namesakes from the University of Kentucky. Vito Parilli will lead the Blue Grass boys in his final year. All who saw the game at Franklin Field, this season, know that the great All-American quarterback is a tough man to stop. After that 34-7 defeat suffered by Villanova this year, the big motive next October will be vengeance.

Duquesne, which gave the locals a terrific battle before bowing in this year's opener, will field an experienced senior team at Pittsburgh in 1951. If there is any letdown after the other games, the Dukes will take advantage of it.

Detroit at Home

Detroit makes a visit to Philadelphia for the first time in three seasons, after the Duquesne scrap. The Titans will be out to make it two in a row over the Wildcats, in the longest continuous series on the schedule. The Motor City team is noted for its big teams and always plays a bruising game.

In one of the biggest annual games in New England, the Eagles of Boston College will be out to stop the two-year domination by the Blue and White, on

Mainliners Upset Louisville; Face Heavy Holiday Schedule

Sam Glassmire, the Wildcat's speed merchant and ball-handling artist, gives Bob Lochmueller of Louisville, a demonstration of his specialty. The little guy's play helped pace the 'Cats to victory last Saturday.

Four Kentucky Gridders Rate 'Cats All Opponent

The Villanova Colege football team pointed out four very good reasons why the University of Kentucky was such a national powerhouse this year by selecting four of the Wildcats to berths on its 1950 All-Opponent team.

The Kentuckians so honored were Vito "Babe" Parilli, Bob Gain, Bill Wannamaker and Al Bruno. The L. S. U. Tigers rated second best by placing two men—tackle Paul Miller and defensive center, Joe Reid. The other five positions were spread out among the other schools with honors going to Ed. O'Neill of Duquesne, Alex Smail of Detroit, Frank Smith of Miami, Jack Johnson of St. Mary' and Ed Paella of Boston College.

Gain, Parilli Unanimous

There were only two unanimous choices and it is not very difficult to figure that they were Kentucky's All-American, Parilli and Gain. More than anything else it was the offensive team of Parilli throwing and Bruno catching plus the brilliant defensive work of Wannamaker and Gain that earned Kentucky's victory over the Wildcats.

Reid and Miller were cited for their strong defensive play for the Bayou Tigers. They were the key posts in one of the best defensive lines in the South. O'Neill though he was on a losing team annoyed the Wildcats with his pass-catching antics and Smith, a vicious guard, played an important role in Detroit conquest of the Mainliners. Incidentally the closest race in the balloting was for the guard post with Smail just edging Miami's Ray Arcangeletti.

Backs Hard Runners

The three backs cited besides Parilli were all constant ground threats. Johnson and Patella, were on losing teams but they both constituted just about the whole offensives their teams had.had. Smith was the deciding factor in the Miamian's victory over the Cats. When the Mainliners bottled up passer Jack Hackett, Smith took over and his hard running produced the deciding touchdown.

Other players who received a considerable number of votes were backs, Hackett of Miami, and West of L. S. U.; ends, Smith of Tulsa and Martin of Miami and center Beasley of Tulsa.

Wildcats Rap Cards, 79-69

Hennessey's 29 High in Fouurth Straight

Villanova's sophomore sensations went on to their fourth straight win last Saturday with a thorough 79-69 whipping of Louisville before 3,475 hoarse fans at the Palestra.

Larry Hennessey continued to lead the Main Line scorers netting 14 for 26 shots and one free throw for 29 points. The New Rochelle sharpshooter has now scored on 51% of his shots in four games.

This contest marked almost a complete reversal of last year's encounter with the Cardinals. A year ago Louisville upset the Main liners 78-68.

Pre-Game Favorites

Fresh from a 60-58 win over Seton Hall the night before, the Cardinals were rated as pregame favorites with edges of up to ten points. This was a game that Al Severance's youngsters had to win.

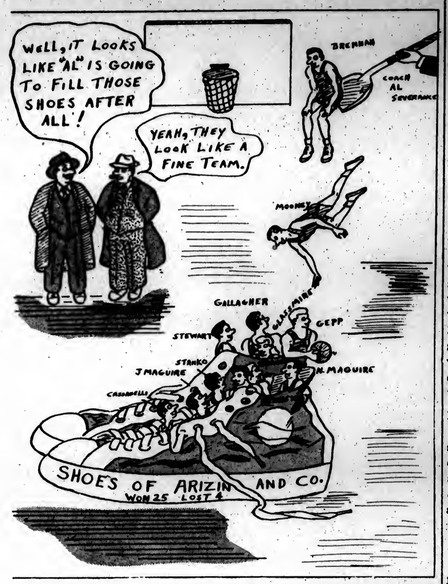
Five seconds after the opening tap the Cardinal's Dick Robison drew a free throw that hit, and Louisville jumped to a one point lead. But two minutes later the Wildcats were up 7-1 and the Kentuckians took time.

Robison's three successive field goals paced a Louisville scoring spree that tied it at ten-all after five minutes of play. The Cards then moved to a 14-11 advantage but Hennessey's uncanny accuracy gave the Wildcats a 15-14 edge a minute later.

From that point Louisville never again took the lead. At ten minutes the Main Liners were holding a 23-20 margin and at the end of the half the Cardinals trailed 47-34.

Severance Cautious

Although the thirteen point advanage might be considered safe in most ball games, such was not the case last Saturday evening. Severance played it cautious throughout the entire second half with the first five playing almost the entire period.



The Cardinals' Bob Lochmueller, scorer of 27 markers the night before, had been successfully bottled up by Tom Brennan and Jim Mooney for the first half. But, the 6 foot 5 inch forward began to hit and at one time the Cardinals moved to within eight points of the Wildcats.

That was as far as they ever got, however. Hennessey, who had scored 23 points in the opening period was held to three field goals in the second half. But the Wildcats again exhibited the fine team work that had been their key note for the first three games.

Glassmire Outstanding

Sam Glassmire, one of the finest all-round ball players ever to appear on the Palestra hardwood, continually intercepted passes, blocked shots, and hit from all corners. Sam ended up with 13 points.

IN THE SPORTLIGHT

It isn't often that we sports writers get an opportunity to answer statements made by our collegiate contemporaries. Most of the time we are too busy beating the drum or blowing our horns about the accomplishments or abilities of some deserving athlete.

But not too long ago, THE DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN incorporated into a sportorial (aptly entitled "Athletes' Feat") a few remarks about the Wildcat cagers. The first mention of Villanova was one of which Coach Severance, his ball club, and all its faithful followers may be proud. Quote:

"A number of the Penns stood out individually, but the all-important teamplay aspect so aptly displayed by the Villanovans in the first game just wasn't there."

That particular paragraph came as a pleasant surprise. So we read on. After fulfilling his duty as drumbeater and hornblower for the heroes of the Red and Blue's conquest of Maryland, the scribe took to the Mainliners for copy again. His interpretation of the Tampa game was, as follows:

"It looks like the Mainliners not only put All-American Paul Arizin's revered jersey in the trophy case, but put a "don't touch" label on the Wildcat-turned Warrior's records as well. Nick Maguire, soph co-captain who dropped in 23 points in only 18 minutes of playing time, could easily have shattered Paul's Palestra floor 32-point standard, but coach Al Severance benched him with more than ten minutes to go."

Realizing that the remark carried no poisoned barb, we nevertheless felt that it demanded an answer—if for no other reason than to enlighten anyone else who might have left the Palestra with the same idea. In the first place, Nick Maguire has been hampered by an ankle injury. He played only ten minutes of the opening game against Iona and dropped in eight points in that short time. Secondly, Villanova lead Tampa by a goodly margin throughout the contest and was in no dire need for a record-breaking contribution by any one player. Thirdly, we feel certain that Coach Severance is too much concerned with the fortunes of this year's team to reminisce about last year's great squad and least of all, would he allow sentiment, even about the fabulous Tall Paul, to hinder any of his boys in their quest for court fame. And finally, the mark set by Arizin was 41 points against Seton Hall, not 32 as cited in "Athletes' Feat." Need we remind any loyal Pennsylvanian that the 32-point standard was set by their own Herb Lyon? We won't forget Paul Arizin, nor will we forget that it's a new season—let the records fall where they may!

Wildcats vs. Tigers

LSU, a perrenial power in the Southeastern Conference will play Villanova in the only night game on the list. The 'Cats will travel to Baton Rouge again and try to even the young series, which started this year with a heart-breaking loss in very bad weather.

The last opponent will be Tulsa, the team that seems to have the Indian Sign on the Leonardmen. If the Wildcats come into this game with a good record, Tulsa will again try to be the spoilers.

Open Dates to Be Filled

The two open dates on the schedule will be filled at the National Collegiate meeting in January, at Dallas, Texas, according to the Athletic office.

With a grueling list of opponents to be faced next year the Wildcats will not have to take a back seat to anyone, if they come through it successfully.

Alumni, Fedigan Top "A" League; Warriors Class Of Dayhops

The Alumni Toppers and the Fedigan Big Five remained in a tie for first place as both won their games last week by decisive scores. The Feds won at the expense of the Austin Crows 61-44, in a brilliant comeback after being on the wrong end of a 24-18 halftime score. Wright led the way for the Big Five with 22 points while Lemmer and McGukin each chipped in with 12. The Toppers victory was over the Barracks 2&3, 64-35. Carter, of the losers, took scoring honors with 14 counters, while Flynn and Falkowski of the Toppers were right on his tail with 13 and 12 respectively.

Eligibility of Scholarship Students

According to the Intra-Mural Constitution only two scholarship students are allowed to compete on any one team. Managers are requested to check their rosters for any discrepencies to this rule, and report such to Mr. Powers.

Knights Drop Second

The Barracks Knights slipped from their second place perch as they dropped their second in a row, this time to a defensive minded Barracks No. 1 quintet, 40-24. The Knights were held to seven points in the second half by the brilliant zone defense thrown up by the Barracks. McConney led the scoring for the winners with 10.

John Gillman led the Austin Hot shots to an exciting 38-37 victory over the O'Dwyer Clowns, as he accounted for 15 of his teams total. Mahan of the Clowns took the individual honors for the nite, however, with 18.

Bergen and Vidunas were the sparks in a 45-18 Fire House victory over the Barracks Stars, as they each hit for ten.

Swisher Lead Tightened

The Swishers cemented their first place grip with a close 39-34 win over the Ramblers. Silverman and Buffalino led the victors with 11 each.

The Austin Refugees split in two games, downing the Hayseeds 36-29 in the first, and then bowing to the Barracks No. 1 in a tough one, 47-43. Dent and Jordan were the big guns in the Refugees victory with 13 each; while Bailey was high in the latter contest with 15.

The Austin Hayseeds won a 2-0 forfeit victory from the Barracks 2&3.

Warriors Win Two More

The Warriors tightened their grip on first place in the National league with a double victory, taking the Engineers and the Darbies into camp. The engineers, winners in only one game so far, put up a terrific fight and almost upset the apple cart before bowing 39-38. Shayne Creamer led the days scoring with 12 points, but Mullen of the slip-stick boys was right behind him with 11. Against the Darbies the Warriors ran into no such opposition as they grabbed a tremendous 46-8 halftime advantage, with an uncanny 66% shooting average. The Creamer twins, with Burke and Niccoli all scored in the double figures bringing the final count to 72-28.

The Rawheebs, led by Ranchetto and Schnorbus with 16 each, downed the V's 55-38. LeFever was top man for the losers with 12.

New League Formed

The newly formed Early Bird League presented only one game, a 38-34 Educator win over the Ramblers. Macrone of the Ramblers took honors with 16, while Crossy of the Educators, who played with only four men, had 14.

Leaders Tied In American

The Fedigan Aces and the Rumrunners squeezed by with close victories last week to maintain their tie for first place in the American League.

Fedigan downed the Aces 54-50 as Kershaw, Halloran and Cone collaborated for 47, while Joe Ranieri paced the Aces with 13.

The Rumrunners victory was at the expense of the Furriers 45-43. Jack Leahy of the Furriers garnered 21 points in a losing cause, while Lazzara led the winners with 17.

The Furriers skinned the Liz Kids 58-30 to get back in the win column the following nite. Cabrey dunked 25 counters to lead the way.

In the final game of the week, the Black Flames bowed to the Liz Kids by a 52-30 tally. Mozzi, Sur, and Speedy Gene Drauch were the mainstays for the Kids.

WHO'S THIS GUY ARIZIN ANYWAY?

CATS TRIP LOUISVILLE

Jim Mooney and Nick Maguire also teamed to maintain the Main Liners' margin. Maguire iht four for seven on drive-in shots and 6 for eight free throws to total 14 while Mooney set and jump shot his way to 15 points.

In addition to Mooney's fine offensive work, he was a demon under the boards. The 6 foot 3 inch redhead nabbed 16 rebounds while Tom Brennan nailed 14 to bring his season total to 40.

For the losers Lochmueller and Robison shared scoring honors with 16 apiece, both netting 6 field goals and 4 from the foul line.

Average 77.5 in 4 Games

Saturday's scrap raised the Main Liners' scoring average to 77.5 points per game. Incidentally, last year's Arizing array led the nation with a 72.8 average.

In four games Larry Hennessey was hit 37 field goals in 73 attempts plus three foul shots for 77 points. Second scoring ohnors go to Nick Maguire with 21 for 31, 12 free throws, and 54 points.

In netting 32 field goals in 6r attempts the Main Liners averaged 46% accuracy. Not bad in any league.

Students are reminded that the Mathematics Office which previously was located in Room 113 Mendel Hall, has been moved to Room 110 Belle Air. Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O.S.A., Dean of the graduate and extension schools, now has his office in Room 113 Mendel Hall.

Hoopster Gets 'Most Valuable' Award

Two Villanova athletes, Nick Liotta and Sam Glassmire, recently received honors for past performances.

Liotta was a unaniomus choice for the University of Kentucky's All-Opponent Team. The captain-elect for next year's football squad was one of two men to be chosen by every member of the Kentucky team.

Glassmire was voted the most Valuable Player by the Pen and Pencil Club of Philadelphia for his part in Villanova's court conquest of Tampa at Penn Palestra two weeks ago. The diminutive hoopster impressed the writers with a fiery display of floorwork.

Cana Conference Postponed Until Spring Semester

The Cana Conference of this year has been postponed until sometime in the spring. This announcement was made by Father Robert E. Regan, Director of the Cana Conferences. Last year's Conference was held in the Season of Advent.

The reasons cited by Father Regan for this postponement were: 1st. The sharp decrease in the number of married students at the College who live within convenient traveling distance of the College; 2nd. The uncertainty of the weather conditions in December! 3rd. The unsettled condition of national and world affairs.

Six Take Vow For Third Order of St. Augustine

Six men made their final profession and were accepted as life members of the Third Order of St. Augustine at the semi-annual reception held December 8 in St. Mary's Hall.

Those men were Willard Sollinger, Robert Beers, Hubert Flaherty, John V. Dougherty, Morris Murphy, and Frank Maschick. Eight other men were accepted as novices who will undergo a years trial before they are professed. The names of these eight were not released by the organization.

Second Reception

For those who join between now and the middle of the second semester the Third Order will hold its second reception late in April or in the first part of May. Moderator of the group, the Rev. Henry J. Eagan, O. S. A. feels that there are many on campus who wish to join but do not know where to go for information. These men are urged to contact Father Eagan in room 212 Alumni Hall.

Red Cross Seeks Blood Donors From The Campus

WVIL OPENING HAS CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

A special Christmas Show will highlight the Radio Station's opening program, tonight, from 7:30 P. M. until 10 P. M. For the greater part, experienced members of last years Staff will work on the show.

The Program Schedule includes an address by Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O. S. A., moderator, popular Christmas Music and a transcribed version of Charles Dickens', "A Christmas Carol". Villanova's Glee Club has offered to contribute a half-hour of Seasonal melodies from 8:30 P. M. to 9 P. M.

Mobile Unit Plans Visit After Recess

Are you a red-blooded American boy? In case you've had any doubts, here's your chance, to prove yourself.

The Department of Defense has requested an immediate 81% increase in the amount of blood supplied for the Armed Forces by the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter, American Red Cross.

In order to help to fill this quota the Blood Service Committee of the Main Line Red Cross branch is planning visits of the Mobile Blood Unit to local colleges and institutions.

Students Asked

Charles Fanslow, Chairman of the Main Line branch has directed an appeal to the students of Villanova College to donate blood during the current drive. In a letter to this paper he expressed the hope that Villanova students would participate in this drive to save lives of men wounded in the Korean war.

See Chaplain for Details

Since parental consent is needed for minors the Red Cross will supply permission slips for parents' signatures that may be filled out over the Christmas holidays. Slips can be obtained at the Chaplain's office in Mendel Hall.

Besides parental consent for those under 21, general requirements for students are few. Suggestions from the Red Cross for donors include: eat a regular meal at least four hours before giving blood; avoid eating fats, fried foods, and eggs during a four hour period before donating.

To safeguard health, the Red Cross requires that eight weeks must elapse between donations. The organization also stipulates that only five donations are permitted during any twelve month period.

Registration Begins Jan. 30 In Field House

Students Sign for Spring Semester by Their Schools

Registration for the spring semester will be held in the Field House from January 30 to February 2. The School of Arts & Science will register on January 30, the School of Engineering January 31, and the School of Commerce & Finance on February 1 & 2.

Enlistments Cause Decrease

No exact figures are known by the Office of the Registrar, but a slight decrease in the number of students registering for the semester is expected. Enlistments in the Armed Forces will account for the major portion of the decrease. Many men also have been called or expect to be called for the Reserves and for the draft.

Arts Register First

The first school to register will be the School of Arts & Science. Under the direction of Father Sullivan, Dean of the school, registration will take place on January 30. Students of the School of Education will also register on this date.

January 31 is the day of registration for all students of the School of Engineering. Dean Morehouse is to have charge of this registration.

Registration will end on February 1 & 2 when Commerce and Finance students will enroll under the direction of Father Bartley, Dean of the School.

This Special Edition Only Issue of Month

This is a special examination edition of the VILLANOVAN. Ordinarily no paper is published during examination week, but college vacations have prevented publication on several regularly scheduled dates. So that students may keep up with current campus events, this edition breaks precedent and comes out during exams.

Again hampered by vacations, the next edition will not appear on campus until February 13.

Sheed To Address Forum; Sunday Opens 108th Retreat

Three - Day Services to Be Conducted by Rev. S. Lanen

Sunday, January 21, will mark the beginning of Villanova's 108th annual retreat. This year's services will commence at 7:30 P. M. in the College Field House. Among the first of the services will be the blessing of Our Lady's Shrine which was financed by a collection at the last retreat. On Wednesday morning January 24, the closing Mass will be said in Thanksgiving for all the graces received during the Annual Retreat.

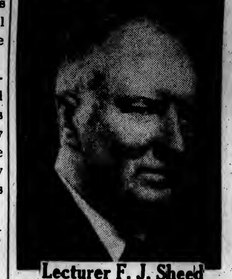
Fr. Lanen Retreat Master

Retreat master for this Mid Century Retreat will be Reverend Stephen Lanen, O.S.A., who will be returning to Villanova following a few years' absence. Father Lanen was formerly associated with Villanova in the capacity of professor of English here. At the present time Father is directing his major efforts toward the Augustinian Mission Band.

Reverend Edwin T. Grimes O.S.A., Chaplain, has announced that students of Villanova should report to his office on first floor Mendel for their retreat information. This may be done either on Tuesday, January 16 from 1 P. M. to 5 or Wednesday the 17th from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. Students are asked to pay strict attention to the times.

Noted Publisher to Speak Monday On 'Human Rights and The Family'

Fr. Stephen Lanen
Annual Retreat Master



On Monday, second day of retreat, the Traditional Nocturnal Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament will take place. Schedules for the hours of Adoration will be posted on the walls of the Field House.

Mass for the deceased students, faculty members, and alumni will be celebrated this year on Tuesday, the third day of the retreat. Since the time we held our last retreat the already long list of deceased Villanovans has been increased by 25.

Current Series Sets Third Lecture

Third lecture in the 1950-51 Villanova forum Series will be "Human Rights and the Family". Frank J. Sheed, noted author, publisher, and lecturer, will present his views on this subject on Monday evening January 22, in the Commerce and Finance auditorium.

Mr. Sheed is an Australian of Irish descent. He was graduated from the University of Sydney in arts and law. On coming to England, however, he decided not to practice law and instead founded a Catholic publishing house. This publishing house aims at presenting Catholicism positively, and at being a medium of expression for the whole Catholic world.

Lecturer F. J. Sheed

Frank J. Sheed has translated some dozen works including "The Confessions of St. Augustine." He has also written many books of his own, a few of which are "A Map of Life", "Communism and Man", "Theology and Sanity", "Nullity of Marriage" and "Sidelights on the Catholic Revival.

Active in Evidence Guild

In addition to his writing and publishing activities, Mr. Sheed has for over twenty-five years been a speaker of the Westminster Catholic Evidence Guild, whose purpose is to teach Catholic doctrine and to explain the Catholic point of view on the street corner. Mr. Sheed is in charge of training the Guild speakers in London, and has addressed in all well over 3000 street-corner and indoor meetings in England and America.

Chairman of the Villanova Forum, Charles P. Bruderle, has announced that this particular lecture will not in any way conflict with the annual retreat. It has been stated that on the night of the forum there will be no retreat services.

Annual Career Conference Set For Seniors, Feb. 8th

Placement Director Harris Has Leaders from Industry for Talks in C. and F.

Villanova's second annual Career Conference for seniors, held under the guidance of Placement Director George Harris, will be held in the Villanova Commerce and Finance Auditorium, Thursday, February 8th.

Mr. Harris stated last week that he had lined up an impressive array of speakers for the forum which includes Mr. P. W. Siekman, Assistant to the Vice-President, of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company; Mr. Harold C. Stott, Vice President and Treasurer of the Albert M. Greenfield Company, and former president of the Comtrollers Institute of America; and, the Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., PH.D., Dean of the Commerce and Finance School of Villanova College and Professor of Business Administration at the school.

Hundred Business Men Present

Mr. Harris asserted that the purpose of the Conference is to bring Villanova representatives of education, business and industry to supply to the seniors information that will be useful to them when they leave school to seek employment. A panel of experts will be on hand to guide the conference and approximately one hundred representatives of business, education and industry will be on hand to take part in floor discussion.

George Harris
Arranges Career Conference

High School Directors Invited

The committee in charge of the conference this year felt that it would of interest to many students graduating from high school, who will be unable to attend college, to learn the information presented at the conference, Mr. Harris said. Thus, guidance directors of Philadelphia area high schools, denominational and public, have also been invited to attend the conference.

Penn Moves To Stop Rival Cheering At Palestra

In an effort to eliminate antagonistic cheering at Villanova-Penn doubleheaders at the Palestra student leaders from the Penn campus met the editors of the VILLANOVAN last week and asked cooperation in trying to squelch cheering against both home teams.

Penn Spirit Committee Chairman Phil Maloney pledged the support of his group and the Penn cheerleaders to urge their students to stop cheering against Villanova. He asked similar action on the part of the VILLANOVAN and the Villanova student body.

Action on Penn Letter

The problem came to a head last week when Penn Basketball coach, protested to the Daily Pennsylvanian over the antagonism on the part of student cheering sections. Citing the Fordham game as a particular example of unsportsmanlike feelings, he asked for an immediate remedy that would benefit both Penn and Villanova.

Effects of the efforts of the Daily Pennsylvanian and the Spirit Committee were noticeable at the North Carolina game last Saturday night. The Penn band played several Villanova marches and Penn cheerleaders led Villanova cheers. A marked decrease in anti-Villanova cheering from the Penn stands was also noted.

Ask End to Vicious Circle

Maloney agreed with tre feeling prevalent among Villanovans that Penn students had set the example on rival cheering and that Villanovans were just following bad example in a vicious circle. Now that Penn students have set a good example, the editors of this paper urge Villanovans to again follow suit, and i fnot root for Penn, at east don't root against them.

End The Dilemna

With world-wide committments as heavy as they are the United States can well afford a military force of five million. The country cannot even maintain a cold war against communism unless there are that many men to strengthen the outposts. For that reason the plan to continue the draft is not only a good idea, it has become a necessity.

With the demand for men as large as it is, the draft has, and will continue to have, in ever increasing intensity, a drastic effect on colleges and college students. Draft boards, by June, under existing rules, are likely to order large numbers of college youths inducted. The existing rules now allow all college students to finish the current year, and will allow the top half of the class to finish four years.

However the rules are indefinite. Selective service headquarters has given the individual draft boards a good deal of leeway—in order that they all may fill their quotas.

This indefiniteness in the Selective Service law has caused a great deal of anticipation among not only the students but the administration of colleges. There is no one now who can give satisfactory advice to the individual students facing induction.

As a result many have dropped from college to enlist in a preferred branch of service. Others facing the bleak and unknown future have given up the books for a "good time" while they are still on campuses.

It is a sad situation. Draft policy as it relates to education will need to be laid down by Congress before June if colleges are not to be stripped of young men.

There is a need and aways will be a need for the college graduate whether it be for the armed forces or for industry. Because of their intelligence and aptitude there are many who should receive education in college. With the situation in the world today inductees this year see little likelihood in returning someday to college, in order to complete their courses.

For these reasons rather than any feeling of evading service does the student ask for special classification. If the draft is to continue for any length of time, and it looks as if there is little question, that is all the more reason why definite rules should be set up concerning college.

No matter how lenient or stringent the rules will be, at least they would clarify the situation and avoid the concern and confusion that is so rampant on campuses today.

Villanova Prof. Edits New Book

Combustion Handbook Is Most Recent of It's Type

In the past years Villanova professors have had books published on many diverse subjects. Reverend Edward F. Jenkins, O.S.A., incidentally, is the unofficial record holder at Villanova for the longest title of a published book, "Paranitro Henylacetic Acid as a Reagent for the Identification of Alcohols, Ethers, Phenols and Amines."

Most Recent

Recently, Professor George H. Auth in collaboration with Mr. Allen J. Johnson of Lansdowne has edited and had published "Fuels and Combustion Handbook." Mr. Auth, a Professor of Mechanical Engineering at Villanova, and Mr. Johnson produced their edition after three years of diligent labor. This one-thousand page work was published January 2, 1951 by McGraw-Hill.

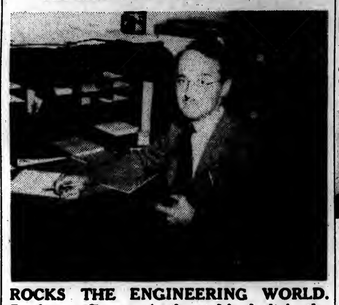
This manual, according to the editors, is a "reference covering the properties, uses and combustion of all solid, liquid and gaseous fuels." It embodies many new developments in synthetic fuels, gas turbines, furnace and equipment design will be used at Villanova. The handbook will be a text-supplement for the three heat courses taught in the Engineering School.

About Mr. Auth

Mr. Auth has taught several engineering courses since he came to Villanova in June of 1944. A graduate of Brooklyn Polytechnical in 1935, Mr. Auth worked for six years in the engineering field before returning to his Alma Mater to teach for three years. He has been teaching and doing consultant work in various phases of mechanical engineering ever since.

and Mr. Allen

Professor Auth's co-worker, Mr. Allen J. Johnson, is a graduate of the University of Delaware and has been in this type of work almost all of his life. Mr. Johnson, who has spent thirty years in the engineering field, is now an independent consultant.



Latest Material

The observation is made in the preface of the manual that "over 50 per cent of the material . . . is less than five years old and over 80 per cent is less than ten years old." As the most recently published book of its kind it should prove valuable in graduate work and to men "in the field."

Revision Already in Making

When asked if he anticipated writing another book on a related subject Mr. Auth said that he and Mr. Johnson would revise the present book in a few years. "I already have a stack of changes that we will make," he replied.

The Man Who Wields The Pencil

THIS WEEK

By Jim Griffin

Retreat! . . . and regroup to advance. Retire, fall back, to wait for reinforcements, for more and better equipment. Rather a familiar pattern to the world these days. And especially to the United States. For we are losing a war, temporarily at least, and no alternative is open to us.

To the Man on the Line

And from the point of view of the fighting men, it is discouraging, even demoralizing, to see the enemy blackening hillsides with their numbers, advancing on and on, regardless of the price they are forced to pay. After standing up to such an assault for a time, there must be something of relief in a retreat march, even if it only amounts to a few hours let-up and a chance to get one straight hour of sleep before the onslaught begins again.

But Also . . .

But retreat as a strategy is also efficient in fields different from the military. And one of the best parallels is being given a test locally this week. Last year about this time, Villanovans staged a retreat en masse. We dropped the tasks and positions which had kept us busy for the previous year, and found our way to the Field House and a let-up from the hum-drum of daily activity. And there we worked on the job of strengthening positions—spiritually.

Badly Needed

Through the scheduled and unscheduled conferences of the retreat we were recalled to the store of knowledge of right and wrong which we may have been forgetting. Through our own prayer and cooperation with the spiritual exercises of the retreat we received the help and reinforcement which we so badly needed. And the few hours which we spent in the Field House brought a sense of peace and respite which was probably a novelty we had not enjoyed for a long time.

Another Year

Then it was over, and things began to pop again. And now a year has passed, a year in which we have probably been indebted to the effects of our retreat more times than we know about. But over the course of that year, we have probably drawn heavily on the reinforcements that the retreat brought us, so that by now we are in a position to make excellent use of another chance to re-strengthen. This is our chance, and we may not have another for a long time to come. Let's make the most of it.

TWOMP ON EXAM-BEATING: "THERE'S NOTHING TO IT"

By Bill Brenninghouse

There was a time when final examinations scared Oscar Twomp. No more does he tremble at the thought of cramming. No longer does he have to make up "aids to study" such as writing formulas upside down and backwards on the roof of his mouth and reading same by means of a small mirror at the opportune moment. He has discovered certain characteristics of final exams that make them a snap and he herewith imparts his knowledge to all concerned.

True or False?

The popular True-False test is by all means the easiest to pass. First, the questions are covered up leaving only the spaces for T's and F's. These spaces are filled in any way desired, TFTFT etc. or all T's or all F's, it matters little. Now, by the law of averages, half of the answers are wrong. So erase half of the answers and change them. The answers are now all correct.

One for Five

In the multiple choice type of question caution must be exercised or disaster will result. If five answers are given for a question, one can be eliminated immediately as being ridiculous. Which answer this is, can be determined by the eeny, meeny, miny, mo system of selectivity. Of the four answers left two would be completely wrong if the other two were right. To find the correct two flip a coin. One of the two correct answers is more correct than the other. Read both answers over carefully then choose the answer with the most vowels. As in the true-false test, there is no need to look at the questions.

and the Essay

The essay type test requires that you read the question. If the question begins with "Develop," or "Trace," the shrewd examinee will write at great length about everything in general and nothing in particular. He is never so brash as to commit himself. As long as the first paragraph sounds good he is assured of success. If the question begins "Comment on," imagination may be given a free rein. It would do well to quote Aristotle or Plato a few times and a few well chosen lines from Alexander Pope or Samuel Johnson, relative or irrelative to the subject would do no harm. Top it all off with a Latin phrase by St. Augustine (like "Cogito ergo sum") and a high grade is assured.

Identify: Flygury

If the student is asked to identify somebody, generalization will get him by. Boccaccaio was an Italian of note. St. Peter was famous in the Church. Henry VIII was of noble blood. Julius Caesar was an historical figure.

and Afterwards

To answer a direct question or to do a problem in math or physics or to name a biological specimen, tact should be employed. Always answer the question and use as many formulas as possible. Some credit can always be wrangled for method, etc. As a final rule the student always lines up at the professor's office to complain immediately after the exam.

Crowded Spring Schedule Announced

Lent Early, but April and May Are Well Packed

By G. Donovan

With one semester dying on its feet this week, interest is focused,, not only on the two weeks respite, but also on the new term ahead. Whether spring is a little late or a little early this year, there will still be such outstanding events as the Easter recess, Junior Week, the Senior dinner-dance and graduation.

February 5

The semester starts on the fifth of February and the Wednesday folowing is Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent. Then there will be a long stretch until the end of March with only one break, and that is Washington's Birthday which falls on a Thursday.

Easter

Easter recess falls early this year and will be the usual five days around a week end. Classes end Wednesday the 22nd and begin again Thursday the 29th.

The midterm will be the first week in April which makes us wonder who is going to be anybody's fool. But with better weather, April and May will be thick with events to flatten the thickest wallet.

Belle Masque

Belle Masque puts on their play, April 14, 15, 16, (Saturday, Sunday and Monday). The Interfrat Ball, switched to the spring because of the new fall arrangement of the Senior Prom, will be the first informal in the semester on the 20th of April, (Friday).

The Junior Class

This year the class of '52 will play host for the annual week known as Junior Week. That will stretch out from the 29th of April to the 5th of May. Mother's Day is as usual scheduled for Monday with the Band concert on Tuesday. The informal Blazer Ball holds the fort on Wednesday as a prelude to the Junior Prom on Friday. Ascension Thursday comes the 3rd of May and will give a rest after the Blazer Ball. That worked out well this year. Then the Juniors go into seclusion at the Ben Franklin for the big dinner-dance on Saturday to wind up a very busy week. Other events will be scheduled for the week but these are the major items. No news yet has been received on the band for the prom.

And Turf and Tinsel

A week later Turf and Tinsel will trot out its "long stemmed beauties" for the annual musical. That will be at the Field House May 10th through the 13th, Thursday through Sunday. Witches are the only clue we have as to the subject of the show.

Others Unannounced

For organizations planning dinners and dinner-dances there will be only two open weeks ends and those are the 19th and 26th of May. The latter is the week end before exams. Two other possibilities might run into difficulty with the play and the Turf and Tinsel show.

The week from the 28th of May to the 2nd of June will be taken up with examinations and that is it for another semester.

Seniors

The Senior dinner-dance which has taken a pushing around this year, has finally located itself on the Saturday before graduation, June 2nd.

The lucky people interested in graduation will find that June 3rd and 4th are the two big days. Sunday, the 3rd, finds the Solemn Mass and Baccalaureate Sermon scheduled. Then Monday will offer the commencement exercises.

Those are the events now scheduled. Others will find time to happen as the semester progresses.

the PASHA PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

Dear Mary:

As you know, Mary, there is no one in the world bue you. I'd climb the highest mountain for you, the deepest river would afford no obstacle because at your word I would swim it. Neither hurricanes, tornadoes, typhones, monsoons, nor hail storms would prevent my reaching you. Yes, you are the only one

STEVE.

P.S. If it doesn't rain tomorrow, I'll be over to see you.

PENNSY-PEEVING: The Spirit Committee of the University of Pennsylvania has contacted the school in regard to the rooting which is being carried on at the Palestra during the basketball double-headers. Apparently the big city institute is concerned with the booing which we are giving them and visa-versa. They suggest that we combine our local talents and cheer for one another during our respective skirmishes. Since it was Villanova that was responible for bringing the crowds to the Palestra, I guess it is up to Villanova to try and keep them under control.

LIGHT-UP-THE-PIKE: Go to Villanova and you will soon have your name in lights . . . Have you noticed the new sign on the front lawn of the monastery . . . In expectation of a large high school boy enrollment this year, it has been decided to put the name of the school in blazing white letters in order that they might find their way home . . . The way in which Gen. Marshall is calling for men, the good priests will be lucky if anyone is even looking for it.

GOING-GOING-GONE: One absent-minded prof. forgot his class record book yesterday and by the time he retrieved it from his office he didn't need it . . . Won't say the men are worried but the Juniors have asked that their blazers be made with Khaki linings . . . In the past, residents fearing a box rental notice have kept their distance from the post office . . . Now ther're afraid of receiving a draft questionnaire . . . An individual in Alumni Hall sold all of his clothes at a third of their cost in anticipation of a January call and now he isn't leaving until June, '52. Ironically enough the "PALS" that bought them are returning them at twice the purchase price.

MAY-PLANNING: JUNIORS—Look for an important class meeting immediately following the semester vacation. Three outstanding events are on the agenda along with some changes in plans in due to large number entering the Armed Forces.

PREVALENT LETTERS:

Dear Draft Board,

I feel it my patriotic duty to inform you that it will be impossible for me to leave college to go in your army. Before your threating letter of the thirteenth, I pictured Villanova as giving me nothing that wasn't justly mine. I hadn't taken into consideration the planning and farsightedness that was necessary for my social and academic betterment, therefore, I'd like to stay a while longer and square things before I leave. I also have a physical disability. It consists of an ingrown metatarsal, fallen arch, corns, bunions, and five hang-nails on my right foot.

Respectfully yours,
IWANTA STAYOUTTAARMY.

Dear Draftee,

They certainly don't make shoes like they used to make them. We will expect you at the Induction Center on the 25th of this month.

Your in the ARMY now.
MAJ. INEVER DEFERTHEM.

HARVEY Film Version Hits Phila.

By George Crist

Riotious, roaring and just down right funny is the description for "Harvey." Taken from the play that originally starred Frank Faye, this movie has lost nothing in the change. James Stewart as Elmer Dowd gives a top performance.

Harvey, of course, is a big white rabbit that lives in the mind of Mr. Dowd. At the start the audience is inclined to think Harvey is a myth, but when the picture ends no one is too sure. This movie not only has humor, it has a message. But whether or not you like your movies with a message, this one will literally stiffen you with enjoyment.

The Cast

The director's casting is unusually well done. It is an understatement to say that Jimmy Stewart is excellent, he is magnificent. The supporting actors are on the same high plane, and each is a seperate personality. If anyone could steal the show from Stewart it would be Josephine Hull who plays his sister. Her very appearance is laughable, and notice especially her eyes when you see the show.

Unrelenting Humor

You could rave about the dialogue; you could rave about the plot; you could rave about anything in this movie and be right. Imagine such scenes as a man sitting at a bar talking to a non-existent rabbit, or a very sedate tea party at which a quivering two hundred pound singer entertains. These are not just isolated spots, but points in a series of continual mirth.

The Harvey

All through the story the shade of this six foot rabbit, Harvey, flits tumultuously. Is he real or isn't he real? The dictionary has him as an Irish mythical spirit who appears to drunks and odd people, spreading happiness in odd ways and committing mischief. Some psychology minded people say Dowd is suffering from halucinations. There is one sure fact: the picture doesn't settle a thing.

What Do You Think?

Anyway you look at the rabbit, this picture is bound to entertain. All this critic advises is to go and see it as quick as you can. After you finish laughing, see if you think there is a real rabbit in "Harvey".

WCAU Salutes Cat Stars on Radio At 'Varsity Club'

Since the Wildcat basketeers have been flying to many of their away contests they've become used to being on the airlanes. And if the players become any more popular locally, they'll have to get used to being on the airwaves, too.

Last Friday night coach Al Severance and players Nick McGuire and Larry Hennesey were guests on the premiere of "The Varsity Club", WCAU's radio salute to local colleges.

Villanova, along with Haverford high and Malvern Prep, was represented on the program. Sportscaster Bill Sears interviewed the contingent from the Main Line campus, while Jack Ryan of the Bulletin interviewed the schoolboy stars.

"Holy Land" Exhibit of Life Magazine Shown in Library

Exhibit Work of Dmitri Kessel, Life Photographer, Bethlehem Featured

"The Holy Land," the latest in the series of photographic exhibitions prepared by the editors of Life magazine was shown for the first time yesterday at the College Library. As with the previous Library exhibits, "The Holy Land" will be presented in the third floor corridor, and on exhibit until February 8.

Based on Life Pictures

Based on a Life photographic essay, and including many hitherto unpublished pictures, the exhibition consists of 28"x30" panels. Photographs are by Dmitri Kessel, one of Life's most distinguished photographers.

To obtain this photographic record of the Land of the Bible, Kessel made a month's pilgrimage from Dan to Beersheba, devoting most of his time to such scenes in and near Jerusalem as the Court of the Gentiles, Herod's Gate, Mount of Olives, Dome on the Rock, and the Garden of Gethsemane. Included in the exhibition are also photographs of Bethlehem; The Vale of Elah, where David slew Goliath; Jericho, where the Ark of Covenant first rested permanently, and other sites rich in biblical legend and fact.

Depict Bible Scenes

While no attempt at story sequences has been made, captions identify each historical site, and short passages from the Bible refer to relevant scenes or ideas whose connotations are similar in mood. Kessel's photographs bring to vivid life the pages of the Bible and reveal a land which has changed little from the times when the world's great religious precepts were first forged there.

One room cave stable at Bethlehem of the kind in which Jesus may have been born. This is one of the photographs in the Library's "Holy Land" exhibit.

Library Issues Note About Art Contest

The Library reminded students of its annual art contest with an announcement this week that rules of the contest and points of judgment will be available to interested students on Thursday at the office of the Librarian.

Held for the first time last year, the contest is planned as an anuual addition to the Junior Week program. Prizes will be awarded for the best works in three divisions: water colors, oil paintings, and photographs.

Prizes amounting to $50.00 will be awarded in the contest. All entries must be submitted before April 23.

Mendel Bulletin Copy Submitted

The Mendel Bulletin has taken one step more in its return to campus after a lapse of nine years. At a meeting held last Tuesday it was decided that all articles would have to be submitted upon return from the semester vacation.

The Mendel Bulletin is a publication of the Science School containing articles on all branches of science. It has been traditionally a medium for the presentation of new ideas and techniques in physics, chemistry, biology and other associated subjects. As Villanova students may not often find something new to write about, new approaches to old theories are often brought to light.

Bulletin to Be Annual

Under the editorship of Ed Fesco the Bulletin will continue this policy changing only the form of publication. Instead of coming out quarterly, as it had previously it will be published as an annual at first. Because of this the first volume will be much larger than similar publications of this type on campus.

Physical Exams Listed For NROTC

Annual physical examinations will be held earlier than usual this year. Captain McCormick announced that the physicals will start on the fifth of February and continue for two weeks. At this time 320 Midshipmen will be examined, thirty of which will be taking it prior to being commissioned. All men in the NROTC Unit are required to take this examination every year.

Thompson Second, McKenna Third in Washington Games

Villanova opened its 1951 indoor track season last Saturday night, by placing George Thompson second in the 1000 yard run, getting Jim McKenna third in the 600 and by seeing alumnus Browning Ross take a second in the two-mile run.

All this took place at the fourth annual Washington Star Games, held before 5,000 spectators at the National Guard Armory in the nation's capital.

Beats Whitfield

In the Touchdown Club 1,000-yard run Thompson had to content himself with a second place finish, although in doing so he beat Olympic champ Mal Whitfield. Thompson got off to a bad start and was in last position for most of the race. With a lap and a half to go he "opened up", passing Whitfield and company and so salvaged a second. He was five yards behind winner Dick Saunders of Georgetown.

Jim McKenna did the same thing inthe 600, putting on a last-lap sprint to annex third place honors. Arthur Wint, the 6-foot 5-inch Jamaican broke the two year record of 1:13:2, belonging to former Wildcat George Guida, in winning this event. Jim finished five yards ahead of John Voight, who was fourth.

Cunjac in Collision

Luck seemed to go against Villanova in the one mile relay when Bob Cunjac was caught in the collision between a Penn State runner and one from Mor-

Scranton, Rider Midweek Victims at Field House

'Cat Cagers Trip Upstaters, 52-38, and Jerseyites, 62-48, to Gain Nos. 10 and 11

Scranton and Rider became the 10th and 11th victims of the current edition of the Wildcats intwo unimpressive performances by the Mainliners. The Royals from upstate bowed 52-38 while the Jersey lads came out on the short end of a 62-48 count.

Scranton played a possession game throughout most of the contest in an attempt to baffle the high-scoring 'Cats. The Royals did not attempt a shot for the first three minutes and the man who broke the freeze was greeted by cries of "Gunner" from some of the sparse Field house crowd.

The Blue and White led 7-0 at the end of the first five minutes and were never headed. Scranton managed to pull within five points late in the game but Villanova quickly gained control of the scoring. In the last four minutes, Coach Al Severance showed Scranton that two could play at the possession game and the Wildcats took only two shots in that time. Larry Hennessey and Jim Mooney led the scoring. Sammy Cavaliere, two - time scholastic All-State, who was at Villanova briefly last season, appeared in the Scranton line-up and was held to four points.

Rider Proves Tough

Rider College visited the field house last Wednesday and gave the Wildcats an interesting evening, before succumbing, 62-48. The crowd was disappointing again and the biggest cheers of the evening were reserved for the three girl cheerleaders who accompanied the visitors. Larry Hennessey again led the scoring getting most of his points in a great first-half shooting exhibition. In the second half the Wildcat shooting was off and the business college team came within three points of a tie. At this stage, Coach Severance inserted Stewart and Gepp into the line-up and these two combined their drive and back-board ability to insure the victory. Steve Gepp was particularly impressive in controlling the boards and the

Track Team to Make Local Debut at Inquirer Games

The 1951 indoor track season makes a brief stop at Philadelphia this Friday night when Convention Hall plays host to the seventh annual Philadelphia Inquirer Track and Field Meet. Athletes from thirty-five colleges and clubs are entered in the games which features the Inquire Mile.

Villanova, which has entered a fifteen man squad, will be defending titles in the one and two-mile relays. The Wildcats also hold records in both these events.

In the Inquirerer Mile, John Joe Barry will face the two best milers in the country. Don Gehrmann and Fred Wilt, along with Barry, should set a blistering pace over the twelve lap course. John Joe was second to Wilt last year with a 4:10.3 clocking, the Convention Hall and district record.

George Thompson is a provisional starter in the 1000 Yard Run against Phil Thigpen of Seton Hall and Reggie Pearman, former N.Y.U.'er. Jim McKenna is expected to start in the 600 against Charlie Moore of Cornell and George Rhoden of Morgan State. Tom Irish is in the 50-Yard Dash, an event which is expected to be star-studded.

The Wildcats won the one-mile relay last year and in doing so set the record of 3:24. Joe McCreary, Pete Simigan, John Furlinger and Jim McKenna will be out to do the defending. Manhattan, N.Y.U., Seton Hall and Morgan State all have strong quarters and the record may fall.

Villanova plays the same role in the two-mile relay in protecting a 7:53:8 timing. Art Klepper, James Reardon, George Thompson and Larry Paturzo will toe the line against Pennsylvania, Manhattan, Princeton and Seton Hall.

In the field events, Jim Mullen is in the Pole Vault and Marty Pancsner has been entered in the High Jump.

The Inquirer Meet will not only provide Wildcat track fans with their first glimpse of the Blue and White thinclads, but will also serve as an indication of what they can expect in the IC4A Champions next month.

Gepp's Free Throws Clinch Victory in Fierce Finish

Hennessey Nets 18, Brennan 16; Glasmrie Holds Sam Ranzino to One Field Goal

On Saturday night, January 13, 1951, the Villanova College basketball Wildcats gained permanent possession of the state of North Carolina by downing the Marauding Wolfpack from State College, 66-64, before a hysterica crowd of 8,700 persons. This makes it four straight for the Mainliners over the Wolfpack in the last three years and is the second time this season that the Cats have stopped all engines on the otherwise undefeated Carolinians.

A Frenzied Finish

The game was certainly the most exciting one imaginable, but at the same time, a wierd one. The first half witnessed a brilliant offensive exhibition by both clubs with the Wildcats reigning at halftime due to a 45-35 lead. In the second half, however, the Staters quickly retaliated to knot the contest at 48-all in less than five minutes. From that point on the court action turned into such a frenzied, dog bites man and vice-versa, melee, accompanied by the pitched stainings of 8700 vocal chords, that the arrival of John Wayne and the whole 2nd Marine Division would have passed unnoticed.

It was probably one of the mostly tightly officiated contests ever played. Officals, Leroy Lewis and George Myers, detected 58 personal fouls, none of which the partisans in the stands agreed with, and both benches made numerous threats which, due to the presence of the Philadelphia Police Force, were not carried out. It seemed at times as though a mere nasty look merited a foul with the result that the first five people to leave the Palestra were the Messrs. Maguire, Glassmire, Mooney, Horvath and Kukoy, all participants in the contest and all by incurring five personal fouls.

Good Sam Prevails

Probably the outstanding feature of the game was the brilliant defensive work of Sam (Good Sam) Glassmire in containing State's highly touted Sam (Bad Sam) Ranzino to a paltry four points. Earlier this year Good Sam had been effective in holding Bad Sam to eleven points. This time he surpased himself. Bad Sam was scintilating, dribbling, passing off and just plain running around, but, when it came to shooting he might just as well have been throwing from Convention Hall. In addition, Good Sam found time to toss in ten points.

The game started off conventionally with both teams scoring with equal abandon. With the count even at 32 all, the Wildcats, paced by Larry Hennessey (top scorer with 18 points) and Tom Brennan (right behind him with 16), suddenly went on a spree which earned them their half-time margin. After State's initial spree in the second half, the offense bogged down and defensive play and foul shooting highlighted the last fifteen minutes of play. In this period, in which there was never more than a two point spread between the teams, both squads, due to the fatigue and strain of the hard

Fordham Snaps 'Cat Win-Streak At Nine Games

Fordham University cagers have scored the upset of the basketball year when they toppled Villanova from the ranks of the unbeaten at Penn Palestra on Saturday, January 7th, by a 52-44 score.

The Rams seemed to have found the key to the Wildcats' secret filling the field goal column. The keyhole was constantly clogged, and as a result, the famed breakoff tactics of the Severancemen failed to provide a quantity of points.

Fordham's towering center, Carlson, effectively employed the hook shot to lead the victors' scoring attack with 17 points. Planting himself close to the basket, the rangy Ram registered 7 field goals and 3 free throws.

For the conquered 'Cats, only Tom Brennan managed to hit double figures. The tall center contributed 14 points to the losers' total of 44, their lowest point production effort of the current season.

The visitors jumped off to a quick lead and, before their hosts could dent the scoring column at all, held a nine point advantage. Larry Hennessy then connected to his first three field goal attempts and the Wildcats appeared to have caught fire. But Fordham continued to score when it counted and was never headed.

Midway in the second half, Villanova started a scoring spree that fell short by one point. Just when it appeared that the tide might turn an intercepted pass and a layup shot by Rooney gave Fordham a three-point advantage and clinched the verdict.

Failure to follow up their own shots, especially in the first half, may be considered the primary reason for Villanova's defeat. Jim Mooney's inspired play in the second half, however, relieved the situation somewhat and gave the 'Cats more than that one shot at the hoop to which they were limited in the opening session.

As a result of their loss to Fordham, the Wildcat cagers dropped from eighth to sixteenth in the national ratings.

Villanova Played Major Role in Defeating Code

Once again the Solid South has succeeded in passing legislation by using a strong political bloc. In this latest instance the voting body consisted of 190 members of the National Collegiate Association, gathered at Dallas, Texas, for the purpose of settling the athletic problems of major and minor educational institutions. By a vote of 130 to 60 the Sanity Code was abolished and replaced by a new elastic "local government" policy.

Although the Southern schools took the lead in denouncing the controversial Code, a number of scalawag members rushed to their suport and sealed its fate. The original Code regulated the amount of financial and other aid N. C. A. A. members could extend to athletes. That many of the schools thought to be in compliance were exceeding the limits was a known fact. For this reason, the Sanity Code has long been the object of scorn.

The issue was brought to a head at last year's meeting when nine schools were singled out as offenders. Seven of the so-called "Sinners" answered, "We cannot comply." Villanova College was one of the seven who divorced themselves from the hypocritical herd and, as a result, contributed much to the eventual downfall of the Code.

The 130 delegates who voted to abolish the Sanity Code are to be congratulated. They have done more to protect the reputation of American athletics than its elected or appointed protectors. We can only be proud of Villanova's stand and the part it played in influencing the decision.

Marksmen Win Five Straight

Villanova's NROTC rifle team blazed ahead with five straight wins in practice matches. Although actual competition does not begin until February the team has won over such tough teams as The University of Pennsylvania, Valley Forge, and Temple. Last year the rifle team won the district championship.

This year it is hoped that they will be able to repeat last year's conquest. Both the coach Sgt. F. Despeghel and team captain Frank Haskins are very optomistic about future prospects. The team has been further strengthened by the addition of freshmen who have been firing well enough to replace several old members.

Alumnus Browning Ross was second in the Acacia Two-Mile Run behind his Penn A. C. teammate Horace Ashenfelter. Browning had complained of a sore hip before the race and appeared in distress from the half mile on. John Joe Barry was entered in the race but scratched.

ALUMNI TOPPERS DROP FEDIGAN BIG FIVE FROM "UNBEATEN" LIST

The Alumni Toppers dropped the Fedigan Big Five from the ranks of the undefeated, and took over first place in the A League last week with a decisive 56-45 victory. The Toppers had to do it the hard way however, coming from behind a 21-29 halftime deficit, and after cutting it down to 36-38 at the three quarter mark really pouring it on in the final canto to win going away. Falkowski, O'Donnell, and Flynn with 17, 13 and 10 points respectively, led the winners. Lemmer and McKukkin each tallied 14 for the Big Five.

Rum Runners Still Undefeated

The Rum Runners are still the team to beat in the American league, as they ran their string to five straight with victories over the Liz Kids 61-43, and the Gunners 38-28. Lazzara hit for 23 against the Liz Kids.

In other American league games the Aces also won two, topping the Gunners 42-37 and the Black Flames 71-35. In a thrilling overtime game the Liz Kids almost upset the Fedigan Aces,tying the regulation game at 39 all in the final two seconds, came thru on a set shot by Aluckin in the sudden death to notch their fourth win against one setback.

In the final game of the week the winless Black Flames dropped a 40-25 decision to the Furriers.

Hawks Win Two in National

In the only games played in the National league the Hawks won their first of the season by downing the V's 33-32, and then taking the Engineers into camp 33-30. Neville was high in both games for the Hawks as he canned 12 and 14.

Ninety-five Contests to Date

Up until Friday 95 games were played in all the I-M Baskeball leagues. With 39 teams entered, it is expected that about 250 games will be played, including the playoffs, the largest number of contests in the history of Villanova intra-mural sports.

Characters Win in Overtime

The Alumni Characters, displaying some of the finest teamwork seen all year, downed the Fire House Five in an extra-period thriller, 32-31. Every man on the Winning quintet broke into the scoring column, with the points distributed evenly. Bergen of the losers took individual honors for nite, however, with 14 counters.

The Barracks I strengthened their second place perch behind the front running Alumni Caps with a double victory. The Austin Hotshots were the first victims, 34-29 and the Characters were the second to fall, 41-32 bringing the Barracks record to 5-1.

Pistons Win Close One

The Alumni Pistons held off a terrific last period spurt by the Austin Refugees to pull a 44-42 decision out of the fire. Weber and Elserman each garnered 8 for the winners, altho Jordan of the Refugees was high for the nite with 21, hitting for 12 of these in that torrid fourth period.

Karabinus, Steinhofer, and Roesgen collaborated for 47 points as the Austin Hayseeds clipped the wings of the Fedigan Quints 53-26. Gerrity led the losers with 9.

Gepp Comes Through

Starring for the Wildcats in the latter stages were Jim Mooney, who gathered in 19 rebounds over the whole contest, and Steve Gepp, who in the last four minutes of play wrestled eight rebounds away from the hungry Carolinians in addition to scoring five essential points. Actually Gepp's last two counters, two foul shots, were the deciding points of the game.

State, with Ranzino bottled up, was paced by sophomore, Paul Brandenberg, whose ancestral mansion strangely enough is in South New York City, Staten Island, and by Vic Bubas, who is one of Indiana's many contributions to the Carolina cause. They had 15 and 13 points respectively.

Sanctuary Society Hears Fr. Handran at 1st 1951 Meet

Talks on Church Music History

Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., director of the College Band and Glee Club, spoke last Tuesday night on the nature, history and development of liturgical music at the Sanctuary Society's first meeting of the new year.

"There are three basic requirements of this highest form of musical praise to God," said Fr. Handran. "These are sanctity, universality, or appeal to all regardless of nationality; and good artistic form or value."

Three Main Types

The priest, who holds a Master's degree in Music, then broke Luturgical music down into three main types, Gregorian Chant, Polyphone and Modern Church music.

Gregorian Chant, he explained, is the earliest form of church music. It follows a very steady rhythm, making use of the words' natural syllables rather than poetical sounds. It is actually a song prose.

"Polyphone," he continued, "is a blending of more than one voice, somewhat along the lines of what is popularly called harmony. Modern music, on the other hand, makes use of all the musical contrivances that are used in any good music of today."

Seminary Choir Sings

To help explain and demonstrate the different types of liturgical music, Fr. Handran was accompanied by eight members of the Seminary Choir from St. Mary's Hall, who sang selections from famous Masses to show exactly how these types of music sound.

"Unitas, Veritas, Caritas" Is Theme of 1951 Belle Air

Motto on School Seal to Highlight Art Work

"Unitas, Veritas, Caritas," a phrase taken from the motto adorning the seal of Villanova College, is the theme around which the 1951 Belle Air yearbook is being composed. The three terms, used in their relation to education at Villanova, will serve as the foundation for the organization and art work of the publication, Ray J. MacWilliams, Editor-in-Chief disclosed last week.

MacWilliams also stated that the Rev. Charles A. Berry, O.S.A., is to direct the art work for the publication. Father Berry, a talented artist, is a graduate of Villanova College, Augustinian College in Washington, D. C., and the University of Chicago. He is presently taking graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania.

New Editors Named

New appointments to the staff of the publication also were announced by the editor. He reported that he had named William Lohr as Assistant Editor, John Muratori as Copy Editor and John Gibbons as Circulation Manager.

Returning to discuss the theme of the book, McWilliams said that the dividing-page idea would be utilized this year, a method not used in several years. "Veritas will be used in an illustration to precede the section dealing with classes, etc.," he commented, "with Unitas being illustrated to set off the sports section, and Caritas serving as the division page for extra-curricular matter."

Book is Half Done

Fifty per cent of the copy and pictures that will comprise the annual was completed by the staff on the first deadline,

SENIORS

Students who are graduating at the end of this semester will have to complete their yearbook deposit if they wish to receive a copy of the book. The balance of $3.00 must be paid to Jack Gibbons, Circulation Manager, in the Belle Air office, Mendel basement. Yearbooks will be sent postpaid in June to those who have completed the payment.

December 20. The remainder of the material is due at the second deadline, February 1st.

Advertising, under the direction of advertising manager Barry Gibbons is rapidly taking final form, it was reported. The staff requested that this paper announce that any person desirous of securing advertising in the book contact J. Gibbons in care of the yearbook.

Editor McWilliams stated that the book will be out the middle of May. He said that he hoped to be able to announce the precise date of publication in the near future.

NOTICE

Students are reminded that the Mathematics Office which previously was located in Room 113 Mendel Hall, has been moved to Room 110 Belle Air. Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O.S.A., Dean of the graduate and extension schools, now has his office in Room 113 Mendel Hall.

Interview And Job Topic Of Conference

Leaders In Business Address Seniors at 2nd Annual Forum

Half the task of preparing for a career is complete with graduation. The other half consists in the transition from student to employee.

To overcome the anxiety in the minds of many seniors and to instruct these students in the procedure connected with getting the first job, George Harris conducted the second annual career conference.

Experts Advise Students

The conference, held in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium last Thursday was attended by leaders in business and industry. In addresses and in answers to questions from the floor the speakers advised students on the interview and on the difficulties involved with the first two years in a job.

Mr. Harris, College Placement Director, had scheduled a full day of activities for seniors and guests. During the morning session, Dr. Donohue of the faculty was chairman for the talks by Robert J. Sims, General Agent for Provident Mutual Life Insurance; John C. Niece, Personnel Department Sears Roebuck Company; H. M. Overley, Personnel Supervisor of the Atlantic Refining Company; Dr. Henry Klonower of the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction, and P. W. Siekman, Asst. Vice President, Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.

Fr. McLaughlin Begins Exercises

Exercises are scheduled to begin at 9:30 a. m., when Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Villanova NFCCS moderator, will say Mass in the Rosemont chapel.

Following a breakfast, the first of three plenary sessions will be held. After each plenary session of the entire group, the participants will divide into panel groups to discuss either religious, curricular or extra-curricular activities on Catholic college

Draft Problem Puzzle Many Eligibles Here

Writer Solves Most Difficulties with Review of Situation

By JAMES GLAVIN

The last six months have witnessed on every college campus a new subject of discussion, that has rocketed to the top of the "Hit Parade" of student bull sessions. "How do I stand in the draft?" is a question that every draft eligible student is asking himself these days.

Questions and Answers

THE VILLANOVAN has correlated, in question and answer form, the available material that draft eligible students should be familiar with. It is felt that the information is more easily comprehended and more accessible in this form than any other. Below is a series of questions, and their answers, affecting the students of Villanova, presently eligible for the draft:

QUES. What Students are eligible for the draft at Villanova?

ANS. All non-veteran, unmarried students between the ages of 19 and 25, with the exception of NROTC men.

QUES. When must a student becoming 18 register and where?

ANS. He should register within one week after his eighteenth birthday with his local draft board. Resident students at college on their birthday may register at Bryn Mawr draft board, and request that their registration data beforwarded to their local draft boards.

QUES. What is the first word a student receives from his local board after registering?

ANS. The questionaire sent to all eligible men will be the students first communication from his draft board. Usually this is sent soon after the 19th birthday of the student, but this is not always true.

QUES. When a student receives his questionaire what should he do.

ANS. He should fill it out, with the aid of the college Military Co-ordinator, Rev. Joseph Boyle, OSA. Also, he should request Father Boyle's office to send a letter to his draft board stating that he is a full time student at college.

QUES. When a student receives his notice to report for his physical examination what should he do?

ANS. He should report to Father Boyle, and request that a letter be sent reminding his board that he is a student and requesting postponement of the physical examination or relegation of it to a board near college if he is a resident student.

Acceleration Plans Found Just Rumors

President To Give Students The Right Word At Meeting

Changes Take Three Priests

Four New Prefects Named for Dorms

Three priests who had been active in student affairs have taken assignments that forced them to leave the campus with the beginning of this semester.

Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., RETURNS TO NAVY

former moderator of the College band and glee club, and prefect in Fedigan hall, returned to active duty in the Navy last Sunday.

New Prefects Named

Further changes place three new prefects in Fedigan Hall, Rev. John Soelman, O.S.A., Rev. Gerard Hamerlink, O.S.A., and Rev. John Maher, O.S.A., Rev. John Bush, O.S.A. is the new prefect for Good Counsel Hall.

Father Handran, a Lieutenant-Commander inthe U. S. Navy Reserve, served from 1942 to 1946 aboard the aireraft carrier Cowpens. Before entering the service he was a member of Villanova's English department, as he was between the time of the last war and his recent recall to duty.

Music Heads Appointed

At a dinner given in his honor by band members before he left Father Handran announced that his replacement as moderator would be Rev. Joseph Burns,

Fr. McGuire Speaks On Thursday

Despite rumors flying over cups of coffe in the Pie Shop and scuttlebutt from "official sources", Villanova students know litle more than ever about the biggest rumor of the year—acceleration.

The VILLANOVAN emphasizes that at the present time there is nothing definite to be known. The program, if it exists at all, is still in the planning stages and dependent upon such varied factors, both national and local, as to make it at the most tentative.

President to Clarify Issue

However, some official clarification, either negative or positive, is promised by Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., president, when he addresses the general convocation Thursday.

All the talk of acceleration started on Monday of registration week when the local papers printed College release that stated, "...plans are being made to return Villanova College to a three semester school year."

Details in Article

This program, the article said, would begin, "probably in July". Under this plan a student would be able to complete necessary requirements for a degree in three years instead of four. These were all the facts given.

The Navy, however, has definitely said that it is planning no acceleration for NROTC students, and that summertime cruises are being planned on schedule.

Sheed Addresses Forum, Topic Is Man's Dignity

Man's human and supernatural dignity as the focal point of all his social relationships was the theme of publisher Frank J. Sheed's lecture on Jan. 21 to the third Villanova Forum.

The next lecture in the Villanova Forum series scheduled for February 19, has been rescheduled for Tuesday, February 20.

On that date Rev. Robert Hartnett, S. J., editor of America will Speak on "Human Rights and the Worship of God."

Lent

It happened almost two thousand years ago. Jesus of Nazareth, savior of all men, returning from the Jordan, "was led by the Spirit about the desert for forty days, being tempted the while by the devil. And he ate nothing those days, so when they were completed he was hungry."

Christ prepared in those days for the public life He was about to enter and for the sacrifice that would climax His life on earth. And as all through His life He was giving example to those who would follow Him.

As we enter Lent each year Holy Mother Church bids us follow this example in our lives. She has instituted laws whereby men might practice mortification. By practicing mortification whether it be positive or negative men can master their animal appetites and find happiness in a morally good life.

Today man seeks happiness in the satisfaction of all these appetites in his baser nature and he finds only mental unrest, a sense of guilt, a sense of despair, anything but the peace of mind he seeks. He cannot gain happiness by surrendering to his passions; rather he must conquer them to win.

Lent is no holiday. Christ only promised a cross for those who would follow him. It demands self-discipline, endurance and wisdom. Yet during lent we can find the key to everlasting happiness; we can win the love of God.

College and the Draft

What's The Story?

Students Should Get a 2-A Classification or Appeal

Question. After a student receives his classification may he appeal that classification.

ANS. Within 10 days after receiving notice of classification, he should appeal to his local board, stating his reasons for believing he deserves another classification. This request should be accompanied by a letter from the office of the Dean, or from Father Boyle.

QUES. If a student's local broad refuses to change a classification may further steps be taken.

ANS. Definitely, and they should be. The student may, and should appeal to the State Selective Service Board, and if unsuccessful in that should appeal ultimately to the National Selective Service Board.

QUES. Is it mandatory for students to be classified 2-A?

ANS. It is not mandatory, but possible. If a student is not classified 2-A he may, and should, make an appeal as noted above.

QUES. Is it mandatory for students in the upper half of their class to be classified 2-A?

ANS. This, too, is not mandatory, but possible. If a student in the upper half of his class is not classified 2-A by his local board he should make the appeal noted above, as should all students.

Fr. Boyle, Draft Adviser

QUES. May student classified 1-A(F), or students whose induction has been postponed, appeal their classification?

ANS. Yes. They may appeal for a consideration of a 2-A classification, following the process noted above.

QUES. What is the student's responsibility for informing his local board of his status?

ANS. He should write his local board upon receipt of his questionairre stating that he is a college student, and request the Dean to substantiate his claims as to the opening and closing dates of the academic year, his rank in class, etc. If he leaves his college or transfers to another school, he must notify his local board.

QUES. May a student be taken from college by the draft this semester?

ANS. Most likely not. A new policy which will enable college students to continue studies until the end of the term and still retain the right to designate their choice of service is now under consideration in Washington. The new policy, which has not yet been approved by Congress, was introduced by secretary of defense, General George C. Marshall, assistant secretary of defense for manpower, Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, and Major General Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service. Under the provision of the new policy, as advanced, a student called by the selective service during the PRESENT term could continue his studies and still retain the right to designate his choice of service. To do this the student MUST enlist in the 60-day period between 90 and 30 days before the termination of the school year. Services accepting enlistments during this two month period would not call the student to duty until they had finished their school year.

It is extremely important that the student note that this is only a proposed plan. It is not law. Legislation by congress will be required before this plan becomes law. Under existing regulations no armed service will accept a voluntary enlistment after a man has received notice to report for his pre-induction physical examination. Remember: This plan is not in effect at this time; it merely is a proposal of the defense department.

Too Late?

By JIM GRIFFIN

February 13th, 1951. Just one and one-half weeks into the new semester, about eighteen days since the peak of the mid semester vacation, and Lent is already a week old. And at the rate things are going it will be all over before we get around to realizing that there is such a thing.

Surprise Attack

It really poses a problem, Lent's beginning so early, because it makes it just so much tougher to get into the swing of things. When there is a little time between the excitement of the mid semester and Ash Wednesday we usually manage to get around to thinking about Lent at least a little before Lent begins. But as it happened this year, Lent actually sneaked up on us. And here it is, well underway.

But how about us? Have we gotten over the surprise of the early Lent sufficiently to do a little planning of our own in that regard? Or has the early schedule thrown us off so completely that apathy has set in, along with an "I'll get ready next year" attitude.

Postponement

Such should not be the case, but may be just the same. Actually our retreat should have us well enough tuned up that we would not allow Lent to slip by, much as it may try to. But perhaps our humanity has gotten the best of us. Perhaps we are inclined to figure that maybe the retreat was enough in the way of religion for a while. The most likely probability, however, is that we just haven't thought much about it. There is so much to do, and after all, tomorrow is another day, and Lent will last for ages yet.

Don't kid yourself. Lent is here, and if you haven't done anything yet, get going. Forty days is only forty days: Forty Masses, forty Communions, forty visits, six Saturday nights, ten dollars worth of cigarettes. And six of those days are gone already.

But Why?

Let's not forget what Lent is all about. Let's not forget the Fellow who left a nice spot in heaven to come down here and give us a break; and let's not forget how much it cost Him to give us that break. Christ was beaten and mocked and crucified for us, don't you think we could set our alarms a little early . . . for Him?

Twomp As Square In Drama Circle Awards Oscar's Oscars For 1950

By BILL BRENNINGHOUSE

Oscar Twomp proudly announces the winners of the first and last annual Oscar Twomp Radio, Movie and T.V. Awards. These winners are chosen by a partial and biased board of experts consisting of Oscar Twomp and three young cocker spaniels. There will be no formal presentation of the awards, no placques, statuettes, or scrolls. The winners will be notified when they read it here.

The first award goes to a sponsor. The Bailey Furniture Company of Philadelphia has been given the O.T. Award for "the worst thing that ever happened to radio in this area." The award was gained by constant, loud and aggravating commercials of great length which combined the delightful qualities of being an insult to the listener's intelligence and an incentive to turn off the radio.

Twomp's No Beanbag

"Best TV Show of 1950" was Notre Dame vs. Purdue followed closely by Rams vs. Browns. "Best TV Performers" are Argentine Rocca and Sugar Ray Robinson. To Broadway Open House goes he enviable ward of "Most Consistently Lousy Show in T.V." It serves as a reminder that it's time to go to bed. Dennis James wins out over a host of smug and smiling conmen for the title of Mr. Nobody On Your TV Screen." What a way to have to make a living.

Deadbling . .

More radio awards. Tallulah Bankhead get an Oscar T. for being Tallulah Bankhead. "Radio's Biggest Enemy" is radio. The 950 Club is "The Biggest Argument For More Afternoon TV shows." An O.T. Special Award is presented to the disc jockeys of the nation for being the homely little philosophers that they are.

Movies, too, share Oscar's Awards. "The Best Performance of 1950" was won by the dying elephant in "King Solomon's Mines" while Bette Davis comes out first with the "Best Imitation of Bette Davis" in "All About Eve." John Wayne is the unanimous choice as "Service Man of the Year," for being in every service but the Vatican Swiss Guards. "Movie of the Year" was won by "Gone With The Wind." It must have played somewhere during the year.

Radio No Worse Than Ever

Thus the three great mediums of entertainment for the general public receive their just deserts. As they continue to vie for public favor they strive for higher perfection and deserve some recognition such as provided by the Oscar Twomp Awards. Movies must overcome the biggest advantages that radio and Tv have. These last two can be watched and listened to in pajamas while drinking a can of beer and, most important of all, can be turned off at will.

Until next year, then, when no awards will be made, the Oscar Twomp Awards must be packed away in mothballs and forgotten. If you would like to join the Oscar Twomp panel of bored experts send your name, pedigree and pawprint on a fifty dollar bill.

American Defense Not Ready For Atomic Attack — Wylie

By JAMES GRIFFIN

Much is being said about the threat posed to civilian populations by those two weapons of modern warfare, the fission and fusion atomic bombs. Some of the comment is ridiculous, some is specious, and very rarely one notes a few lines which seem to strike home as accurate and intelligent.

One Good One

One such piece appeared in the current issue of the Atlantic Monthly, from the pen of Philip Wylie, novelist-critic of contemporary life. It was actually a criticism of civilian defense proposals made up to now, but it offered along with its dissensions, logical and well thought-out proposals as substitutes.

It would be impossible for us to reproduce effectively even the main points of Mr. Wylie's article. However, we would like to note two fallacies which it points out in the major defense propositions heretofor proposed.

Mass Displacement

The first of these is the political impossibility and the physical impracticality of the large scale city-defense plans proposed by various "experts" thus far. Perhaps the plan to move industry and residential areas wholesale is the ideal way to combat the possibility of strategic bombing, but what congressman would ever vote to move industry out of his own state, or what business man would ever willingly consent to moving his factory location bodily perhaps a hundred or more miles, and thereby disrupting completely his production and customer supply for a period of months and even years?

Strip Cities

As for the strip-cities and similar architectural proposals designed to make cities less vulnerable to bombing attacks, a similar question of practicality arises. None of these programs could be finished before 1952, and by that time the bombs which these structures were designed to defend against will almost certainly have become obsolete.

The Unit Plan

The second point of criticism of the defense program which struck this reporter was the opposition to the unit plan in aerial defense. At present all of the larger cities are planning defense for themselves in case of an attack. But Mr. Wylie points out that any city which is attacked by atomic bombers will be absolutely unable to help itself. Medical aid to the wounded will be the least of the work. Add to this police and traffic problems, including evacuation and supply, and it becomes obvious that a city will survive only if it can count on its neighbors for help against the bomb.

The Converging Defense

The most intelligent civilian defense set-up therefore would be one in which Philadelphians were trained to work in New York, Boston, Washington and Baltimore as well as in Philadelphia. A bombed city, contrary to public conception, should be the point of convergence for thousands and millions of workers from surrounding areas, not the point of departure for all its inhabitants. A bombed city must be saved, not deserted; and its production preserved for the combat and civilian needs of a nation at war.

Read It

It rings with the clear note of common sense, as does the whole of Mr. Wylie's article. For that reason it is well worth the time spent in reading it, and may someday be worth tremendously more than that.

REVIEWING RETREAT: The annual retreat made a very definite impression on the men of Villanova both spiritually and mentally, however, it did give way to some questionable vaudeville . . . Wonder if that microphone-manipulator ever lighted that cigarette . . . Did anyone notice the three fems that made themselves quite conspicuous by their presence in the rear of the Field House at the opening exercise . . . What some gals won't do in order that they might become acquainted. The new madonna which was acquired by Fr. Grimes for the temporary chapel certainly improved its interior and eliminated much of the emptiness which was previously felt by the men attending the retreat.

RECAPPING REGISTRATION: Just as a matter of curiosity —Why couldn't something be done in regard to changing the registration dates so as to enable those men living in Timbucktoo to receive their rosters before heading for the tall timbers . . . It would certainly mean a considerable saving in train and plane fares along with time. Some men arrived home just in time to unpack their larger suitcase and transfer the moldy laundry to an over-night bag for the trip to registration. This year some men didn't return until the third day of school due to the train strike and this added even more confusion to the schedule . . . Man could really carry away some loot if he would lower himself to hucksterring coffee outside the Dean's office for the Villanovan D.P.'s.

CAMPUS COVERING: Maintenance men celebrating the fact that the snow fences are finally coming into their own after three easy years—Odd part of the whole situation is the way in which many of them (snow fences) lost their equilibrium after a slight jolt by Old Man Winter . . . For two years the council has endeavored to have one of the chow-hall's drinking fountains repaired and now that it is in working condition few of the men use it to dampen their parched throats . . . They'd rather stand in line at Old Faceful . . . Some member of the elite Villanova family is evidently impressed by the way in which Dartmouth stages its Winter Carnival and, therefore, is attempting to inaugurate this function on the Main Line . . . This snow-sculpturer did a magnificent work adjacent to Austin Hall in the form of a rather buxom young fem . . . Sech detail . . . Come the Spring thaw, one will probably find a Chestnut Hill gal under the icy-slush . . . Different way to acquire a cold shoulder.

ANCHORS AWEIGH: The marching band under the leadership of Ed Glackin held quite an orgy at the Conestoga Mill for Lt. Commander Handran last Tuesday. Father Handran is returning to active service after an extended shore leave during which he was band moderator and guardian of the American Literature book . . . The boys presented Father with a bottle of arnica for his saluting arm along with other valuables . . . Good luck, Father, and hurry back before someone fails Amer. Lit.

JUNIOR JOTTINGS: There is a very importan meeting scheduled for this evening for ALL members of the Junior Class. Three items have been put on the agenda and all the men are urged to attend this gathering of the clan. Among the most outstanding items to be discussed are blazers, prom band, and banquet which is under consideration for Mother's Day. The meeting will take place in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 7:30 P. M. Tonight . . . Be there to vote for your selections.

Paintings Worth 50 Thousand Donated To College Library

Donation of $50,000 worth of paintings to the College Library was made known this week by Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., president. Presentation was made over a two year period by the late Princess Eugenia Ruspoli, a member of Friends of the Library.

Princess Ruspoli gave seven masterpieces shortly before her death last month. This donation brought to eleven the number of gift paintings the Italian noblewoman donated since the new Library building was erected two years ago.

Scroll Awarded Posthumously

In commendation for her generosity the Princess will receive posthumously an illuminated scroll from the Friends of the Library. At a meeting of the group on Jan. 28, two days after her death, the Library Friends resolved to present the honor to the family of the deceased princess. It will be signed by Fr. McGuire, Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A. librarian, and John C. Kelly, chairman of the group.

Princess Ruspoli's paintings, given as part of the Library Friends' program of improving the institution's physical facilities, are now being reconditioned and will be displayed as soon as possible.

Large Picture Included

The four paintings in the original bequest are now hanging at various locations throughout the Library building. Among the new donations are several original masterpieces by medieval artists.

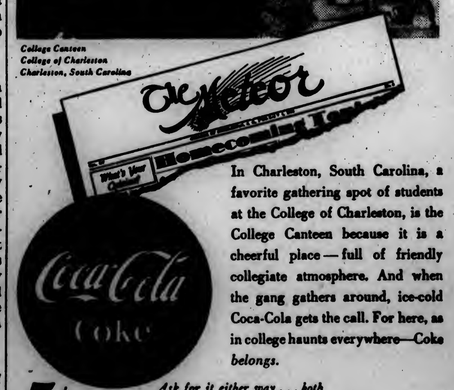
These include an original Pietro de Cortona painting of David and Goliath that measures 34x15 feet which hung originally in a historic medieval castle at Nemi, Italy.

Donor To Library Dies In New York

Shortly after donating the last of what amounted to $50,000 worth of art works to the Villanova College Library Princess Eugenia Rusopli died Jan. 26 in her New York home after a long illness.

The Italian noblewoman, American by birth, joined the Friends of Villanova Library when she heard of the new library building two years ago.

She considered this to be an ideal permanent home for family art treasures.



Active Philanthropist

Daughter of a Confederate Army colonel, she was born in Oak Hill, Ga. Besides her donations to Villanova, she was active in this country in support of the Berry schools, founded by her late sister, Martha Berry. She was twice decorated by the Holy See for philanthropic work.

Her husband, who died in 1909 was the Italian nobleman Prince Enrico Ruspoli.

Midshipman Robert Forsyth watches as the pharmacist mate takes blood from his arm. This was the final step in the annual physical examination which is taking place this week and last. Over three-hundred men will have been processed by the end of this week. Each man in the NROTC program must pass the physical requirements each year in order to remain. Twenty seniors had to undergo the more stringent pre-commissioning physical prior to their graduating this June.

The examinations are taking place in Commodore John Barry Hall and are conducted by a staff of medical examiners headed by Captain J. B. Eberhart, U.S.N, M.C.

Fall Semester Ended With Annual Retreat

SHEED ADDRESSES

His remarks highlighted an address, "Human Rights and the Family", which the noted author, lecturer and co-founder of Sheed and Ward publishers, delivered to a fair-sized audience in the C&F Auditorium.

"Man", Sheed defined, "is not a mass of protons and neutrons without a soul, nor is he a soul without a body. Rather, he is a combination of both body and soul." As such, he is a being of enormous dignity, and unless that fact is realized it is impossible to hold a discussion concerning his rights and duties.

Powers, Needs Complete Man

"By his powers and needs man is tied in with other human beings", the lecturer said. "It is in development of his relations with others that his powers develop to meet his needs and man reaches completion of his destiny.

"The two major ways of the organized race to give expression to the power of man and to the fulfillment of his needs are the family and the state. Basis of both is that they provide something man needs to bring him to the fullness of manhood.

States Marriage's Purpose

"The family does this, "Sheed said, "only when man realizes the true purpose of marriage — to bring children into the world. In this aspect marriage demands that it be indissoluble, monogamous and under the Christian authority of the father. Marriage," he continued, "is Nature's stabilizer over sex, man's most turbulent passion. It alone provides the necessary tranquil atmosphere for man's need and power of reproduction."

Concluding, the lecturer advised that Christ gave the only possible rule for social order in His comandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Sheed pointed out that the only school for love is the family. To destroy it and think that love will remain in society is "the folly of modern man."

Students Receive at Closing Service

For the one hundred eighth time Villanova students took part in annual retreat exercises immediately following the end of examinations last semester.

The three day services were concluded Jan. 24 with general reception of Holy Communion by all students at High Mass. Vice-president Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., celebrated Mass for the closing service. He was assisted by Rev. Robert Regan, O.S.A., as deacon and Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A. as sub-deacon.

Student Choir Sang

Schola Cantorum, the liturgical choir made up of lay students, sang for the first this year at the retreat Mass. This was an innovation since seminarians from St. Mary's hall had sung at all services in previous year.

Most attention at the recent retreat was commanded by the newly erected shrine to Our Lady of Villanova. Purchased by funds collected from students during this year, the shrine is composed of a back drop of wine-colored velure that framed a picture 14x8 feet in measurements.

The picture was painted by Patrick O'Connor, the artist who had painted the portraits of the College presidents that now hang in the Library's Villanova Room. It is an impressionitic design of the Assumption of Our Lady into heaven, commemorating the recent Papal promulgation of the dogma of the Assumption.

Retreat master for the annual exercises was Rev. Stephen Lanen, O.S.A.

Number 11... THE OPOSSUM

"Thereby hangs a tale!"

The class clown went out on a limb and tried to prove cigarette mildness by the quick-trick method! He tried the fast inhale, fast exhale test—a whiff, a sniff—and they still left him up in the air!

But then he got his feet on the ground. He learned that there is a reliable way to discover how mild a cigarette can be!

And that test is . . .

The sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke—on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. Wildcat Track Squad Scores At NYAC Games

By Thomas E. Sheehan

The New York Athletic Club Games were held last Saturday night in Madison Square Garden before a crowd of 9,000—the smallest track crowd in years at the Garden—but those who did go were well-rewarded. The Wildcats sent a squad up and they made a good appearance; grabbing one first, place, two seconds and a fourth.

However, it became evident again that the cold which struck John Joe Barry last month still is reaping its effects on the Villanova Irishman. Entered in the Baxter Mile, John Joe led Gehrmann, Wilt et al at the quarter mark in 60.5, and at the half in 2:04.5, but faded quickly and was completely out at the finish. Barry is defending his crown in next Saturday's Nationals against the same pack as in the Baxter mile.

The Main Liners produced an early winner in Larry Paturzo, who made use of the 20-yard gift to come from behind and beat NYU's Howie Jacobson in the Barton S. Weeks 1000-yard handicap run in 2:15.3.

Fred Dwyer and former Villanovan George Thompson were entered in the Matt Halpin 880-yard run. Thompson led for a while and then Georgetown's Joe Deady took the lead. Deady tightened up on the final lap, but still was able to stand off Dwyer's late spurt. Fred finished in second place, twenty yards behind.

Jim McKenna competed in the Buermeyer 500-yard run and the story was similar to that of the Millrose Games. Jim led for most of the way until the final thirty yards when Charley Moore and George Rhoden passed him. Jim finished in fourth place.

Wildcat Cagers Play Tigers, Cadets Away

By Bob Forsyth

The Villanova Wildcats head for the hinterlands this week to complete their brief road schedule for the 1950-51 season.

The hinterlands in this case consist of South Orange, N. J., where they will engage the Seton Hall Pirates on Monday night; Princeton, for a Wednesday tussle with the Tiger; and West Point, where they will close out with a Saturday afternoon contest with the Cadets.

The Wildcats look forward to no easy time in this three game set. All of these teams boast excellent records and, particularly Seton Hall and Princeton, can be expected to tax the Mainliners to the limit. The Pirates, like the Wildcats, are largely a sophomore team, and have in six foot-eleven inch Walter Dukes, a potentially great center. They started off slow due to injuries but are now riding on the crest of a 13-4 record.

The Princeton Tigers with an even better 11-2 record are currently second only to unbeaten Columbia in the Ivy League. Their recent 13-point victory victory over Penn attest to their strength. The team is comprised of a good balance of veterans and sophomore stars and is expected to be most dangerous on its home court. The Army has a formidable 9-2 record but this has been largely against minor calibre schools. One of its defeats was trouncing by Fordham, the Wildcats' only conqueror. Still the rugged Cadets can always be counted on for a hard fought game.

Ohio 'Shooting Stars' Shine By Dimming Cagers, 62-57

Hennessy Gets 22 To Lead Scoring For Both Teams, Feeman Heads Foe with 20

By Harry Range

Apparently suffering from seasonal decaphobia the Villanova cagers failed for the second time to make it ten straight as they were dumped 62-57 by a rambunctious Toledo quintet last Saturday at the Palestra.

It was just a case of the Rockets being too hot and the Main Liners being not so hot. The Ohioans netted 25 two-pointers on 58 attempts while the locals had to be content with only 21 for 75.

Paced by the near-perfect one-handed set shooting of Jack Feeman, who ended the evening with 20 markers, Toledo jumped to an early first period lead and with less than two minutes remaining were on top, 32-22.

'Cats Star Hitting

At this point the Main Liners, who had hit only 8 for 40 attempts in the first eighteen minutes of play, began to connect. Larry Hennessey, whose shooting percentage was way off par, dropped in two field goals on three attempts and followed up with an additional two points on free throws. Tom Brennan contributed two more points from the foul line as the Rockets worked a field goal in between.

At the end of the half Toledo was on top 34-30 but Villanova looked far from being out of the money, if such terms can still be used in intercollegiate basketball.

Tracksters Have Two NAAM Titles At Stake Saturday

By RAY KEATS

Coach Jim "Jumbo" Elliot's Wildcat thinclads will put two national indoor track championships on the line in the National AAU Championships in Madison Square Garden next Saturday night.

John Joe Barry will defend his crown in the mile run and Villanova's sprint medley team will be seeking to repeat for the third straight year.

The Miling Irishman will be surrounded by familiar figures at the starting line. Don Gehrmann, Fred Wilt, Alf Holmberg, and Ingvar Bengsston will be striving to knock the glittering crown from Barry's Hibernian head, along with a host of lesser lights on the national track scene. Gehrmann also has something more than the championship at stake, and that is his unblemished record for the current season. The bespectacled Wisconsin alumnus is unbeaten in 38 consecutive starts.

Last year the Blue and White medley quartet not only grabbed first honors, but set a world record at 1:53.6 in the same event. All four of the record-holding sprinters are again available—Jim McKenna in the quarter, John Furlinger in the 100, Pete Simigan in the 220, and Joe McCreary in the 300. McKenna, rated with the best in the 600-yard event, might relinquish his position with the medley team to take a shot at the national crown in his specialty.

Freddie Dwyer, the sophomore sensation at the middle distances, is a probable starter in the 1000. His record this season includes a third in the Millrose half-mile and a second last week in the NYAC half.

McDonald, Muzi Star

The Wildcats came fighting back as the second half began but Toledo's Bob McDonald and Carlo Muzi took over for Feeman and brought the visitors lead up to eleven points. The Ohioans played a fast, Globetrotter style of ball and only the spirited efforts of Nick Maguire and Sam Glassmire kept the margin from becoming even larger.

Hennessey was able to dunk in an occasional basket and coupled with steals by Glassmire the Cats were able to bring the score up to 52-50. But that was as close as they got for Feeman came back into the picture with three in a row that proved to be the coup de grace.

Toledo Pulls Wildcat Claws

With five minutes to play remaining Toledo put on a great freeze which thwarted any Wildcat attempts at tying it up.

Ben Stewart provided the only spot of brightness, from the standpoint of the partisan fans in the closing moments, dumping in two for two and indicating that his scoring could possibly have been the difference.

In spite of an off night, Larry Hennessey was high man for both teams with 22 points.

Mile Relay Four Annex Bell Cup

By winning the mile relay event two years in a row, the Villanova track team retired the Philadelphia Inquirer's Liberty Bell Trophy. The trophy was awarded at the Inquirer Meet, on January 19, after the team had successfully defended its title in this event.

The Wildcat quartet had the fastest time of the seven relays and in winning their particular heat defeated Penn State and New York University. Their time was 3:24:8, which was less than a second off the record the team created last year.

The team ran with Joe McCreary, John Furlinger, Pete Simigan and Jim McKenna. McKenna was the one who really clinched the trophy for the college because he overcame an eight yard deficit to finish five yards ahead of the second-place Penn State team.

Frosh Hoopsters Living Up To Great Tradition

The Villanova freshman quintet currently sporting a six-and-one record is carrying on a Main Line tradition of top-notch yearling clubs. The Blue and White's play this year is again marked with hustle and smooth ball handling characteristic of the tutoring of Coach "Maje" McDonnell.

High Scoring Club

This year's edition is one of the highest scoring freshman ball clubs in the country. Their fast break and firehouse style has created a 77 point average for six games. Paul Anisko and Frank Stahl, the two speedy guards, lead the scoring parade with 13 and 12 point averages respectively. Both boys possess dead set shots plus blazing speed which gives them a jump on the opposition.

Control Boards

Big Ed Cunningham and Jack Imgrund's fine backboard work both on offense and defense is a standout feature of the junior Wildcats' play. Both boys top the six-foot mark and are fine ball handlers and scorers.

The shooting of Horst Kluger, who has an 11 point average, closely resembles that of varsity star Larry Hennessey. Horst's set shot is delivered in the now famous Hennessey manner and is a valuable scoring weapon for the "Maje's" charges. Jack Foster also has an 11 point average, largely due to his tricky drive-in shots. Jack, who stands six feet, two inches, is very fast and is an excellent floorman.

Presenting Jim McKenna, Fastest Wildcat Alive

Bill Farrell has done a better job describing Jim McKenna than all the thumbnail sketches ever written. Here we see McKenna, the slender New Yorker, engaging in his favorite sport and no doubt, enjoying it in spite of the somewhat strained expression of his face.

Jim comes by the expression honestly though, because he never steps out on the track without putting forth his best effort, win, lose or draw. And Wildcat fans who attended last month's Inquirer games remember his performance winning the anchor leg of the mile relay.

Taking the stick with a twelve yard deficit, and in third place, the speedy Irishman brought the house down with his all-out quarter. He won handily by a fifteen yard margin and did more than his share to help Villanova retire the Liberty Bell trophy.

Schoolboy Sprint Champ

Jim started his career not as a quarter miler or 600 man, but as a schoolboy sprinter. In 1941 he was scholastic 100 yard champ in New York. After high school Uncle Sam beckoned and the Navy gained a photographer's mate.

While stationed in Brazil in 1944 Jim took part in the G.I. track championships. He not only won his old specialty, the 100, but he took the 400 meters also.

On the strength of his performance while in service Jim was asked to team up with the New York A.C. after the war. While wearing the red and white winged foot he ran on the mile relay team. On his own he ran and set a record in the Junior Metropolitan A. A. U. quarter mile.

Ran With Guida

Coming to Villanova in 1947 Jimmy's candle was hidden under the bushel of the Freshman rule. As a soph he ran one and two with the great George Guida, and scored in both the IC4A indoor 600 and outdoor quarter.

As a Junior Jim again scored in the IC's. His best race, however, was the lead-off quarter in the National Sprint Medley Championships. It was then he beat Herb McKenley at his own race, the quarter mile, and was instrumental in helping Villanova set a new record.

Score in 600's

This year Jim is recognized as one of the top competitors in the 600. He has placed in every major middle distance run this season, including the Mel Sheperd 600 and the Buremeyer 500.

In spite of his success here, Jim regards his past record as preliminary to success in the national and intercollegiate 600's later on this month in Madison Square Garden.

Swimming Club Meets at Pool; Pix to Be Taken

The Swimming Club of Villanova College will meet at the Field House pool on Wednesday, February 14, at 4:00 P. M.

Jake Moran, spokesman for the organization, announced that Yearbook pictures will be taken at the Wednesday meeting. The club also intends to discuss plans for the forthcoming Swimming Night program, and to schedule a series of Water Polo contests.

Club officers request that all members attend this first meeting of the Spring Semester in order to launch the current campaign successfully.

Cagers Shot Average .366

Applying the performances of Villanova's basketeers to the standards of baseball, the Wildcat cagers are swatting away at a percentage of .366 — a figure with which even the highest priced willow-wielders could content themselves.

Translated back to basketball terms, this means that the Severancemen have connected on 552 of 1506 field goal attempts in 20 games played thus far. Team statistics also show 346 of 535 free throw attempts have been converted, 1450 points totalled, and 1070 rebounds taken. Villanova's courteous cagers have committed only 345 personal fouls, which places them within the top five nationally, in point of decorum.

The Wildcat team time was 3:20.8, just 00.4 off the winners' clocking.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

POOR Paul was having a fowl time because his down was up. All the chicks made wise quacks about his upswept hairdo until his shellmate suggested he duck over to the drugstore. Life Display Shows History Of The Stage

Pictorial Exhibit On View In Library

Beginning today and continuing until Feb. 24, the new LIFE magazine pictorial exhibit will be shown at the College Library. Entitled "Theater—From Ritual to Broadway" this display follows the one shown during registration week on the American Revolution.

Over the past decade LIFE's journalist - photographers have produced an unsurpassed record of the American stage. This rich source of dramatic material forms the nucleus of THEATRE which traces the history of theater from its beginning in ancient ritual to its present familiar shape in the Western World. The exhibition also undertakes to suggest some of the reasons—religious and social—for theater's perennial and universal appeal.

Twenty-Five Panels Shown

Twenty-five panels (including one devoted to a meticulous documentation of all the illustrations) make up the lively display. After an introductory panel suggesting something of the variety of places of theatrical performance, the exhibition open with a section on The Beginnings of Theatre. This section touches upon the ritualistic aspects of Maypole dances and present-day Indian dances, which are related to the Festivals of Dionysus in classical Greece — the festivals which gave birth to the Greek tragic theater.

The second section is devoted to Tragic Theaters. The six panels of this section deal with Greek tragedy and its use of chorus, and relate Shakespearean tragedy to the ordered world of medieval Europe where theatre took place against the background of the Cathedral.

Comedy Depicted

The Perennial Life of Comedy is the over-all title of the third section. The tradition of clowning and popular farce has been almost unbroken, from the ancient clowns that came from the fertility-rituals, down to our own vaudeville performers. Popular farce is also the source of high comedy, and this is traced through the Commedia dell 'Arte, through Moliere and the Restoration to American Minstrel show and contemporary musical.

The final section is concerned with the Theatre in the Modern World which reflects, on the one hand, the revolutionary movements of our industrialized society, an on the other, the sufferings of the lost, or rebellious, or bewildererd individual. This section of the exhibition begins with Ibsen and Chekov, fathers of Contemporary drama, and includes pictures from many current productions.

The text for the exhibition was written by Francis Fergusson, whose distinguished critical study, The Ideal of a Theatre (Princeton University Press, 1950), has been widely acclaimed.

'Big Doorstep' Spring Show For Belle Masque

Turf and Tinsel Plans Musical Revue

"The Great Big Doorstep," a play written by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett, will be featured as the Spring production of The Belle Masque, the Villanova dramatic society. The dates set for the presentation are March 14 to 17. Bob Resnick and Kathy Rowan have been cast in the lead roles. Both will be remembered for their parts in former Belle Masque presentations. Resnick was last seen as the comedy lead in "The Hasty Heart."

The play, adapted from a book by E. P. O'Donnell, has enjoyed a successful run on Broadway as well as being staged on TV. It revolves around a Mississippi River family who, though they have a crumbling shack for a home, possess a most beautiful doorstep. The theme of the play centers on their attempt to find a home worthy of this doorstep. The result is hilarious enjoyment.

Turf and Tinsel will present its Spring extravaganza "Pardon the Expression" during the third week in May. The play features no central theme but will be the big, brassy type of revue so prevalent in recent years.

As yet the cast hasn't been selected and auditions are being held today in the Field House. A dragnet is also being thrown out for talented skit writer. Since the play will be a musical there is a need especially for good singers and dancers.

Prom, Blazers, Mother's Day Under Discussion Tonight

Junior Class Meets in C. & F. Auditorium

To get activities for Junior Week under way members of the Junior Class will meet tonight in the C&F Auditorium at 7:30. Selection of the Prom band, a report of the Blazer committee, and discussion of Mother's Day program will highlight the meeting.

Steering committee members scheduled the general class meeting after being assured by Class president Thomas Pasha that Junior Week will be held on schedule "in spite of the war jitters and student enlistments that have reduced the class roster."

Flinn Replaced

Already one of the Junior Week chairmen has entered the Armed Forces. Steve Flinn, Prom band chairman enlisted in the Marines at the end of last semester. Jeff Rioux will be introduced to the Class as Flinn's replacement and call for a class vote on the bands available for the Prom.

Bud Conklin, chairman of Mother's Day, will also present plans he has outlined for the annual activity. An innovation for this year, pending acceptance by class vote, will be a catered dinner in the Field House to climax Mother's Day.

Jackets Discussed

Harry Mason, Blazer chairman, will be looking tonight for an indication of the number of students who want to buy the traditional blazer jacket. He has urged all students interested to make sure they attend the meeting.

Marine Program Open To Students

Twenty Villanova men will be selected for the Platoon Leaders Corps of the Marines. This program is designed to supply the Marine Corps Reserve with the best of young college men.

The successful candidate for this program enjoys many advantages not shared by his contemporaries. The member of the PLC is allowed to go thorugh his college course without any interruption due to the draft. Having received his four year baccalaureate degree, the officer candidate will receive a commission in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Receive Summer Pay

There is a certain amount of training. Every officer candidate is required to go to two six week training periods where he will learn the necessary information to make him fully qualified to carry out his duties as an officer. Good pay and fine liberty are a part of this training period and remove the threat of all work and no play.

There are certain qualifications that must be met for acceptance in the PLC.

Summer training includes instruction in small arms.

Take Physicals

Those Villanovans who are interested in the PLC program should contact: Major F. P. Dayton; Room No. 111, Barry Hall. Physical eyaminations for the PLC candidates will be conducted in Barry Hall during the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th of February. Married men are eligible for this program.

It is suggested to those that are interested that they don't wait until the last minute. It is expected that the quota will be filled quite easily.

Fr. McGuire Advises Men: 'Stay Calm, Keep Studying'

Acceleration Not Likely If Emergency Does Not Arise

"In regard to Selective Service, remain calm and wait until the Government wants you; in regard to acceleration, Villanova has it planned, but will use such plans only in case of emergency or compulsion."

With these quotes Rev, F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., College president, clarified as much as possible the national and local effects on Villanova students of present "not at war, but not at peace" situation. His remarks were addressed last Thursday to a convocation of students and faculty in the Field House.

Asks for Common Sense

"The present situation," declared Fr. McGuire, "requires us not to lose our heads in mass hysteria. The United States is presently at war with no one. Korea is not a war between the United States and another power, in comparison to World War II of recent years, but, on the other hand, we are definitely not at peace.

"I would plead," the Father President said, "for the students, faculty, and administration to hold their heads in calmness and serenity and proceed in orderly fashion in tasks assigned to us—and rush headlong nowhere."

Recognizing that the international situation has brought Villanova face-to-face with many problems, Fr. McGuire indicated that he would outline in his talk two of the most urgent of them, selective service and acceleration. A partial text of his talk follows:

Selective Service

"Daily developments in selective service regulations have been so muddled that a clear picture of the situation is impossible to achieve, even from reports in newspapers.

"Today the Secretary of Defense says one thing, and tomorrow the Council for Defense will

Creamer Becomes Council Chairman

Paul Davis Resigns; Unit Maps Holiday

Shane Creamer, an Arts Senior, became Chairman of the Student Council last week. Creamer, who had been vice-chairman, took over Council leadership upon the resignation of Former Chairman Paul Davis.

Davis, an Engineering Senior, resigned at the Council meeting last Monday. Davis stated that he felt compelled to submit his resignation, as the pressure of his college studies and his duties in the reserves did not permit him to allocate sufficient time to his council endeavors.

"Cutting-in" Discussed

The council discussed the "chow-line" cutting problem at the same meeting, and decided to fine each violator one dollar for each and every violation he commits. This measure supercedes its predecessor which would have had violators warned the first time they are detected cutting, and fined for each offense thereafter.

One Day Off

The privilege of the Council to declare a holiday during the school year was also raised at the meeting. Members present agreed that the holiday would be declared during the period of the national basketball championship tournaments if Villanova were to receive an invitation to one of the tourneys. If the basketball squad fails to receive an invitation the Council decided to again consider the holiday question, stating that in all prob-

Seniors Plan Scholarship For St. John's

Breakage Fee of Each Graduate Will Start New Fund

A new campaign by the Senior Class will make it possible for a boy from St. John's Orphanage to enter Villanova each year. When raised, a fund will be given to the College authorities to finance the scholarship.

It will be called the Scholarship of the Class of 1951.

The campaign calls for all seniors to sign over their breakage fees to this fund. The plan, brought up at the last class meeting, has received official approval from the office of the President, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., and the office of the comptroller, J. T. Dever.

Written Consent Needed

A committee, under the direction of George Keenley and George Schuster, will approach each senior within the next three weeks to obtain their written consent.

The goal has been set at $5,000. The breakage fee will vary from $30 to $35, depending upon what school the student attends.

The class treasury is, by tradition, given to the administration to finance scholarships for needy students. The use of this is always left to the discretion of the school. However the sum this year will go into the St. John's fund.

Fr. McGuire Assists

Because the fund is not expected to be enough so that the interest on the principal would finance the project, Fr. McGuire

Korea As Focus of World

Peninsula's History Is Fascinating Sequence of Colorful Developments

By George Ferguson

Editor's note: Because of the increased student interest in international affairs, and in affairs Korean particularly, the VILLANOVAN presents this article on the country. It is hoped that it will aid men who might soon visit the land, through choice or not, to understand the "Land of the Morning Calm."

If you were to ask the average American, back in '46, "where is Seoul?" you would probably have drawn a blank stare in resonse. "Seoul?" "Is that an island in the South Pacific?" And when you explained to him that Seoul (pronounced 'soul') was a beautiful, large modern city in Korea, with all the 20th century amenities, he would have been even more surprised.

Now, any fifth grade grammar school pupil can rattle off names like Pusan, Taegu, Taejon, Wonsan, Hamhung, Pyongyank, and half a dozen other names of Korean towns.

"Korea Today"

For the latest and most detailed information on this "Land of The Morning Calm" (?), we highly recommend McCune's informative book, "Korea Today", a well-written account of past and present history, by an American who spent many years in the country.

Korea is an ancient land, whose recorded history does not go back much before the time of Christ, but whose tradition dates as far back as 3,000 years.

In early times, the nation was not unified; instead, we find three separate Korean kingdoms. From time to time, there were Mongol, Chinese and Japanese invasions. The country united, with alternate periods of prosperity and hard times; the adoption of Chinese culture, and a "Golden Age" of literature and the arts followed. During her many centuries of independence Korea's political status was that of a medieval kingdom.

Country Opens Doors

In the 1880's, influenced by United States pressure, the "Hermit Kingdom" opened its doors to the Western World.

During the era of imperial expansion, Japan eyed her peaceful neighbor across the seas with envy and greed, and by 1910 had forced the abdication of the Emperor at Seoul. The country was annexed to the Japanese Empire, and renamed Cho-sen.

In the 35 years of Nipponese rule which followed, Korean patriots abroad worked tirelessly for their nation's independence. Liberation finally came in late '45, with the Mikado's surrender to the United States.

American and Russian troops occupied the peninsular land, and established the 38th parallel as the dividing lines between their respective zones of occupation.

Republic Established

In 1948, the establishment of the Republic of Korea, with its capital at Seoul, was proclaimed by the United Nations. Russia, in defiance to the international organization announced shortly thereafter the formation of a Peoples Republic in North Korea, which claimed sovereignty over the South, as well.

Foreign troops were gradually withdrawn, and the maintenance of law and order was left to the Koreans themselves. But in June of 1950, at Stalin's nod, the Communist North Korean Army invaded the South.

The rest of the story is well known. United Nations military forces were rushed into the stricken country to restore the legal government. They almost completely destroyed the Red aggressors, only to find that the cynical Stalin again intervened, sending in a Chinese Communist Army to nullify the fruits of victory.

Million In Struggle

At present, about a million are engaged in the fierce struggle between East and West. How it will end, we do not know. But it is plainly evident that we cannot permit our Asian allies to be overrun by Red tyranny. Those who live by faith see in the bitter conflict the first fulfillment of Our Lady of Fatima's dire warnings, that unless the world returns to a Christian way of life, Russia will spread her errors throughout the world, and various nations will be destroyed.

Looking For Your Place In Life? Uncle Oscar Has A Job For You

By BILL BRENNINGHOUSE

To aid the students in finding part-time employment of a fitting nature, Oscar Twomp has opened the Oscar Twomp employment Bureau for financially insecure Wildcats. He has a wealth of opportunity for those who would like it. All positions are on campus and require little or no overhead.

Willing students may choose their own hours and high profits are sure to result. A survey of some of the jobs offered will best show the effectiveness of this bureau.

Bet on That?

There is a great demand for "wager arrangers" or as they are called in the vernacular, "bookies." These statistical specialists have many opportunities to separate cash and students. Requirements: applicants must be C&F men who own one button roll, pin striped suits, smoke expensive (over 6c) cigars, and wear diamond stick-pins in their ties.

An up-and-coming position offered by the bureau is that of ear drum puncturer. All you need for this type of work is a rusty nail and a mallet. Pre-medical students are preferred in this capacity. Also along this line, one can find work selling pills to lower low blood pressures and raise high blood pressures. Needless to say, the demand for this type of service will fluctuate. Leads can be gained by following unstamped letters received at the local post office.

Engineers Not Forgotten

Engineers may find employment in the field of their choice. Civil engineers may construct mud traps and charge a tidy sum to extricate automobiles from same. Mechanical engineers may earn spending money by siphoning gasoline from faculty automobiles and selling it to student motorists. Oscar Twomp will sell you a dandy little siphoning kit for only $1.29.

For CE's and EE's there are many chances such as selling disappearing ink for crib artists and Ye Olde Short Circuiting Kits for practical jokers.

Arts men, Oscar finds, are the hardest to place. The best he can do for them is in the menial line. They may find work as theme and thesis ghost writers or perhaps as bull session moderators. Men who have been changing courses make fine baby sitters and NROTC men find their war experiences valuable when they take positions as bookie bodyguards.

Perfect Unemployment Record

As has been shown, there is a host of jobs from which the applicant may choose. The Oscar Twomp Employment Bureau has had a perfect record so far. It has yet to find a job for Oscar Twomp, or for that matter it has yet to find a job for anyone.

Applicants for any of the above mentioned positions or any of the thousands of others at the O.T. Bureau are asked to send in their applications soon. They should include the following information: name, school, age, sex (if any), and the type of work desired. All applications will be completely ignored and a bill for services rendered will be sent to the applicant at the earliest possible moment.

Disappointed

By JIM GRIFFIN

Last Thursday Villanova held its first convocation of the spring semester in the field house. It was quite an important event, too, by reason both of its timeliness and subject matter.

Everybody knows what Father McGuire said at the convocation. His topics were very vital ones, especially to students. They dealt with Selective Service, and with the acceleration of studies in the college. His reasoning was cool and clear, his advice valuable, but Father McGuire's talk has little chance of producing a grave effect on the world situation.

Insignificant

Something, however, did happen at the convocation which potentially could influence the course of world events. Probably most of us have forgotten this event completely, it was so unobtrusive in its humility. But it had to do with the one thing which offers hope in these days of wild confusion.

Just An Old Cause

No it wasn't the opening of any sort of Civilian Defense Drive, or a good citizenship campaign. In fact it was nothing new at all. It was merely another attempt to stir up some activity in an old custom which seems to have fallen somewhat by the wayside—at the very time when its dynamism is most vitally needed.

. . . and a Little Sad

Of course we're thinking of the little white cards which were handed out at the door. What they had to say was something of which Villanova cannot be proud: "Student-adorers these past few months have not been too many." Euphemistic, perhaps, but still a little sad, a little disappointed, just as the student body should have been as it read these words.

At Ourselves

For Adoration is an opportunity to spend some time with the Blessed Sacrament exposed on the altar. It is a rare privilege, and one which no Catholic should pass up unnecessarily. We should be disappointed, and a little saddened at ourselves, then, that we have become so thoughtless of Christ and our devotion to Him that we allow our numbers to fall off during His special visiting hours.

What we should do is obvious. The default has grown acute, but not irreparable. Another first Friday is coming, along with another month which may leave us more in need of extreme graces than we ever thought possible.

Navy And Marines Offer Commission

Army and Air Corps Require OCS Training

By George Crist

The Navy and the Marine Corps are the only services that are offering direct commissions to graduating seniors. The Army and the Air Force have no programs designed to give college seniors commissions.

Direct commissions in the Navy are available in the line or supply corps. College seniors, graduating with a degree, are eligible for a Navy commission in the Reserve on active duty.

Marine Training Program

Seniors can also take advantage of the Marine Officer Candidate Course which has just been opened. This differs from the Navy in that it is not a direct commission, but a training program leading to a commission.

Unfortunately, the Army and the Air Force have nothing to offer the college graduate. The Army still obtains its officers through the Officer Candidate School, and the Air Force through its Pilot, Navigator, and General Officer Candidate Schools.

Application for Navy commissions must be made 120 days before the degree is to be received. General students may apply for a commission as a line officer and C&F students for a commission in the Supply Corps.

In order to be eligible for a Navy commission, the applicant must be over 19 and under 26 years of age. He must be eligible for induction under selective service and have a classification of 1A, 2A, 1Ap, or 2C. A senior is eligible regardless of whether he has received his pre-induction physical or not.

Academic Requirements

Academically it is required that the applicant have a baccalaureate degree. Applicants for line officers must have mathematics up through trigonometry. Supply officer candidates must have 45 semester hours in accounting, economics, finance, etc. A degree from Villanova's Commerce and Finance School will cover this requirement.

Those seniors interested in obtaining a Navy commission should apply in person to the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, 13 S. 13th St., Philadelphia.

The Marine Officer Candidate Course is divided into two parts. The first part is officer candidate training at Parris Island which, if successfully completed, is followed by basic officer training at Quantico, Virginia.

In order to qualify for this program, the applicant must be a graduating senior, expecting to receive a degree. He must be physically qualified for a commission in the Marine Corps Reserve. The age limits are over 20 and under 27 years of age.

Members Draft Exempt

Marriage is not disqualifying for this program and members are draft exempt. Interested seniors should contact Major Dayton, Room No. 111, Barry Hall, for full particulars.

Admission to the Army Officer Candidate School may be obtained by applying to the local recruiting office for admission into a class. This will entail enlistment in the Army. There are a few minimum requirements. Interested applicants should apply early in order to assure themselves a place in one of the classes.

Pilots, Navigators Wanted

Commissions in the Air Force may be obtained in the Pilot, Navigation, or General Officer schools. The Air Force generally requires two years of college.

Here as with the Army it is best to apply early. The most complete source for information is the local recruiting service.

Pre-Cana Starts On 25th

Conferences Open to All Students . . . Four Lectures Planned for Four Weeks

The Villanova College Pre-Cana Conferences for 1951 will be held on the last four Sundays of the Lenten Season. This announcement was made recently by the Rev. Robert Regan, OSA, Associate Professor of Religion at the College, and newly-appointed Moderator of the Cana Conference here.

It was stated that the conferences are undergoing a change of policy this year. Previously the Pre-Cana series has been restricted to students who are engaged or contemplating marriage and their finances and girl-friends. This year, however, the Conference is being turned to Villanova College students who wish to attend.

Four lectures, to be held the last four Sundays of the Lenten season are to comprise the series this year. Lecturers this year will include: Rev. John J. Coffey, in pre-marital sources; Dr. O.S.A., an experienced lecturer James P. Quindlen, alumnus of Villanova College, and lecturer at the Temple University School of Medicine; and, Father Regan, who has been associated with the college's Cana movement for the past several years.

Students should keep in mind the general purpose of the series, Father Regan asserted. He listed these as 1) an awareness of moral and religious aspects of marriage, 2) a wholesome attitude in regard to it, 3) and, a deep appreciation of its spiritual values.

The schedule of lectures:

February 25 — "Marriage Is Your Vocation In Life," F. Coffey.

March 4th—"Choosing a Life-Mate," by Fr. Regan.

March 11th—"The Psychology of the Sexes," by Fr. Regan.

March 18th—"A Catholic Physician Looks at Marriage," by Dr. Quindlen.

Deferment Of Students For Semester OK'd By Hershey

By James Glavin

A regulation was put into effect by the Selective Service System last week that guarantees the deferrment of college students until the end of the current semester, and provides that the students may pick their branch of service at the end of the semester.

Major General Lewis B. Hershey made the announcement of the change in the selective service system's policy in Washington. The statement issued by General Hershey directs all draft boards to defer college students pursuing a full time curriculum until the termination of the current scholastic semester.

It then provides that if the student so desires, he be given thirty days after the conclusion of the semester to enlist in a branch of service of his own choosing, during which time the draft will not call him.

However, the Director emphasized an important restriction on the new regulation. He pointed out that the deferred student must request in writing to his local draft board the additional thirty days deferment. If the student fails to request in writing this period, he is subject to the draft immediately upon the conclusion of the scholastic semester.

Under the new directive the student need not indicate immediately whether or not he wishes to enlist in preference to the draft until the conclusion of the present term. Under the previous regulations, the student was required to indicate whether or not he wished to pick his own branch of service during the sixty day period, beginning ninety days and terminating thirty days prior to the end of the semester.

This new regulation, as imposed by the Selective Service System goes into effect immediately, even though it has not been through Congress, as the Selective Service Director, General Hershey has directed all local draft boards to abide by it.

Students who have been or are subsequently classified as 2-A are not affected by this plan. Only students who have been classified as 1A(p) come under this regulation. Those now listed as 1A(p) now have the privilege of a choice of services, even though they may have taken their pre-induction physical.

Anniversary Mass For Villanovans

Rev. Edward T. Grimes, O.S.A., College Chaplain, has announced that an anniversary Mass will be said in the College Chapel on Friday, February 23, at 7:30 P. M. for two deceased Villanova students. The two students, John Brandemeier and Donald Liddy, with six others, died in one of the worst highway accidents in New Jersey's history.

The two students accompanied by Brandemeier's younger brother and Francis Sillet, another Villanovan, were on their way home after registering for the second semester of the 1950-51 school year. The younger Brandemeir also was killed while Sillet was seriously injured.

DPE Frat Pledges Forty Men To Club

Initiation Committee Hazing Businessmen

Final preparations for the initiation of new members were completed at the last meeting of Delta Pi Epsilon, the business fraternity. Ted Pryzblowski and his initiation committee have devised an obstacle course for the initiation that is said will stimulate the spirit of both old and new members.

Forty Pledges

It was announced that applications have been received from forty students. This group is the group to undergo initiation.

Those students unable to enter the frat last year have been requested to submit another application if they still desire admission into the fraternity.

Pins Coming Soon

President Knecht announced that members desiring frat pins would receive them in a few weeks. He stated that the delay in their delivery was due to a ban on gold imposed by the government.

The fraternity's "tradition book" was reported to be well on the way to completion. The group requested a more advanced and detailed report on this, the major project of the group, at the next meeting.

Medical Senior And Chem. Prof. Write On Acid

Paper Will Be Read At Boston Meeting

Murray W. Seitchik, a pre-med Senior, and Dr. Alexander Gero, of the Villanova Chemistry Department, have collaborated on a paper which has been accepted by the American Chemical Society.

Title of the paper is "Origin of Mellithic Acid". It will be read at the society's national convention at Boston, Mass., on April 5, 1951.

Outstanding Work

According to Dr. Gero this is an outstanding achievement for a college student. He also stated that this paper was chosen from a large group of contributions. Two such papers were submitted by Villanova men, but only the above mentioned one was accepted.

Seitchick, on completion of his studies at Villanova College, plans to attend Hahnemann Medical School.

Accountants Hear Lester Talk On Business Employment Needs

Mr. James Lester, who delivered a talk on cost accounting and its relation to the steel industry, was the guest of the Accounting Society at their meeting held on Tuesday, Feb. 13th.

Mr. Lester is the comptroller of the Standard Pressed Steel Co. of Jenkintown, Pa., manufacturers of precision nuts and bolts. His discussion ran along the lines of the business problems and the accounting procedure encountered in that type of concern. His examples were taken from his own personal experiences.

The initial point covered was the situation Mr. Lester was confronted with when he took the reins of the company as comptroller. From here he enlarged his topic telling not only what was accomplished in order to correct the chaotic state of affairs but why he acted along the lines he had chosen.

Once things had been rectified and the business was running smoothly, a cost accounting system was installed which, Mr. Lester added, has never been regretted. This system requires as many as 200 statements a month all, of which are prepared in ten days with the aid of accounting machines.

His next point concerned the forecasting of future business conditions. This took into consideration the budgeting of manufacturing and financial expenditures for as much as ten years to come. All of these bugets are supported by estimated balance sheets and profit and loss statements.

In conclusion Mr. Lester said that, contrary to the current trend of thought in the accounting field, "I think that more new avenues for competent men are coming into view with every passing day. Those in accounting should look to the future as being more hopeful than the present, instead of considering the field too crowded as so many do today."

Villanova Graduate

A native of Philadelphia, the priest was born August 8, 1904, and entered Villanova Prep School in 1920. Four years later, on June 25, 1924, he was received into the Augustinian order as a novice. A graduate of Villanova College, he received his Bachelor of Arts degree with the Class of June, 1928.

Father Ludwig was ordained in Washington, D. C., June 9, 1931, and assigned one year later to the faculty of Villanova's Biology department. For post-graduate work he went to the Marine Bioligical Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass. He studied further at the University of Pennsylvania, and received his Master of Science degree in 1939. The same institution awarded him a Ph.D. in 1944 upon completion of his doctorate thesis entitled "Studies on the Protozoan Fauna of the Larve of the Crane Fly."

Was Dorm Prefect

For about ten of his years at Villanova Father Ludwig was residence hall prefect in Alumni and Fedigan halls. He will be remembered most by alumni and students for patient and considerate work with College men, both in the Biology department and in other fields of study.

Father Ludwig is survived by a brother, Thomas Ludwig, now in the Navy, assigned to the carrier "Monterey"; a sister, Mrs. Andrew Stranick, of Pottstown, Pa.; and an uncle Vincent, O.S.A., of the Villanova Monastery.

issue a notice to the contrary. On the third day, a loophole will be found and everyone saves face.

"S-1, the Selective Service bill now under legislation in Washington, seems merely to amend the Selective Service Act of 1948. Actually, though, it is an entirely new bill to substitute for the 1948 law.

"Under the old law and whatever new law enacted, the President of the United States has the power to defer any category of people in the interests of the nation."

"You have a definite and grave responsibility to see that your abilities are developed to the utmost. I ask you with reference to Selective Service to remain in your classrooms and wait until the government decides it wants you."

Acceleration

"Two weeks after the Korean crisis arose, the administration met to discuss the possibilities of acceleration. We have recognized it as an unhealthy thing, evil, an obstacle to the development of youth, a thorn in the side of an overworked faculty.

"We would make plans for a tri-semester school year used here during World War II—and use such plans only in emergency or under compulsion.

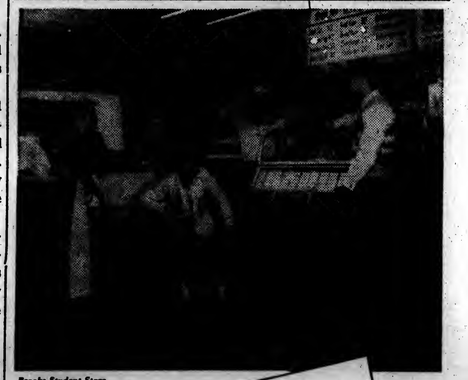
"We would enter upon an acceleration program only because of the students, and for no other reason. If your (the students') continued deferment depended upon being in classes twelve months a year, we would have acceleration. No such laws have been enacted as yet.

"Nor is the Navy Department interested yet in acceleration. If the NROTC decided that its officers had to come more quickly from our classrooms, we would follow its example in determination of the critical value of the emergency.

"Neither have the United States Military or Naval Academies determined the emergency as such to warrant their acceleration.

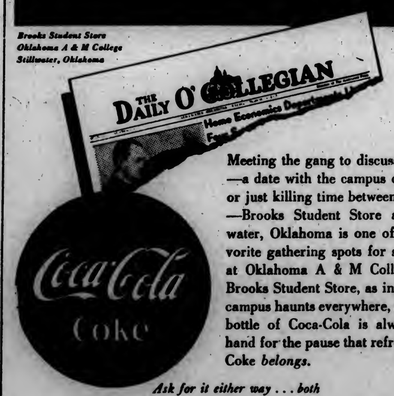
"Besides that, we cannot determine how long this not-at-war, not-at-peace situation will last. The decisions made now will have to be made cautiously for they will last for fifteen, twenty, or twenty-five years.

Villanova College has made plans for acceleration and is waiting for a justified emergency before putting them into operation. However, we deem acceleration inadvisable and not for the good of the students.



"Physical war is one thing, a war of ideologies is another. The present fight against Communism includes fighting against Russia. We are not fighting 'whom', but 'what' — the false ideologies found not only in Russia but all over the world, even in our country.

"I ask you to maintain a calm and serene outlook on the problems as they are offered to you. Prepare yourselves by remaining in your classrooms and gaining a background in Christian and American principles.



"Realize fully your responsibilities to God and country—not only physical responsibility, but mental and spiritual as well. Remember your responsibilities to your parents who have invested in your education. Distinguish well between the spirit of adventure and the spirit of patriotism.

"Remain at the job you're doing, preparing yourself for your job of the future."

Citing the impossibility of discussing all the current problems at one meeting, Fr. McGuire concluded his talk with a promise of another general convocation in the near future to keep the student body and faculty informed of changes in the situation.

Win Over Hall Dukes, Can Be Cats Rebound

By George Scanlon

Revenge will be the keynote ome Wednesday night at the alestra when the Blue and hite of Villanova clash with aton Hall. The Cats are out to tone for the humiliating 71-54 efeat the Hall administered to Severance's charges last eek.

This is a "must" game for bo h ms. The Hall men, if they win, ave an excellent chance for a ourney bid.

Walt Dukes, 6' 1"

The New Jerseyites have aught fire and now sport a 19 nd 4 record, due mostly to the ine play of Walt Dukes, a 6' 11" ant. Coach "Honey" Russell pent most of his time last year illing his great frosh team hat won 39 of 40 games. His efforts have paid dividends this eason.

Fusion of the "whiz kids" and ompetent veterans like Sam ackaye and Dave Latimer make he Hallers a top-notch power.

Lakaye Brilliant

Sam Lackaye, 6' 2" operative, ho is a brilliant all-around ball ayer, was a thorn in the Cats' ide during the last clash as he cored 13 points and inspired his ates to a one-sided victory.

But Walt Dukes' fine pivot lay and backboard work, plus is 25 points, was the telling low to the Mainliners. "Honey" ussell's squad is loaded with alent and has found the winning mbinations. The 6' 8" frame of ave Putman and speed of obby Hurt add to the scoring unch of the tournament minded all.

The Cats must win this big one y stopping Dukes and Lackaye, nd hitting on their shots gainst Seton Hall's tight deense.

Face Duquesne

Villanova's worries do not stop ednesday night, because Satrday evening they face Duesne, a perennial Eastern ower. Three weeks ago the ats eked out a three point vicory over the Dukes as Larry nnessey score 27 points.

Last year's formidable team's tarting five has graduated from he Pittsburgh campus. But the ukes haven't shown any disgreement concerning these sses as they continue to play ipning ball.

Last year the Jerseyites began tradition of paying tribute to he hoopsters just as the Philalelphia Club has feasted Villaova's football squads at the end f each season. The basketball inner promises to be an annual vent and an important one on he "green pea" schedule.

Cats Snap Losses By Win Over Army After Dropping Trio

By Bob Forsyth

The Villanova Wildcats finally salvaged some prestige out of one of the most disasterous week in their recent history by humbling the Army Cadets at West Point last Saturday evening by a 65-44 score.

The disasterous portion of the week started a week ago last Saturday at the Palestra with the five point loss to Toledo. It continued on the road on Monday and Wednesday nights when the Cats dropped comparatively one-sided decisions to Seton Hall and Princeton by the respective scores of 71-54 and 60-49. This constituted a three game losing streak, the longest encountered by the Mainliners in three years, and was finally terminated on Saturday at the expnse of the Black Knights of the Hudson.

The triumph over the Cadets was achieved in the familiar pattern. A tightly contested dogfight ensued during the first half during which the lead changed hands five times. Jim Mooney dunked in five consecutive points which enabled the Cats to enjoy a 27-24 half-time advantage.

In the second half the shortmanned Cadets succombed to superior pressure. Larry Hennessey resumed his high-scoring ways and that, combined with the loss of Ed Weaver and Gil Reich, Army's stars, resulted in an ever increasing margain for the Severance which reached a twenty-one point spread at the final whistle. Hennessey paced the Mainliners with twenty-three points, with Mooney and Brennan right behind with sixteen and thirteen respectively.

Big Walter Prevails

In the Seton Hall debacle it was just a case of too much Walter Dukes and too much determination on the part of "Honey" Russell's cagers to avenge the recent years' defeats heaped on them by Villanova. The Pirates took command early and, with Duke's burning in twenty-five points, they were in front to stay. The Cats battled valiantly and three of them (Gepp, Glassmire and Brennan) fouled out in the process but it was to no avail. Another factor in the Hall win was their effective restraining of Larry Hennessey to twelve points. Mooney and Brennan took up some of the Wildcat slack but they could not equalize the elongated Mr. Dukes & Co.

Princeton's conquest of the Mainliners was achieved simply by stopping Hennessey's Villanova outside offense cold. This feat was achieved by Jack Kearns and the rest of the boys just guarded the keyhole and the backboards. Once again the Cats fell behind early and could never catch up. In the second half Sam Glassmire revitalized the attack but it fell short.

With Hennessey showing goose-eggs, the Villanova scoring, as well as that of the Orange and Black Tigers, was pretty much a community project. All accolades would have to go to the redoubtable Kearns.

Dwyer Is Third In A.A.U. 4:09.4 Mile

John Joe Barry Passes Up Title; 3rd In Three Miles

Sprint Medley Relay Loses Crown To Seton Hall; Mile Relay Fifth

By Ted Sheehan

Villanova entered the National A.A.U's Track and Field Championships, last Saturday night, in Madison Square Garden, defending two titles—the mile run and the sprint medley relay. When the smoke splinters and thinclads had cleared away, the Mainliners possessed one second, two thirds and a fifth.

John Joe Barry, the repatriated Hibernian, was to defend his laurels in the mile run but, earlier in the week decided to forsake that and move up to the three mile grind. As it turned out only Wilt, and not Don Gerhmann, was in the mile and the customers were minus a good mile race.

Over the thirty-three lap jaunt Barry, Curt Stone, Horace Ashenfelter and Browning Ross stayed on each other until the last three laps when Stone and Ashenfelter sprinted ahead. Stone finally took it with Ashy second and John Joe a good distance in front of Ross.

In the sprint medley relay, the Wildcats finished second behind a crack Seton Hall squad. The team ran with Jim McKenna (440), Tom Irish (100), Ed Bausenwein (220) and Joe McCreary (300). The Pirates, in winning, were timed at 1:55.1, which is a good deal off the record — Championship, American and World's—set by Villanova at the same meet in 1950. The record is 1:53.6.

Fred Dwyer, the promising sophomore, supplied the team with its other third, in the mile run. Fred was fourth at the quarter and half-mile marks and after that pulled up to third by the three-quarter mark. He finished a good deal ahead of fourth-placer Alex Perritt.

The mile relay really was the heart-breaker of the evening. In the trials the Villanovans looked well, despite the fact that they had no competition and weren't pressed. In the final, Jim Reardon brought the stick in fourth but John Furlinger, by a bit of masterful moving was able to work it up to first when he passed to Bob Cunjac. Cunjac fell back to second, and anchorman Pete Simigan took over. Pete held his own until the last fifty yards, when it seemed the roof would cave in as four men passed him. He finally ended in fifth place behind Seton Hall, Fordham, Georgetown and Morgan State.

McKenna, Dwyer Barry To Lead 'Cats At IC-4A

By Red Kuhn

The second title meet in as many weeks will claim the attention of Jim Elliot's track squad this Saturday. Scantily clad in Blue and White, the boys will take part in the IC-4A championships in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Well Balanced Squad

The team is one of the best-balanced aggregations Villanova has sent into competition in several years. The Mainliners have a good scoring punch in almost all of the running events, which should give them the best night, pointwise, they have ever had.

In the distance there is Fred Dwyer and John Joe Barry. Both men were third in their races in the National A. A. U. meet, Dwyer in the mile, and Barry in the three miles, but neither was beaten by college runners.

Jim McKenna, who has scored for the past two years in the 600 will be one of the best in that event.

Fast Mile Quartet

The mile relay team is one of the fastest in Villanova's history. Featured so far with Seton Hall in an always second, but never winning role, with the fastest clockings of the year, the squad may just need the lift that a big title race can give. A win over the Setonians is the avowed aim of everyone on the squad.

Tom Irish will do the sprinting chores, while Larry Paturzo and/or Art Klepper may see action in the 1000 yard run.

Fred Dwyer's great performance came as no surprise to those fans who have been watching him all year. Starting off by running on the two mile relay team at the Inquirer games, where he broke 1:55 for his half, the slender Soph stuck to the half and scored in both the Millrose and the NYAC games. He can, and will run a terrific 1000 if Coach Elliot decides so, but Dwyer's success at the mile last week may cause him to be in the mile again Saturday.

At the long grind the most dangerous opposition would come from Carl Joyce of Georgetown. Joyce has stuck to the half in running on the two-mile relay this year also, but as a schoolboy he broke 4:20 and is no doubt far under that by now.

Barry may see action in the two miles, having had more success at the longer distances so far this season.

The mile quartet has a lot of talent to draw from in the presence of Jim Reardon, John Furlinger, Pete Simigan, Joe McCreary, and Bob Cunjac. All of them have had experience, and this week Jim Elliot will pick the best combo, the one that seems the good bet to bring home the IC-4A bacon.

Alumni Toppers Have Height And Know-How

Take five men all over six feet, give them each an uncanny shooting eye and a lot of basketball savvy mixed with a will to win, and it adds up to either Ozark Ike's Mountaineers or the Alumni Toppers, undefeated leaders of the Intra-Mural Class A loop. But let's leave Ozark to Sagebrush Sal for awhile and narrow it right down to the Toppers.

Captained by 6'1" Tom Flynn, the Toppers swept thru six opponents to take the first half crown in a walk. With the scoring paced by Tom Falkowski, whose feet just touch the ground from a height of 6'5", the Alumni quintet rolled up a terrific 56 point average, while limiting the opposition to 34. Their victims included the Fourflushers 41-31, Barracks Barrons 66-28, Good Counsel 57-20, Barracks 2&3, 64-35, Fedigan Big Five 56-45, and the Doms 52-20.

FR. McLAUGHLIN

Possibly Scholarships!

Boast Experience

The experience these men boast would make a lot of college coaches sit up and take notice. Flynn formerly starred at Iona Prep, while Falkowski swished the cords at St. Peters Prep. Jude O'Donnell,whose 6'3" and 210 pounds make him one of the most dangerous board men in I-M competition, was a mainstay on the Georgetown Prep club for two years. Larry O'Hearn, who towers 6'3", possesses real talent on the pivot and is also a threat under the defensive board. He earned his letter at Columbia High in Orange, N. J. The "shrimp" of the starting five is Bill OBrien, a mere six feet tall. Along with captain Flynn he is the play maker, and always has a potential two points ready in a set shot.

Strong Reserves

But five men don't make a complete team. Lets take a look at the ones who might not get a chance to start, but are always there, ready to go when needed. The reserves are Joe Driscoll (5'11"); Jim Moore (5'9"); Bob Sexton (6'2"); Bill Decker (6'1") and Don Diot (6'0"). This gang more than once helped to pull a game out of the fire in the closing minutes when one of the starters fouled out.

This, then, is a thumbnail sketch of the Alumni Toppers, one of the finest Intra-Mural cage clubs ever produced at Villanova. And the old rumor of scholarships being given out by Father McLaughlin is beginning to be heard again.

Mooney, Beck To Receive Awards At Penn Fete

Jim Mooney, Wildcat co-captain and Ernie Beck, high-scoring Quaker sophomore, will be the first recipients of the annual sportsmanship awards to be made by the Class of 1948 of the University of Pennsylvania.

In making these awards, Penn is taking another step toward promoting friendly relations between the two schools who share the billing at Palestra doubleheaders. Members of the Penn and Villanova basketball squads cited Mooney and Beck as the two players who best exemplified the spirit of sportsmanship for which the awards are given.

The presentations will be made by Frank Snedaker, class president, on March 2nd, at the Franklin Inn. J. Howard (Nig) Berry will be the guest speaker.

WIN OVER HALL

Consistent Scorers

Coach Dudley Moore's starting five are not considered a tall team, but make up for this by speed and consistent scores. Moore's first string consists of two seniors and three juniors.

Hank Kuzma, a rugged and combative senior of 6'-3", holds down the center position, while another senior, Red Manning, will be at one guard slot. Art Goldberg at forward is a talented set shot and a fine rebounder. Goldberg will be remembered locally for his fine performance against Arixin and company last season.

In forward Hal Gerra, Coach Moore has a dependable scorer who can be counted on to hit double figures consistently, Carl Pacacha, who exhibits the speed necessary for a well-balanced club, rounds out the starting five.

Strong Reserves

First line reservists are Charles Horne and Jim Kennedy, both upperclassmen. Likely to see action are Mike Renger, Al Bailey, and Steve Caray.

The Villanova Wildcats' claws are sharp and once again as they returned to their winning habit last Saturday at the expense of Army's Black and Gold. Poor performances against Seton Hall and Prince can be erased this week at the Palestra if the Blue and White can duplicate in these important games their play against West Point.

What is more important—and what is uppermost in the mind of all Villanova basketball fans — these two games represent a last-ditch stand on the part of the Wildcats for a tournament bid. Selections will undoubtedly be nearing the final stage by the time next week's national ratings are computed.

The selection committees will certainly be looking toward Penn Palestra during this next week. A rebounding Villanova team can attract the necessary attention.

Second Half Competition Begun In I-M League

As the second half of the I-M basketball race got underway, the Alumni Toppers started off fast to keep their unbeaten string intact. Tom Flynn scored 15 in a 48-39 victory over the Mendelcases.

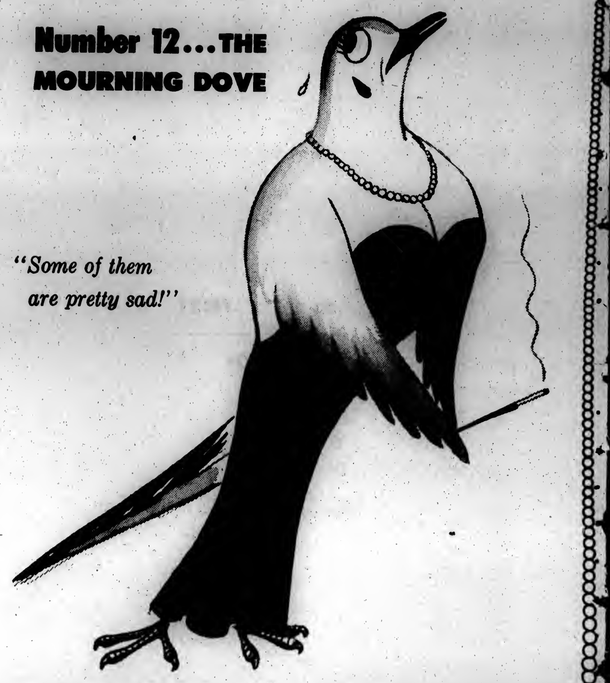
The Austin Crows, led by Scanlon with 14 downed the Swishers 42-21, and Loughlin and McGukin each hit for 13 as the Fedigan Big Five defeated the Berry Pickers 50-44, in the only A League action of the week.

Characters Win Thriller

After trailing 22-26 at the half the Alumni Characters came back in the second can to eke out a close 45-44 victory over the firehouse Five. Bergen of the losers took individual honors with 17.

Cullen sank 17 to lead the Caps to a 51-21 decision over the O'Dwyer Clowns. In the only other scheduled B League action the Barracks 2&3 won from Alumni by Forfeit.

In the League the Austin Quints downed the Pistons 33-27, and the Hayseeds topped Barracks I 63-39.



Creamer Scores 20

Shayne Creamer hit for thirty counters in the Warriors big 70-19 victory over the Hapless Mudhens, in the only National League game of the week.

The American League's two games saw the Gunners trounce the Black Flames 52-31 as Germano showed the way with 25, and Bobby Oelz leading Ballyshannon to a 31-22 victory over the Liz Kids.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 12...THE MOURNING DOVE

"Some of them are pretty sad!"

Melancholy and dejected, this gloomy miss found little to titillate her in the recent deluge of quick-trick cigarette tests! She was not enthralled by the idea of judging cigarette mildness with just a fast puff or a single sniff. But, joy of joys! . . . happiness came to her when she discovered one test that left no doubt in her mind.

It was the sensible test! . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke — on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) we believe you'll know why . . .

More People Smoke Camels
than any other cigarette!

154 ballots were cast on a point basis. The final tabulation for the bands were: Buddy Williams 523, Russ Morgan 377, Johnny Long 304, Hal McIntyre 204.

Mother-Son Banquet

An addition to Junior Week was another outstanding decision made by the meeting. Bud Conklin, Chairman of the committee for Mother's Day, stated that plans were being completed for the newest feature of Junior Week, a Mother-Son banquet, which will climax the traditional Mother's Day.

Measurements for Junior Blazers will be taken Monday, Feb. 26, from 11 a. m. to 4:30 p.m. in Austin Lounge. Ten dollars deposit is required upon placing the order.

Prom Queen Contest

Tom Pasha, Junior Class President, also revealed plans for the annual Prom Queen Contest. He reported that the contest this year is to be on a far more elaborate scale than in previous years. The Queen is scheduled to receive many more awards and honors, he stated.

The committee in charge of the contest listed the rules for the contest as follows: The contest is to open the first of March; any Junior, with the exception of class officers and prom committee chairmen, may enter photographs of their dates.

Blazers Chosen

Finally, Blazer Chairman Harry Mason stated that the blazer committee had completed contract arrangements with the Rollins Blazer Company of New York City to supply this year's blazers. He pointed out that a new seal wil be introduced on the blazers this year, one that is a copy of the college shield and motto.

Those who were in the cast of "The Trudge" were: Jack Rowe, Bob Resnick, Bill Brenninghouse, Jack Gray, Bob Allen, Bob Aissa, Al Hevey, Mike De Santis, Steve Keiss, Tony Della Rocca and Joe Maiale.

I.R.C. To Give Guida Award

George Guida Excellency Award winner will be decided at the next meeting of the Interracial Club, Tuesday, Feb. 20 in room 202 Mendel a 7:30. The award will be given for the third consecutive year.

Excellency awards are given to those individuals who, in the opinion of the club, have done the most to improve interracial relations in our country. In the past, the award has been given to Harrison Dillard and Levi Jackson, two nationally prominent sport stars.

Also to be discussed at this meeting are preparations for the coming Interracial Week, which, this year, is the first week of March.

Election of officers for the second semester will also be held at this meeting.

Band, Glee Club Serenade Orphans

The Villanova Band and Glee Club presented their first concert of the current season last night at St. John's Orphanage. The band was under the baton of its new student conductor, Tom Pasha, the Glee Club was under the direction of Bill Miller.

This concert was the last activity of this year's "Operation Yule" for the orphans of St. John's. Jack Kelly chairman of "Operation Yule" made the arrangements for the presentation of the band and glee club.

Remaining Schedule

The schedule for the remaining concerts at this time is as follows: Mon., Feb. 26 at Immaculata College; Fri., Mar. 2 at Chestnut Hill College; Mon., Mar. 5 at Rosemont College; Mon., Mar. 12 at Mater Misericordia Academy; Mon., April 2 at St. Vincents Home (Lansdowne).

Heating Unit To Be Finished By August

Designer's Sketch of Plant Released

According to a statement released by John T. Dever, College controller, Villanova's new $725,000 heating plant is to be completed by August of 1951 and will be supplying heat to the school's buildings by the fall semester.

The heating system currently in use will be almost completely abandoned. As an economizing measure, parts of the old system will be used. Headers, the huge distribution valves, of the old set-up will be utilized in conjunction with the new system.

Mendel Hall Will Be Used

Steam generated in the boiler house by two boilers, each of which is capable of 30,000 lb. output, will be piped to Mendel Hall. Here it will pass into the headers and thence be distributed to the "Doms", Fedigan and Alumni Halls and the Commerce and Finance Building. Saint Rita's and Saint Mary's Halls are to be on the new set up.

The Barracks, Belle Air Hall, and the Field House, which at the moment have their own individual heating systems will be serviced by a direct steam line from the boiler house.

Initial work on Villanova's new heating plant was begun in June of 1950, with the digging of trenches for the underground steam lines. After the completion of this work, activity shifted to the other side of the Pennsy tracks. Here the foundation for the boiler house has been laid. The site of the new boiler house, as most students know, is almost

Burke Selected To Succeed Smith In Trustee Seat

Cyril J. Burke, Villanova alumnus and Detroit, Mich, industrialist, has been named to the College Board of Trustees to fill the seat left vacant last October by the death of J. Stanley Smith.

Mr. Burke, a resident of Detroit, has been an active member of the Villanova Alumni Club of Detroit since his graduation from the College. Three of his sons have attended Villanova, one of them, Michael, is presently a freshman C&F student, resident in Alumni hall.

First announcement of Mr. Burke's appointment was made several weeks ago at the annual faculty banquet, but released for publication only this week.

'Worship Depends Upon Freedom'

"The whole problem of worship centers on the question of religious freedom and the separation of church and state." With this statement Rev. Robert Hartnett, S. J., summarized his Villanova Forum lecture on "Human Rights and Worship of God" last Tuesday evening.

The Editor of America traced the history of religious liberty and the separation of the church and state from the reformation down to the present time.

Every Man Has Duty to God

He stated that every man has a duty to worship God—natural and inalienable right goes with this — and that this duty and right requires a knowledge of God, but divine revelation is necessary to help us fulfill this law.

In conclusion Father Hartnett

Paper Conducts Opinion Poll Through Campus This Week

President Backs Weekly's Query On Student View of Acceleration

Within the next week staff members of the VILLANOVAN will conduct a poll of all students concerning their opinion of the draft, acceleration, and other national problems involving college students.

Authorized by College President Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., the VILLANOVAN will distribute questionnaires to all religion classes. It should take about ten minutes of class time to answer the ten questions contained in the poll.

Results Printed March 13

Entirely a student activity, organized and conducted with administrative approval, the poll includes, in addition to questions about acceleration, queries on military service, the military training program, and United States international policy.

When completed, questionnaires will be collected and tabulated in time to publish results in the March 13 edition of this newspaper.

Acceleration Views Wanted

The principal purpose of the poll is to inform the College administration how students feel about acceleration. In his speech to the student-faculty convocation a week and a half ago Fr. McGuire advised that no plans for definite acceleration have been made by the College. Villanova, he said, would enter a three semester school year only in national emergency, or if students' continued deferment depended on their remaining in classes twelve months a year.

However, the administration is anxious to know the student feeling in regard to acceleration, in order that they might guide their future action in this regard.

Would Add Full Semester

Acceleration, if put into effect, would entail addition of a regular full-length semester during the summer months. Thus, semesters would in all likelihood begin on November 1, March 1, and July 1, instead of the present September and February dates for semester beginnings, with a full ten week summer vacation.

Since the results of the poll may determine future administration policy regarding campus military affairs, Fr. McGuire requests students to consider the problems seriously before answering the poll.

Buddy Williams Signs Contract

"Golden Echo Music" Set for Prom May 4th

Buddy Williams' "Golden Echoes", the bandleader's "music for millions" will sound for the hundreds of Villanovans who attend the Junior Prom May 4.

Contracts were signed this week by Phil Brennan, Prom chairman, and Jeff Rioux, band committee chairman, with the William Honney booking agency of Philadelphia. Williams was the Juniors' selection over three other bands by a wide margin in a vote at the Class meeting Feb. 13.

Triple-Duty Performer

A triple-duty performer on tenor sax, clarinet, and piano, Williams is also arranged and composer for his "Golden Echo" music, the new and different smooth sounds in the modern music field.

For student activities Williams is a new band on the Villanova campus, although he made a hit at the Field House last spring on the bill of the Augustinian Seminary Guild variety show.

Marie Caruso New Singer

Coupled with his organization on that occasion was Jessica Dragonette, but for the Junior Prom Williams will present his own vocalist, Marie Caruso, along with his "mello-vocal" trio, Two Buds and an Orchid.

A relative newcomer among band leaders, Buddy Williams has been the "man behind the band" for such big-name greats of former days as Glenn Miller, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Paul Whiteman, Ted Lewis, and many others.

"Golden Echos" for Prom

"Golden Echo Music"

"Golden Echo Music" Williams explains, is his entirely new approach to popular dance music, embodying the use of instruments never before exploited in dance orchestras.

They are euphoniums, specially designed brasses which look like baritone or brass-horns, ex-

Pre-Cana Director Speaks Sunday On Choice Of Mate

Newly-appointed moderator of College Pre-Cana Conference, Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A., will deliver the second lecture of the current Lenten series next Sunday in the C&F Auditorium at 3:00 p. m. His talk is entitled, "Choosing a Life-Mate".

Over two hundred Villanova students heard the first Pre-Cana lecture last Sunday delivered by Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., on "Marriage Is Your Vocation in Life".

All Students May Attend

Under new Pre-Cana Conference policy introduced by Fr. Regan this year, all interested students may attend the conferences scheduled for the next three Sundays. Formerly the Pre-Cana lecture series was restricted to students engaged or contemplating marriage, and their finances.

Last Sunday's speaker, Fr. Coffey, is a graduate of Villanova and Catholic University of

Means of Support

The motion made and passed at the last Student Council meeting is the best that has been done by the present representatives.

The bill calls for a tax on all student activities in the Field House. A small percentage woud be taken from the net profit on dances and shows.

Now operating with less than twenty dollars in its treasury, the council has relied on two affairs in the past four years. An informal dance in the Field House during the fall of 1948 and the Army game rally and trip of 1947 have been the only source of council funds.

To wait for such opportunities of raising money is an unsatisfactory idea. When money is needed there is none and the council must turn to classes for help. Such happened last week when the council wished to repair the TV set in Austin lounge. With insufficient funds they were forced to call on the classes to subsidize the necessary work.

The proposed two percent tax on the net profits is only a test. A new motion, agreeable to all organizations and satisfactory to the council needs will probably pass at the next meeting. By that time most of the interested parties will have expressed their feelings.

When it does pass and the bill is put into effect the council will have taken a big step toward better and more effectual student representation.

PASHA THE PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

HERE'S MUD IN YOUR EYE: The ever present mud-hole in front of the Belle-Aire building became a main topic for demerits in one sector of the campus this past week. After finding themselvest completely engulfed by a sea of goo, several midshipmen found it necessary to circumnavigate the obstacle and resort to great circle sailing in order to reach their objective at the specified time. Upon arrival at their destination, however, they were docked for being a few minutes tardy.

The whole situation simmers down to one of two things; either a liberty launch has to be secured outside pier B.A. for the convenience of the middies or the military unit should change its nomenclature to V.M.H.I. (Villanova Mud Hopping Infantry). In general, it would be advisable for the school to construct a walk from C&F to the repartitioned barracks in order to save crossing time and vegetation feed bill that rolls around every Spring.

CHEER-JEERING: In twenty-four games at home, the cheer leaders have put in an appearance twice. Once at the Palestra and once in the Field House. The last performance was the greatest due to the elaborate costume worn by cheer leaders. My ain't we gettin' formal at these athletic contests. The individual concerned looked like a fugitive from a penquin outing . . . One patron handed him a five spot thinking that he was the maitre d' hotel . . .

The peacock that St. Peter's crowd brought with them made quite a spectacle of itself as it strutted to and fro in the balcony—that isn't all that it made.

CHANGEABLE CHOW-LINE: A new attraction has been added to the Mendel Hall corridor and it really has the men confused . . . The chow-hounds thought that they were waiting for franks and beans but when the line moved up they discovered that it terminated at the information booth . . . Surprised to see so many upper classmen in line, one would think that they would know their way around after three and four years . . . Good thing that window has bars on it . . . Those who don't quite understand the above will be smart in checking the booth.

MAKING FACES: Since the Belle Masque began its make-up course numerous events have taken place which prove its value . . . Belle Masquers caused considerable stir in Fedigan Hall when one of the face lifters veneered a fellow thespian with Bowery features and placed him in a "friend's" sack . . . Can't remember the names but the initials of the men involved were Jack Rowe, Rollo Breninghouse, and Moose Mullins . . . Bill Lemmer is becoming accustomed to having characters enter his room.

S'CUSE THE TYPEWRITER: In answer to some threatening knick-knacks, the writer wishes to correct last week's mistake by congratulating Immaculata's CUE AND CURTAIN society . . . It was sech a horrible mistake, too!

Twomp Says Uncle After Finding His Family's Lost Generation

By BILL BRENNINGHOUSE

Everyone has his share of uncles but it must be said that Oscar Twomp has the most amazing group of uncles in existence. There never has been an accurate count of the uncles since there has never ben a time when they have all been out of jail at the same time. Eccentric uncles abound on both sides of the family.

Among the Twomps there are many uncles. The most famous one is Uncle Elmo, the international politician. Uncle Elmo has travelled through the courts and capitols of Europe as Ambassador without portfolio, having lost same in shipboard poker game. Sometimes he travelled carte blanche and sometimes he left her home. He gained fame by giving Winston Churchill an exploding cigar.

Ninety Pound Weakling

Uncle Samson made his fortune as a magazine cover boy, back cover that is. He posed for the Charles Atlas muscle building ads; he was always Before. Uncle Samson is so thin there isn't room on his face for both eyes. His hair grows in single file and both shoulders work off the same socket.

The Twomp Triplets, Jasper, Casper, and Rasper first came into national prominence by winning the NCAA tiddely-wink tournament in college. They followed up this initial success by going into the pro ranks meeting eventual defeat in the world's championship matches at Chelsea Beach where they were outscored by the Manchester Midgets. The final score: Uncles J., C., and R. nine tiddelies and five winks, Midgets eighteen tiddlies and twelve winks, a decisive margin.

More Family Luminaries

On the other side of the family, the McStables, there are other famous uncles. Uncles Clyde and Floyd have labored many years in the tar pits with the result that they are now socially unacceptable. Uncle Mortimer invented a new kind of cigarette which he aptly called Old Mold. A military man, Uncle Maxmillian, was a soldier of fortune in Patagonia until a fearful bolo knife wound in the armpit curtailed his fighting career.

Merton McStable is quite renown in financial circles. A clever extortionist and blackmailer, Uncle Merton had a thriving dope business before leaving for Sing-Sing for his master's degree. He attributes his success to a solid background in commerce and finance gained in college pinochle games. Defending him at his trail was his brother, Morgan, a shyster lawyer who caters to framed bookies.

The Skeletons

There are not all the uncles of Oscar Twomp. Since some of them are in hiding it would be unethical to divulge any statistics or whereabout of these unfortunates. Several uncles left for an African safari in 1924 and haven't been heard from since. It is assumed they found a lucrative racket in the Dark Continent, and don't care to cut anyone in on the deal. Oscar intends to search for them at the earliest possible date.

On Your Toes!

By JIM GRIFFIN

How many Catholics can look up in response to that remark and say "I am on my toes?" Perhaps many of us will wonder what being on one's toes has to do with religion.

Salesmen admittedly must be on their toes, as should executives, etc. But why Catholics especially? After all, religion is religion, and for Catholics that means the Mass and the sacraments, the ten commandments and the six precepts.

A Little More

True, religion is religion, but that is not all there is to it. Religion is a way of life, and therefore cannot be checked off with the well-defined elements of worship and morality alone. O. K., so religion is a way of life, but also important: everybody knows religion is a way of life.

What's He Think?

As a result, non-Catholics are interested in just what effect Catholicity has on a person. They watch Catholics constantly from the corners of their eyes; they check them on little things to see whether Catholics are any different from everyone else.

Sometimes they'll ask questions—about politics, sports, religion, anything, but with another thought in their minds: "This guy is a Catholic. How will he answer this? Does he know what he's talking about? etc., etc., etc."

Perhaps it isn't quite fair. Catholics are human and no amount of religion can make them infallible. Nevertheless, they will have to stand the tests, and that is precisely why they should be able to say, "I'm on my toes."

The Personal Church

For each Catholic is to his non-Catholic acquaintances just what the Vatican newspaper is to the world. He IS the church, as far as they're concerned, even more than the Papal offices. And every time he lets his opinion step out of line with justice or charity, every time he lets his standards of morality slide for this reason or that, just so often will the non-Catholics in his circle mark the incident, and chalk up a black x — against the Church.

Your first name may be Joe and your last Smith or Jones or Brown, but if you go to Mass on Sunday, you're last name is Catholic to many non-Catholics; so make sure you're on your toes. You owe it to your faith.

German-Japanese Rearmament May Lose West More Friends Than Worth

Plan Would Tend to Solidify Satelites in Russian Orbit. Analysis Shows Step as Expensive and Foolhardy One

Joseph Tyszkiewicz is a Senior Physics Major. Born in Poland and living there during part of the last great war, he spent some time in Poland and Lithuania under Russian occupation, but was in Russia for the major part of the war. His expressed opinions are not necessarily confirmed by this newspaper.

By Joseph Tyszkiewicz

The question of rearmament of Germany and Japan is now frequently discussed, with emphasis on the advantages of such a step. There are, however, many strong arguments against rearmament, a few of which I shall indicate below.

The people of Germany and Japan lived under a form of Government which is radically different from ours. They were brought up in a totalitarian system which had a complete disregard of lives and rights of its citizens and neighbors.

Germans gave little evidence of embracing democracy and show little interest in it. Japanese seem interested and willing to learn, but it takes more than just five years for the people of such different culture as the Japanese, to understand and apply our ideals.

Japan In Moral Vacuum

Moreover, the people of Japan were left in a moral vacuum by the Emperor's renunciation of his claims of divinity. They are now divided between Christianity and Communism, Germans are stunned by the loss of the war, widespread destruction and misery in their country, and the division and occupation of their homeland.

If a nation is to fight a successful war its citizens must be unified in a common understanding of why and for what they are fighting. Such understanding and unity of purpose are obviously lacking in both Germany and Japan. Is the fear of Russia alone enough to make them want to fight for the West? I do not think so.

Good Position to Bargain

These people are in a good position to bargain for independence and equality of rights. Both East and West want them on their side.

But what guarantees have we that after a victorious war Germany and Japan will not revert to totalitarianism and turn the armies which helped to defeat Russia against their neighbors? This has happened before.

Finally comes the most important question. Are we, by arming ten German and Japanese divisions, putting twenty Communist satellite divisions against us? To illustrate: Russia has created a Polish army which is now reported to be the biggest and best armed in Europe, besides the Russian.

This army is controlled by Russian and pro-Russian officers who have little loyalty of the rank and file soldiers. An overwhelming majority of them will desert to the West at the first opportunity.

The same is true for the armies of Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Roumania, Bulgaria, the Baltic states, and even for some Chinese.

Distrust and Bitterness

The formation of German and Japanese armies would create a tremendous distrust and bitterness against the Western powers. The question would arise, which is better, German and Japanese, or Russian occupation? One should not underestimate the burning hate and fear that exists today in these countries toward their former aggressors, Germany and Japan. In this connection we may consider the answer of Mr. Sngman Rhee, president of the Republic of Korea, to reporters concerning the United States using Japanese troops to combat the Communists in Korea. He said that he would order his troops to cease fighting the Chinese and turn against the Japanese.

Soldiers Will Desert

This is the way a great many East-Europeans feel about Germany and Asiatics feel about Japan. Many soldiers of the Communist puppet states would decide to throw in their lot with the Russians rather than risk the horrors of another occupation by the Germans. Such action will strengthen Russian position in these countries and make any break of the satellites away from Russia even more difficult than it is at present. As a result we shall be giving the Communist more loyal divisions than the West can expect from Germany and Japan.

I think the loyalty of the people in Russian-occupied countries is more valuable to us than the uncertain military help of former enemies. These people can give us incalculable services by sabotaging Russian supply lines to the front, and weakening the Russian rear by guerilla raids.

By getting temporary benefits from the rearmament of Germany and Japan we will create a situation which, in the long run, will bring us a disadvantage far surpassing the short range gains.

Hahnemann Hospital Doctor Says Americans Must Help in A-Attack

"Every American should be bound to some job in the event of atomic attack that would help lessen the initial shock of such a catastrophe." In an address delivered to the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity last Wednesday Dr. Frank Tropea of the Hahnemann Medical College stressed the importance of first aid to the assembled pre-medical students.

He emphasized that information on what to do in case of such an attack would be useful under any emergency conditions as the same methods of treatment apply no matter what the cause of the injury.

In outlining methods of treatment for various injuries he repeatedly pointed out that small simple measures applied properly can save lives, and that if one does not know what to do one should do nothing. He pointed out that as many persons as possible should be familiar with first aid as emergencies arise everyday where it would be useful.

Also discussed at the meeting were plans for the annual dinner dance which will be held this year at the Drexelbrook Inn at a date to be announced at the next meeting Wednesday, March 7.

SYMPATHY

Sympathy is extended to Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O.S.A., upon the death of his beloved mother. Father Burke is an Assistant Professor of Electrical Engineering and moderator of third floor Alumni Hall.

Leo Zollo Signed For Senior Dinner-Dance

Formal Will Be Main Topic of Class Meeting Thursday Evening in C. & F.

Leo Zollo and his band will play for the Senior dinner-dance on June 2. Zollo had been retained last year by this same class for their Junior dinner-dance.

The menu and price of bid are the only thing yet unsettled for the formal affair at the Ben Franklin.

Seniors Meeting Thursday

The dinner-dance will be the main topic of discussion at the Senior Class meeting Thursday, March 1. Joseph Rugo, Class President, intends to bring up the question of choosing a new man for the office vacated when Paul Davis, former Student Council representative, resigned.

Movies and refreshments will also be offered at the meeting in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 7:30 p. m.

Dates Changed

Seniors this year have had a good deal of discussion about the dinner-dance ever since the prom and dinner-dance had been rescheduled. Both had been held, previous to this year, on the same weekend in January. The prom has already been held on October 20.

. The June date for the dinner-dance was changed by the Dean of Student Activities, Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., to the Junior Week. Then upon request of the Junior Week committee who objected to any interference in what they termed was their rightful week of activities, the June 2 date was agreed upon.

Held at Ben Franklin

Satisfied with the arrangements at the Ben Franklin last year, the seniors again secured the main ball room for the evening. Zollo one of the smartest of the local bands, was only recently signed to play for the dance.

Bryn Mawr Reserve Group Invites Student Enlistments

Army Artillery Battalion Holds Open House

The 312th Field Artillery Battalion has invited all Villanova students between the ages of nineteen and twenty-five to attend an open house, Wednesday, February 28, at the Corp Headquarters, 1111 Lancaster Avenue, Bryn Mawr.

Lieut. Richard McMonigle, of the Battallion, stated that the open house would provide an opportunity for students to familiarize themselves with the reserve openings available to them in this area.

Provides Deferment

The lieutenant added that an undoubtedly interesting feature of the Battallion, a reserve group, would be the fact that all those enlisting in this unit would be deferred from the draft, provided they have not taken pre-induction physical examination.

Equipment will be on display at the open house, it was pointed out, and experienced personnel will be on hand to explain it and demonstrate its use.

Lieut. McMonigle felt that two features should be seriously considered by all Villanova students: 1) automatic deferement from the draft follows enlistment in this reserve unit; and 2) training, a short distance from the college, under experienced veterans, and pay for each training drill available under the plan.

Contracts Awarded

A rundown of the various contracting firms will illustrate the tremendous size of the project.

Philadelphia Mechanical Contractors Incorporated have done all the underground work, such as the laying of steam lines from the proposed site of the boiler house to the campus buildings. This firm will also take care of the mechanical work to be done in the boiler house proper.

This later operation includes the installation of the two boilers which will be built by Combustion Engineers, and will weigh about 90 tons each. Electrical work will be done by Harris Electrical Contractors. The boiler house building is to be constructed by McCloskey and Company, the same people who built our library, Chemical Engieering Building and Commodore John Barry Hall.

215 Foot Smokestack

A huge smokestack which will tower 215 feet into the air is to be erected by the American Chimney Company. Consulting engineers for the job are Gilboy and O'Malley. Some members of our own Engineering School Faculty are also contributing to the project.

The artist's conception of the new heating plant will give the students an idea of how the boiler house will look when finished.

Orders Taken On Juniors' Blazers For April Delivery

Over sixty Juniors ordered traditional blazers yesterday from a representative of the Rollins Blazer Co. who took fittings in the Austin lounge.

Harry Mason, Junior blazer chairman, reported that the blazers will be delivered in April, before Junior Week. Deposits of ten dollars were made yesterday on the blazers; the balance to be paid on delivery.

Mason made arrangements to make both two button and three button models available to Juniors, since members of the Class desired both types.

Band, Glee Clubs Play At I.C.

The Villanova Band and Glee Club made their second appearance of the current season last night at Immaculata College.

The band was under the direction of student conductor Tom Pasha. Selections played by the band included the marches "American Patrol", "American Legion" and "Invercargill."

The Glee Club, under the direction of Bill Miller, sang "Battle Hymn of the Republic", "This is My Country," "Stout-Hearted Men" and "The Olde Songs."

Featured with the glee club was Miss Joan Barrett of Immaculata College singing Rudolf Friml's "Indian Love Call" from his operetta "Rose-Marie."

The Band and Glee Club will appear at Chestnut Hill College on Friday, March 2.

Belle Masque Men In WNAR Dramatic Program

"Big Doorstep" Cast Begins Rehearsals

The Belle Masque dramatic society completed a busy week last Sunday by presenting "God and The Red Scooter" over radio station WNAR. Earlier in the week the society had completed casting for its spring production, "The Great Big Doorstep."

The Montgomery County Catholic Hour presented the Masquers over WNAR in the radio drama. Lead roles in the play were handled by Jack Rowe and Mary Doyle (of Rosemont College). The presentation was under the direction of Joe Maiale. Assisting parts were played by Bob Quinn, Tony Della Rocca and Tom McCarthy.

Cast for "Doorstep"

"The Great Big Doorstep's" cast was announced Friday. Lead roles go to Robert Resneck and Kathy Rowan (of Rosemont). Both Rowe and Resnick have had much experience as headliners for Belle Masque.

Resnick will be remembered as Tommy the cockney in "The Hasty Heart," and Miss Rowan was previously starred in "The Knight of the Burning Pestle." Both are particularly adept at comedy parts, thus Belle Masque has chosen two "specialty" stars for its spring comedy.

Minor castings were also made known. Featured in these parts are Misses Patricia Coar, Joan Theurkaul, Barbara Birman and Betty Messmer of Rosemont College, along with Bob Quinn, George Crist, Jack Gray and Herb Matthews of Belle Masque.

Next Friday in connection with the University of Pennsylvania Drama Festival, Belle Masque will present "The Open Secret" a melodrama about the Atom Bomb and the extremely important question of its use as a medium of destruction.

CAT CAGERS DUMP DUQUESNE, 88-71
FRED DWYER CAPTURES IC4A MILE

Sophomore Star Wins In 4:16.2; Mile Relay 3rd

Outrunning a classy field and finishing with a kick worthy of a Wilt or a. Gehrmann, Fred Dwyer became the new IC-4A indoor mile champion last Saturday night at Madison Square Garden.

The slim Villanova sophomore defeated favored Carl Joyce of Georgetown, as he won going away by 25 yards. The new champ's time was 4:16.2.

Mile Relay Third

The Wildcats' mile relay team of Jim McKenna, John Furlinger, Bob Cunjac and Pete Simigan won their section handily. Since final standings were on a time basis, however, they wound up third behind Seton Hall and Fordham.

In winning Dwyer became Villanova's first indoor mile champion, and the second IC-4A indoor titleholder. George Guida was the last Wildcat to do this trick when he won the 600 in 1947.

Wins In First Try

Fred's victory is particularly remarkable because he won in his first crack at the title. He just became eligible for varsity competition in February so he really didn't have much chance to do his stuff before. In addition to this the blond speedster from South Orange, N. J., is just 19, probably one of the youngest men to win an Intercollegiate crown.

Runs Smart Race

The race itself was a good example of what brainwork and ability can do when they team up. Dwyer got off to a good start, but let the eager beavers take the early lead. As Joe La Pierre of Georgetown flashed by the first quarter in 64.5, Fred was fourth. La Pierre led at the 2:09.5 half, but the speedy Wildcat was now fourth. Bob Freebairn of Penn State led at the three quarters, which went in 3:15.5, but Dwyer was now second. Jumping into the lead with two laps to go, Dwyer commenced to build up a lead so great that Carl Joyce's famous kick fell far short of the mark.

Behind Joyce was Freebairn, third; La Pierre, fourth, and Alex Perritt, of Syracuse who wound up fifth.

Seton Hall's 3:19.9 Best

In winning their section the Wildcat relay did 3:23.1. Seton Hall's 3:19.9 (best time of the season) won with Fordham's 3:21.1 second. Colgate did 3:24.0 for fourth; while Manhattan was fifth with 3:24.1.

Pete Simigan's 49.3 leg was the top effort of the relay men. Colgate's unhearlded four often threatened, but Jim McKenna's good leadoff plus Furlinger's distance opening second leg insured the victory. Colgate's anchor man put on a great drive to make up distance, but Simigan unleashed his great kick to quell

FREDDY DWYER LEADS the pack around the first turn in the IC-4A mile Saturday night. Joe LaPierre, shown in sixth place, was the early pace-setter, but Villanova's mighty mite came on to win the title by 25 yards.

NCAA Tournament Is Best Bet For Cats

By Bob Forsyth

With the 1950-1951 basketball season fast approaching termination, the annual post-season tournament scramble has descended once more on the court scene. Despite all the "fixing" whoop-de-do which has thrown Madison Square Garden basketball slightly off-center, Mr. Ned Irish is persevering in presenting the National Invitation Tournament during the week of March 12. The following week will witness the play-offs in the annual N.C.A.A. championship tournament.

Of present concern, of course, is the Villanova Wildcats chances of participating in either of these tournaments. The former one will have to be discounted as it seems that Mr. Irish still is thrown into a choleric rage at the mention of the word Villanova. The N.C.A.A., on the other hand, offers excellent possibilities, providing the Wildcats can maintain their winning pace.

Four Teams Set

Four of the eight teams in the Eastern regionals are set as they will represent their conferences. They are Columbia, Kentucky, N. C. State, which have already secured their titles, and Illinois, which is about ready to wrap up the Big Ten. The other four teams for the east will be picked "at large" and will probably be from the Northeast and Middle West since the South has very little to offer besides the Conference champions.

Main Liners Have Chance

Of these independents St. Johns is the leading choice, with the Wildcats a close second. The only things which could jeopardize the Mainliners chances are a collapse during their last four games or the selection of only one independent from District Two. This would be inequitable as so much of the nation's power is concentrated in this area.

Cage Classic Enlarged, 16 Teams To Go

Due to the fact that the N. C. A. A. has enlarged its tournament from eight to sixteen teams, the selection method for teams to fill the berths has also been altered. Of the eight Eastern teams, four will represent conferences; the Eastern Intercollegiate League, the Big Ten, the Southern Conference and the Southeastern Conference. The remaining four teams will be picked "at large" but the possibility remains that they will be selected from the four Eastern N.C.A.A. Districts. How, exactly, they will be picked still remains to be seen.

In the Western half, seven of the teams will represent conferences; the Missouri Valley conf., the Big Seven, the Southwest Conf., the Border Conf., the Skyline Six, and the Northern and Southern Divisions of the Pacific Coast Conf. The eighth team will be picked at large from the major independents and the Conference runners-

Villanova Hits On Half of F.G. Tries

Hennessey Bags 35; Glassmire and Mooney Get 18 On Best Shot Night

Hitting on exactly half of their field goal attempts, Villanova's basketeers continued its late season drive for a post-season tournament bid by dumping Duquesne University before a crowd of 5000 at Penn Palestra last Saturday night, 88-71.

The Wildcats' Jim Mooney contributed the first two-pointer of the contest and the Severancemen were never headed. The Dukes tied the score once at 9-all, but from that point Villanova two - stepped away from the Pittsburghers to the tune of the "Hennessey Waltz." Lanky Larry used his fine assortment of jump shots and overhead sets 27 times during the course of the contest and connected 15 times from the field and had a perfect night at the free throw line, garnering 35 points all told.

39-30 Halftime Lead

With Hal Cerra and Carl Pacacha hitting from the outside, the Dukes gave a fair account of themselves during the first half. After 10 minutes of play the scoreboard lit up at 18 and 14. Coach Dudey Moore's proteges held up well under the Wildcats' withering fire and at intermission a fairly good battle was still in progress, Villanova leading, 39-30.

The second half must have been a nightmare for the visitors. Hennessey continued to set the scoring pace, but he was ably assisted by Mooney, Sam Glassmire and Tom Brennan. The fiery Glassmire drove through time and again to rack up 18 points, his high watermark for the season. Mooney dumped 18 counters through the hoop and Brennan contributed 14. This same duo completely dominated the backboard play, each man dragging down 16 spent shots.

Dukes Foul Early

In an effort to halt the rampaging Wildcats, Duquesne's Manning Cerra and Kuzma each incurred four personal fouls before 10 minutes of playing time had elapsed in the second half. Cerra bore the scoring burden for the losers with 24 points.

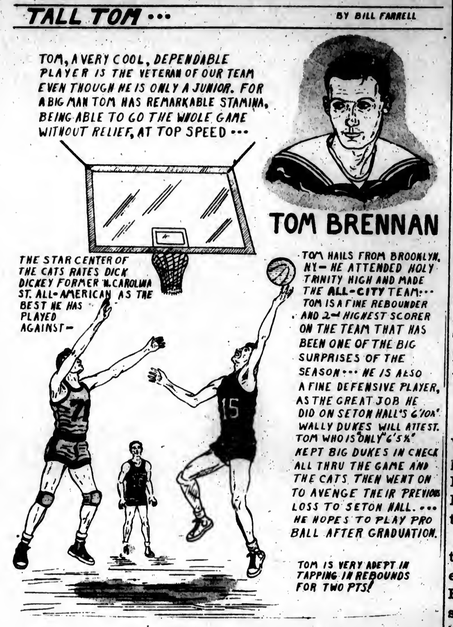
By defeating Duquesne, the Main Liners boosted their season's record to 22 wins and served notice on the powers-that-be that they have not abandoned hope for displaying their talents in tournament competition. For the second time within a week Villanova had conquered a tournament prospect, Seton Hall being the previous victim.

In the opening game of the Saturday night twin-bill, Coach Howie Dallmar's Pennsylvanians gained an overtime decision from Georgia Tech. The Quakers, trailing by 20 points early in the second half, rallied remarkably to tie it at 75-75 at the end of the regulation game, Ernie Beck led the Penn scoring with 23, and Don Scanlon provided the extra-period punch to give the Red and Blue a well-deserved 83-77 win.

Wildcats Avenge Defeat To Hall With 67-61 Win

The Wildcats of Villanova struck back with vengeance on the eve of Washington's Birthday and clawed a six-point triumph from the hands of their one-time conquerors, Seton Hall, 67 to 61. This 21st victory in 25 games for the Blue and White moved them closer to the tournament bid that was never extended to last year's "Uninvited."

It was evident during the Cats' recent three game slump that Larry Hennessey's scoring is a must, and the uncanny soph obliged at the Hall's expense, contributing 30 points with his usual assortment of sets and jump shots.



Iron Man Stunt

Villanova, for the second time this year, pulled the Iron Man stunt as Coach Severance allowed his starting five to play the entire contest. Ben Stewart, returning to the starting line-up, did a fine job of rebounding. Jim Mooney recorded five of his six field goals in the first half to keep the Cats even until Hennessey stopped forcing his shots and began to hit. Tom Brennan tallied nine points and threw a blanket over the Pirates gigantic Walter Dukes. "Good Sam" Glassmire, the incomparable ball-handler, once again startled his taller opponents.

"Honey" Russell's quintet opened the game with Dukes on the bench, as though they were determined to repeat their two-week old 71-54 mauling of Villanova at South Orange.

Gain Intermission Lead

The Pirates jumped off to an early lead and then contented themselves with scoring on even terms with the Wildcats until the insertion of Sir Walter. At this point, the stock of the Main Liners rose rapidly, in contrast to the earlier fray, Seton Hall could not pull away. Instead the Wildcats moved to a five-point spread at the intermission, upped that to a dozen midway in the second half and coasted home on a semi-freese.

SPORTLIGHT

By Ray Keats

Big Question on Campus: Why wasn't Villanova included in the National Invitation Tournament's seemingly all-inclusive list of 16 top-flight cage quintets? That's easy. Just as the name implies, the N.I.T. is an invitational affair. It is by no means a contest between the nation's league or district champions. Selection of contestants is entirely at the discretion of the tournament's moguls. Need we say more?

Big Man on Campus: Within the past two weeks, a bright new star appeared in Villanova's track constellation, Fred Dwyer. The slight sophomore speedster first hit the headlines at the NAAU Meet when he finished third behind Fred Wilt and John Twomey—the only collegian to score in that event. Dwyer rose to new heights when he captured the IC-4A mile in 4:16.2, running the mile for only the second time this season. These two performances promise even better fortune both for Fred himself and for Coach "Jumbo" Elliot's tracksters.

Al's "Characters": Remember what Coach Severance said at last year's testimonial convocation with regard to this year's basketball prospects? "It's going to be a character-building year," was the Magistrate's prediction. Al's proteges certainly haven't let him down—they've done a lot of character-building, especially for a certain cage quintet from down Carolina way!

First Signs of Spring: Sharp-eyed men about this Main Line institution can't help but notice that Spring is not far off. The birds and flowers have dropped to second place this year as signs of the balmy season. Even better indications are the departure of Maje McDonald for the Phillies baseball camp and Wildcat gridders trotting to and from the Field House in preparation for Spring practice.

INTRA-MURALS

In a week cut short by varsity games and holidays, only four games were played in I-M Leagues.

Among the dayhops the Rawheebs came from behind a 20-22 halftime deficit to outlast the Hawks 36-32. McHugh of the losers was high man with 20 counters, while Hill hit for 19 for the Rawheebs.

With every man hitting in the double figures, led by Natiello and Maddona with 18, the Doms produced one of the highest totals of the season, an 81-28 massacre of Good Counsel.

"B" League

In the B League, the Barracks pulled out a 42-32 decision over the Hotshots. Irish led the way with 12, while Selgrath and Wise contributed 11 each.

The Ramblers held off a last period rally by the Barracks 2 & 3, to pull a 49-41 victory out of the fire. Egizio and McDonough led the Ramblers with 16 and 14, respectively, but Graziano of the losers dunked in 12 deuces and three charity tosses to take one man honors with 27.

Navy Fires Penn, Fifth In Hearst, Valley Forge Wins

Riflemen of the college NROTC Unit have split on their last two matches. After taking a shoulder-to-shoulder from the midshipmen of the U. of Penn, they dropped one to the Cadets of Valley Forge.

Results of the annual William Randolph Hearst match showed that the Navymen placed fifth of 88 teams entered this year. They were entered in the NROTC division of the competition.

Travel To Wayne

In a four position match Villanova found a 922, of the possible 1000, enough to top Penn's 904. Traveling to Valley Forge in Wayne, they lost 1349 to 1321.

The Unit at Villanova has tried for a good team ever since entering the new range in Barry Hall four years ago. This season the team under the coaching of Sgt. Despeghal, U.S.M.C., has looked better than at any time within that period.

Compete With Colleges

Led by two veterans of the range, Captain Frank Haskins and Ed Burke, the team faces a full season of S.T.S. matches with Temple, Pennsylvania, Drexel and other locals, plus postals with colleges all over the country.

The Hearst match, one of the country's foremost inducements to rifle practice, was taken by the midshipmen from the University of Washington with 947. Villanova scored a fair 919, following Notre Dame, Columbia and the University of Texas. A second team from Villanova placed 31st.

Burke Is High Man

In the match with Pennsylvania, at home, the 922 was only an average score for the team. Burke was high man for the day with 187 out of a possible 200. Fanelli, R. Smith, Clanto, and D. Smith made the top five counting scores. Pennsylvania with a poor 904 has fallen victim to the Villanova five consistently for the past two years.

Valley Forge has long offered a hot team in rifle competition. In fact the Cadets have always been a thorn in the side of the Midshipmen. In two pre-season matches, however, the midshipmen have been able to turn the tables and on that basis it looked as if they might take the Cadets again last Wednesday.

Fire Forge Again

The Cadets took the day easily by twenty-eight points. The Forgers, with Arnold's 279 score, turned in good targets for the top five to score 1349. R. Smith, Muller, Haskins, Burke, and D. Smith all showed poor scores for Villanova.

The Midshipmen meet the Cadets again tomorrow at Villanova in the second of the home and home series.

PENN AND CAT HOOPSTERS HONORED

Fedigan Cager Holds All-Time I-M Record

It was just two years ago that a redhot Austin Hall quintet trampled Good Counsel 89-32. They were led to victory that night by a diminutive Sophomore named Bill Lemmer who poured 23 field goals and 10 free tosses thru the meshes for an amazing 56 point total, a record that still stands in Intra-Mural competition.

Today Bill Lemmer, as a senior, is proving that his big night was no fluke. To date he is averaging better than 12 points per game, playing in the raiment of the Fedigan Big Five in the very fast Class A League. His 16 counters were the highest individual tally against the Alumni Toppers, who just nosed out the Big Five for the first half crown. A 56-45 setback at the hands of the tall Toppers was their only loss after impressive victories over the Barracks Barons, the Doms, Mendel, and the Austin Crows, in which games they rolled up an average of 64 points per.

BILL LEMMER

Grid Quarterback

Hailing from St. Ambrose High in Ironwood, Mich, the versatile Lemmer quarterbacked the Wildcat 150-pound gridmen thru two of their most successful seasons, one of which culminated in the winning of the League Championship.

Along with Lemmer, the Big Five boast the services of Chuck McGuckin, All-Scholastic from Chaminade High in Long Island, who will display his abilities for the Wildcats on the diamond this spring, along with Red Wright, varsity catcher, and second highest point producer for the Fedigan quintet. Red set a high school scoring record while playing at Providence, R. I.

Well Balanced

The height on the outfit is supplied by Tom Brennan, 6'3" pivotman from the Bronx, and Tom Reismeier, an even six feet tall, who calls Altoona his home.

Rounding out a well balanced squad are Jack Loughlin, play maker who hails from Philly, and Bob McEntee, who threw in 24 counters against the Barracks, to boast the highest individual performance for the squad thus far.

Impressive Start

Starting off the second half of the season, the Big Five looked very impressive in a 50-44 victory over a hard fighting Barracks quintet. They wish to serve notice to everyone in general, and the Toppers in particular, that they have their eye on that crown. And five determined men are hard to stop.

Belle Air Meets Deadline; Publisher Gets Final Copy

M'William's Theme: 'Villanova Education'

The 1951 Belle Air met its final copy deadline last Friday. All material for the sports and activities sections of the yearbook was presented to the publisher for processing and printing.

Following several nights of feverish, last-minute editing the eight months of steady work involved in the compilation of the college annual was completed. The first half of the book was finished shortly before the Christmas vacation.

Editor Thanks Staff

Ray MacWilliams, Editor of the Belle Air, expressed his gratitude to his staff, the faculty and student body for their assistance in the photography and the collection of the data necessary for the completion of the book.

Format of the book has been varied somewhat this year to conform with the Theme: "A Villanova Education." The opening section of 1951 Belle Air will contain an introduction and explanation of the theme along with a spread on the administrative officers of the college.

The remainder of the book is divided to demonstrate the three facets of a Villanova education: Veritas, Unitas, Caritas. The first division incorporates the schools, classes and faculty pictures into one unified whole.

Second division of the Belle Air is concerned with the athletic endeavors of the college varsity teams and full coverage of intramural athletics. Final section of the book is devoted to the extra-curricular activities of various campus organizations and clubs. Dances, Junior-Week and other features are also included in this latter section.

Ads Still Needed

The Business staff of the yearbook is still working hard to obtain the necessary advertisements to finance the high cost of publication. Anyone interested in placing an ad in the Belle Air may do so by contacting the Business Manager, Barry Gibbons, c/o 1951 Belle Air, Villanova College, Villanova, Pennsylvania.

cept that the euphonium has two bells instead of one. Williams uses three, working in conjunction with the trumpet section.

Aside from the fact that Williams has no two-headed men to play his three euphoniums, the bandleader blends their golden tones into smooth danceable music.

Music Is Danceable

In his own words Williams describes his "Golden Echos Music" as, "not commercial, not ultra-progressive, more of a danceable medium between the extremes of Kay and Kenton."

Several of Buddy Williams latest releases can now be heard on the Pie Shop juke box.

Next Speaker Holds D.D.

Fr. Regan, who will speak next Sunday, is one of the newer members of the College faculty. Also a Villanova graduate, and a Doctor of Divinity from Catholic University, the taught for 17 years at the Augustinian Theological School in Washington, D. C., before coming to Villanova last September.

Other scheduled Pre-Cana lectures are: March 11, "The Psychology of the Sexes", by Fr. Regan; and March 18, "A Catholic Physician Looks at Marriage," by Dr. James P. Quindlen, of Temple University School of Medicine.

Representatives Are Reappointed

Campus Merchandising Bureau, Inc., of New York, has just reappointed representatives for Chesterfield cigarettes.

Bill Lemmer and Frank Gobes continued their activities for Chesterfield after having worked for the fall semester. This reappointment will be good until the end of the school year in June.

Dave Jones, a resident Junior, will continue in his position as representative for Camel cigarettes. Jones was hired in October for the entire school year.

Import of Catholic Education Stressed

NFCCS Congress At Rosemont Hears Stewart Lynch

Rosemont College played host to more than 200 students representing eight schools at the third annual congress of the National Federation of Catholic College Students.

The guest speaker was Stewart Lynch, president of the National Council of Catholic Men. His topic, "What I Would Do If I Were A Catholic College Student in 1951" coincided with the theme of the congress which dealt with the reason for a Catholic education.

Stresses Balance

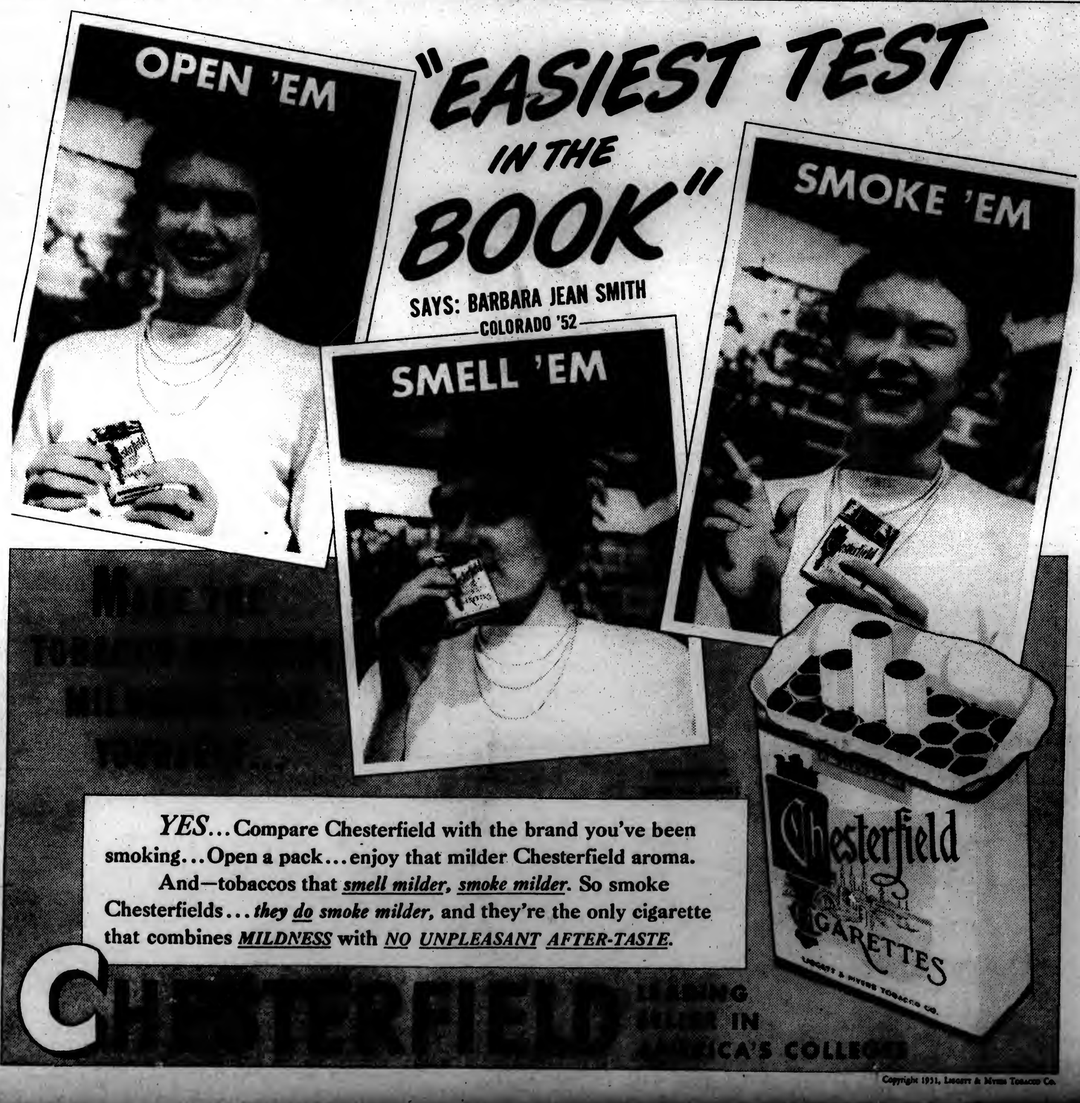
Mr. Lynch stressed the importance of balance of religious and secular education to the "country, community, family and final destiny with God."

Villanova sent 14 registered representatives to the meeting including Tom Abrahams, the regional publicity director, and Shane Creamer, who was co-chairman of the panel on Co-Curricular Activties. Joe Hall, Tom Fucigna and Dan O'Connell were members of this panel which resolved that there should be a greater co-operation of faculty and student in regard to these activities.

Award to Former Senator

High point of the entire session was the presentation of an award to former Senator Francis J. Meyers of Pennsylvania for his "leadership as a Catholic layman in the Legislature and in Catholic life." Miss Jean Morrissey, a senior at Immaculata College, presened the plaque to Sen. Meyers. It was the first award of its type given by the NFCCS.

Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., moderator of Villanova student activities, Rev. Dr. Edward M. Reilly, superintendent of parochial schools in the Philadelphia Archdiocese, and Robert Lanigan, executive secretary of the NFCCS in Washington, also spoke during the all-day activities.



Miss Joan Egan of Rosemont presided over the congress which was represented by Villanova, Rosemont, Chestnut Hill, Gwynedd Mercy, Immaculata, Manor, St. Joseph's and LaSalle.

DELEGATES TO NFCCS Congress were mostly female, as the picture shows. However, the girls weren't the only attraction to 14 Villanovans who heard Stewart Lynch address the third NFCCS regional congress.

Last Week Rehearsals Set 'Great Big Doorstep' Stage

Sitting on the "Great Big Doorstep" about which the Belle Masque production centers, are three of the players. Bob Resnick, center, plays the part of Commodore Crochet, the leading character. His two loving children are Bob Quinn, as Fleece, and Barbara Birman as Edna. Play dates are March 14, 15, 16.

With the fourteenth of March marking the opening night for Belle Masque's spring production "The Great Big Doorstep" the cast has swung into high gear for last week of rehearsals.

With Rev. Wm. Krupa, O.S.A., director, putting the players through their paces there is an assurance that the play will receive the same plaudits which greeted it in 1942 when it was acclaimed by the New York critics as one of the finest comedies of the season. That year it played to capacity houses at the Morosco Theater on Broadway.

Resnick in Head Role

Recently it was seen on television and received the same rave notices.

Lead character is a lazy but comical Southener, Commodore Crochet. Bob Resnick will be seen in that role, while oppos.te him will be Kathy Rowan as Mrs. Crochet. Both of these performers were mentioned in previous issues and their acting ability is well known to all who have been present at the recent Belle Masque productions.

Other Characters

The Crochets have two sons and three daughters all of whom have interesting and important roles as the plot unfolds. The three daughters, Topal, Evvie and Edna are played in that or-

Fr. O'Mahoney Dies; Served Order For Almost 70 Years

Death last Friday ended the career of Villanova's oldest alumnus, Rev. Daniel J. O'Mahoney, O.S.A., whose life of 94 years witnessed growth of this college from its earlier years.

Believed to be the oldest Augustinian priest in the world, Fr. O'Mahoney would have celebrated his seventieth year in the Order next June. His death occurred after an illness at Our Lady Help of Christians Convalescent Home in West Philadelphia.

Carried Shillelagh

Known to most present-day students as a spry, slight old priest whose agility belied his age, Fr. O'Mahoney was perhaps most distinguished by the sturdy shillelagh he always carried while walking around campus. A friendly man, he willingly discussed the years of Villanova history and tradition that he had witnessed firsthand.

"Father Dan" to many of his associates, he achieved the mixture of respect and affection ideal in a priestly life. An ardent

OLDEST ALUMNUS DIES

Senior Drive For St. Johns Has Slow Start

Class Approves New Council Tax Measure

The scholarship drive for the St. John's Orphanage has received less than a quarter of the required donations. All seniors have been called upon to donate at least a part of their breakage fees for the cause.

This unprecedented drive was the main topic of discussion at the meeting of the Senior class last Thursday evening. The new Student Council tax plan was approved and the dinner-dance was discussed. Entertainment and refreshments followed.

Breakage Fee to Make Goal

Sponsored by the class of 1951, now seniors, the scholarship drive has a goal of $5000. With the breakage fees varying from $30 to $35, such an ideal is easily within reach of the class which numbers over four hundred. However, unless the members of the class give more attention to it, the goal will never be realized.

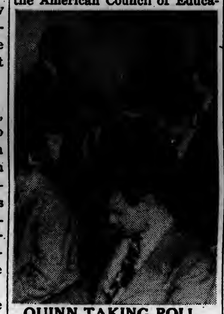
Joseph Rugo, President of the class, told the class of the importance of the plan. "The entire class was behind the plan when suggested at the last meeting," he said, "but they have not followed through with that promise."

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., College President, has already agreed to the scholarship fund which would send one boy from St. John's in Philadelphia to Villanova each year.

Unanimous Approval on Plan

When the new plan, suggested by the Student Council, was brought before the meeting in Commerce and Finance Auditorium the entire group expressed unanimous approval. A tax upon all student-run activities in the Field House has been brought up at the last Council meeting. It calls for a two percent tax upon the net proceeds. This would mean that the Council would have a regular financial income for the first time.

Rugo mentioned that the menu had been settled for the class dinner-dance scheduled for June 2. He felt quite certain, he said, "that the tickets for the affair will not exceed $7.50."



Following the business of the meeting two movies were shown. The films covered football and boxing events of the past. Cokes and hoagies were provided as refreshments after the entertainment.

Tabulation Of Poll Now Being Checked

Dean To Present Results of Query To American Education Meeting

Approximately 2000 student opinion questionnaires, distributed last week by the VILLANOVAN, are now being tabulated so that results can be published in this paper's edition next Tuesday.

tion meeting in Washington, D. C., March 19 and 20.

Compiled By Quinn

Authorized by College President, Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., the poll included questions concerning student-opinion on acceleration, military training, and other national affairs affecting college students.

Compiled by staff member Robert J. Quinn, the ten-question poll was distributed Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week to a large percentage of the student body in all 35 religion classes.

Ninety Percent Polled

Staff members and volunteers had made only preliminary tabulations by deadline time for this publication, but Quinn expected that results would show about 90% of the entire student body was polled.

As the poll came to an end last Friday, Quinn expressed thanks to the administration and students who cooperated with the VILLANOVAN project. Professors Patrick J. Dougherty and Hugh Johnson of the C&F school aided in compiling questions on the poll. Non-staff volunteers who aided in distribution and tabulation were James Selgrath, Robert Semmer, Frank Garvey, Thomas Briody, Harry Caputo, Tony Tranelli and Thomas Fucigna.

Fr. Robt. Regan Gives Cana Talk On Next Sunday

"Psychology of the Sexes" will be the third lecture of Villanova's 1951 Pre-Cana Conference to be delivered next Sunday at 3:00 p. m. in C&F auditorium.

Scheduled to give this talk is Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A., moderator of the conference series. This will be the second talk of the current series to be given by Father Regan.

More Than 200 Expected

To date the Pre-Cana Conference lectures have been well attended. Last Sunday more than two hundred students listened to Father Regan's talk on "Choosing a Life Mate" and even more are expected at this coming session.

Any Villanova student is qualified to attend these lectures. Contrary to past policy, students need not be engaged or contemplating marriage in order to hear these talks.

Former Washington Prof.

Father Regan, next Sunday's speaker, graduated from Villanova and went to Catholic University where he earned a Doctor of Divinity Degree. Before coming to this college in September of 1950, he spent 17 years teaching at the Augustinian Theological School in Washington, D. C.

There is only one lecture remaining in this year's Pre-Cana Conference series. The fourth and final talk will be given March 18 by Dr. James P. Quindlen of Temple University School of Medicine. His topic will be "A Catholic Doctor Looks at Marriage."

Watch for next week's edition of the VILLANOVAN with results of the student opinion poll.

"Big Doorstep" Set Brings Bayous Here

By Bill O'Brien

Once more Jake Krupa, set designer for "The Great Big Doorstep," has proven his worth to the Belle Masque Dramatic Society.

Assisted by stage manager Tom Hayden, he has successfully duplicated the settings which ornamented the stage of the Morosco Theater in New York where the play was originally presented.

On the left stands a decaying old shack whose paint, if it ever had any, has long since been washed away by the rains and bleached by the relentless sun. The warped slats of the house, many of which have sprung loose from their moorings regardless of the anchoring nails, have taken on that dull gray tint so common of weather-beaten wood. The roof is a maze of loose and missing shingles and, in truth, the only redeeming feature of the entire edifice is its immaculate white doorstep. It is this very same doorstep about which the play and the lives of the characters revolve.

Spanish Moss and Rickety Chairs

Before the house is a rickety set of table and chairs. Hanging over these and to the right is a sprawling orange tree whose gnarled limbs drip with Spanish moss but are otherwise sparsely vegetated.

On the extreme right there is a clump of wildly growing bullrushes which sway to and fro in the light breeze. These bullrushes serve as a background for a love seat from which the elements have chipped much of the white paint.

The difficulty of this feat can readily be appreciated when one realizes that the stage crew, besides depicting the realism of life in the Louisiana Bayou country, had also to produce a setting capable of lending itself to the technical details of the play.

supporter of things Gaelic, he often lectured on Ireland in his earlier years. He is even credited with introducing the celebration of St. Patrick's Day to the Philippine Islands, where he labored almost fifty years ago.

Born In 1856

Fr. O'Mahoney was born in Smithtown, Long Island, May 27, 1856, fourteen years after Villanova College came into existence. During his early youth he traveled with his parents to Ireland, and caught the spirit that made him throughout life an ardent representative of the "Land of Saints and Scholars."

Returning to America at the age of fifteen, with a brogue and a deep love for his "old country", he lived in Lawrence, Mass. for three years before entering Villanova.

His registration as a philosophy student in 1874 marked the beginning of a carrer that saw his college grow from four early buildings to the present extensive campus facilities. Only one of these buildings, Alumni Hall, still remains standing. When a Villanova freshman, Fr. O'Mahoney called it the New College Hall.

Ordained In 1881

At the age of 25, he added O.S.A. to his name permanently when ordained by Bishop Shanahan on June 11, 1881. The following day he said his first Mass at Old Saint Augustine's Church in Philadelphia.

On first assignment the priest served as curate in the parish of Our Mother of Consoltation Church, Chestnut Hill, until 1902. At this time the American Army was occupying the Philippine Islands after the Spanish-American War, and Fr. O'Mahoney, with another Augustinian, Fr. McErlain, volunteered for duty in Manilla.

Conducted Student Retreats

During several years spent there, Fr. O'Mahoney worked in establishing a dormitory for native youngsters, and gathered a collection of native arms and weapons that was displayed in Mendel Hall before the fire of the early 30's.

Returning to the States in 1905, he joined the Augustinian Mission Band and received assignment to St. Mary's Church in Lawrence, Mass. The same year, and again in 1917, he conducted annual retreats for Villanova students.

Later in 1918, he returned to Philadelphia as pastor and prior of Old Saint Augustine's Church until his return to the Lawrence parish. For the past five years he had been in retirement, stationed at the Villanova Monastery.

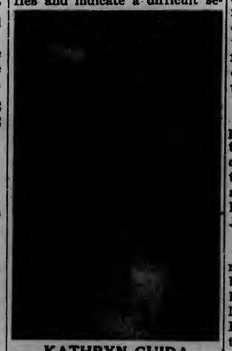
Funeral Held Today



Funeral services were to have taken place this morning at St. Mary's Church in Lawrence, the church where he was stationed many years durihg his life. He will be buried in the Church cemetery after a Requiem Mass.

Yesterday morning Rev. James Donnellon, O.S.A., prior of Villanova Monastery celebrated a Solemn Requiem Mass in the College Chapel, and priests of the community chanted Divine Office Sunday evening.

Father O'Mahoney is survived by a sister, Sister Julitta of the Sacred Heart, of the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur, Moylan, Pa.

Competition Proving Keen For Choice of J. W. Queen

Results of the first week of search for Queen of Junior Week showed competition keen — as the accompanying picture verifies and indicate a difficult selection for judges to make at the end of the contest April 30.

KATHRYN GUIDA

First Queen entrant, submitted by Monte Moschetta.

Pictures are now being submitted in small numbers, but many more are expected as the contest picks up interest. Entrants submitted early are eligile for publication in forthcoming editions of the paper in connection with contest publicity.

Chairman of Junior Week publicity Bob Roland announced two more prizes, an engraved compact and a bouquet of roses, to be presented to the Queen after she is crowned by bandleader Buddy Williams at the Junior Prom, May 4.

Others prizes and contest rules remain the same. Pictures may be submitted by mail or by leaving them in the VILLANOVAN office, C&F Basement. Entries must be accompanied by the information noted in this paper last week.

What's The Difference?

By JIM GRIFFIN

"What's the difference? My numbers up with the draft board anyway." Not an uncommon remark around campuses this semester, especially when the conversation turns to the subject of plans for the future.

Not Healthy

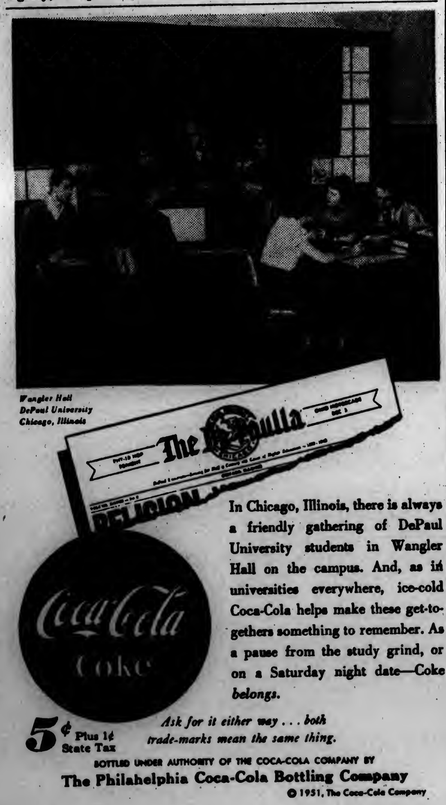
It arises undoubtedly from the confusion and uncertainty which surrounds the present crisis, and the atmosphere of futility which surrounds any attempt to make plans for the future. But it reflects an attitude which is not a healthy one from the viewpoint of society.

Individuals

For a Society such as ours is built upon each individual, and depends upon each individual locating himself the place in society where God wants him, i. e. where he can do the most good for society and for himself in his efforts toward his own salvation. It is not a healthy condition, therefore, when careless apathy for the future becomes widespread among the youth who must become the society of the future.

This Week

It is perhaps fortunate, then, that in the midst of the indifference towards the future which is dominating us at the present time, a National Vocation Week has been named to call our attentions to the importance of finding our proper vocations. Integrity, a power-packed little monthly, points out in its recent issue the importance of vocations to the progress of society.



Vital

And their real importance is hard to estimate. Indeed, how important is it to us whether the society of ten or twenty years from now will be equipped to survive within itself as well as without? Will there be enough leaders in politics, in business and most important of all in religion?

First Things First

And it should be the purpose of our present efforts to accelerate our progress in equipping ourselves as individuals for our own place in the world. This applies especially to anyone who has considered the priesthood as a vocation proper to himself. Priests in a continual flow are indispensible to the health of a society. It is obvious therefore that no one should feel the duty of military service as more urgent than that of fulfilling his own personal vocation if his vocation should be that of the priesthood. The same attitude applies to one who intends to make of himself a doctor, lawyer or anything else.

It is up to us, then, to combat the apathy which is sweeping through our age group. Vocations, of whatever kind, are worth all the effort they require, and therefore should not wilt before the prospect of a doubtful or an uncertain future.

Professor Morehouse, who has served in his present capacity as Dean since February, 1938, was awarded the Fellowship in recognition of outstanding accomplishments in the field of Engineering.

ASME Presentation

Presentation was made in the auditorium of the Edison Building, Philadelphia, by Mr. William Sheehan, Vice President of General Steel Casting Corporation.

The principal address was delivered by Dr. Gilbreth, foremost woman Professor of Engineering in the United States.

Approximately 700 members of the Society, including the Women's Auxiliary, ASME, were present at the ceremony.

Mr. Morehouse is a graduate of Stevens Tech, and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. For the past 30 years, he has been a member of the ASME, serving at various times on the National Honors and Awards Committee, National Nominating Committee, as Chairman of the National Agenda Committee, and Chairman of the Philadelphia Section, American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Fr. Donnellon, Chairman, Announces Drive's 2nd Phase

The Villanova stadium drive is entering its first test period as of now with the announcement calling for returns on the chances sold. A statement from Rev. James Donnellon, O.S.A., chairman of the drive, appealed to ticket salesmen to turn in their books as soon as possible.

Father Donnellon pointed out that this week opens the second, and more important, phase of the drive, the one which will decide the success or failure of the drive. Said Father Donnellon: "This second half is the making of returns . . . In most ways the more important half of the drive because it will indicate just how succesful our efforts are."

Many Books Distributed

A "reasonably large number of books" have been distributed among students, alumni and friends of the college during the first half of the drive, Father Donnellon reported.

The chairman thanked the students and others who have aided the drive by their cooperation. Speaking of those who have assisted the drive, he said, "The stadium will be a credit to them, and a proof that real Villanovans support the college's athletic program in a way that makes us more than a little proud."

Support Necessary

"All students and friends of Villanova should make a sincere effort to distribute these tickets as widely as possible. The stadium project is indeed a far-sighted one, but without loyal support in this first and indispensable step of fund-raising the entire effort may be jeopardized."

Students who have completed their sales of the chances are requested to make their returns to the office of Rev. Rev. Edward B. McKee, vice-president, Room 220 Mendel Hall, as soon as possible. "Return your stubs today, tomorrow, or next week. The sooner the better," urged the chairman.

NROTC Again Europe Bound

On their annual cruise this summer, Seniors and Sophomores of Villanova's NROTC unit will visit European ports. The Navy Department feels that the current war hysteria does not warrant a cancelation of these cruises.

The Senior-Sophomore cruise will extend from June 4 to July 27. In the past, Mediterranean cruises have included ports in France, Italy and Arila. This particular task force will be an imposing one. It will be composed of two battleships, a cruiser, eight destroyers and an LSD.

Two-fold Program for Juniors

Juniors will train from July 15 to August 3. These men will be involved in a two-fold program. They will learn the why and wherefore of the Naval Aviation Station of Pensacola, Florida, the Annapolis of the air. At little Creek, Virginia, the "Middies" will learn the rudiments of amphibious operations. They will make actual landings and have the various phases of these operations demonstrated to them.

Senior contract students will cruise the Carribbean from June 21 to July 13. These men who are making their first cruise for the Navy expect to stop at some of the tropical isles or Panama.

Marines Will Go to Virginia

Quantico, Virginia, is to be the scene for the summer labors of contract and Regular Marines. Here they will participate in battle problems and spend many hours on the rifle range. They will undergo all the rigors and discipline that are calculated to instill into them the qualities characteristic of the successful Marine officer. The training period for Seniors in the Marine Division will be from June 13 to August 10. Contract Marines are to train from June 15 to July 22.

Paul Arizin Basketball Trophies in Library Show

Exhibition on All-American's Awards Illustrates Latest Chapter in Story

TALL PAUL ARIZIN

Latest chapter in the saga of Tall Paul, Villanova's own "rags to riches" story in basketball setting, is now being illustrated in a Library display of the trophies won by Paul Arizin, All-American star of last season, during his Villanova basketball career.

The display, similar to the Library's display last year of track stars George Guida's and Browning Ross' trophies, will be exhibited in the show cases of the Library lobby.

Globetrotter Trophy Included

Included in the showing are the monstrous Globetrotter trophy awarded to Arizin as the outstanding college player of the team that toured with the Globetrotters last year.

Also shown are Arizin's Helms Foundation award and his Converse Basketball Company "Chuck Taylor" award for the most valuable player in the country during last season, and the Philadelphia Basketball writers award for the Most Valuable Player of the year.

Second Stringer Now Pro Star

Arizin, whose phenomenal rise from second stringer on La Salle high's team to All-American on the Villanova quintet, made basketball history, is now rookie star with the professional Philadelphia Warriors.

He is also attending several classes on campus, making up credits toward a B. S. degree in the Commerce and Finance school, that he lost when he switched from Engineering after two semesters.

The Library exhibit will be shown for about two weeks, according to Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., College Librarian.

NROTC Formal To Be Held April 13 At Roof Garden

The annual Spring Formal of the college NROTC unit will be held at the Adelphia Roof Garden, Philadelphia, Friday, April 13th. The official announcement of the date of the dance was made last week by William Breninghouse, chairman of the unit's recreation committee.

The affair will be the second formal dance of the year for the unit. The first was the annual fall formal held at the Penn Sheraton Hotel in November.

Zollo Retained for Dance

Leo Zollo and his orchestra has been retained by the recreation committee for the forthcomming dance, which the committee expects to be attended by more than three hundred couples.

Breninghouse pointed out that the affair will be free to all midshipmen of the NROTC unit and their dates, since it will be financed by the midshipmen's recreation fees.

The officers of the unit's recreation committee, in charge of the affair, in addition to Breninghouse, are: Louis Oberle, treasurer, and John Gloria, secretary.

Seniors majoring in Education and faculty members will attend program on "Visual and Audio Aids" in the armory of Barry Hall, Monday, March 12.

The object of the program is to stimulate teaching and teaching methods. There will be a display of many training devices including equipment for remedial reading. There will also be a demonstration of the Spitz Planetarium by a represenative of the Spitz Laboratories.

The program is sponsored by the Villanova Chapter of The American Association of University Professors and is co-sponsored by Dr. Alexander Goulet and Captain James R. McCormick, USN.

Navy Unit Aids In Govt. Survey

Midshipmen of the Villanova NROTC Unit participated in an instructional testing program sponsored by the Defense Department.

The research group which visited the campus are members of the Pennsylvania State College Instructional Research Program, and were headed by the top visual aid man of Australia.

Unit Divided Into Three

The Midshipmen of the unit were divided into three groups. These groups were shown training films and were then tested on the content of the films. This information will be combined with the results obtained from testing various age levels. The result will be invaluable to the Armed Forces in the conduct of their training programs.

The project here was headed by Mr. Hersh of the faculty of Stanford University. His assistants were Dr. Jaspen and Mr. Yormak of Pennsylvania State College.

BONNIES WHIP CATS IN OVERTIME; TWO TRIBES IN TOWN THIS WEEK

Mainliners Close Season This Week With W & M, Siena

By George Scanlon

The Wildcats bring the current basketball season to a close this week, facing two formidable foes, William and Mary tomorrow night, and highly-rated Siena Saturday night. The Cats must win those two in order to keep their faint tourney hopes alive.

Tomorrow night the Palestra will play host to the Rebel William and Mary quintet. The Indians sport a mediocre record, but are considered a dangerous opponent as they have some impressive wins, such as an eleven point victory over North Carolina State.

Competition For Cats

Their offense is led by three fine court men. Bitsy Lewis is a driving guard who should give Sam Glassmire a busy evening. A devastating hook shot will be seen in the hands of six-foot plus Gerry Harris. W&M's fine outside man is Joe Agee who also shines on defense. The Cats can expect plenty of competition from these Rebel stars.

The Blue and White will have their hands full with a fine Siena team in the season's finale. The upstate New Yorkers, coached by Dan Cunha, have an impressive 19-6 record which hasn't been padded with weak teams.

The Indians scored victories over Saint Bonaventure, Seton Hall, both of whom possess wins over Al Severance's men, Loyola, Texas A&M, and Georgetown.

Defending CIT Champs

Defending Catholic Tourney champs who had a 27-5 card last season, Siena is fortunate to have leading scorer, Bill Harrell, in uniform this year. The sparkplug of the Indians, he has tremendous spring which accounts for his great backboard play.

The lithe Negro holds an assortment of Siena records and registered over 300 points as a sophomore last year. His speed, feinting ability, and a variety of shots will be looked for come Saturday night.

Out To Avenge 1942

In the Indians' fourteen seasons the most decisive defeat ever administered to the New Yorkers was dealt them by Villanova in 1942, by a 62-36 count. Siena will be trying to reverse the final reading of that game with their top-notch 1950-51 edition.

Billy Harrell isn't the only fine ballplayer Coach Cucha has, as Captain Dave Torncello is rated right along with Harrell. Torncello is an excellent shot on the run and is a deadly set shot artist.

The defensive standout on the squad is Charlie Robinson who is also the team's leading playmaker. Robenson will receive the job of leeching to Larry Hennessey.

Leading Rebounders

In the rebound department the Siena five is one of the nation's leaders. With Glenn

Cat Trackmen Score At KofC, Spike Shoe Meets

Two tracks meets—one for the varsity in New York and the other for the frosh at Franklin Field — kept Villanova's thinclad tracksters busy this past weekend.

The Knights of Columbus meet at Madison Square Garden, witnessed two second place finishes for the Wildcats, besides seeing Fred Wilt finally beat Don Gehrmann in the one mile run.

Browne Shades Dwyer

Fred Dwyer, the spunky little sophomore who proudly wears the IC4A mile crown, came within three yards of taking the McIntyre 1000-yard run. Roscoe Browne of the Pioneer Club had no easy time in taking the race as he and Dwyer waged a grueling last-lap battle all the way down to the tape. Fred was timed at 2:12.0. Browne had to do 2:11.9 and set a new meet record to take the measure of the hard running Wildcat.

The mile relay also was second behind the crack Seton Hall quartet. Running with Joe McCreary, Jim Reardon, Pete Simigan and Jim McKenna, they were a scant four yards away from the winners. Seton Hall in winning did 3:18.7 and broke the existing meet record of 3:19.7. Villanova, placing second also broke the old mark.

'Cats Score At Penn Meet

The other meet of the weekend was the fifth annual Penn Spiked Shoe Club Meet. The track events were held on the board oval so the frightful weather conditions which hampered the field events men underfoot didn't have too much effect on the runners.

Jim Mollen of Villanova won the 60-yard hurdles race easily in the time of 08.3 beating Warren Shaw of Temple. Mollen won the high school hurdles event at this meet last year when he was competing for West Chester High School.

Bart Moynahan, a product of Peekskill, New York was third in the 1000-yard run. This race was run in sections, the final being decided by a time basis.

Football Game In Allentown

Villanova's wandering Wildcats have found a new "home" field for next season's game with the Nittany Lions of Penn State.

The College Board of Atnletic Control announced today that Villanova has obtained permission to use the Allentown High School Stadium for the afternoon game on October 6th.

Seats 25,000

Completed two years ago, the stadium is located in the west end of the city. With a seating capacity of over 25,000 it is one of the most spacious schoolboy arenas in the country. Since this is a home game for the Main Liners the Athletic Board was hardpressed to provide a suitable site for one of the biggest games in the East during the season.

Hershey Field was the first site considered, but because of the proximity and size of the Allentown field, negotiations were opened with the high school officials, who quickly gave permission. The field is also used by Muhlenberg College for their home games.

Within Easy Reach

Allentown is about 50 miles north of here and can be easily reached either by public or private means of transportation. The Liberty Bell route provides a train direct from Norristown to Allentown and the Reading and Greyhound bus lines run hourly buses from Philadelphia.

Severancemen Suffer Serious Setback, 74-69

Hennessey Gets 23 For Losers; Penn Unable To Halt Columbia

By Bob Forsyth

The Villanova Wildcats suffered a most stinging reversal in their arduous trek up the path of glory when they were upended 74-69 in overtime, by a determined crew from St. Bonaventure last Saturday night at the Palestra.

Bonnies Off Fast

A throng of 8,551 stormed the 34th St. arena to witness the doubleheader which featured, in addition to the Villanova - St. Bonnie fracas, a heroic but fruitless assault by Penn on Columbia's unbeaten record. After the Lions from Moringside Heights had subdued Penn's revitalized upstarts by a 63-58 count, the spectators hoped for an interesting, but less pulse-pounding, second game. The Bonnies, however, quickly discounted this hope by leaping off to an 8-0 lead, thereby informing all that they did not journey down from Olean, N. Y. to be cannon fodder for the rampaging Wildcats.

Cats Take Lead

Paced by Larry Hennessey, who scored 16 of his 23 markers in the first half, the Mainliners quickly wiped out this lead. But the Cats could do no better than this and had to settle, after 20 minutes of play, for a slim 33-32 advantage. The second half continued in the same dog-eat-dog fashion for five minutes when suddenly the Cats caught fire and, with Benny Stewart taking up the faltering Hennessey's slack, they jumped to a 51-44 lead, the largest point spread of the contest after the Bonnies' opening splurge.

This was the psychological moment for the visitors to crack but they obstinately refused to do so. They reformed their deliberate weaving and screening attack and, with Fred Dieute and Bill Kenville hitting from close-up, assumed a 59-58 lead with four minutes to go. The 'Cats were behind until the closing seconds when twice they tied the game up on foul shots by Glassmire and Gepp, the last one sending the contest into overtime.

Bonnies Cash In

For the first minute of the overtime the Mainliners were the aggressors, firing six shots at the basket without hitting. The Bonnies finally gained possession and scored in a few seconds. That was the familiar straw that broke the exhausted Wildcats and, in their hysterical anxiety to rebound, they made mistakes which the calculating Bonnies converted into points.

In the final tabulation after the smoke had cleared, Hennessey emerged as the top scorer with 23 points followed by Glassmire and Stewart with 12 each. The visitors attack, fundamentally well-balanced due to liberal substitution throughout the game, was paced by Kenville, Dieute and Sassone with 18, 14 and 13 points respectively. The shooting percentages of both teams left a lot to be desired, but in this department the Bonnies were superior which was the story of the ball game.

Cagers Trounce Geneva, 73-51, in Wed. Game

The Blue and White of Villanova, easing up against mediocre opposition, nevertheless handed its monthly trouncing to Geneva College at the Palestra Wednesday evening, 73 to 51. While recording their 23rd triumph of the season, the Wildcats hoisted their winning margin over the Coventers by a point — having whipped the western Pennsylvania school by 21 points a month ago on the latter's court.

26 for Hennessey

Larry Hennessey, who notched 11 field goals and four of his six free throws, again set the scoring pace. By hooping 26 points, the New Rochelle marksman chalked up his fourth consecutive 25-point plus game. The "Bushman of the Backboards", Steve Gepp, tallied 11 markers and snared seven rebounds in 10 minutes to rate just behind Hennessey for the Mainline accolades. For Geneva, Al Vlasic hooked in 20 points from his pivot shot.

The 'Cats opened slowly and went scoreless until Jim Mooney dropped two shots through the cords at the four minute mark. Gaining the lead six minutes later, they walked off the court at half-time with a 32 to 26 lead. At the start of the second period the Blue and White set about increasing that margin. This they did easily as Hennessey, Mooney, Ben Stewart, and finally Gepp took turns looping in the two-pointers.

31 Fouls Called

The contest was a unique one, considering the trend toward a body contact court game, with only 31 fouls being called. No misplays at all were called in the first eight minutes.

The Penn Glee Club entertained at half-time of the Red and Blue-Notre Dame affair, won by Howie Dallmar's quintet. The intermission festivities of the nightcap consisted of a pick-up game among the Wildcat reserves with Dannie Gallagher tossing up his half-court hook on frequent occasions.

TWO ST. BONAVENTURE defenders try to frustrate a scoring attempt by Villanova's Benny Stewart in last Saturday's game at the Palestra.

Midshipmen Top District, Phila. Coll.; Forge Wins

NROTC riflemen let honor get the best of them last week. After receiving word that the team had taken first place in competition with six Fourth Naval District teams, they dropped their second match in a row to Valley Forge and topped Philadelphia College of Pharmacy with a poor score.

Having won in their own Naval District, the Midshipmen will go into the National Matches along with Pennsylvania, second place team, to represent the District. Villanova won with a 7491 in an eleven stage match. Pennsylvania was second with 7334 and Penn State, Miami University (Oxford, Ohio), and Ohio State followed in that order. Louisville was disqualified.

Each member of the team will receive a medal in recognition of the match.

Drop Another

The Cadets from Valley Forge again rode over the Navymen last week as they had done the week before. They won 1363 to 1353. Even though Muller and Burke of Villanova were high with 278's, the rest of the team was deep in a slump. R. Smith, Gobes and Denny had poor scores to show for the rest of the five high. Cadet high was 277.

The match was fired in the range of John Barry Hall, Wednesday.

Thursday, the slump was still on when the team travelled to the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. However the opposition they met that day was not good at all. Villanova took the match 1295 to 1253.

Frosh Fires High

Mueller, a freshman in the Unit, and hottest marksman to join the club in recent years, was again high man for the match. His 263 was, however, fifteen points poorer than the day before. R. Smith, D. Smith, Burke, and Haskins made up the remainder of the counting five in that order.

St. Despeghal, USMC, team coach is a bit concerned over the slump in which he has found a good many of the riflemen for the past two weeks. Veterans like Haskins, team captain, Denny Metcalfe and Gobes have shown little of the form they had in the fall.

Improvement Needed

In future weeks they will see stiff competition in matches with Penn, Temple and Drexel. These will be shoulder-to-shoulder encounters. Besides there will be postal matches each week. "They will have to show a little improvement in the future if they are to come out of the season with a good record," Sgt. Despeghal said.

INTRAMURALS

The Alumni Toppers kept rolling along their undefeated way as they breezed to a 75-49 victory over the Swishers. Big Larry O'Hearn led the scoring for the Toppers with 25 points. Maffie put forth the best efforts for the losers with 17.

The Doms brought their second half ledger to .500 with a 45-31 decision over the Berrypickers, as Nattiello led the way with 12.

O'Malley Scores 32

Bob O'Malley cut the cords to the tune of 32 points for the week's high individual tally to lead the Firehouse Five to a big 61-34 win over the Knights. His scoring came on 14 deuces and 4 charity tosses. Quinn was high man for the Knights with 13.

Roesgan's 20 counters weren't enough to stop the Austin Hayseeds from triumphing over his Swishers by a score of 51-35 last Thursday. Brosnan and Faffie led the Hayseeds with 16 and 15 respectively.

McGowan, Homan, and Cullen collaborated for 49 points to lead the Caps, winner of the first half B League crown to a 65-40 conquest of the Hotshots. Dillon paced the Hotshots with 13.

Quints Upset Stars

The Fedigan Quints, led by McCune and Scott, unleashed a terrific second half rally to gain a big victory over the Barracks Stars 64-32, in the first of the week's C League action.

Quense tallied 17 to lead the Alumni Pistons to a 55-22 win over the Barracks 2&3, and Dent's 21 point effort went to no avail as the Refugees bowed 40-30 to the Barracks No. 1.

Wildcats Drop Two

The Wildcats figured in both of the National League games but both times they came out on the wrong end of the score. The Engineers were the first to turn the trick 37-28, and then the Hawks came thru with a 26-20 decision. Stuart, of the Wildcats was high man in the former contest with 16, while Neville led the Hawks with 13 in the latter.

In the American League, the Furriers rolled up a 23-9 halftime score and then coasted to a 40-25 victory over the Black Flames. Brown connected for 16 to pace the winners.

INTRAMURAL RULES

An addition to the Intramural Constitution concerning varsity athletes was approved by the Intramural Council at their semi-monthly meeting.

"Not more than one-half of any Intramural squad shall be composed of members of a varsity team. Following is the maximum number of these varsity players who may be in action simultaneously for any Intramural squad in the different sports.

American Marketing Assn Holds Field Trip, Luncheon

Visit Bell Telephone and Stock Exchange

Villanova's affiliate of the American Marketing Association, a national association for the advancement of science in marketing, had its first field trip yesterday. The local chapter was formed late last year and has been very active this year. Several lecturers and movies have been brought to this campus by the Student Marketing Club.

Included in the all day affair were visits to three major places of interest to the 75 business students who made the trip. They were the Bell Telephone Business Office of Philadelphia, the Philadelphia-Baltimore Stock Exchange and the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

Luncheon Held

A luncheon was held at the Homestead Rest about 1:30 P. M. Mr. Edmund Mennis, Security Analyst for the Wellington Mutual Fund, was the speaker. Arrangements for the luncheon were made by Bert Sellier, President of the Student Marketing Club of Villanova.

These field trips are designed to accomplish the same things as Engineers' field trips, to show students the actual operations of a given field and make it possible for students to meet people in that kind of work.

Yesterday's trip was planned by Mr. Alexander Biddle, Executive Vice-President of the Philadelphia-Baltimore Stock Exchange and a member of the Invest-In-America Committee of Philadelphia.

Cervantes Night Plans Unfold For Spanish Club

Main topic of discussion at the last meeting of the Spanish club was the "Cervantes Night" dinner-dance, which will be held sometime in April. The Norristown Elks Club was tentatively set as the site of the affair.

Reverend Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator of the club, reminded the members that this was to be an affair to celebrate the anniversary of the death of the author of "Don Quixote." A definite date and place for the cultural and social event was not set.

The "Villanovans" will supply the music for the dance, as it has done each year for the annual event.

Reverend William Gordon, O.S.A., prominent labor advisor and economist, who is an Instructor in the Commerce and Finance School of Villanova, attended the luncheon. A representative of the Philadelphia Chapter of A.M.A., Mr. Robert MacMillon, was also present. Both gentlement gave short talks.

Rules For Contest

Father Lozano outlined rules for an annual contest for the best composition, written in Spanish, on Cervantes. It may be about any phase of his life. A medal and a diploma will be awarded by the Spanish Institute of Columbia University to the author of the best prose work.

For the best English poetic work a suitable prize will be awarded by the Spanish Club of Villanova. Both winners will be listed in the Spanish Cultural Index.

Vol. 26—No. 16 VILLANOVA COLLEGE, VILLANOVA, PA. Tuesday, March 13, 1951

Poll Shows Student Opinions Want 'Wartime' Acceleration

Results Support UMT, Doubt 'Emergency'

By Robert Quinn and James Gallagher

Villanova students are definitely (68.2%) in favor of academic acceleration in a wartime emergency, strongly (57.5%) in favor of permanent Universal Military Training, but divided (36.4% Yes, 47.4% No, 16.2% Undecided) on the question of whether the present international crisis calls for total mobilization for all-out war.

These were the outstanding results of the VILLANOVAN student opinion poll conducted through religion classes a week and a half ago. About sixty percent of an estimated 2000 men in the student body answered the questionnaire.

Counted Last Week

From these a fairly accurate tabulation could be made of opinions held by the entire student body. Counters made tabulations last week, and results of the poll showed the following:

The average Villanovan, if such a term might be applied to any student of this college, is single ,between the ages 19 and 25, and not a wartime veteran. He is in favor of accelerating during a wartime emergency, even though he does not like the idea of acceleration as a permanent feature, when wartime emergency does not require it.

Problem Presented

However, when it comes right down to saying whether or not the present crisis demands mobilization for all-out war (which may be interpreted to mean whe-

Belle Masque Opens Doors On 'Big Doorstep' Tomorrow

8 New Groups Added to S.C.

First in New Expansion Move

In a sweeping legislation the Student Council voted at its last meeting, Monday, March 6, to admit eight new campus organizations to its list of representatives.

These organizations have the prerogative of refusing to send a representative to the council. Those who wish to join must notify Rev. George McLaughlin of their intention in the near future.

Expansion Trend

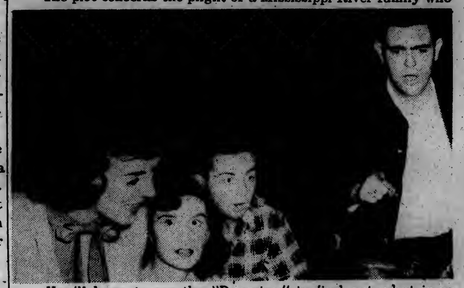
The move is part of a new trend to consider the various campus clubs eligible for Student Council consideration. If deemed advisable by the members they will be requested to signify whether or not they wish to comply.

The organizations recently admitted were the Villanva Engineer, The Lynx, Band and Glee Club, Belle Masque Drama Society, Beta Gamma Debating Society, National Federation of Catholic College Students, Sanctuary Society and Turf and Tinsel Club.

Amendment Defeated

A proposed amendment to the Student Council Constitution was defeated by a close vote after prolonged discussion. The move which was sponsored by Harry Range, senior representative of the Education School, called for an equal vote to be granted to all council members in the future. Under the present arrangement, only the duly elected representatives of the various classes have a full vote. The representatives of all other organizations are allowed only one-half vote on council resolutions.

Television Returns



The Student Council sponsored television set which has been missing from Austin Lounge recently has been returned. Because of the depleted condition of the council treasury, the cost of replacing the main tube in the set was underwritten by the classes.

The committee report on line cutting at the dining hall stated that only one violator has been noted since the last council meeting. It was the opinion of the committee that the current drive has virtually eliminated the line cutters.

As the story opens Commodore Crochet (Bob Resnick) and his spouse (Kathy Rowan) desire a new house for their doorstep. It just so happens that the next door neighbor who built his own home is financially embarrassed and the tax department is breathing down his neck.

He agrees to give the Crochets the house if they in turn will pay the back taxes which amount to $60. The little woman in her frugal manner figures the most direct way to secure the needed money is to work for it. This doesn't seem to strike a harmonious chord with the Commodore's rather lazy nature, and he thinks that the one to turn to in their need is Uncle Dewey (Jack Rowe). Dewey is just as lackadaisical as the Commodore, but he holds the rare distinction of being a wage earner as a river boat pilot.

Get Returns in Soon' Fr. Donnellon Urges

Rev. James Donnellon, O.S.A., chairman of the Villanova Stadium drive, has announced that a bonus prize of $50 will be awarded to the student selling the most chance books. A second prize of $25 will be awarded to the student selling the second largest number of books.

The date on which books must be in to be eligible for their prizes has not as yet been set.

Requests Returns

Father Donnellon again reminded the students to turn in their books as soon as possible. He thanked all students, alumni, and friends of the college for the progress they have shown so far and urged them to put forth a final effort to put the drive over.

Even though the books state on the front cover that returns must be turned in before May 7, students are requested to make returns whenever their chances are sold.

Students are requested to make their returns to the office of Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice-President, Room 220, Mendel Hall.

Remember, "Return your stubs today, tomorrow, or next week—the sooner the better."

American Marketing Assn Holds Field Trip, Luncheon

Visit Bell Telephone and Stock Exchange

Villanova's affiliate of the American Marketing Association, a national association for the advancement of science in marketing, had its first field trip yesterday. The local chapter was formed late last year and has been very active this year. Several lecturers and movies have been brought to this campus by the Student Marketing Club.

Included in the all day affair were visits to three major places of interest to the 75 business students who made the trip. They were the Bell Telephone Business Office of Philadelphia, the Philadelphia-Baltimore Stock Exchange and the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

Luncheon Held

A luncheon was held at the Homestead Rest about 1:30 P. M. Mr. Edmund Mennis, Security Analyst for the Wellington Mutual Fund, was the speaker. Arrangements for the luncheon were made by Bert Sellier, President of the Student Marketing Club of Villanova.

These field trips are designed to accomplish the same things as Engineers' field trips, to show students the actual operations of a given field and make it possible for students to meet people in that kind of work.

Mr. Biddle Plans Trip

Yesterday's trip was planned by Mr. Alexander Biddle, Executive Vice-President of the Philadelphia-Baltimore Stock Exchange and a member of the Invest-In-America Committee of Philadelphia.

Reverend William Gordon, O.S.A., prominent labor advisor and economist, who is an Instructor in the Commerce and Finance School of Villanova, attended the luncheon. A representative of the Philadelphia Chapter of A.M.A., Mr. Robert MacMillon, was also present. Both gentlement gave short talks.

Cervantes Night Plans Unfold For Spanish Club

Main topic of discussion at the last meeting of the Spanish club was the "Cervantes Night" dinner-dance, which will be held sometime in April. The Norristown Elks Club was tentatively set as the site of the affair.

Reverend Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator of the club, reminded the members that this was to be an affair to celebrate the anniversary of the death of the author of "Don Quixote." A definite date and place for the cultural and social event was not set.

The "Villanovans" will supply the music for the dance, as it has done each year for the annual event.

Rules For Contest

Father Lozano outlined rules for an annual contest for the best composition, written in Spanish, on Cervantes. It may be about any phase of his life. A medal and a diploma will be awarded by the Spanish Institute of Columbia University to the author of the best prose work.

For the best English poetic work a suitable prize will be awarded by the Spanish Club of Villanova. Both winners will be listed in the Spanish Cultural Index.

Poll Shows Student Opinions Want 'Wartime' Acceleration

Results Support UMT, Doubt 'Emergency'

By Robert Quinn and James Gallagher

Villanova students are definitely (68.2%) in favor of academic acceleration in a wartime emergency, strongly (57.5%) in favor of permanent Universal Military Training, but divided (36.4% Yes, 47.4% No, 16.2% Undecided) on the question of whether the present international crisis calls for total mobilzation for all-out war.

These were the outstanding results of the VILLANOVAN student opinion poll conducted through religion classes a week and a half ago. About sixty percent of an estimated 2000 men in the student body answered the questionnaire.

Counted Last Week

From these a fairly accurate tabulation could be made of opinions held by the entire student body. Counters made tabulations last week, and results of the poll showed the following:

The average Villanovan, if such a term might be applied to any student of this college, is single ,between the ages 19 and 25, and not a wartime veteran. He is in favor of accelerating during a wartime emergency, even though he does not like the idea of acceleration as a permanent feature, when wartime emergency does not require it.

Problem Presented

However, when it comes right down to saying whether or not the present crisis demands mobilization for all-out war (which may be interpreted to mean whe-

Belle Masque Opens Doors On 'Big Doorstep' Tomorrow

8 New Groups Added to S.C.

First in New Expansion Move

In a sweeping legislation the Student Council voted at its last meeting, Monday, March 6, to admit eight new campus organizations to its list of representatives.

These organizations have the prerogative of refusing to send a representative to the council. Those who wish to join must notify Rev. George McLaughlin of their intention in the near future.

Expansion Trend

The move is part of a new trend to consider the various campus clubs eligible for Student Council consideration. If deemed advisable by the members they will be requested to signify whether or not they wish to comply.

The organizations recently admitted were the Villanva Engineer, The Lynx, Band and Glee Club, Belle Masque Drama Society, Beta Gamma Debating Society, National Federation of Catholic College Students, Sanctuary Society and Turf and Tinsel Club.

The Hoop And Success

Basketball is a wonderful game, and more wonderful when you win. But win or lose, the excitement and anxiety that grips both player and fan in the midst of a game has made it one of the most popular of the collegiate athletic events. Villanova has been fortunate again this year to see a team rise to national prominence. The grade was not easily attained.

Hon. Alexander Severance, known through five months of the year as "the genial Main Line mentor," had only this to say last October: "It is a sophomore club and will probably have its ups and downs." The fact of the matter is, there were a great deal more ups than downs. There were times, not a few, when the Wildcats team would have torn through any club in the top ten and we are quite reminiscent about the times that such occasions arose.

Amid the cheers and applause which has greeted the team all through the season we would like to add ours. For now, to top all the other honors, the players have been chosen to show their skill in the annual N.C.A.A. tournament. We, of course, could see nothing else in the offing after the first five games, but to have the talents of the team recognized nationally is gratifying to both players and the school. And, we might add, the school will be able to take part in the N.C.A.A. contest with no little pride after the year long fight over the hypocritical sanity code.

To say that we expect a showing no less than the best is to say that we expect the same type of play so clearly evident all season. At present there is not a team in college circles that would make the Wildcats look second rate. We will witness the departure of the team to tourney territory next week with high hopes and many prayers.

With two years left for the team to perform we hardly dare set limits on our expectations. But that is the future. Here it is our duty to recognize the achievement of the past. It was neither an easy nor an enviable task to step into the shoes of the amazing all-American staffed team of last year. The fact that they did so is a credit to the work of both players and coach.

Phenomenal accuracy and ball-handling were but a part of the team's abilities. Team-spirit and honest sportsmanship, in addition, made a club that achieved the unexpected and unlooked-for record of 25-5.

While the team is deserving of all the praise and support we can express, let us not forget to cite the stand taken by the Board of Athletic Control with regard to the National Invitation Tournament. Rather than cancel their half of the Siena-Princeton doubleheader at the Palestra last Saturday night, the Board chose to refuse the first tourney offer. As it turned out, the decision was a wise one. Villanova's decisive win over Siena assured the selection committee of the N. C. A. A. that the Wildcats were the team they wanted.

It Shouldn't Happen

By Bill Brenninghouse

A lot of trouble goes into the choosing of the right roommate. Oscar Twomp had finally found a boy who was dumber and uglier than himself but was richer and wore the same size clothes. Bosco Bumperthy was the lad's name; the roommates were referred to by intimates as "Bosc and Osc."

Bosco's mother like the mothers of all good roommates sent frequent CARE packages to the outer regions where little Bosco attended school and Bosco was always good for a five-spot, payable anytime and at no interest. Oscar was completely satisfied until that fateful night that Bosco broke his reins and stayed out after eight.

Somebody's In My Sack

The room was dark as Oscar groped for the light and a click brought to life al lthe misplaced coats, shirts, and towels that had been strewn about the cubicle. Bosco was tucked away in his sack and Oscar did a fast double-take when he perceived that his sack was also occupied. Now Oscar didn't mind having his sack sublet to some deserving transient but in the bed, comfortably tucked in and sleeping peacefully was an orange and pink pigmy giraffe.

Needless to say, this discovery cause a little commotion inthe room. Oscar woke Bosco with a swift kick and told him to re-locate his friend to some other place. Bosco shushed Oscar and told him that the little monstrosity had followed him back to school and asked if Bosco could find him a sack.

Since Oscar knew that Bosco couldn't speak giraffese, the animal must be able to speak English. This brilliant deduction, strengthened his confidence and he took the giraffe until he woke up and bounded out of the bed on to the floor.

Poor Giraffe

He stood just about as high as Oscar and had a very sad look in his eyes. At Oscar's demand he related his story in most pitiable tones. It seems that all the other giraffes would have nothing to do with him because of his size and colorings. (His father was an Armenian zebra.)

He had stowed away on a luxury liner and finally wound up playing the bass fiddle at a local night spot. This position brought him little happiness, however, and he was searching for his proper place in life. By the time his story was finished, he was trembling so much he was just an orange-pinkish blur.

Oscar, moved to tears, tried to comfort the poor little quadruped, but had no idea as to what to tell him. The giraffe was too sensitive to live in a zoo or with a circus. He had been in love once with a charming and talented okapi who only ridiculed his attentions.

So Oscar spent the night on the floor, allowing the giraffe to take his sack. The next morning the giraffe was gone when they awoke. They called for him several times in vain. Then as they looked out the window towards the road they saw him hitching a ride westward. An old Ford had just stopped to pick him up. It was a funny thing.

Creative Careers Offer Key To Mould World Trends

By Jim Gallagher

Just in time for Vocations Week, when college students are encouraged to consider their selection of careers, the College Library has made available for circulation additional copies of Fr. James Keller's book on this topic, Careers That Change the World.

Fr. Keller, who visited campus last September to address the Belle Air Publications Conference, is the leader of the relatively new Christopher movement. His group aims to encourage Americans to restore and reintegrate into American life — public and private — the basic fundamentals of Christian civilization.

Everyone Changes the World

Latest in Fr. Keller's Christopher series, Careers That Change the World, takes up at the point where his first book left off. You Can Change the World, the first work, underlined the fact that "every individual, young or old, rich or poor, highly educated, or untutored, in low position or high, can play an important part, however small, under God in changing world trends for the better."

In Careers, Fr. Keller continues his emphasis on individual responsibility and initiative, drawing attention to the fact that certain vital careers decide the fate of the world, in which each of us has a stake.

Character and Competence

His foreword points out, "While persons of high character and competence are needed in every phase of private and public life: in the home, the church, the professions, business, the farm, the factory—in a more particular way are they needed in the creative spheres of influence that affect the destiny for time and for eternity, of all mankind: (1) education, (2) government, (3) communications, (4) labor relations, (5) social service, and (6) library work.

Not only does the author outline these "careers with a purpose", but goes into detail concerning particular jobs within the general career headings. Written for easy and rapid reading, the book offers invaluable advice for the student in search of a career especially the Catholic student whose training places him under moral obligation to "bear Christ to the world", the aim of the Christophers.

Author of "Careers"

Even from a more objective point of view, it offers a full chapter of practical advice on getting a job, more particularly on getting a "job with a purpose that makes the future."

About a half dozen copies are now available at the Library. If all books are already in circulation, students may place their names on the reserve list, and obtain a copy as soon as it is returned.

Details Required To Enter Photo In J. W. Queen Quest

With the search for Junior Week Queen rolling into its second week, the VILLANOVAN finds it necessary to remind Juniors to include all the required information when the picture is submitted.

Several pictures had to be returned this week for lack of information and reentered later with the completed entrance form. Since the Queen is to be chosen this year from her picture alone, it is essential that Frank Palumbo and the other judges have her description.

Queen Named April 30

By selecting from pictures beforehand the judges can pick the Queen in time to announce their choice in the Junior Week edition of this paper on April 30, and give the publicity committee time to arrange for her prizes.

The rule runs like this: All pictures must be accompanied by the following information on a separate piece of paper attached to the back of the picture.

Girl's name—address—age—present occupation—schools attended—height—weight—color of eyes and hair.

Junior's name—campus or home address—telephone number — College school (C&F, Arts, Eng., etc.).

Leading entrant for the Queen contest and its prizes this week was a lovely Miss, whose birthday happens to be next Saturday, St. Patrick's Day. Patricia (of course) O'Brien is her name. Of the New York clan, she's Harry Burton's choice for J. W. Queen.

CHASING SNAKES: Although a few days ahead of the deadline, this col'mnist would like to extend a HAPPY ST. PATRICK'S DAY to all of Villanova . . . Of course, St. Patrick had to be kidnapped from the Italians before anyone could get him on Irish soil, but try to tell an Irishman . . . Now that all the snakes have been driven out of Ireland we'll have to send someone to Moscow . . . If it hadn't been for St. Patrick, we would be without Jiggs, cornbeef 'n cabbage, and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" . . . Every Irishmen in New York would have to work on March 17th instead of taking an annual trip to city hall for their green paint ration . . . In conclusion, can there be a doubt in any Villanovan's mind about the influence that St. Patrick had upon the Order of St. Augustine? Not a little bit of it.

PICTURESQUE VILLANOVA: The drainage ditches being formed by the constant flow of rain water through them is an ideal example of soil erosion . . . The delicate hues of out-of-town license plates which greet the rambler along Lancaster Park . . . The startling ultimatum of Capt. PHILOSOPHIC PRATTLE: The line in a Rosemont class play which expressed the typical "'cross the tracks" fillysofee, "It's much better to pretend than to go through life without a husband" . . . No comment! Then there was the Rosemont girl who came to a concert because the nuns had cleared the hall. The band wishes to thank the somewhat verbose music critic for the Hooper Rating . . . This Week Time For Thought; Best Choice of Career Is Vital

'Tolle Lege' Was Call to St. Augustine, But Must Come in Less Obvious Way.

By Patrick Laferty, O.S.A.

The voices said, "Tolle lege, tolle, lege", "Pick up and read, pick up and read." The man turned from the garden and entered the house. Though confused by what he had heard and what it means, he followed the inclination and picked up the text of St. Paul which was lying on the table.

The first words which struck his eyes were: "not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and impurities, not in contention and envy: But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh in its concupisences."

The man was St. Augustine then in his thirty-second year. The event was the turning point in his life. For shortly afterwards he entered the religious life and a career which is one of the greatest in the history of the Church.

Apt Time to Consider

This week has been designated as Vocation Week. It is an apt time for you to consider your vocation, your career and the possibility of a priestly vocation, in particular, a vocation as an Augustinian Priest.

Eight men in a class of thirty at the Novitiate, in New Hamburg, N. Y., were attending Villanova last year. Many of the men at St. Mary's Hall at Villanova and at the Augustinian College in Washington are graduates or have attended Villanova.

Many of the priests at Villanova and at Augustinian churches and schools all over the United States are graduates of the college.

The word "vocation"—from a Latin root—means calling. But some take this too literaliy; they are waiting for a vocal call or a tap on the shoulder. Well, Saint Augustine received one, but a summons like this is extraordinary. Ordinarily the sign of a vocation is inclination toward a certain state of life. It includes aptitude as well as desire.

This, then, is the first thing to realize when you consider your vocation, that is, that the calling becomes apparent through ordinary, everyday channels — through our attitude toward the primacy of the spiritual. So, count our miracles and revelations.

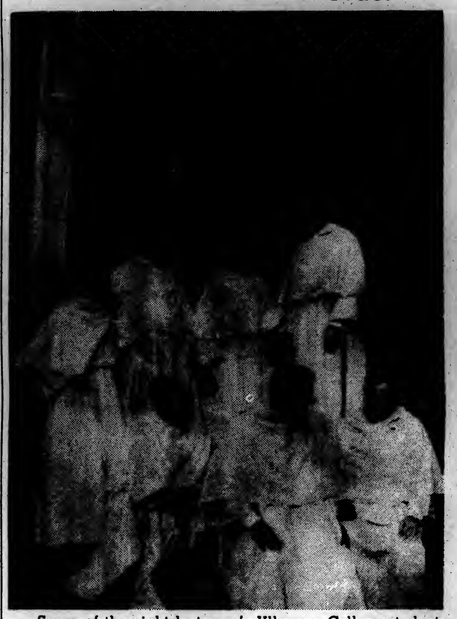
Start Early

You don't have to start early to make a go of it. There are many examples of men who entered the religious life when they were in their thirties, more who have made the decision during the years after graduation from college.

Holy Orders is a sacrament; like Baptism and Confirmation it imprints on the soul of the recipient an indelible mark, and identifying insignia for eternity. This mark of the Priesthood is the highest honor than can be bestowed upon man. It is a special participation in the eternal Priesthood of Christ; it is the power to sanctify.

For the Augustinian priest, a religious vocation is coupled with his priestly vocation. He professes the vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience.

"Almost There" Step



The preparation takes the seminarian to the Novitiate in New York, to the seminary at Villanova and finally to the Augustinian College in Washington. At the latter the members of the order study theology and because it is the last course before ordination it is with affection known as "almost there."

During this month, and especially this week, the college has displays and literature that treat of the nature of the priestly vocation and the work of the Augustinians. Remember, although literature is available in abudance this week, every week and every day is "vocation day" for any priest you approach. The priest-teacher of your choice, and especially the college chaplain, will welcome the opportunity to help and counsel you. Above all, pray. Pray to the Lady of Good Counsel, to whom Augustinians are especially devoted.

The life of a priest is a career that can change the world.

Mr. Laferty attended Villanova for three years before entering the Augustinians. A member of the class of '48 he was a Chemistry major. Among his extracurricular activities he held the position of News Editor of the VILLANOVAN before leaving college. He is now studying theology at the Augustinian College in Washington, D. C.

College Complies With NFCCS Plea For Prayer Week

Villanova students are dedicating evening chapel services this week to the intention of world peace as part of the nation-wide commemoration by National Federation of Catholic College Students.

NFCCS' national headquarters informed all college representatives of the special intention of this week last Wednesday. Each college was asked at that time to have devotions attended by the entire student body during this week.

In addition to this, special prayers for peace are being added to regular chapel prayers, and Senior Delegate Courtney Fleming requests that all students remember this intention in other prayers during this week.

'Blue Notes' To Render Intermission Music at Prom

Blazer Ball Group BeginsPreparation:

Driscoll Reports For Decorations Group

A red-hot committee got the Blazer Ball rolling — to mix a few meagre metaphors — last night at a meeting called by Kevin McCrane, chairman of this Junior Week activity.

Advising his committeemen to stress the point that "you don't need a blazer to go to the Blazer Ball," McCrane started organizing plans for the informal dance scheduled for May 2, the Wednesday night of Junior Week.

Theme Secret

Decorations committee chairman, Joseph Driscoll, outlined the dance theme to be used in decorating the Field House, but would release for publication only the statement, "It'll be in keeping with the Blazer theme, something just short of burning the Field House down."

Committeemen expect an unprecedented attendance at the Blazer Ball this year since it occurs on the eve of Ascension

Music Group to do 5th Engagement in Row

Musical talents of the Blue Notes combo have been added to those of Buddy Williams to provide continuous dance music for the Junior Prom on May 4.

Phil Brennan, Prom Chairman, booked the four piece group last week to play dance music for intermissions between Buddy Williams' performances. In all, the Blue Notes will play about an hour and a half during the dance from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Campus Favorites

A local Philadelphia group, the Blue Notes' campus popularity is shown by the fact that the Junior Prom engagement is their fifth consecutive booking for campus formals.

The Blue Notes' last success was at the Senior Prom in October. Previous to that, the group played at last year's Junior and Senior Proms, and the Junior Prom two years ago. The combo was also booked for the Senior Dinner Dance at the Broadwood Hotel the night after last year's Senior Prom.

Led by ex-Villanovan Francis Teti, the Blue Notes include four musicians, on piano, trumpet, bass, and drum, playing their distinctive brand of dance music.

Phi Kappa Pi's Hold Initiations

Twenty men were initiated into the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity last Thursday evening in Mendel Hall. The fraternity is composed of students in the Engineering School.

The pledges were hearded into the basement of Mendel where punishment given to the fraternthey had to undergo the usual ity's low-life. Following the period of torture which ranged from the traditional paddles to the more modern electrical shocks, refreshments were served in the college cafeteria.

Phi Kap nitiatons were a shocking treatment for this pledge and his fellow dogs who had the experience n Mendel basement last Thursday.

Main Liners End Season With 78-57 Win Over Siena

By Bud Jennings

Bringing down the curtain on one o fthe most successful seasons in Villanova cage history, the Main Line five rolled over a somewhat over-rated Siena quintet by 78-57 score last Saturday at the Palestra.

The win over the Indians raised the season total to 25 wins and 5 losses for a club that wasn't even picked to better the .500 mark at the beginning of the current hardwood campaign.

Tourney Maybe?

Pre-game conjecture hinted that the winner of Saturday's affair was a sure bet for a berth in the NCAA tournament. Just as it was two years ago Villanova had to go all the way down to the wire before being considered for a post-season nod. Ironically enough, even if the locals had lost, their record would still have been four wins better than Siena's.

Although high-scoring Larry Hennessey again topped both clubs with 28 points, player-of-the-night laurels must go to Sam Glassmire, who went so far as to out-hustle the hustling Glassmire of previous games.

The diminutive Sam was all over the court stealing passes, setting up plays, nabbing rebounds, and passing in to teammates for lay-ups. He even had time to score 11 points on 2 field goals and 7 bonus tosses.

The rugged guard's most outstanding exhibition of sheer "guts" came late in the contest as he was fouled by the Indians' Bill Rapavy while high in the air for a lay-up. Sam hit the boards head first and, to put it mildly, was "visibly shaken." But he shook it off and two minutes later stepped up for his free throws.

The Main Liners jumped off to an early 8-2 lead with Tom Brennan pacing the attack. With Larry Hennessey temporarily off Siena was able to tie it up at 14 all and were able to repeat twice more in the first half. But after ten minutes, Hennessey started to find his mark and the locals jumped to a 30-23 advantage.

Brennan had accumulated three personals by the time the three-quarter mark of the first period was reached so Judge Severnce thought it wise to give Towering Tom a breeze and let Steve Gepp take over. And wise it was, as the Laughing Boy promptly dumped in two from outside the keyhole. Gepp's contribution coupled with two-Glassmire-assisted lay-ups by Hennessey put the first half on ice with the Main Liners on top, 38-25.

Siena threatened in the early moments of the second stanza with Bill Harrell and Ed Kolakowski finding their marks. The Indians were able to reduce the lead to eight points, but again Hennessey took over and brought back the status quo.

The Albanians fell apart late in the game committing all sorts of ridiculous fouls as both coaches cleared the benches. Highlight of the late game play

Seven Lettermen Back As Tossers Practice

By Ted Sheehan

Fifty recruits, among them seven returning letter-men, turned out last week for the start of training for the approaching baseball season, according to coach Artie Mahan. Sunny skies and warm weather helped the athletes work those year-old kinks from their arms.

The team this year plays an eighteen game schedule, opening with the University of Maryland on April sixth and closing with Seton Hall on May 26th. Eleven games are listed at home, with one in Philadelphia and trips to be made to Princeton, New York, Allentown, West Point, State College and Bethlehem.

The team was hit hard by graduation and only seven members are returning. Bob Sexton, on whom Mahan was counting heavily as a pitcher had a bad knee and whether or not he will be able to play is a big question. In case Sexton can't, the burden will fall on John Watson, a sophomore, and Red Wright, ordinarily a catcher. Other returnees are Jack Jamison, behind the plate, infielders Benny Moskal and Tom Jones, and outfielder Jack Morris.

However, a factor which might have the most bearing on the squad is the decision, to be made this afternoon at the NCAA meeting in New York, on whether freshmen will be allowed to play with the Varsity, due to the national emergency. The Wildcats stand to gain a good deal if the committee votes in the affirmative.

Among the hopefuls for the varsity are four members of last year's freshman nine. They are Don Blaha, Bob Maurer and Frank Neary, all infielders and Ken Lowe, a catcher.

Listed again on this year's shedule are Dartmouth, Penn, Rutgers, Fordham, Equitable Life, Quantico, Penn State and Lehigh. Loyola and Georgetown have been dropped and NYU, Army, Princeton, Seton Hall, Maryland and Duquesne have been added. Last year's team ended the season with a 4-9 record.

Gridders Begin Spring Drills Under Leonard

By George Scanlon

The 1951 Wildcat footballers started spring practice last week with Coach Jim Leonard having quite a few problems. Leonard's big opponent next season will be that stern looking, bearded gentleman, Uncle Sam, who is also issuing the call for training.

But Big Jim's dark clouds don't end with the Army's grab-bag system called the draft, as the aMin Liners lost twelve valuable men via the sheepskin route.

Formidable Schedule

To top off the graying mentor's worries is a forcidable schedule featuring some of the nation's top teams. The Black and Gold of West Point will be Villanova's first test and will be followed by quite an array of Pigskin giants. Sugar Bowl champ, Kentucky, and Alabama, Penn State, Boston College, Tulsa and L. S. U. should prove to be one of the country's toughest schedules.

Co-Captains

The sixty hopefuls that reported last week are an impressive group of football talent. Last season's veterans are a year smarter and ready for such a list of opponents. Co-captains Nick Liotta and Joe Rilo; Don allo, Dan Simeone and Jake Patrick. Boys like Paul Tomko, Bobby Haner, Tommy Green, Tony Trunzo, Joe DeRose, Bill Brannau, Dick Bedesem, Fran Banas and Dick Connor will carry plenty of pigskin battle ribbons into next season's play.

A strong frosh team from last season will donate many prospects to the Blue and White

Louisville and St. John's Also Chosen For Eastern

Third Tournament for Severance Within Last Twelve Years of Court Coaching

By Jim Gallo

Coach Al Severance's basket-happy, sophomore-sparked cage quintent will participate in the Eastern Regionals of the N.C.A.A. baskebtall tournament.

The Board of Athletic Control received and immediately accepted the telephoned bid at noon yesterday. Official announcement of Cillanova's selection was made by tournament officials at the weekly luncheon of the New York Baskebtall Writers at Toots Shor's restaurant Monday afternoon.

Later in the afternoon it was announced that Louisville University had been chosen to fill the third at-large berth in the Easterns behind Villanova and St. John's of Brooklyn. The fourth spot was still open at this writing, with Holy Cross unofficially the leading contender.

It is expected that the team pairings will be announced sometime tonday, following a scheduled meeting of the N.C.A.A. in New York this morning. Rev. Edward B. McKee, Moderator of Athletics, and William B. Connelly, Director of Athletics are representing Villanova at the meeting.

Tourney Stars Next Tuesday

Two elimination tournaments will be held simultaneously to determine the Eastern finalists. On Tuesday, March 20, at Raleigh, North Carolina, Kentucky meets at-large; N.C. State meets at-large. On the same day at New York's Madison Ssuare Garden, Columbia, kingpin of the Ivy League meets Illinois, Big 10 Champion; at-large meets at-large. Semi-finals will be held in New York on March 22 and the Eastern finals are scheduled for Saturday, March 24. Eastern and Western survivors will meet at Minneapolis on Tuesday, March 27, for the National Championship.

"Characters" Come Through

Tournament fever has run high on the Main Line campus ever since it became evident that the 1951 edition of the Wildcats wasn't following the script prepared for it by the pre-season prognosticators. Picked to win no better than half their games, Coach Severence's self-styled "characters" attacked a rugged 30game slate with determination and confidence, wiping out the most prominent names on it.

This will be the third time that Severance has led a Villanova team into the N.C.A.A. tournament. The first occasion was in 1939 when the Wildcats disposed of Brown and Lost to Ohio State. In 1948, with Arizin and Co., the Mainliners dropped the opener to Kentucky but bounced back to wallop Yale in the consolation contest.

Familiar Surroundings

The players themselves, though entering their first postseason foray, will not find themselves in unfamiliar surroundings, for they have already registered three triumphs over tournament contenders. N.C. State fell victim to the Wildcats twice during the regular season while Louisville suffered the same fate but once.

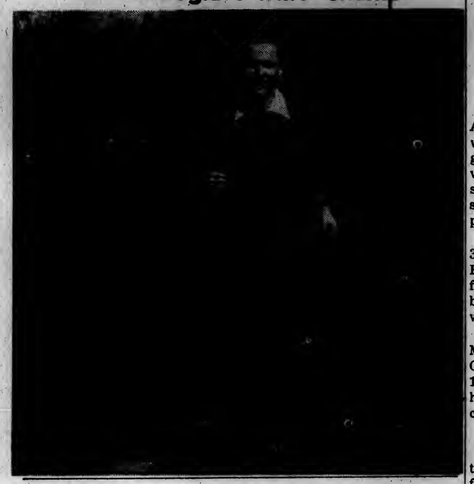
These victories, coupled with an already astounding record of 25 and 5, are notice aforehand that Severance's "characters" will not be satisfied with an "also ran" position in next week's campaign.

Severancem'n Rout Wm. & Mary, 87-59, In Midweek Game

Unfortunately, slightly more than 2000 fans were on hand at the Palestra Wednesday night to view Villanova's resurgent Wildcats as the Blue and White ran roughshod over William and Mary, 87-59.

The Cats, in recording their 24th victory of the season and their fourth triumph in as many games with sub-Mason-Dixon Line schools, registered 37 field goals in 76 attempts for a phenomenal 49 per cent shooting average.

Hennessey, Brennan Shine



Larry Hennessey garnered 34 points to lead the scorers, as usual, and lift his seasonal total to 640 points. The lanky set-shot artist had plenty of aid as the Wildcats displayed their most impressive court skill in many a week. Tall Tom Brennan jumpshot his way to 22 points, his second high total of the year, besides leading the rebounders with 13 grabs.

"Good Sam" Glassmire combined nine points with an equal number of assists and stole the ball a half-dozen times, further proving his right to the Honorable Mention awarded him and Hennessey on the Sporting News All-American squad. Jim Mooney who withdrew from the game early in the second half because of an injury, and Ben Stewart each tallied six points and snagged ten rebounds.

Wm. and Mary Freezes

The Indians from Virginia enjoyed the spirit of a contest for only about six minutes. Villanova took possession of the lead at 18-14, and throughout the remainder of the first half continued to pad the margin. At the intermission the Severancemen enjoyed a 21 point bulge, 48-27. Jim Mooney was slightly injured midway through the second half, but the Wildcats kept right on rolling. In the final minutes the Southerners put on a freeze and thereby succeeded in holding the winning total below 90 points.

Intercollegiate Mile Champ

Fred Dwyer, Brightest New Star In The Track World

When Fred Dwyer was a student at Seton Hall Prep in South Orange, New Jersey, he felt sure that he ought to be a basketball player. Unfortunately before the season started he suffered a back injury which prevented him from engaging in his favorite sport. Fred's doctor advised him to give up any cage hopes and try running. He did, and basketball's loss became track's gain strictly by chance.

Wins X-Country Crown

Because he hadn't been interested in cinder path affairs before, Fred was in his last year of high school before he went out for track. He made up for lost time right away however, by following up an undefeated Cross-country season with the state champion's crown.

Moving indoors the East Orange speedster figured the mile was his race, and it seemed that it was. He was undefeated at this distance, and his many victories included the state title and the state record of 4:26.0.

Winning was almost a habit now with Freddy the Flash, and it was the same story outdoors. He cleaned up all races and titles, won the state mile crown, and set a record of 4:25.7.

Sparks Relay Team

Fred came to Villanova in January of 1950, where he made his debut this year at the Inquirer Games when he ran a 1:54.7 leg on the winning two mile relay.

Invited to the Millrose games the galloping Wildcat was third in the half, and a week later at the N.Y.A.C. meet he was second to Joe Deady of Georgetown at the same distance.

His third in the National A. A. U. mile was just a preliminary to his winning the I.C.-4A. mile a week later in 4:16.2, the second sophomore and one of the youngest men (19) ever to do this.

Fred closed his indoor season with a second to Roscoe Browne in the K. of C. 1000. Browne beat him by a step but had to do 2:11.9 to do it.

Confident for Future

Fred feels that the mile is his race eventually, but right now he will stick to the shorter races with an occasional mile thrown in for practice. He realizes that he has to be a little older and stronger to take on a Wilt or a Gerhmann. Right now, though, Villanova's first I.C.-4A. mile champ does pretty well as is, good today and holding even more promise for tomorrow.

Game Record Set In I-M League by Toppers, Crows

The Alumni Toppers and the Austin Crows collaborated last week to set the season's high game total in the Topper's 88-71 victory. Jude O'Donnell led the scoring parade with 19 points as seven of the league-leading Toppers broke into double figures.

Nattiello led the Doms to a 38-28 victory over the Fedigan Big Five. The Doms all-around fine play gave notice that they'll be right in the thick of things when playoff time rolls around.

In other A League action, the Mendel quintet breezed past Good Counsel to the tune of 51-19. Owczykowaki took individual honors in this contest with 18 counters.

Close In American League

The American League brought three exciting contests to the fore, the first of which was the 60-58 triumph of the Aces over the Fedigan Aces. Rowe and McHue each contributed 20 in the Aces' cause.

Becotte's 25 led the Black Flames to a 48-46 decision over the Liz Kids. Hennessey had 16 for the losers.

In the third game, Cinui hit for 18 as the Rum Runners topped the Aces 49-43.

Hotshots Beat O'Dwyer

The Austin Hotshots cashed in with a big 38-24 win at the expense of the O'Dwyer Clowns as Gillman led the way with 12.

Barrack's 1's last period rally fell short as Alumni tallied a 35-33 win. Flaherty of the Barracks had 14.

Vidonas hit for 21 to lead the Firehouse five to a 63-36 win over the Beavers.

Mudhens Win Two, Lose

The Mudhens scored a double victory, over the Darbies, 41-34, and the Engineers, 45-36, and then bowed to the Hawks 49-35, in a busy week.

In the C League, the Hayseeds downed the Ramblers 55-31, the Barracks beat the Barracks' Stars, 53-17, and The Fedigan Quints topped the Barracks 2&3, 45-18, to fill in the week's action. Steinhofer led the Hayseeds with 18, Joe Hefele had the same amount for the Barracks, and McCune of the Quints rounded out the "18" trio.

Regular Season Statistics

By Harry Range

At the end of the regular season Villanova's sensational sophomore cagers, picked to win not better than half their games, find themselves among the nation's leaders with 25 wins and 5 losses and on offensive mark of 72.2 points per game.

The current campaign marks the third time in the history of the court game at Villanova that a Severance-coached five has registered 25 victories. The trick was first turned in 1938-39 season when the Main Liners turned in a 25-5 record and again a year ago as Paul Arizin paced a 25-4 mark for the best percentage in Wildcat history.

Offensively the current edition falls only six-tenths of a point behind the '49-'50 club which led the country with 72.8 points per contest.

Individual scoring honors went to Larry Hennessey who, in his first year of varsity competition, became the second highest scorer in the school's history for one season with 668 points. Hennessey's 291 field goals top Paul Arizin's mark of 260 of a year ago. His average of 22.3 is second only to All-American Arizin.

Tom Brennan's 95 for 134 free throws paced the regulars both in total points from the foul line as well as in accuracy. His 347 points rated second scoring honors, while his work under the boards netted 383 rebounds to place him right behind Jim Mooney.

Mooney's most outstanding work was under the boards as the burly red-head grabbed 435 rebounds. Co-Captain Jim was third in the scoring department with 298 makers.

Co-captain Nick Maguire's 83 field goals for 164 attempts can easily lead the nation in the accuracy department. His 50.6% tops the team while his 261 points rate him fourth among the scorers.

Hustling Sammy Glassmire's 102 assists place him far above all others in that department. His 245 points placed him fifth in scoring but the valuable work of the diminutive guard is something that just can not be described in statistics.

A large share of the evening's plaudits are deserved by Benny Stewart who was the Wildcat's top men under the boards with 16 rebounds. Ben also contributed nine points and four assists.

High man for the visitors was Kolakowski with a good mark of 24 points. Harrell aided the losers' cause with 15.

Bill Haggerty, Bill Rigney and Ralph Cesseri are just three of Bernie Bradley's outstanding charges.

Despite the dark future the prospect of a top flight Villanova eleven isn't a pipe dream. The Cats have much head-banging and hard work ahead of them this spring, but it should pay dividends come September.

Roeker Again 'MC's Guild's 'Variety Show' April 24th

Library Illustrates Priests' Vocations

A display illustrating the various phases of the life of an Augustinian priest, is being shown in the library this week, to commemorate Vocation Week at Villanova College.

The display has been composed by members of the order who were professed here last year, reported Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., Headmaster of Seminarians and Director of the Augustian Seminary Guild.

Shows Priestly Life

Four roles of Augustinian life are portrayed by the display. They are: the teacher, the parish priest, the missionary, and the military chaplain in times of national emergency.

The majority of the Augustinian order are teachers, said Father Coffey. The order runs three undergraduate colleges in the eastern province: Villanova, Merrimack College, at Andover, Mass., and the University of St. Thomas of Villanova, Havana, Cuba. In addition the order has numerous high schools and preparatory schools throughout the United States, and, forty parishes from coast to coast.

Eddie Roecker, star of stage, screen, radio and television, will be master-of-ceremonies for the second straight year at the Augustinian Seminary Guild's Variety Show, when the 1951 edition is presented in the Field House, Friday evening, April 26th.

EDDIE ROECKER

Sings here April 24

The announcement of Roecker's selection as "MC" was made by Rev. John Coffey, OSA, Seminary Guild Director. An outstanding baritone and singing star, Roecker did a very creditable job of "Emceeing" last year's show.

Set Student Rates

The Seminary Guild annually presents the Variety Show to give financial aid to the young men studying for priesthood in the Augustinian Order. The Variety Show, dotted annually with outstanding names from the theatrical world, is one of the Guild's main sources of income.

Father Coffey reported, too, that a special reduced admission will be set for Villanova students and their dates. The amount of this admission is to be announced in a later edition of the VILLANOVAN.

'Catholicism Aids Medical Doctor' Says Dr. O'Keefe

"Catholicism is no draw back in Medicine, in fact at times it is a great help." In an address before the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity last Wednesday Dr. John J. O'Keefe made this statement which seems a little startling.

Dr. O'Keefe who is Professor of laryngology at the Jefferson Medical College went on to explain his statement. He pointed out that unless it is thrown into the faces of people nobody cares what religion you are. It is what you do that counts. He explained that it can definitely be a help because a practicing Catholic doctor has very little trouble when faced with ethical problems because he has been taught in many cases what is right.

Final plans for the annual dinner dance were also made. The dance will be informal and will be held at Drexelbrook Inn on Saturday, April 7. Members desiring to attend should contact Murray Seitchik, President.

Fr. Regan Speaks On 'Psychology of Sexes'

Dr. James P. Quindlen, M.D., Lecturer at the Temple University School of Medicine, will speak next Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium as the fourth speaker in the Pre-Cana Conference series. Dr. Quindlen's lecture topic, "A Catholic Physician Looks at Marriage," will be the fourth and final talk in the current series.

Doctor Villanova Graduate

In 1928 Dr. Quindlen received a B.A. from Villanova College and in 1929 received an M.A. also from Villanova. After two years abroad, he received his M. D. from Temple University Medical School. In addition to his lecturing in Obstetrics and Gynecology at Temple, Dr. Quindlen also has a successful practise in Philadelphia.

Last Sunday Afternoon's talk was given by Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A. an Assistant Professor of religion at this college. In his address on the psychology of the sexes, Fr. Regan stressed the point that a complete understanding of one's partner in marriage was necessary for a happy and fruitful marriage.

STUDENT POLL

ther acceleration is needed right now) our average Villanovan calls for some discussion.

Poll results showed he and his fellow students are 36.4% in favor of total mobilization, 47.4% against it, with 16.2% undecided. But here's where the hair splitting comes in. The terms, "all-out war" and "national emergency" evidently don't mean the same thing. And presumably those men who don't consider the present crisis "all-out war" might well deem it "national emergency."

If this were the case, then at least half of the students would want acceleration immediately, but it would still hinge on that elusive term "national emergency".

Would Attend If

Answers from other questions showed that, if an accelerated program were to begin next July the average Villanovan would attend if he were positively deferred as a result (69.8% Yes, 13.4% No, 16.8% Undecided).

But if he would only be possibly deferred as a result, he'd be more inclined to think it over (46.7% Yes, 29.7% No. 23.6% Undecided). And if acceleration did not affect his draft status whatever, he would probably not attend at all (29.0% Yes, 52.4% No, 18.6% Undecided .

With calmness often unnoticed in the younger generation, our Villanovan would prefer to take a chance about getting drafted, and hope that the government creates a new classification for college men.

Many Are Undecided

Under present conditions in which a student may enlist up to 30 days after the term ends, he prefers this by 43.0% rather than enlisting for 48 months in a service of his choice (13.7%), or being drafted for only 24 months (12.1%). Going undecided are an unusually large percentage of 31.2%.

Backing up recent Senate action in Universal Military Training, Villanovans are highly in favor of establishing a permanent UMT program in the United States. Results for this were 57.5% Yes, 30.0% No, and 12.5% Undecided.

Another G. I. Bill

Even after serving in the Armed Forces, as the average Villanovan will probably have to do, he will return to college to complete his courses, both at government expense (77.6%) or at personal expense (59.3%). An interesting sidelight on this question for national lawmakers to note if they ever consider renewing the G. I. Bill is that only 1.7% definitely stated that they would not return at government expense.

As regards the most controversial question on the poll, "What is your opinion regarding U. S. foreign policy" our Villanovan was again divided in his decisions on Europe and Asia. Slightly favorable to the European policy (43.8% Favorable, 37.6% Unfavorable, 18.6% Undecided), he is definitely against the U. S. Policy in Asia (29.3% Favorable, 53.4% Unfavorable, 17.3% Undecided).

Large Number Work

Getting back to campus affairs, the poll disspelled any accusations that fair Villanova can be classed with "country club colleges". Tabulations showed that 68.6% of the students rely on summertime employment to finance their educations.

Complete results of poll tabulations were presented to Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., College president when completed last week. They will in turn be presented by Dean Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., to the meeting of the American Council of Education in Washington next week.

Tuxen, Pressler Concert Guests

Erik Tuxen, celebrated conductor of the Danish State Radio Orchestra and the brilliant young piano virtuoso, Menahem Pressler, will be guests with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra at the 22nd pair of concerts Friday afternoon, March 16, and Saturday evening, March 17, in the Academy of Music.

The program includes the Seventh Symphony of Sibelius and Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1, both under Ormandy's direction, and the first Philadelphia performance of Carl Nielsen's Symphony No. 5, with Erik Tuxen conducting.

Conducted 'Fifth'

The music of Nielsen, the "Sibelius of Denmark," is virtually unkonwn in this country, yet it ranks with that of the Finnish master. Erik Tuxen, ardent champion of Nielsen's music, recently conducted the American premiere of the Fifth Symphony with the National Symphony in Washington, and has also introduced it in Cleveland and Toronto. On April 2 he will conduct the Philadelphia Orchestra in its first New York Hearing.

Tuxen came to this country for the first time last October, at the invitation of Eugene Ormandy to observe American orchestras.

Easter Recess Begins Today At Student Council Holiday

Administration Approves Council Request; Dances, Dinners, Musical Top Spring Slate

Easter recess will begin following each student's final class today, instead of following the final classes tomorrow, as originally listed.

The change in the starting date of the recess came about last week on action of the Student Council. The Council requested the administration to declare tomorrow as their annual holiday at their meeting last week. The administration immediately approved the request.

First Holiday

This is the first year that the student group has been granted the privilege of declaring a holiday. The right was contained in a series of amendments to the Council Constitution, written last year, and which went into effect last fall.

Wednesday, March 28, will be the final day of the recess. Classes will resume Thursday, March 29th.

Saturday, April 7, is Midterm, coming slightly over a week after classes resume. The traditional mid-term convocation of students will be held in the Field House Tuesday, April 10, at 2:30 p. m.

The first student activity after the Easter recess will be a Sunday Afternoon Dance, April 15, in the Field House. The following Friday evening, April 20, the annual Interfraternity Ball will be held.

Junior Week

Junior Week is scheduled to be held from April 30th through May 5. Annual celebration of "Mother's Day" will open the festivities on Monday, the thirtieth. A Band Concert will be held Tuesday, May 1, and the informal Blazer Ball is listed for Wednesday evening, May 2.

Ascension Day, May 3, will briefly interrupt the week of festivities on Thursday. All classes will be suspended on that date.

Prom May 4

The Junior Prom will be held Friday, May 4, in the Field House at 9 p. m. The Junior Dinner-Dance will close out the week, Saturday evening May 5, at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia.

The annual musical extravaganza of Villanova, a sparkling Turf and Tinsel production, will take to the stage, beginning Thursday, May 10. Entitled "Pardon the Expression" this year, the show will continue Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, May 11, 12 and 13.

The Mirage Room of the Hotel Barclay will be the scene of the yearly banquet of the VILLANOVAN staff, Thursday, May 17.

Final Exams

Final semester examinations take the "top spot" on campus from May 28 until June 2, with a brief respite on Memorial Day, (Continued on Page 6)

The day that students return from Easter vacation tickets will go on sale for all Junior Week functions—Blazer Ball and Prom, open to all students, and Mother's Day and Junior Dinner Dance, closed activities for members of the Junior Class exclusively.

Sales will begin March 29, the day school reopens, to enable students to purchase tickets with their first-of-the-month wealth. Junior salesmen will be on duty daily in the Pie Shop and other campus locations during April until ticket supplies are depleted.

Tickets Limited

Since tickets for most Junior Week activities are limited, committee chairmen request that Juniors purchase their bids as early as possible.

Particular attention is requested for the Dinner Dance invitations which will be sold for reserved table places, and Mother's Day banquet arrangements which must be made early.

South Jersey Group Will Honor Quintet April 30 in First Annual Hoop Banquet

The high-flying basketball team of Villanova will be feted by the Villanova Club of South Jersey at the First Annual Basketball Banquet on Tuesday, April 30 at 7 p. m., at Kenney's Restaurant, 531 Market St., Camden.

This banquet, first of its kind, is to be an annual affair equivalent to that of the Philadelphia Club for the football team.

Chairman John P. Brennan, '48, gave a promise of "an excellent meal, coupled with an enjoyable evening." Mr. Brennan stressed the point that the students are definitely invited and that he and the other alumni would like to see as many students as possible turn out to honor "a team that has brought both fame and glory to Villanova."

Leonard Toastmaster

Toastmaster of the evening will be Jim Leonard, head coach of varsity footbal, with Al Severance, varsity basketball coach, as the main speaker. Officials of the College and sport writers of many of the district's leading papers will also be present. In contrast to the football banquet, ladies are invited to attend.

The highlight of the evening will be the presentation of the Alumni Most Valuable Player Plaque. The recipient will be determined by the vote of his fellow players. This plaque will be the third to be presented by (Continued on Page 6)

Easter Celebrates Proof of Christ

Ceremonies of Church Focus Attention on Greatest Miracle

By Jim Griffin

"Resurrexit sicut dixit" . . .
"He is arisen as he said."

Holy week—three days of the church's year which contain perhaps the most impressive of its annual ceremonies, three days at one time an ending of six weeks preparation, and a preparation in themselves for Easter, the most important day of the Church year.

A Day In Years

Such festivities are in good order for Easter, since celebration of Easter dates to the birth of Christianity. Christ's first thirty years on earth when compared to the three years of his public life were minor importance in so far as the establishment of his church was concerned. Still, in those three years on earth no day was so powerful in building a firm foundation for all His claims as was Easter.

Powerful

In one bold and final stroke the resurrection of Christ affirmed without any doubt that He was God, that He was sent by God and that the Church He labored to establish was God's Church and His representative on earth. Throughout his public life, Christ had worked one miracle after another to establish the claims which he had made and repeated, but none of these was comparable to the resurrection in its power to overcome all attempts to explain away or belittle his divinity.

Verified

And these are the very reasons that anti-Catholics will attempt in many cases to overlook or to deny that Christ really rose from the dead. Denial is futile, however, when unprejudiced investigation is made in accordance with accepted standards. History supports beyond any doubt the gospels' accounts of the events which occurred in connection with the resurrection of Christ.

Focus of Attention

And to overlook the ressurection will also be an impossibility as long as the Church continues to surround the Easter season with the grandeur and impressive ceremony which it does. And that is precisely the reason why the church will always celebrate Easter with the energy which it does: because it is the day which produced the strongest of proofs in support of Christ and his claims. What better time then to celebrate, than the anniversary of the day on which the very cornerstone, so to speak, was laid? And what better feast to surround with festivities than the day on which Christ achieved what no mere man could never achieve of his own power —to rise from the dead?

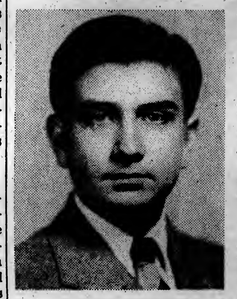
KYOTO to Villanova

Letter From Grad Advises Students

Editor's Note: The letter published below was received last week by the VILLANOVAN. Paul Carmichael graduated from Villanova in 1946, when he edited the VILLANOVAN. At present he is a 1st Lieutenant serving with a Mobile Surgical Hospital in Kyoto, Japan.



8 March 1951
Kyoto, Japan

Gentlemen of Villanova:

I have noted with quite some interest in the past few weeks that you, the student body, are becoming greatly concerned with the fate of your futures in view of the present world crisis.

Situations often arise in life that are often not what they seem superficially. The college student is usually very well informed to the point where he realizes he is well equipped to become a leader and wants to share wholeheartedly any burden his community may place upon his educated shoulders.

Paul Carmichael

Ex-editor Writes

Here in Japan I am able to see an unusual picture unfolding itself. In my profession as a doctor I have seen some of the wounded returning from the Korean fronts. Some of them are the "indestructable" GI—still smiling and chewing gum. Many of the men are British, Turks, Norwegians, Danish, French, Puerto Ricans and a host of other nationalities too numerous to mention. We are not alone. The United States is not fighting alone contrary to what you may be led to believe. America is not fighting a war against anyone. The United Nations, gentlemen, is the force that is stemming the tide of aggression and salary.

Where do you fit into this world picture? Today as never in the history of the universe has this world needed real leaders. The United Nations needs men who are blessed with physical and moral integrity. You cannot possibly become leaders unless you are ready to assume responsibility.

WAIT. Finish your education if you are permitted to do so. Your country and your world can use you in a better capacity if you are skilled and proficient in your field. The world today has very little use for the mentally inept. Study as long as it is possible to do so. Then when your nation calls you to give an account of yourself before the world flag of the UN you will be better equipped to do so.

Become fervent in your prayers and devotions. Keep your Catholic standards of morality. You will never have any better standards by which to live. Your morality in the final analysis will determine your success or failure in the everlastingness of eternity. At Villanova you have the excellent opportunity to develop into Catholic gentlemen. You will never regret living the way of the Cross. Remember, Communism is the enemy of Christ. Gird yourselves with the armor of grace to repel its advance into our society.

Remember, you have everything to gain and nothing to lose by waiting and remaining calm. Stay with your studies and religion. The world needs men like you in the struggle of life. Prepare well so that you may be able to serve God and His world in the future.

Sincerely,

PAUL LOUIS CARMICHAEL, M.D.

Oscar T. Unexceptional: Not Sold on Salad Oils

By Bill Brenninghouse

In his semi-annual perusal of the college bulletin board Oscar Twomp came across many exciting little scraps of paper. He found that he had an appointment with the dean . . . last week, that he was due at a meeting of Kappa Kappa Kappa Phi Psi Chi . . . last year, that he was overcut in four subjects and had graduated in January.

One notice, however, made a deep impression on our Oscar. It seems that a certain firm was searching for exceptional college grads for the important and earth - shattering position of shortening and salad oil salesman.

Did Anyone Ever?

Oscar never knew anyone who wanted very much to be a shortening salesman. People wanted to be actors, writers, doctors, lawyers, and even clergymen but nobody wanted to be a shortening and salad oil salesman. Scientists would cure diseases, engineers would build bridges but shortening salesmen would sell shortening. If the exceptional men are wanted to sell shortening, what is to happen to an average college man.

Ideals Tremble

There is nothing wrong with shortening and salad oil is innocent enough, but Oscar didn't think it took exceptional men to sell it. To some people such an occupation may be steeped in adventure, full of excitement, and the fulfillment of life's dream but it seems that an exceptional college man would rather starve than sell shortening. It is very unlikely that an exceptional man would apply for such a job.

A Clue

Further down on the notice Oscar saw the joker. Good pay, automobile, and security went with selling shortening. An ugly word, security, thought Oscar. Geniuses surrender to it, women marry for it, and now some exceptional college man would sell shortening for it. Powerful enough to smother talent and strangle love and stifle ambition, security made it possible for shortening and salad oil to be sold by an exceptional college grad.

Unrealistic Oscar

Oscar decided not to let this notice bother him. Maybe it's the world or the time or the situation but he knew that they would have no trouble finding someone to fill the position. Then it could be that Oscar is unable to face reality and the actuality of life. Still he couldn't see himself selling shortening or salad oil. Then, of course, he isn't exceptional.

Prom-Queen Rush Expected; Prizes Step Up Competition

A rush of entrants in the Junior Week Queen contest is expected after the Easter vacation to give even more competition to the lovely contestants already entered.

Pictures may be submitted by Juniors either by mail, or by leaving them in the VILLANOVAN office, C&F basement. For the convenience of interested Juniors, one of the paper's editors will be in the office to receive entrants personally every Thursday afternoon.

All pictures submitted will be handled carefully and returned to their sponsors immediately after Junior Week judging.

Each entrant will be judged from her picture by Frank Palumbo and several other prominent Philadelphians, and considered for the Queen prizes.

Besides being crowned by Buddy Williams during the Junior Prom, the Queen will receive a bouquet of roses, an engraved compact, and tickets to all Junior Week functions for her and her escort. If the girl is from out-of-town, she will receive hotel accommodations for the Prom weekend, and a Dinner Dance invitation in lieu of the tickets for other Junior Week activities.

Deadline April 30

Deadline for entering the contest is April 30, but all pictures submitted early will be eligible for publication in this paper in connection with Junior Week publicity. Success Marks Severance Saga

ALEX SEVERANCE, the "genial Main Line Mentor", is a successful Villanova alumnus and an ex-Wildcat cage star himself. Co-captain of the 1928-29 squad under "Rube" Cashman, Severence returned in 1936 to coach his Alma Mater's teams through two national tournaments, leading up to another two this year. Self-styled "character builder", he is our nomination for "Coach of the Year".

Al Severance, In 15th Season Could Be 'Coach of Year'

Villanova's 'Greatest Character Builder' Makes A Habit of Suprising Experts

By George Ferguson

Villanova may have, the "Coach of the Year" this season. That's what is being said of Al Severance, the Wildcats' genial basketball mentor, presently rounding out 15 years' service as head coach. Coach Severance is a unique leader. He believes the difficult can be done immediately; the impossible may take a little longer.

That is just about what he has accomplished with this year's squad. The loss of All-American center, Paul Arizin, along with Captain Leo Wolf, Joe Hannan, Brooks Ricca, Tom Sabol and four other 'Cats of last year prompted the "experts" to predict a dismal 1950-51 season.

Experts?

The self-styled prognosticators came up with such crystal-balling as "With luck, Villanova might wind up with a 15-15 record, against competition too tough for Sophomores." The gentlemen of the press ambitious enough to rate the probable top 50 teams for the coming season, last fall, didn't seem to know that a college by name of Villanova existed!

Proving experts mistaken is nothing new to Al Severance. He has been doing it for 15 years. Certainly not even unaminity among the experts on his '50-'51 squad was to deter Al. Not even the most optimistic of Wildcat fans would have dared predict last fall a 25-5 record for a team without a seasoned veteran.

"Startling Sophomores"

But, 25 and 5 was the record Al Severance and his "startling Sophomores" wound up the regular season with. To cap off a top-notch season, but an average Severance one, the present 'Cat squad received bids to every major national tournament. Accepting invitations to the NCAA and Bradley Campus tourneys, the team also received, but rejected, bids to the NIT and NCIT post-season extravaganzas.

Shocked N. C. State

Indication of things-to-come came back in December. For it was in December that 15,000 stunned North Carolina State fans saw an unheralded Villanova quintet pull one of the major upsets of the year in Raleigh, N. C. Eyes popped, and Rebel throats remained silent as a determined crew of Sophomores, led by high-scoring Larry Hefinessey and diminutive, pesti-ferous Sam Glassmire upset the highly-touted Sam Ranzino and Co., 68-61. This was no freak, as another victory over State, a month later in Philadelphia, proved.

Yet, the man who was probably more responsible for this and every Villanova upset remained quietly in the background, a trait of Alexander G. Severance.

'Miracle Man'

Surprises like this are perennial occurences in the amazing career of Al Severance, "The Miracle Man of Villanova."

A disappointing 6-12 record was Villanova's in 1935-36. Alex Severance became head coach for the 1936-37 season and pulled an immediate "about-face" by turning in a respectable 16-7 record.

But, Al's handling was yet to take full effect. He boosted the 16-7 record to 25-5 in 1937-38 and astounded the basketball world with a team that had a 19-2 slate for 1938-39. A bid to the NCAA tourney in New York capped off this season, where the 'Cats met Brown and Ohio State.

His record "slipped" a little for the 1939-40 season—but only because Villanova scheduled fewer games. A neat 17 and 2 was the total for the '39-'40 squad.

Wildcat hoop squads continued to prosper under the astute Severance leadership. The records "slipped" to 13-3 in '40-'41, and to a "low" 13-9 during the 1941-42 season. This was almost as bad as a losing season to Alex Severance.

Rout Defensive Team

Something had to be done! Villanova only had 13-9! Something promptly was done. Severance prodded his charges to a basket-swishing 19-2 seasonal record. This was a five that was not to be stopped. Siena College, annually one of the nation's defensive leaders found that out. The Indian five from Loudonville, N. Y., suffered their worst defeat in history by 26 points, 62-36 from the 'Cats that season.

Other colleges were forced to drop basketball during the second World War. But not Villanova. Severance and Villanova kept the cage sport going, rounding out the war-time years with a 17-7 1946-47 record, garnered by the final "war-time" Severance squad.

Arizin and Co.

The 1947-48 season brought the "miracle five" to Villanova. Headed by All-American Paul Arizin, this team was destined to break all existing Villanova records to win 63 games out of 80 during its tenure on the Main Line.

Arizin is truly an integral part of the "Severance Saga." "Tall Paul" as he was known to Villanova fans, "wasn't good enough" to make Coach "Obie" O'Brien's LaSalle High School team. "Judge" Severance spotted Arizin in amateur play, and discovered, much to his surprise, that Paul enrolled at Villanova. He promptly became a varsity man.

Under the clever guidance, prodding and leadership of Al Severance, Paul Arizin began to gain in stature, ability and fame. He had a good Sophomore year; he had a great Junior year, highlighted by Villanova's NCAA entry in the post-season fun.

"Player of the Year"

But, as the saying goes, "the best was yet to come." Arizin, becoming Villanova's first All-American, was chosen "Player of the Year," in his senior, and greatest, year at Villanova.

Character Building

Last Spring Villanova's great team was honored at a student convocation. Speakers praised, praised and praised Severance and his team. Finally, the astute mentor arose to speak. His opening words are now famous on the campus: "Next year will be a character-building year at Villanova."

Al Severance has done a lot of "character-building' in a year. In the Pie Shop, in Mendel Hall, in fact all over Villanova's campus the genial tutor is known as "Villanova's Greatest Character-builder."

Co-captained 28 Cats

But, what about Al Severance, The Man?

Alexander G. Severance was born June 3, 1907, in New York City, and attended St. Nicholas of Tolentine School and Regis High School. He was the captain of the Regis court squad in his senior year.

In September of 1925, he matriculated at Villanova, and immediately earned a berth on the varsity basketball squad. He retained it through his college years, and was co-captain of the 1928-29 team. In addition to his basketball activities, he ran on the track team and held the college 135 and 145-pound boxing titles.

After graduating in 1929, the valedictorian of his class, he became a member of the athletic staff of Villanova. Meanwhile, he attended Temple University Law School, was graduated in 1933, and was married November 30th, of the same year.

Became Coach in '36

Severance was appointed graduate manager at Villanova in 1932, and in 1934 was named Director of Athletics, a post he retained until 1937. He was named head basketball coach in 1936, succeeding George "Doc" Jacobs.

Fr. McNally Gives Talks To Bucknell U. Students And Lewisburg Inmates

Reverend Richard J. McNally, O. S. A., Ph.D., gave several lectures recently at Bucknell University and the Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary, both in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania.

Father McNally, who is a psychology professor at Villanova, was accompanied by Reverend John R. Brenne, of the Augustinian Mission Band. Both priests were in Lewisburg to take part in the Catholic student phase of "Religion In Life Week" at Bucknell University.

During the week Father McNally was guest of various clubs on the Bucknell campus and conducted a series of informal sessions under their sponsorship.

Sunday morning Father celebrated Mass for Catholic inmates of the Federal Penitentiary and then late Mass at the College Chapel for Bucknell students.

Father McNally received his doctorate at the Thomistic Academy of the Gregorian University in Rome.

NFCCS To Dance At 'Spring Whirl'

Celebrating the end of exams, the campus chapter, National Federation of Catholic College Students will sponsor an informal "Spring Whirl" Friday night, April 6 in the Field House.

With music by the Villanovans Combo, dancing will be from 8:30 to 12:30. Donation for admission will be one dollar per couple and tickets will be available immediately after the Easter holiday from chairman Joseph Mullen and his committee members.

Proceeds from the dance will go to Villanova's Overseas Service Program donation. This year College contributions will be used to aid needy students in Japan, in line with the general NFCCS program to aid displaced Catholic students in war afflicted areas of the world.

Other committee heads include Joseph Hall, refreshments and music; Donald McCourt, tickets; James Aylmer and Courtney Fleming, decorations. Committee meetings will be held March 29 at 7:30 p. m. in room 102 C&F.

Belle Masque Talent Makes Success of Dull 'Doorstep'

By T. Angelo Panko

Lacking the colorful, meaningful dialogue of "Cyrano de Bergerac", the lustrous, impressive characterizations of "Jacobowsky and the Colonel", and completely void of the tenderness and warmhearted appeal of "The Hasty Heart", last week's production of "The Great Big Doorstep" failed to fulfill expectations received by the playgoer from previous Belle Masque presentations.

The fault lay partly with the dramatic group for its choice, mostly with Messrs. Hacket and Goodrich, authors of this slow moving, three act vehicle for Belle Masque talent.

Characters Pitiful

In their attempt to intermingle pathos with comedy, the writers of this enlightened "Tobacco Road" achieved little in their efforts to provoke laughter because of the pitiful state in which the characters were presented. Tribulations and infelicity of the Crochet family constantly overshadowed situations and pseudo-facetious dialogue.

"Doorstep" was a dull piece concerning a poverty-stricken Bayou family (fathered by the irresponsible, shiftless Commodore, Bob Resnick) and its endevors to obtain a home which would be suitable for their beautiful doorstep.

To say that Father Krupa surpassed himself in molding the destiny of the play and characters is a gross understatement. What he did was phenomenal. Bob Resnick as Crochet, the unemployed drainage expert, and Kathy Rowan as the perplexed Mrs. Crochet compensated for lack of entertainment in the script.

Dowe Saves Scene

Joan Therkauf as Evvie was perhaps the most outstanding of those cast in the children's roles because of her thought-conveying expressions and timely remarks. Uncle Dewey, aptly played by John Rowe, allowed the audience an opportunity to forget the family discontent that preceded his arrival as the sliggtly inebriated relation.

In the role of unsatisfied, self-centered Topal, peasant-bloused Patricia Coar lent an air of fresh, untamed loveliness to the otherwise drab surroundings.

Belle Masque is to be congratulated only for its successful staging of a very poor theatrical endeavor. The set, deserving top billing for itself, was unique, and the acting outstanding for a play that had comparatively nothing to offer in the way of entertainment.

Contest Pictures For Junior Salon Due on April 23

With the April 23 deadline for entering the Library's Junior Week Art Contest just a month away, Rev. Daniel Falvey, O.S.A., Librarian, reminded students to put finishing touches on photographs or paintings they intend to submit for the $45 in prizes.

The contest display, to be shown in the Library during Junior Week, offers awards for three classes of art work, photographs, oil paintings, and water colors.

Changes in this year's rules limit the subject matter to anything related to the campus, such as buildings, grounds, personalities, or activities.

With the attraction of $10 first prizes and $5 second prizes for each group, Fr. Falvey expects the number of entrants this year to exceed all past contests.

Eleven photographs and seventeen pictures were submitted to last year's salon. From these, first prize awards went to George Winters, ex - VILLANOVAN photographer, now graduated, and Shane Creamer, a Senior, for his oil, "Winter Scene".

Judging for the contest will be done by several members of the faculty, based on the same point system as last year. But instead of rating water colors and oils in the same group, the judges will consider the groups separately to award prizes for both classes.

In general, judging will be based on composition and balance, color, consistency, interest, perspective, and context. For the photographic entries, lighting and consistency of detail will also be considered.

Photographic entries must be at least 8x10 inches, on mats at least 16x20 inches. Measurements for paintings may vary. All work must be submitted to the office of the Librarian by 4 p. m. April 23 for judging in time for the Junior Week display.

EASTER DISPLAY

A special holiday display illustrating Easter in literature and art has been arranged for the College Library by Rev. Michael O'Donnell, O.S.A., curator. It will be shown throughout the Easter season in the lobby of the Library building.

In addition to the Easter display Fr. O'Donnell has arranged a second exhibit concerning the Holy Year to remind students of special indulgences that can now be obtained.

Checking Profits From "Doorstep"

BELLE MASQUE PRESIDENT, John Rowe, and Moderator, William Krupa, O.S.A., check returns from last week's production of "The Great Big Doorstep" after the last performance Sunday night. "Doorstep" was unique in that it was the first Belle Masque producion in several years that resulted in profit for the dramatic group. It ran five nights, held over for a Sunday evening performance.

Cauz to Head Spanish Club

Frank Cauz, an Education sophomore, was swept into office as President of the Spanish Club at a meeting of that organization last Tuesday evening.

Also elected at the meeting were George Downing, Juan Donestevez, and James Nolin. Downing was chosen for Vice-President, with the offices of Secretary and Treasurer filled by Donestevez and Nolin respectively.

Saturday, April 21, was selected as "Cervantes Night" by a majority vote of the club members. Committees were appointed for this dinner-dance, a cultural and social event.

This affair will begin at 9 p. m. at the Norristown Elks Club, with music supplied by the "Villanovans".

Contest Rules Cited

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano O.S.A., moderator of the club, reminded the members that this annual celebration is conducted in accord with the Spanish Institute of Columbia University to commemorate the anniversary of the death of Don Quixote.

Father Lozano also outlined the rules for the yearly literary contest for the best composition written in Spanish on Cervantes. These compositions may treat with any phase of his life. A medal and diploma will be awarded by the Columbian Institute for the best prose work.

For the best poetic work in English, a suitable prize will be awarded.

Hennessey Named On Catholic and Soph All Stars

By Bill Klucsarits

Larry Hennessey is the outstanding sophomore court star of the season because of a twisted ankle.

When the season opened, the 6'3" shotmaker was a doubtful starter, but an injury to co-captain Nick Maguire's ankle elevated Larry to a starting role. His sensational set-shooting assured him a place on the first five and was the major factor in helping the Wildcats post their 25-5 record.

As the season ended, the honors began to pour in for the New Rochelle, N. Y. native, who scored 668 points for an average of 22.3 per game.

All-Catholic All-American

He is the only sophomore on the All-Catholic All-American and on the District 2 teams of Collier's and Look magazines. On both teams he is traveling in fast company. His All-Catholic teammates include: Don Meineke of Dayton, currently setting the NIT on fire; Bob Zawoluk of St. John's, almost a unanimous All-American choice; Sinicola of Niagara, and Govedorica of De-Paul.

Sinicola and Zawoluk also joined Hennessey on the District 2 team. The other two members are Bill Mlkvy, Temple's All-American and the nation's leading scorer, and John Azary, captain of Columbia's undefeated Lions.

All-Sophomore All-American

An All-Sophomore All-American as picked by leading college coaches also has Villanova's scoring ace on the first five. Ernie Beck of Penn, Feeman of Toledo, Ramsey of Kentucky and Ridgeway of UCLA complete the second-year men's team.

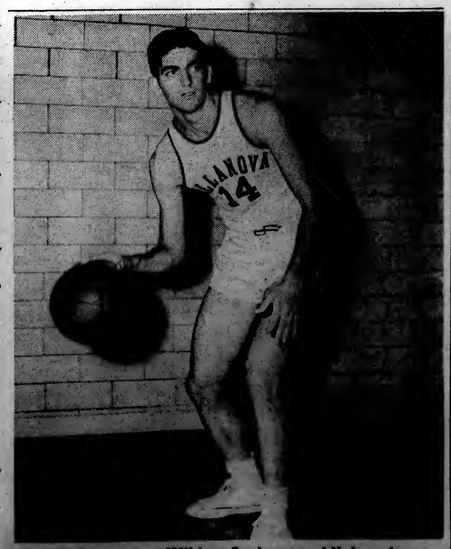
Sensational Sophomores Season's Success Story

By Bob Forsyth

On December 2, 1950, a huge question mark, the 1950-1951 version of the basketball Wildcats, stepped on the court of the Villanova field house to initiate their season, in which, according to dubious forecasters, they would be fortunate to post a 50-50 record. There was reason for this doubt. It was a completely inexperienced squad, composed of ten sophomores and two juniors, and, to the seasoned observer, an apparently unworthy successor to the great Arizin & Co.



Cats Prove Merit

Four months later, on March 10, 1951, the same team terminated its regular season at the Penn Palestra, and all doubt had vanished. For, out of a grueling thirty game schedule, the battling Mainliners had achieved twenty-five victories, to become the second winningest and second highest scoring team in Villanova history. As a tribute to their outstanding success, they are now afforded the opportunity to add to their laurels in two major post-season tournaments.

The why's of this amazing success story are apparent. Though unsuspected, the material such as Lanky Larry Hennessey, one of the nation's top scorers with 668 points for a 22.3 per game average; Tom Brennan and Co-Captain Jim Mooney, co-emperors of the backboard and second and third high scorers respectively; "Good Sam" Glassmire, giant among the "Little Men" and defensive wizard; Co-captain Nick Maguire and "Bouncing Ben" Stewart, dependable all-round performers; plus the capable reserves. The other element was there also in the person of Coach Al Severance who patiently and most effectively molded this young talent into a coordinated unit.

Season Success Story

To tell how this remarkable, 25-5 record was achieved, a glance at the schedule is in order. The 'Cats opened with a rush, crushing nine opponents, including Louisville, N.C. State and Detroit, before bowing to a determined Fordham team. Undaunted by this initial loss, the Mainliners reeled off another streak of nine triumphs, repeating over N.C. State again and subduing Duquesne and Boston College in the process. At this point, with an 18-1 record, the 'Cats went into a temporary recession, losing to Toledo, Seton Hall and Princeton in a row, the latter two on the road. Once more they surged back and only a loss to St. Bonaventure marred their stretch drive, which included an evening win over Seton Hall, a repeat over Duquesne, and concluding triumphs over William and Mary and Siena.

Capacity Crowd on Hand For Tournament Opener

Intense Rivalries Reign Between Teams as Louisville-Kentucky, Cats-Pack Meet

Tobaccotown was already bulging at its city limits when Coach Al Severance and his sensational sophomore - sparked court squad arrived after a two-hour air cruise from Philadelphia's Municipal Airport last night. A capacity crowd well exceeding 15,000 is expected to jam the palatial arena in anticipation of the biggest basketball attraction the South has ever offered.

If the intense rivalry between the contestants is any indication, the onlookers definitely will not be disappointed. Villanova has administered four successive defeats to Everett Case's Wolfpack's, two of them during the past season. It's a very safe bet that the State strategist and his Southern Conference champions will do everything in their power to turn the tables on the only team that has been able to accomplish that particular feat.

Huge Kentucky Delegation

A huge delegation from Kentucky, numbering thousands, has invaded the city to witness a battle for court supremacy of the Blue Grass state. Louisville has long awaited the opportunity to dethrone Coach Adolph Rupp's University five from the position usually conceded them as the South's strongest.

But despite their strong personal rivalries, the four teams will be shooting at a higher goal —advancement to the semi-final round of the tournament at Madison Square Garden, Thursday night. The winner of the Villanova-N. C. State game here tonight will meet the winner of the Columbia-Illinois contest and the Kentucky - Louisville survivor will face the victor in tonight's St. John's-Connecticut tussle at the Garden.

Statistics Favor Cats

The statistics are in favor of Villanova's extending its jinx-hold on State to five games. The Severancemen boast a season's record of 25 and 5, including two wins over the Wolfpack. The Southerners have also dropped five decisions, two to the Wildcats and the other three to Villanova victims—William and Mary, Louisville, and Seton Hall.

Perhaps the biggest blow to the Southerners' chance is the loss of three stars, declared ineligible by the N.C.A.A. for tournament play. All-American Sam Ranzino, Vic Bubas, and Paul Horvath will attend tonight's contest merely as spectators.

Same Five

Coach Al Severance will depend on the same starting five who closed the regular season against Siena — high - scoring Larry Hennessey and rebounding Jim Mooney at forwards, Towering Tom Brennan at center, the fiery Sam Glassmire and ballhawk Ben Stewart at guards.

Cagers Face Utah In Round One of Bradley Tourney

Al Severences highly touted hoopsters have accepted their second post season tournament bid, the Bradley National Campus Tourney at Peoria, Illinois. Earlier in the week the Mainliners accepted the N.C.A.A. bid and previously declined an N.I.T. invite because of schedule difficulties.

Meet Utah

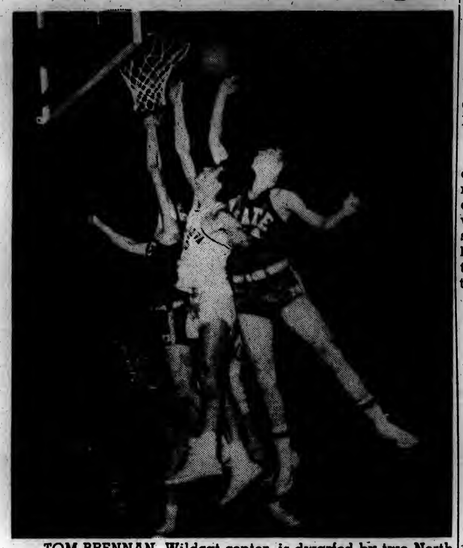
Yesterday, Bradley Tournament officials announced that the Wildcats would meet Utah in the first game on March 28. Tonight the Cats will play North Carolina State in the N.C.A.A. tournament at Raleigh.

Heavy Schedule

Villanova faces a heavy schedule if they reach the National finals at Minneapolis on March 27. This would leave the ambitious Cats with but one days rest before launching their bid in the Bradley set-to.

Back To Campus

The Bradley Tourney is a "back to campus" movement which came about because of the basketball scandal, and officials have high hopes of it becoming a permanent event.



Other pairings for the Bradley Tournament are Duquesne against Wyoming and Bradley versus Western Kentucky on March 27, with Syracuse facing Toledo prior to the Villanova-Utah contest the next night.

Tickets on Sale For Tournament

Tickets are now on sale for the NCAA tournament in New York at the Field House. Student rates will not go into effect until tomorrow and then only if Villanova should win this evening's game with North Carolina State.

Regular priced tickets for Thursday's game have been on sale since Saturday. The price range from $1 to $4. The student rate will affect only the $1 and $1.50 tickets should they be sold at Villanova. Other tickets will sell for same amount. The ticket office located in the Field House will be open until 4:30 p. m. on Wednesday.

The Old Battle Renewed Tonight

TOM BRENNAN, Wildcat center, is dwarfed by two North Carolina State players in January battle of tonight's NCAA rivals. The 'Cats won this one 66-64, and a previous tilt in December by 68-61.

Refugees Rally to Win In Overtime Thriller

Putting on a Frank Merriwell finish that would make many a Hollywood writer blush, the Austin Refugees overcame a 15-35 halftime deficit to hand the Ramblers a 64-63 overtime defeat. Completely outclassed in the opening canto, the Refugees, led by Dent with a terrific 27 point total, just couldn't be stopped in the second 20 minutes. They brought the count to 50-44 at the ten minute mark, and tied the regulation game at 61 on a half court set shot by Konacs.

Lucos led the Barracks 1 to a 44-27 win over Austin as he connected for 18 tallies; while Mood dropped in 13 as Barracks 3 downed Barracks 2, 40-37 in another tight one.

In the remaining C League action the Hayseeds topped the Pistons 28-21.

Doms Top Crows

Natiello and Morrissey each chipped in with 12 counters as the Doms rolled over the Austin Crows 45-30, to keep in the thick of the A League race. All nine Men in the Doms lineup broke into the scoring column.

The Berrypickers squeezed out a 38-35 victory over Mendel in a hot contest that Miller ring the bell for 11.

The Swishers won a 2-0 forfeit from the Good Counsel five.

Caps Still Lead

The Alumni Caps stayed on their top perch in the B League with a 42-35 win over the Characters. Homan was the big gun in this attack as he garnered 17 points.

The Hotshots won their second straight with a 44-33 verdict over the Beavers. Fleming of the Beavers was high man with 14.

McConney and Briody each hit for 12 as Barracks 2 topped the Knights 41-36.

Barracks 1 bowed to the Firehouse Five to the tune of 50-41. O'Malley was top Fireman with 12, although every man on the squad contributed at least one deuce.

Liz Kids Drop Two

The Liz Kids dropped a 47-27 verdict to the Rumrunners in the first of the American League action, and then put on a rally that fell just two points short of the Furriers as they dropped the second of the week 46-44. Cope led the Rumrunners to victory with 20, while Scanlon hit for 23 in the Furriers win. Jim Glavin boasted the Liz Kid high with 18, tallied against the Furriers.

In the only National League game, McNamara and Santone tallied 19 and 16, respectively, as the Hawks ran wild over the Darbies 65-24.

In addition, on the Associated Press All-State team, Larry was second only to Bill Mlkvy in gathering votes for a place on the squad. This team also lists Glassmire and Brennan with its Honorable Mention selections.

Highest-Scoring Sophomore

No other player in the Wildcats' history has brought so much fame to himself and the college in his first season of varsity competition. The set shots of Larry Hennessey will be heavily counted upon to carry the Main Liners through their two post-season tournaments.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 15...THE LONG-WATTLED UMBRELLA BIRD

"They must think I don't have enough sense to get out of the rain!"

It made L. W. madder than a wet hen when they asked him to judge cigarette mildness by taking one puff, one huff, one whiff or one sniff. Our common sense friend enjoys a good smoke too much ever to settle on any brand in such a snap judgment way! For him and for millions like him, there's only one convincing way to test cigarette mildness.

It's the Sensible Test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke —on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed! After you've enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you will know why . . .

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

Sangor, Ross and Andre Signed For Guild Variety Show on April 26

Sangor, Ross and Andre have been signed for the Augustinian Seminary Guild's Variety Show on April 26. This is one of the outstanding satirical and comedy knock-about acts in the country and features the "tallest and smallest dancing stars" act in the nation.

Some of the recent engagements of Sangor, Ross and Andre include Radio City Music Hall in New York, "The Oriental" in Chicago and the Earle Theatre in Washington, D. C.

They were also recently seen on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town", Milton Berle's "Cavalcade of Stars" and "This Is Show Business." Reverend John J. Coffey, O.S.A., Seminary Guild Director, said that he expects this particular act to draw more laughs from the audience, especially the college students, than any other single act in this year's star-studded Variety show.

As announced in the VILLANOVAN last week, Eddie Roecker will return this year as Master of Ceremonies. Several other famous persons and acts, many of them familiar to TV viewers, will be included in the show. But Father Coffey has decided not to release the name of the band that will play background music for the acts until after Easter. It will be released at the same time as off-campus news releases make it known to the general public.

The show will be held in the Villanova College Field House and the curtain will go up at 8:15 P. M. Last year the show was almost completely sold out the day before it opened.

Chairman Kevin McCrane disclosed this week that Joseph Driscoll and his decorations committee will decorate the Field House with a "fireman" theme to emphasize the fact that a blazer jacket is not a necessity at this dance.

Mother's Day

Following the established Junior Week tradition, chairman Bud Conklin has scheduled Mother's Day activities to open the week, and arranged a tentative schedule for the day.

In addition to the traditional day-long program of Mass, tree-planting, luncheon, entertainment, and Benediction, he added an innovation this year, a Mother's banquet.

Arranged for convenience of Juniors and their mothers, the banquet was added to accommodate those who would find difficulty in going off campus for supper.

Cost of Mother's Day will be $1 to cover corsage and luncheon, with an additional $4.70 charge for those attending the evening's banquet.

Dinner Dance

Chairman of the Junior Dinner-Dance Stan Karminski named James Griffin ticket chairman this week, and announced plans for invitation sales.

Priced at $7.50, invitations will be sold only at the Pie Shop since table reservations have to be made at the time of purchase. Griffin advised Juniors to settle beforehand the group they want to sit with at the affair, and buy tickets for an entire table at once.

The Junior Dinner Dance will climax Junior Week Saturday night, May 5, in the main ballroom of the Ben Franklin hotel. Charlie McGee will provide dance music, and a trio from his group will play during dinner.

Junior Prom

Highlighting Junior Week activities will be the Junior Prom, to be held in the Field House Friday night, May 4. Buddy Williams and the Blue Notes will combine talents to provide continuous dance music. Tickets are priced at $6.

Frank Garvey and Lou Oberle, co-chairmen of the program committee began soliciting last week for program benefactors, patrons, and donors. They are now approaching all Juniors and many other students for listings, and expect to complete their campaign soon after Easter. In order to have the program printed in time it must be submitted to the printer several weeks before Prom time.

'54 Aim of Lynx Drive Says Editor J. Daley

Editor Joe Daley stated that the present subscription campaign, directed primarily toward members of the Class of '54, is open to all undergraduates. The offer includes one back and four subsequent issues of the book for $1.

The magazine is sold only via subscription. A subscription may be taken with any member of the staff, or by writing to Box 83, Villanova, Pennsylvania.

Daley also reported that the Lynx is presently soliciting manuscripts for its next issue. Any would-be author should contact Daley or write to Box 83, Villanova, Pennsylvania.

results, College President, Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., expressed thanks to the men who conducted the poll, and assured that the Villanova administration would consider its results if action on acceleration becomes necessary.

"We are pleased to see the serious attitude of the student body in regard to the questions contained in the poll," he said, "and assure that this indication of student opinion will be used as a guide for future administration action."

The poll showed that Villanova students are in favor of acceleration in "wartime emergency", but that they are against the idea of acceleration as a permanent feature when wartime emergency does not require it.

Dr. Brendan Brown Explains Man's Right, Civil Authority

"Since the state has authority, it can protect its own interests; but, the people of the state depend on the state to protect their rights."

With this statement Dr. Brendan Brown summarized his topic, "Human Rights and the State," at the latest Villanova forum. Reading from a formal paper, Dr. Brown pointed out that this authority, is also an outstanding weakness of the state, a weakness that creates the necessity of a constitution.

The noted barrister traced the beginning of authority, that is from the family, to the tribe, and finally to civil authority.

Family Is Imperfect Unit

"Thus the state became a natural civil society, but was to some extent imperfect. Whereas the church is considered to be a perfect authority because of its divine foundation and is independent of any authority in its sphere, the family is an imperfect unit."

Dr. Brown showed that man ought to live in the society of his fellow man. "This is necessary," he said, "because man was created to live in union with his brethern. By this I mean that all peoples of the world should live together in peace. This would enable them all to prosper and to lead to a more successful civilization.

U. N. Recognizes Rights

"An outstanding landmark in the acceptance of this fact seemed to take place when the United Nations passed the 'Universal Declaration of Rights.' This was to become a standard of common achievement towards civil and political rights.

"There is a proposed draft before the United Nations to make this a treaty and thus to recognize human rights throughout the civilized world. This follows a hope, that, after World War II, men would try to live together with fellow-man. But, Russia, has indicated that this is clearly not to her taste."

The speaker was introduced by Mr. Charles Bruderle of the Villanova History department after an invocation by Rev. Edward Dwyer, O.S.A., dean of Villanova College.

New Dante Group Outlines Program

Plans and purposes of the Dante Society, recently organized student organization, were outlined at a meeting last Wednesday by Rev. Louis Rongione, O.S.A., moderator.

Election of officers will be held at the group's next meeting after the Easter vacation, April 3, at 7:15 p. m. in 215 Mendel. Both write-in candidates and men nominated at the last meeting will be eligible for office.

Chief purposes of the Dante Society, Fr. Rongione explained, are fostering Italian culture, furthering international understanding, and promoting social activity.

He emphasized that culture will be interpreted broadly in the Society's activities. Plans include meetings to discuss Italian literature, art, music, and philosophy, Italian programs, and possibly, Italian opera recitals.

New members will be accepted at the next meeting. Dues to cover Society activities will be one dollar a semester. Two types of membership are available in the new group; active membership, open to all Villanova students with or without Italian background, and honorary membership, for any faculty members, alumni, or friends of Villanova College.

The students, ultimately representing 200,000 students at 188 Catholic colleges and universities in this country, are meeting to make preliminary plans for the national N.F.C.C.S. Congress. Site this year for the national Congress August 12, will be the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minnesota.

California Delegates Due

Senior delegate of campus N.F.C.C.S. unit, Courtney Fleming, said that college students from all regions of the country, as far west as the Los Angeles, California area, will come to the Villanova meeting.

Campus N.F.C.C.S. members have made arrangements to house the visiting college men at Villanova, and the girls at Rosemont. All the visitors will have meals at the Villanova cafeteria during the three days of conference.

Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., as moderator of Villanova's N.F.C.C.S., will welcome the visitors on their arrival Friday evening for the first session.

Activities for the national council meeting will be held in the College Library, and are open to all interested Villanova students. Besides the Friday night session, other meetings are scheduled all day Saturday, and Sunday morning.

Constitution Report

Major topics to be discussed in planning the agenda of the August Congress include a report from the Constitution Committee, applications for new national commissions, evaluation and possible reconstruction of existing national commissions, and promotion of N.F.C.C.S. European tours.

Class Standing, Test Will Be Ready Norms

By Jim Glavin

The past two weeks have been fourteen days that mixed ecstasy, disillusionment, joy, hopefulness, and confusion for all draft-eligible college students.

Two weeks ago came the first bit of bright news for those collegiate draft-eligibles since the "deferment until the end of the year" policy was announced two months ago. Out of Washington came the announcement that President Truman had put his stamp of approval on a recommendation of Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey, that was called a policy of "deferment for worthy college students."

Top Students Qualify

The policy boiled down to this, as suggested by Hershey and okayed by President Truman: All Freshmen in the upper half of their class, all Sophomores in the upper two-thirds of their class, and all Juniors in the upper three-fourths of their class, would be deferred; in addition, interested students would take a national aptitude test to be administered by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, New Jersey.

All students who achieved a high rating on that test, which incidentally was to be higher than that required of officer candidates in the army in World War II, would be deferred, whether they were in the upper specified bracket of their class, or not.

Thus, the draft-eligible college student had two chances of

Cars Permitted For Junior Week

School officials will slacken campus anti-automobile regulations, and allow resident students to keep registered cars in school parking lots during Junior Week.

When he issued the directive, Vice-president Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., stated that cars are to be allowed only in student parking lots opposite the Field House and Chapel. They will not be tolerated on campus roads this side of Lancaster pike.

Register License

All students who plan to bring cars to campus for Junior Week must register the license number of their vehicles by April 27 on the list in the VILLANOVAN office, C & F basement.

Fr. McGuire Hails Draft Deferment

Addresses Students at Convocation

College President, Rev. Francis X. McGuire, O.S.A., took issue last Tuesday with the other leading educators of this country, and gave his support to the new Selective Service plan for deferring college students.

Speaking to the student body at a Field House convocation, Fr. McGuire said, "I am amazed at the stands of leading educators on the question, but I believe this program will be put into effect on schedule in spite of almost universal opposition to it."

Showed Less Gravity

The Villanova president showed much less gravity than he did at the last convocation six weeks ago as he reaffirmed the advice he gave at the former meeting, "I still advise you to remain in school, keep calm, and continue applying yourself to study.

"The confusion of six weeks ago has cleared to some extent, and we finally have at least one working plan. This plan is not perfect, and there are objections to it, but I am confident that it will go into operation."

Condemns Opposition

Condemning opposition to the Selective Service deferment plan, Fr. McGuire declared, "There has been too much emphasis of late on what governmental agencies can do for education, and not enough on what schools can do for the country.

"The difference between classes of students and non-students is an inevitable fact in any circumstance, and should not be used to oppose a plan that would continue the flow in men into the branches of learning."

Men Have Obligation

"Men with ability to develop themselves as leaders," he declared, "do not have a right to deferment for personal advantage, rather, they have an obli-

Inter Frat Ball Set For Friday Night

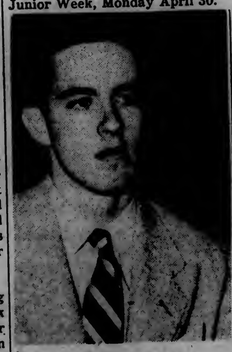
Jack Gibbons Named Dance Head Five Frats Ready For Annual Affair

The spring social season of Villanova gets under way Friday evening April 20, with the Inter-Fraternity Ball. The dance, which this year will be sponsored jointly by DPM, DPE, KPK, LKD, and PKP, is to be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., in the College Field House. Music will be supplied by the VILLANOVANS.

Chairman J. Gibbons

Jack Gibbons, Chairman of the Social Affairs Committee of the Student Council, also has been appointed Chairman of the dance. Chairman Gibbons expects a record turnout from both members and non-members. The price of the tickets this year has been reduced from $2.40 to $1.80.

Frats Pool Members



This annual Ball is unique in one respect; it is the only dance throughout the year in which a number of clubs pool their talents for mutual benefits. Each fraternity supplies a like number of men, who do all the necessary work needed to successfully stage a dance.

Tickets for the dance may be secured from fraternity members or at the door. Throughout the dance refreshments will be served in the Blue Room.

This year the dance had to be held in the spring because the Belle Air Ball was held for the first time this year during the month of October. In the past the dance had been a regular occurrence each fall.

Next Friday Set As Reservation Deadline For Mother's Day Junior Week Opening

Next Friday will be the last day for Junior Class members to make reservations for Mother's Day activities on the first day of Junior Week, Monday April 30.

Bud Conklin

After listing the official program for the day Chairman Bud Conklin reported that Juniors had already made an unexpected large number of reservations for this popular annual activity. He urged all Juniors to sign up as soon as possible for the regular activities, as well as for the Mother's Banquet that has been added this year.

Payments Until Friday

Cost for the Mother's Day program is $1.00 for the regular activities, and $5.70 for the day and the evening banquets together. Money will be collected until Friday in the Pie Shop and the Chaplain's Office during lunch hour. Arrangements for additional guests can be made at both locations.

Conklin's official program for Mother's Day is as follows:

11:00 a.m.—Mass in College Chapel
12:30 p.m.—Tree planting at Austin Hall
1:00 p.m.—Luncheon in Mendel cafeteria
2:15 p.m.—Entertainment in Field House
4:00 p.m.—"Surprise" program in Austin Lounge
4:45 p.m.—Benediction in College Chapel
6:15 p.m.—Banquet in Field House

Corsages will be given to the mothers at the beginning of the day's program. In addition to the scheduled activities, Conklin suggests tours of the campus, with special attention to the Library and its Junior Week exhibit of student art.

The Draft Order

Two weeks have elapsed since President Truman ordered deferments to students satisfactorily pursuing graduate and undergraduate courses. Since that time thousands of comments condemning the move itself as well as the hapless student have been flung from laymen, every paper in the nation, and even from educators themselves.

None of the arguments are founded on valid reasoning, though many of them came from renowned quarters. The reasoning has consistently missed the point. Opponents insist: "College students should not be ignored by the draft merely because they have enough money to undergo the expense of four more years of education. No blanket exceptions should be given to any group."

The tone of these statements imply that this order excuses students from the draft. Nothing could be more wrong. Induction in the case of a college student is postponed until graduation. The fact that the student enters the service four years later than other men means only that he will leave the service four years after the high school graduate. The plan will not at all lessen the chances of serving his country.

Secondly it is erroneous to think that college is contingent to the wealth of a student's family. The chance for every individual to develop his talents regardless of his financial resources has long been the proud heritage of this country.

We will not deny that money does enhance the possibilities of a higher education. However, thousands attend college each year at a cost no greater than that of public high school. Virtually every state in the country supports one or more college where tuition is either nominal or absolutely unheard of. Furthermore all other colleges offer competitive scholarships each year to deserving students who cannot afford the expense.

Ultimately the large percentage of colleges and universities must be supported by private endowment plus the payment of tuition by the average student. It is absurd, as has been suggested, to propose that the services select out of the draftees men who will go to college supported at government expense. The cost would be astounding and that would not be the least of the trouble; it would be another step in the eradication of free enterprise, another step toward socialism.

Somehow, newspapers seem to think deferment for college students is not democratic, but they fail to consider that deferments are granted to men in essential industries, such as farmers, railroad workers and others.

The theory behind deferment for college students is that ultimately they will be of better service to our democracy after they have completed their college education than they would be if they were snatched out of school by the draft.

The order to defer students was a much needed step to clarify the draft situation. It has, furthermore, been wisely and clearly promulgated.

Prom Queen Contest Ends Friday, April 20

Hit Parade Star to Assist Frank Palumbo in Selections

This is the last call for entrants in the two-month search for Villanova's annual Queen of Junior Week. Pictures of all Queen hopefuls submitted by Juniors must be in the hands of the committee by next Friday, April 20.

The early closing date of the contest is necessary to enable the judges to select the Queen and her court in time for publication in the special Junior Week edition of this paper a week from Monday.

Loretta Carabba
Sponsor—Jim Carceran

Snooky Lanson, young singing star of the Saturday night TV and radio "Hit Parade," will join with Frank Palumbo, noted Philadelphia restauranteur and philanthropist, in the selection of Junior Week Queen.

The beautiful lady they choose will reign over Junior Week functions, be crowned by bandleader Buddy Williams at the Prom, receive a bouquet of roses and an engraved compact, and preside at the coronation dance.

If the Queen is not from the Philadelphia area she will receive hotel accommodation for Prom weekend and an invitation to the dinner dance instead of tickets to the earlier Junior Week activities.

Mary Brennan
Sponsor—Jack Schneider

Pictures for the contest, accompanied by the required description of the girl, can be submitted all this week at the VILLANOVAN office or personally to Jim Gallagher, Managing Editor, or Bob Roland, Junior Week publicity chairman.

Trends Mean But Little If One is Well Anchored

By Jim Griffin

Trends . . . shifting sands on the beach: now a bar, in ten years a gulley, in a thousand an inlet. Or the change of a rain belt, gradually moving this way or that, threatening to make a fertile valley a desert, or a desert a fertile valley.

A Crystal Ball

Men study trends, because in them it seems as though one can read the future. Men watch closely to see whether car buyers will prefer lighter shades of finish in future years, or whether ranch type houses will be the first choice of middle class buyers, or whether criminals will outnumber honest men, or marriage standards will suffer total collapse.

Predictions

Then after careful study, men make predictions. Toynbees note stasis and dynamis, and predict a rising predominance for this race or that nation, a decline of one culture or another religion. They produce statistics by the volume and interpretations of encyclopedic proportions. They note history and point out predictions which could have been made if only the methods of today had been available to past ages. They derive infallible mathematical formulae to back up their claims that an individual is merely a helpless little grain of sand on the beach of a swirling tide. He may do what he wills, but he cannot affect what the whole mass of humanity is doing.

Quandary

To the individual, this is a bewildering situation. He cannot deny that trends exist, and yet a man created with free will. If the predicted trend is toward what he considers evil, he becomes a confirmed idiot, since his efforts are statistically in vain. To a man in this quandary, there is but one institution on earth which is not of the earth. It is the one alone which has proven itself equipped to meet any problem which might face a man, and to settle clearly for him the path through it or around it.

That hand-hold which is reached out to man is the Church, the ever-ready spouse of Christ. Once a man grasps tightly to it, the fearful significance of the Kinsey clan's thunder melts away. For to God man is an individual, and His law is a law made for individuals. What difference then does it make to one what trends predict under this or that interpretation, correct or incorrect? The law of God is clear to man, and he will be judged under it. Let the beaches shift as they may, the grains of sand which stand fast will receive their reward.

deferment under the new program: 1) If he were an upper bracket student, and, 2) If he achieved a high score on an aptitude test.

Then members of both houses in Congress opened fire on the new program, still in the embryo stage. In a "hanger" on the Universal Military Training program bill, scheduled to be up for debate and vote last week, Congress proposed to abandon the so-called "Hershey Plan."

UMT Scuttled

The UMT bill was scrapped, however, it never reached a vote on the floor of Congress. With it, went the "hanger" to do away with the aptitude and upper-bracket deferment provisions of Hershey and Truman.

Some Congressional members still objected, vociferously, to the plan, though. Thus, late last week the Armed Services Committee was reported to have been in accord on recommending that the tests go through as scheduled.

But, the Congressional recommendations, stopped there, to most extents. The tests would go on, yes. But, the tests and the class rating of the students were to serve only in an advisory capacity to local draft boards. There was to be nothing mandatory about them.

Test at Villanova

At press time matters stood this way: The aptitude tests would be administered by the Educational Testing Service, May 26, June 16, and June 30 at various specified centers throughout the United States (Villanova is one of those centers). However, the Tests and the class rating of the student are to serve merely as advice for his draft board in considering his case.

All students not in the NROTC, and not veterans or members of any National Guard or off-campus reserve units, that is, all draft-eligible students, should: 1) Write immediately to their local draft board and request Selective Service Forms 106 and 107 which are applications for the aptitude tests to be given May 26, June 16 and June 30; 2) They should return the forms as soon as possible, completely filled out; 3) Take the test on the date they request in forms 106 and 107, and also request the college to send their class standing to their draft board.

Two of the most often-asked questions in regard to the new deferment plan are, with their answers, below:

Question — Are draft boards required to observe the rules and defer students automatically, even if running out of men?

Answer — NO. There will be nothing binding on the boards. But in most cases they are expected to comply. Deferment, however, is not automatic. Each student must take the matter up with his board, presenting his grounds for deferment.

Question—What if a student is called for induction, even though qualifying for deferment?

Answer—He can go above the board and take his case to his State appeal board. He can take a later appeal to Washington if the ruling of the state board is split.

Dr. McEnerney Defends Use of Classics at DPM

"The liberal arts student who, having worked through the monotonous fundamentals of a language, ends all connection with that language after the final examination is absolutely foolish. Latin, Greek and the modern languages are no more meant to be dropped upon graduation than electrical engineering, chemistry or physics.

"Courses in language should be the tools toward further achievement in that tongue whether for advanced work or mere intellectual entertainment. Americans might be more interested in languages were it not for four major difficulties and the fact that he is afraid to be alone with his thoughts," said Dr. John I. McEnerney during a lecture to the Delta Pi Mu fraternity last week.

Encourages Classics' Use

Dr. McEnerney, Assistant Professor of Modern Languages of the college, and student of three modern languages plus Latin and Greek in which he received his doctorate spoke on the study of language and their use by the arts student. "The arts man is supposed to be a gentleman of culture when he graduates, but he is not if he forgets everything he studied of cultural subjects.

"The study of the ancient languages of Latin and Greek is necessary for they are a reflection and a key to the borrowed culture of Americans. However, four large difficulties stand in the way of the American student of languages.

"To begin with, Europeans are immediately conscious of the existence of other languages. Their interest in languages is connected with the Europeans' culture. To an American there is no poignancy of interest.

"Also in this country there is a strong accent on technology. Physics, Chemistry, and Electronics are fields to which Americans have devoted a tremendous amount of interest. Since these fit so aptly our naturally mechanical yankee minds, languages have sunk into the background.

Pace Too Fast

"Thirdly, since we do not feel that languages have any definite utility we slight them for Americans are great utilitarians.

"The final difficulty is the most important and probably is felt today more than at any other time. There must be leisure time at hand to study languages. But the pace of life today is not such as to admit leisure time to many people."

Twenty Days Left For Stadium Drive

"The progress of the Villanova College Stadium drive has reached the crucial point," according to Rev. James Donellon, O.S.A., chairman of the drive.

Father Donnellon pointed out this week that there are but twenty days left in which to make returns. He reminded students that returns must be made before May 6, to the office of Rev. Edward McKee, O.S.A., College Vice-President, Room 221, Mendel Hall.

Returns Disappointing

Returns up to date have been disappointing, the chairman stated, because he had hoped that a large amount of last minute work would be avoided by early return of students' stubs. "The last minute rush can be eased if the students will only bring in their returns as soon as they're completed," Father Donnellon urged.

Villanova Student Wounded in Korea

William Gaul, former pre-med Junior, from Mieton, Pennsylvania, is the first Villanova casualty of the war in Korea.

Gaul was called to active duty with his Marine Corps reserve unit in October. He was ordered to Korea about the first of the year.

Bomb Victim

Word was received last week that he was one of the victims of a bomb. He suffered from shock, and various lacerations of the body.

His mother, in Mieton, reported that she received a letter from him last Thursday, and that he was en route to rejoin his division in combat.

Strong Line, Fast Backs Keynote Of 1951 Grid Squad

As the football squad moved into its last week of spring practice it became evident that the 1951 edition's strength would probably lie in the line rather than in the backfield as was the case with the eleven of last season.

Although weakened by the loss of a whole starting backfield of Neil O'Boyle, Pete D'Alonzo, John Geppi, and Mickey Frinzi the club has been bolstered by the addition of many promising sophomore linemen as well as a fast-moving array of backs.

Coach Jim Leonard is further aided by the return of nineteen lettermen who will provide the squad with a wealth of experience.

The offensive backfield unit is led by quarterback Bill Brannau who saw most of his duty as ballholder for P. A. T. specialist Bob Haner during the 1950 campaign. Brannau is a very deceptive ballhandler and has shown the qualities of a good field-general.

The offensive backfield is rounded out by powerful Haner at fullback with soph Leo Elter in reserve while the veterans Walt Zuber and Dick Bedesem, aided by newcomer Ben Addiego will operate at the halves.

The defensive backs include Jack Patrick, Paul Tomko, Don Scott, and Franny Dunn as halfbacks and safeties with Tom Green, Tom Gildea and Bob Haner backing the line.

Much strength is to be found in the line, particularly at the ends. Co-Captain Joe Rilo will be playing his third season at offensive right end pairing with 6 foot 7 inch Soph Ray Rigney at the other side of the line. Frank Banas, Frank Rehak, Dan Simeone, Ed Coughlan and a number of sophomores make the end posts the strongest on the Wildcat squad.

Only two veterans, George Claffey and Dick Connor, return to the tackle positions but a wealth of neophyte talent headed by 230 pound Bill Hegarty make this position another strong point for the Main Liners.

Scoring One For The Home Team

JACK WATSON, Villanova's star hurler, contributed to both the scoring and pitching departments in Saturday's shutout of Penn on the Wildcat diamond. He's sliding into home plate under the disgruntled eyes of Penn's catcher, Bill Pfaff during the Cat's big inning.

Watson Shuts Out Quakers With Six Hits, Fans Eight

Morris and Moskal Lead Hitting Attack; Red Wright Pitches 'Cats to First Win

Coach Artie Mahan slept much more soundly after this past weekend had ended because two of his biggest worries had disappeared. He found another reliable starter in erstwhile catcher Jim (Red) Wright after he saw Red do a commendable 4-3 job on the Dartmouth Indians. Mahan also saw, much to his relief, the Wildcat nine emerge from their scoring doldrums to tally ten times against their traditional foe, Pennsylvania, on Saturday.

John Watson, the fireballing righthander, gave the Red and Blue a third color as he whitewashed them 10-0. The Mainliners scored twice in the fourth inning, after the game had been halted for a few minutes because of rain. Benny Moskal's double, Jack Jamison's single and Walt Hauck's center field fly accounted for the runs in that inning.

Eight Runs in Sixth

However, it was in the sixth frame that the Wildcat bats really exploded and before the inning was over, thirteen men had come to bat. Three Penn hurlers were used in the game but it was Ken Parker who was hit the hardest. Parker gave up seven hits and eight runs in the big sixth. Singles by LeFever, Jamison, Lowe, Maurer, Blaha and pitcher Watson, plus walks to Hauck and LeFever contributed to the scoring which was climaxed by Benny Moskal's 450 foot triple to the left field fence.

In the big news of the scoring, the pitching job of Watson was almost overlooked. He didn't allow a Penn man to reach third until the ninth inning and only three other men reached second. Watson fanned eight and walked two in winning and made his season's record 1-2. The Penn victory was Villanova's second in fou rstarts and the defeat for the Quakers was their second in six games.

On the previous day the Main line nine met a floundering Dartmouth squad and were able to break into the win column by virtue of a 4-3 decision over the Hanoverians.

Both teams scored in the first inning and the visitors went ahead 3-1 in the top of the sixth. The Wildcats scored in the bottom of that frame and again in the seventh to tie the score and finally won the game with a clincher in the ninth.

Weird Score Wins

The tie-breaking score was a weird affair in which the pitcher, Red Wright, inadvertently contribute dto his victory. The bases were loaded and Wright was on third. Jack Morris hit to the shortstop, Red edged off third, ran back towards the bag and was forced at home by a wide margin. The Dartmouth catcher threw to first, too late to catch Morris, while Wright continued to head for the plate although he had been forced out. The first baseman threw home to catch Wright and in doing so overshot the plate. With that Bobby Maurer scored from second with the winning run.

Wright, who last year was a catcher, did a fine job in setting down the Indians. He had six strikeouts while issuing seven free passes.

Cagers to Play At Sugar Bowl Tourney Again

Villanova's basketball Wildcats have once again been chosen to compete in the annual Sugar Bowl Tournament at New Orleans, Louisiana. The selection of the Severancemen for the December, 1951, athletic carnival marks the second time that the Mainliners have been so honored.

Vie With Best

The sophomore-sparked Villanova quintet will be vieing with the nation's best in Mardi Gras town, because the selection committee saw fit to invite the three top tournament champions of 1950-51. St. Louis, the defending Sugar Bowl champ, Brigham Young, captor of the N.I.T. crown, and Kentucky, kingpin of the N.C.A.A., will provide the hottest competition imaginable for the Wildcats.

LEONARD UNVEILS New Claws For Gridiron Wildcats

SPRING TRAINING turned out a brand new cast of characters for the backfield roles in Coach Leonard's football play of next season. Noted for their speed rather than their size, the four principals above will start behind a stronger than ever forward wall. Posing for their first formal portrait are: Bill Brannau, QB.; Dick Bedesem, LHB.; Bobby Haner, FB., and Ben Addiego, RHB.

Tracksters Ready For Seton Hall Relays, Sat.

By Bill Cooney

The Wildcat trackmen will open their 1951 outdoor campaign next Saturday when they travel to South Orange, New Jersey, for the Seton Hall Relays.

This carnival pits thinclad quartets from all over the East in battles royal for Eastern championship honors. What is more important, it is regarded as a dress rehearsal for the all-important Penn Relays the following week. It is the time when under path mentors determine their best combinations and who will win the watches at Franklin Field.

'Cats Better Outdoors

Villanova will be on hand with a couple of foursomes that look good as first place contenders. The 'Cat one-mile team was one of the best on the boards last winter, and is figured to be even better outside.

Coach Jim Elliot has a lot of talent to draw from in the mile department. Jim McKenna, Pete Simigan, Jim Reardon, Bob Cunjac, and Johnny Purlinger are all regulars who saw service on the indoor club.

Dwyer Nurses Sore Ankle

The Mainliners also look strong in their favorite event, the distance medley. Besides the above named men who can all do a good quarter and half, IC-4A mile champ Fred Dwyer and John Joe Barry can take over the three-quarter and mile tasks. Although Dwyer has been nursing a sore ankle which prevented his working out, he expects to be on duty Saturday.

Full Schedule Ahead

The Hall Carnival is the start of a full season for the locals. They will compete in the Penn Relays at Franklin Field a week from Saturday, followd by an away meet with Manhattan on May 5. They return for a home contest with Seton Hall, May 12, and then an away meet with N. Y. U., May 19. The IC-4A championships will be at Franklin Field on the 26th and will give fans a glimpse of their favorites competing against top track talent.

Nine Drops First Two of Seanson to Terps and Tigers

Coach Art Mahan's Wildcat baseballers dropped their first two contests of the 1951 season by the very close margins of 2-0 and 4-3.

An overflow crowd took advantage of an exceptionally fine Spring day to witness the inauguration of Villanova's 82nd baseball campaign, but the Terrapins of the University of Maryland darkened the day by blanking the home team, 2-0. The visitors' Don Soderberg and the Mainliners' John Watson hooked up in a very tight pitching duel, each hurler allowing only four hits. A misplayed ground single to right gave the Terps their first tally in the top of the second. The visitors put together a walk, a wild pitch and a single in the third to conclude the scoring.

Bad First Inning

A very bad first inning cost Watson his second start at Princeton last Wednesday, 4-3. The Tigers bunched four singles in the opening round that netted them all four of their runs, after the Cats had jumped on Walt Cherurgi for two quick tallies in the top half of the inning.

Watson, the chunky sophomore righthander, settled down immediately giving Princeton only two hits in the second and third frames and blanking them completely the rest of the way.

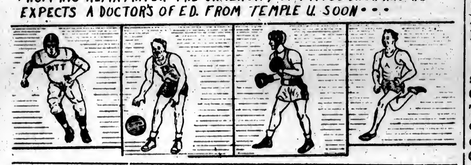
EUGENE POWERS



BY BILL FARRELL

MR. POWERS HAS REORGANIZED THE INTRA-MURAL SETUP ON CAMPUS WITH EXCELLENT RESULTS. IN FACT WE NOW HAVE ONE OF THE FINEST INTRA-MURAL PROGRAMS IN THIS AREA. - - - HE WAS A LT. COMMANDER IN LAST WAR AND WAS COACH AND ATHLETIC DIRECTOR AT GANNON COLLEGE FROM 1947-1950. - AT PRESENT HE IS BASKETBALL COACH AT WEST CATHOLIC H.S. - HIS TEAM FINISHED IN A TIE FOR 1ST PLACE LAST SEASON, WHICH WAS MR. MR. POWERS PARTICIPATED IN FIVE VARSITY SPORTS AT PITT BEFORE HIS GRADUATION IN 1938 — CROSS-COUNTRY, I.M. FOOTBALL, TRACK, BOXING, AND BASKETBALL • • •

MR. POWERS IS WELL SUITED FOR HIS JOB AS ATHLETIC DIRECTOR OF VILLANOVA'S INTRA-MURAL PROGRAM AND W. CATHOLIC'S COACH - HE HAS A MASTER'S DEGREE IN EDUCATION FROM HIS ALMA MATER THE UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH AND HE EXPECTS A DOCTOR'S OF ED. FROM TEMPLE U. SOON • • •

Powers is Energetic Head Of College Intramurals

The intramurals at Villanova are in the professionally capable hands of Eugene P. Powers, Director of Intramural Athletics. He can be found refereeing basketball games day or night in Alumni Gym, or planning his next group of activities in his office with some of the boys. That is, if he isn't taken up with teaching, or busy with his high school basketball team.

This type of position is not new to Mr. Powers, who holds quite a list of enviable qualifications for this job. He is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, receiving his Bachelor of Science in Physical Education in 1938 and his Masters Degree in 1942. He is now a candidate for a Doctors Degree at Temple University.

While at college, he was keenly interested in sports, competing in track, cross country, J. V. football, boxing and basketball.

His background as director or coach of various organizations goes back before the war. As an undergraduate he directed the YMCA activities at Allegheny. After college he coached track and basketball at Pine Township High School. This was interrupted by the war. In 1942 he was sent by the Navy to Harvard to study for five months and then went to sea as a coding officer. He arose to the rank of Lt. Commander, serving on several ships. He saw quite a bit of the Pacific including New Zealand, Guadalcanal, Bougainville, New Georgia, Guam, and Sasebo, Japan.

In 1947 he retired to civilian life becoming Athletic Director at Gannon College, Erie, prior to coming to Villanova. Although much of his time is taken up here doing a fine job, he still found time to coach, a West Catholic Basketball team to an excellent record of 19-4, which was good enough to tie for first place.

Mr. Powers aim as Director of Intramurals is to provide enough activities of all types so that every student may participate, because sports help develop scoial contacts, group spirit, health as well as being recreational.

This is surely being accomplished. Some 250 participants have played in official intramural football games; and some 500 players from 42 teams have been recorded in the basketball games. Last year there were 20 softball teams, this year even more teams are expected to be signed up.

Other sports are being developed, a few of the new ones are boxing and volleyball. If there is enough demand, others will be started.

In the three short semesters that Mr. Powers has been here, the intramural activities have become well organized, even to their being covered by an Intramural Constitution, which states the objectives and the rules to be followed in running the various games.

This year, among other things, there will be an elimination tournament of the 8 best basketball teams, also, another Field Day like the one held last year between the Freshmen and Sophomores.

With the intramurals being directed by such an enthusiastic person as Mr. Powers, there is no reason why every student at Villanova should not be able to compete in some sport that interests him.

FOOTBALL

Co-Captain Nick Liotta and Tony Marallo, both seasoned lineman, will hold down the starting guard positions for the second year in a row. Tony Trunzo, Joe Jerry, and soph Frank Legan all make this position a strong point.

Joe DeRose and Tom Gildea are expected to alternate at offensive center with Gildea shifting to the offense on occasion.

Al Bartolomeo has done most of the punting for the Main Liners during the Spring campaign while the versitile Bob Haner will resume his duties as kickoff and extra-point specialist.

Tennis Tourney Set for April 30; McCann to Defend

By Bob Alusa

The success of the fall Intra-Mural tennis tournament has prompted Mr. Powers to sponsor another series of matches this spring beginning April 30. In the fall games there were eighteen singles entries and seven doubles entries. Since a large number of the applications were received by the tournament committee after the draw had been made for the fall classic, the committee has decided it will accept the first thirty-two singles entries and the first sixteen doubles teams in the forthcoming matches. All of you who are itching to be crowned king of the court, get your entries into Mr. Powers, 112 Alumni Hall, no later than April 26, the deadline.

Possibly a Darkhorse

This tournament could possibly be one of many upsets. Competitors like Jack Roesgan, Terry "Reds" Cooke, Vahe Melconian, Pat Highland, and the champ of the fall tourney, George McCann are all top-notch players who should do well. Since the list of competitors is not complete, even a crystal ball wouldn't be much help in picking a possible winner. Perhaps a player unknown to your writer will turn up as a dark horse and cop the crown.

The fall matches proved to be very competitive and the results were very gratifying. George McCann emerged as the "King of the Raqueteers" when he defeated Jack Roesgan in the finals, 6-4, 6-1.

Champs Play Local Colleges

If the tournament runs smoothly and enough interest is shown, the I-M office has promised to arrange some matches I-M office 112 Alumni Hall. All of colleges, such as Penn, Haverford and Temple.

Remember the deadline for entries—April 26.

Vollyball Teams Should Sign Up Before the 26th

By Dave Maynes

The second annual volleyball tourney will get under way on April 30 in another feature event of a large spring I-M sports program.

Cavaliers Defending Title

Last year eight teams were entered, with Bill Roland's Cavaliers polishing off the Faculty to cop the crown. At least twice that number are expected to compete in this year's contest.

The tourney will be a single elimination set-up, the same as last year.

Drawings April 26

Managers are requested to make their entries at the I-M office, 112 Alumni, on or before the deadline, April 26. Matchings for the opening round will be made at this time.

Tourney Semi-Finals Tonight Heavy Spring Sports Card

The eighteen team Intra-Mural Basketball Tournel rolls around to its climax tomorrow night as two of the top seeded teams meet in the final round. The semi-finals are booked for this evening, wit hthe winner of last night's Swishers—Toppers contest meeting the victor in the Doma — Warriors go, and the survivor of the Hawks — Rum-runners duel facing the Alumni Caps.

With the completion of the Championship tilt tomorrow, the curtain will ring down on an I-M cage season that saw 211 scheduled contests played, the largest number ever recorded in Villanova history, a fine testimonial to the foresight and hard work of Mr. Eugene Powers, I-M director.

First Round

The pairings for the first round were made in a blind drawing by the managers three days before the tourney opened.

The first round got off to a flying start on Monday when the Barracks I 'B' met the Sexons and downed them 56-49, and the Tces bowed to the Hawks 47-40.

Villanova's baseball squad traveled to Allentown yesterday to meet the "Mules" of Muhlenberg, but both nines lost a decision to the weather as old Jupe Pluvius did his worst.

It was the first washout in five starts for the Mainliners.

Three games Tuesday saw the Rum runners advance with a decisive 66-35 victory over the Barracks I 'C' team, the Alumni Caps topped the Fedigan Quints 37-32, and the Austin Refugees forfeited to the Fedigan Big Five.

On the next nite the Swishers moved up to the quarter finals with a close 40-38 win over the Black Flames. The Toppers earned the right to meet them by virtue of a 59-46 decision over the Gunners. The Doms came thru in a thriller 39-38.

SOFTBALL

Mr. Powers will meet with the managers of all the softball teams at 4:30 on Thursday in the T-M office 112 Alumni Hall. All rosters not already turned in must be turned in at this time.

The final two games leading to the quarter finals resulted in a 55-42 Warrior victory over the Austin Hayseeds, and a 51-35 decision in favor of the Hawks over the Barracks I 'B'.

Caps Advance to Semi-Finals

In the only quarter-final contest prior to last night, the Alumni Caps just managed to squeeze by the Fedigan Big Five 41-39.

Tonight's games pit the winner of the Hawk's Rum-runners game against Alumni Caps at 7:30, and the Swishers - Toppers survivor against the torchbearer of the Doms-Warriors contest, at 8:45.

The two finalists will meet tomorrow at 8:00 P. M. in the Alumni gym.

Chem Profs Report Papers

Two professors on the Chemistry Department Staff of Villanova College have presented papers to scientific societies within the last two weeks.

Dr. Paul E. Machemer, Assistant Professor of Chemistry, presented a paper entitled "A Potentiometric Study of Interaction of Zinc Ions with Soluble Silicates." Dr. Machemer read his paper to the Electrochemical Society in Washington, D. C., last April 10.

Dr. Gero at Boston

A second member of the Villanova Faculty, Dr. Alexander Gero read his paper to the American Chemical Society at Boston on April 5. Dr. Gero titled his paper "The Origin of Mulithic Acid in The Oxidation of Charcoal."

Dr. Gero is Associate Professor of Organic Chemistry here. He was assisted in the preparation of his paper by Murray Seitchik '51, his student assistant.

Experienced Men

Dr. Machemer is completing his second year on the staff of Villanova. He received his B.S. degree from Princeton University and his M.S. and Ph.D. in Science from the University of Pennsylania. He has had experience in the industrial field, and during the war, participated in the Manhattan Project and later was a supervisor at the Oak Ridge Atomic Plant. Dr. Machemer also was the holder of a Dreifus Fellowship at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Gero received his Ph.D. in Science at the University of Vienna. He has also held numerous positions in industry, both in Europe and in the United States. Dr. Gero joined the Villanova faculty in 1947.

Library Opens Music Room With Records For Students

New Program Begun on Trial Basis

Villanova College Library added an additional service this week to the cultural opportunities it offers students by opening a collection of recorded music and making facilities of the Music Room available for student use.

In announcing the inauguration of the music service library officials explained that the program will be conducted on an experimental basis for the rest of this semester, and added next year as a permanent Library service if students show sufficient interest.

Listed In Catalog

The present Library collection includes albums of classical and lighter recordings. Albums are listed in a separate drawer of the card catalog, and are available for use in the Library during regular Library hours.

To make use of this service a student need only select recordings from the catalog listing, pick them out from the collection on the third level of book stacks, and get the Music Room key from the Circulation desk when he signs for the recordings.

New Machine In Use

The student signing for the records will be responsible both for them and for the apparatus he uses in the Music Room. A new three-speed phonograph is now in the Music Room, available for student use. The larger console combination television, recording, and phonograph cabinet will be reserved for use during music seminars and other special programs.

Although the present record collection is small and consists mostly of 78 r.p.m. recordings, the Library hopes to expand music facilities as student interest increases. Rev. John McMenamin, O.S.A., who organized the program, stated that "donations of records of any type would certainly be welcome, even incomplete albums" to add to the new student service.

dents is an inevitable fact in any circumstance, and should not be used to oppose a plan that would continue the flow in men into the branches of learning."

Men Have Obligation

"Men with ability to develop themselves as leaders," he declared, "do not have a right to deferment for personal advantage, rather, they have an obligation to develop every basic talent in the interest of country, families, and Almighty God."

He further defined the problem as not one of finding a "hiding place" to shelter college students from military service, but of placing all men in the position where their abilities will be used to best advantage.

Concluding, Fr. McGuire reaffirmed his belief that the proposed Selective Service system will be put into operation, and urged all Villanova students to take the forthcoming Selective Service qualification test.

Now-Chartered Marketers Hear Scott Executives' Talk

Two top executives of Scott Paper Company outlined the essential elements of a sound marketing program at last Thursday's meeting of Villanova College Marketing Association.

Also highlighting the meeting was presentation by Bert Sellier, president, of the recently organized Club's Associate Membership Charter in the nation-wide American Marketing Association.

The two Scott executives were Mr. D. A. Prouty, national retail sales manager; and Mr. William S. Ash, distribution analyst in the company's distribution research and development department.

Speaking before a rainy night audience of about sixty C&F students, the men took turns delivering a prepared speech, illustrating the talk with a huge visual-aid chart, and explaining the topic as it pertained to the Scott Paper Company.

Scientific Marketing a Need

"Scientific marketing," declared Mr. Prouty in the course of his portion of the discussion, "has been an imperative need in this country ever since the United States became a mass-production nation about 1920."

He and Mr. Ash went on to list and explain the following elements of an effective and successful scientific program of marketing: a planned objective, use of factors to estimate market growth, selective distribution, duties of a retail sales manager, advertising and sales promotions, public relations, and employee relations.

Mr. Prouty has been an exponent of sales as a profession for a number of years and has delivered another prepared talk, entitled "Salesmanship A Career" to many scholastic and business groups throughout the country.

William Ash is currently teaching a course in marketing at the Pennsylvania State Center in Swarthmore, Pa. One of the pioneer organizers of Scott's Co-operative Advertising Program, and former distribution accountant with the same company, he is experienced in speaking on the phases of planning behind sales.

Villanova's Student Marketing Association is one of the newer student organizations on campus. Originally organized during last school year, the group has drawn a large membership from the School of Commerce and Finance.

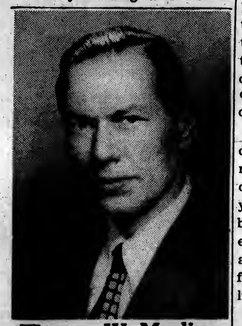
Campus AIEE Holds Contest For Prize Paper In District

25 Schools to Attend Two-Day Meeting



Villanova College Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will conduct the Prize Paper Contest for the Middle Eastern District of this Society on April 27 and 28.

Twenty-five schools are included in this area and representatives from most of these schools are expected to attend the meeting, which will consist of a series of short talks given on a competitive basis concerning electrical engineering.

Villanova's AIEE branch will be represented by Thomas W. Morling, who won the branch contest with his paper titled: "The Responsibility of the Engineer in the Community."

Dinner Listed

As part of the program for the two day meeting a dinner is scheduled for Friday evening at the Philadelphia Engineer's Club (1317 Spruce St., Phila.). Attending the dinner to act as official host for Villanova will be Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A., president. Other prominent officers of the AIEE, local and national, will be present at the meeting and dinner.

13 Days Left For Stadium Returns

May 7 Date Set for Stadium Drawing

Thirteen days from today, May 7, has been set as the day for final returns in the Villanova College Stadium Drive. Drawing for prizes will take place that night, according to Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., director of the student drive program.

"We're hoping that this thirteen will be our lucky number, and students will use the next thirteen days to put forth an extra final effort to help push the drive to success," Father McKee urged.

Students Make Success

Asking for this extra cooperation, he advised, "The success of the stadium drive depends for the most part upon the work of our students, and we're counting on every one of them to make our plans a reality."

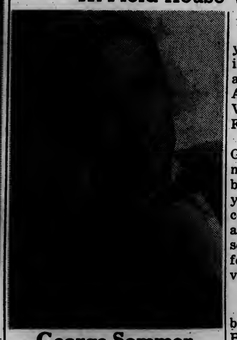
The present phase of the stadium fund-raiser will be the only raffle-type program to be held during the entire drive. Next year the stadium campaign backers anticipate sporting events, and a giant card party and dance to raise additional funds. Definite plans along this line will be announced later.

Rev. Joseph Donnellon, O.S.A., is chairman of the committee directing the entire Stadium Fund drive.

Belle Air Portraits Set For May 7 to 25

Portraits for the Senior section of the 1952 Belle Air will be taken on campus by Zamsky Studios during the three weeks from Monday, May 7, to Friday, May 25. Sittings will be in the radio station from 9:00 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Juniors and Senior I's can make an appointment by signing the lists that are now in the Pie Shop. When a student signs his name for a certain time, he is asked to be prompt in keeping his appointment.



Service charge of one dollar is payable at the time of the sitting.

Seminary Guild Show Brings Stars To Campus Thursday

Rosemary Clooney Heads Headline Bill At Field House Variety Benefit

George Sommer
Music in "Sommertime"

Miss Rosemary Clooney, 22 year old Columbia Record singing sensation will be the feature attraction at the second annual Augustinian Seminary Guild's Variety Show in the college Field House Thursday evening.

Rev. John J. Coffey, O.S.A., Guild Director, expects the annual show this year to be "even bigger and better than last year's success." He said, that confident of this, he has lined up an array of talent consisting of some of the outstanding performers of stage, radio and television.

Two Radio Shows

Miss Clooney's latest Columbia Recording hit, "Beautiful Brown Eyes," has zoomed to the number two spot on the Variety Poll. Added to this popularity puller are her two new radio shows, "Sing It Again," and the "Camel Caravan."

Other star attractions in the "Stars In Your Eyes" Guild production are Ruth Daye, the charming "Heifetz of the Xylophone," and Ken Barry, featured star of the "Hi-Neighbor" television show.

Roecker to "MC"

Master of Ceremonies will be the nationally famous baritone Eddie Roecker ,who was the star of "The Desert Song" on Broadway. Roecker is returning for a repeat performance after a very warm reception as "MC" at the first Guild show last year.

George Sommer and his Orchestra, recently contracted by Temple University for its spring prom, will handle the musical end of the production. Well known on Eastern College campuses, Sommer will feature his

T&T Will Give Musical Revue

"Pardon Expression" Due May 17, 18, 19

An original musical review, "Pardon the Expression," will mark the beginning of a new era for Villanova's Turf and Tinsel Club when it hits the Field House stage May 17, 18 and 19.

For the first time since its reactivation three years ago, the college musical production group will veer away from the straight musical comedy line, and present an old-fashioned review. "Pardon the Expression" will be under the direction of George Noake, a veteran T & T advisor, with the music again being written by Villanova's own Bob Whalen.

Original Skits

Whalen stated that this year's presentation will feature a series of original skits by student authors. Among the "budding Hammersteins" are Bill Brenninghouse, Jack Gibbons, Bob Resnick, Steve Keiss, Jack Kelly and John Gallen.

Dancers Needed

Dancing ensembles for the review have been in rehearsal for over a month, but Whalen reported that there are still several openings in this field. He pointed out that a good number of the dancing and singing choruses are Freshmen, but added that among the returning veterans are such familiar names as Art DeVittis, Mike Desantis, Jack Redmond, Al Hevey, Jim Brown and Bill Miller.

The publicity drive of Turf and Tinsel has already gotten under way. A familiar aspect of the program again this year will

Time Grows Short

You have seen this cartoon before. It appeared several weeks ago as a gentle reminder that the stadium drive was waiting for you to do your part. Since that time the drive has progressed at a snail's pace. So the cartoon appears again, and for the same, though not so gentle, reason.

The time grows short. The drawing will take place May 7. This means that all books must be returned by May 5, which is a week after this Saturday, the night after the prom. Before that time the return of every student must be made, if the drive is to reach its goal.

This goal brings the athletic department that much closer to the needed stadium. The planned structure will be home to Wildcat football and baseball and will be able to house, on campus, all students and every Villanova fan. Such a home is absolutely necessary if this college ever hopes to play more home games with impressive opponents.

When these points were brought to the attention of the students earlier in the year and the stadium drive explained everybody applauded the idea. Opinion on campus had it that a new and bigger stadium would mean a great deal to the student as well as to the athletic department. It meant that there would be more home games, that they would be easier to get to and that it would all add up to more spirit on campus during the fall.

If some have forgotten about the stadium drive they might consider that this goal can never be reached without the support of each individual on campus.

Queen Contest Ends; Judging In Progress

Frank Palumbo and Snooky Lanson to Announce Winner

Two months of searching for the lovely lady to reign as Queen of this year's Junior Week activities ended this weekend with judging of the candidates by Frank Palumbo and Snooky Lanson.

Choice of the judges for Queen, as well as runners-up in her court will be published in the special Junior Week edition of this paper next Monday. Selections are being made from pictures alone, with all pictures submitted given to the judges.

Paul Hughes was the Junior who made the contacts that assured this Queen contest its two qualified and famous judges. Palumbo whose name is synonomous with philanthropy in Philadelphia, is famous also as a leading restaurateur; Snooky Lanson, the new star of radio and television's "Hit Parade."

Snooky Lanson

A native of Philadelphia, Frank Palumbo's name has long been associated with giving and entertaining the needy. Last year alone he took 10,000 children to the circus, another 12,000 kids to public amusement parks.

Famous Restaurateur

His world-famous Palumbo's Restaurant, where over 100,000 weddings have been held, is on the site of his father's boarding house where Frank got his boyhood restaurant experience.

"Click" and "C R"

This restaurant, together with his "Click" and "C R Club" draw crowds seeking Palumbo-famous food with the best bands and finest music in Philadelphia. Frank's associations with stars of Hollywood and Broadway make him a qualified judge of beautiful girls, especially the ones in the Junior Week Queen contest.

"By the Light . . ."

Snooky Lanson rose to his fame from singing as a choir boy in St. Patrick's Church in his home town, Memphis, Tenn. The big break in his young career came when he recorded "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" with Ray Noble, a record that sold over a million copies.

With Weems

Ted Weems' band was Lanson's next vehicle, and when the war broke out, he enlisted with the other members of Weem's group to serve in the Navy as a special service unit.

Following his discharge Lanson returned to station W. S. M. in Memphis where he got his original start, and began his career anew as a singing disc-jockey. His break this time came with his recording of his own song, "The Old Master Painter," that swept the country.

Frank Palumbo

He happened along just in time to engage producers of the "Hit Parade" by reading lines of Lucky Strike commercials in a pleasing Southern drawl. This radio and TV spot made the fame of the other personality who will choose the Queen of Junior Week.

Spring and All That

Tips on Prom (For Male And Female) Solve Problems

By Bill Brenninghouse

Once again Spring is pouring her greenness all over the place. In this, the last Spring before the war, young college youths the nation over are getting ready for the annual formal splurge. Proms begin to mushroom up into the social events of the season. With these formal dances come many problems. A young man of unlimited social experience Mr. Oscar Twomp has formulated logical solutions for any problem that may arise concerning Spring Proms. You need not be at a loss when stumped with a seemingly insurmountable formal problem. Oscar has the answer.

For Example

If, for instance a young lady falls flat on her face during the course of a dance, the proper procedure is for the young lady to arise in a graceful fashion so that those witnessing will believe it to be part of the dance. A young man who spills a drink over his date's gown can make the incident seem trivial by remarking how well the stain fits in with the color scheme of the girl's outfit. Just in passing, white bucks are now considered proper for evening formal dress.

Some Common Errors

Mr. Twomp warns against several mistakes commonly made at formal affairs. If there happens to be a receiving line such greetings as "Hi Baldy" and "Who's the Witch?" should not be used. Tuxedoes also include shirts as part of the formal outfit. This is all too often overlooked by unthinking gentlemen and those men with hairy chests make things seem much less formal. While chewing gum at formals is looked down upon, chewing tobacco is definitely taboo. A man should also remember that even though the girl loves him, she doesn't exactly relish the idea of travelling to a prom via PTC and Red Arrow.

If, By Chance . . .

Girls should remember that the dance floor is no place for them to thrash out their little differences with their classmates. It is always disturbing to see a cultured young lady punch a girl friend in the nose, and even more so at a formal affair. A sweet little thing who remarks that her girl friend had nice hair before she let the dog get at it makes a poor impression on more sensitive souls. If a girl decides that she has asked the wrong boy to the dance, it would be wise to hide the fact from the poor fellow. It is very deflating to a boy's ego to realize that he is some girl's mistake.

Authority

Yes, Spring means formals and formals bring problems. young Oscar offers his humble suggestions only because of his vast background of social affairs. He is a well-known man about town. His name has appeared several times in Deborah Debbie's column in the Sunday papers. There can be no doubt that he is a qualified social expert.

"Unimportant" Items May Be Indicative of Major Faults

By Jim Griffin

"Charity begins at home. . . ."

An old adage, one we have all heard a thousand times, and one which very few of us would ever question. Still, it is an adage with which our actions sometimes fail miserably to comply.

Little, and Bigger, Things

Perhaps it is not so important that in this one instance we are inclined to default on theory when the application meets us face to face. But such a default is not a thing which would come in this isolated case or in that singular situation. It is a little thing which indicates big things, and the biggest and perhaps the most pernicious thing which it could indicate is a separation in our minds of theoretical ideal and attainable realities.

To Be Lived

Such a separation is incompatible with the basis of Christian morality, for Catholicism is a religion, and therefore a way of life, a thing to be believed, but a thing also to be lived, day in, day out, and to be applied to any situation which develops. And a catholic is a man who should believe firmly in the application of ideals, since it forms the very basis for his life. Indeed, if such is not the case, he is not in reality a catholic; on the contrary he is a hypocrite, who professes a belief which he does not hold in his heart.

The case at hand is not what one would call a major moral item, perhaps not even a moral question at all. It is merely the problem of a few thousand books of tickets which were distributed around campus for sale by the students in an effort to aid the fund raising campaign for the new stadium. About five thousand is the number; of which a very small percentage has been returned. Perhaps most of us would not question the fact that charity begins at home, but evidently many of us are unwilling to expend the effort which it demands in practise.

Dangerous Situation

And that is the point of this discussion: In this particular case, minor or major, it seems as though we are failing to apply the theory we profess to believe. It seems as though our ideals are drifting away from our every day lives, into a little world of their own, a world which perhaps we visit for occasional contemplation, but one which will become more and more difficult to merge with that in which we live. And such is a dangerous situation.

Perhaps the circumstances have been misinterpreted. Perhaps the other forty-five hundred books are already sold. Perhaps they will come pouring in next week by the bagful. I hope so and not so much for the stadium as for ourselves.

Travel Okayed For Students

Draft Boards Able To Sanction Trips

Local draft boards are authorized to issue permits for leaving the United States to draft eligible young men who wish to go abroad this summer. This information was received by the Villanovan from the Washington headquarters of Selective Service through the Council on Student Travels.

Under section 1621.16 of the Selective Service Act the draft boards are authorized to grant a permit after student has made the proper request, filed a Classification Questionnaire (SSS Form No. 100), and been cleared by the local board for such a permit.

Travel Leagues

In this connection The Open Road, Inc., and The American Express-Catholic Travel League services have announced several overseas trips open exclusively to students.

The Charlton Star has been chartered by The Open Road, Inc., for ten roundtrip voyages from May to October. This is the British one-class ship, featuring open air swimming pool, music, discussions and recreational and social programs during the voyage.

The complete cost of the European Summer Program will approximate $700, including overseas transportation, per The Open Road, Inc.

Canada

Students interested in a Good Neighbor Pilgrimage to Canada will be interested in the plan of the American Express-Catholic Travel League. This group also offers European tours of Ireland, England, France, Italy and Spain. An audience with His Holiness, Pope Pius XII is planned for the Italian tour.

The council on Student Travel is offering voyages to Europe on American-built C-3's. These ships have facilities for movies, language classes, lectures and discussions of European culture and problems.

Two other organizations have planned student tours. General Tours has itineraries covering Europe and some of the South American countries. Travel and Study, Inc., has study tours of Europe giving opportunities to study the Humanities, the Sciences and Arts.

Information concerning these tours may be obtained by writing to the following agencies: The Open Road, Inc., Program Coordinator, 50 West 45th St., New York, N. Y.; General Tours, 724 Fifth Ave., New York 19, N. Y.; Travel and Study, Inc., 110 East 57th St., New York 22, N. Y.; American Express-Catholic Travel League, 1814 Broadway, New York 23, N. Y.

Greek Letters Host At Inter Frat Ball

Brothers of Five Frats Unite For Annual Dance Last Weekend

Guided by the brothers of five fraternities on campus the Inter-Fraternity Ball turned out three hundred couples to the annual affair, last Friday evening in the Field House.

"Another successful Inter-Fraternity Ball is still on the lips of many Villanova socializers. The sponsors of the annual ball, the five fraternities, were completely satisfied with the turnout," commented Jack Gibbons, Chairman of the dance.

He added that the success of the affair was due to the efforts of faithful members of his committee who spent many hours last week preparing for the dance, as well as to the many people who attended.

Outdoor Theme

A park motif was followed throughout in the decorations of the Field House. Garden benches and several large ferns were placed on the perimeter of the dancing area.

The fragrance of gardenias was very noticeable in the air. The beautiful flowers were floated in the fountain in the center of the floor, thus creating a formal garden atmosphere.

Music By Student Band

The Villanovans played for the dance. It is customary to have this group of students play at all informal dances in the Field House both in order to give the men a chance to play and to afford a reasonable yet attractive musical setting. Vince Palma is leader of the dance band.

Profits derived from the Ball will be equally distributed to the five fraternities who worked to put over the dance. Delta Pi Mu handled publicity, Kappa Phi Kappa sold the tickets, Delta Pi Epsilon decorated, Phi Kappa Pi sold the cokes and Lambda Kappa Delta made arrangements with the band.

Dr. Jose Sobrino, head of the Cultural Relations Department of the Spanish Embassy in Washington, was guest speaker Saturday night at the annual "Cervantes' Night" of the college Spanish club.

Father Lozano announced that the names of both Donestevez and Menzel will go into the Spanish Cultural Index as a result of their winning works.

Georgetown Upsets Distance Medley Club Wildcat Nine Scores Over Loyola, 10-0

Watson Turns in Second Straight Whitewash Job

By "Slim" Keats

John Watson, Villanova's sophomore pitching star, ran his scoreless inning streak to 26 and gained his second straight shutout as the Wildcat pill-pounders drubbed Loyola of Baltimore, 10-0, last Saturday on the local diamond.

The Loyola victory was a repeat performance for Watson and the Mainliners, who one week before handed Penn a similar sixhit whitewash. The chunky righthander had very little trouble disposing of the Baltimore batsmen. He fanned twelve, allowing only one runner to reach third base.

First Inning Outburst

The Mahanmen wasted no time with Jerry Malone, Loyola's starting hurler. Bobby Maurer greeted the visitors with a long left field double and scored as Don Blaha singled to center. "Icky" Morris sent Blaha to third with another two-bagger. A Loyola error, a long fly, and LeFever's sharp single completed the four-run first inning outburst.

The Wildcats added another marker in the third on successive singles by Jack Jamison and Red Wright, and a run-scoring grounder by LeFever. Boasting a comfortable five-run lead at this point, Watson continued to frustrate the Loyolans with his hopping fastball and sneaky change-up.

Poor Support

Tom Pothast, who replaced Malone in the seventh was the victim of faulty fielding by his mates. The Wildcats capitalized on three miscues, two of them by Shortstop Mel Wright, and four timely base blows to garner five runs in the eighth.

Red Wright, the versatile catcher - pitcher - outfielder, Jack Jamison, and John Morris led the 12-hit assault on the two hapless hurlers. Jamison, who had been holding down the right field spot in previous games, was behind the plate for the first time this year.

Two Home Games

The Wildcats will play host to two non-collegian outfits this week. The Equitable Life Assurance nine will oppose the locals tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 p. m. and the Quantico Marines will be here for a Saturdaycontest on April 28. The Leather-necks won an even 100 games last season, losing only 15 decisions. The Wildcats were one of the few conquerors of the Corps a year ago.

All staff members of THE VILLANOVAN and all who desire to join next year's staff are requested to attend a meeting Wednesday, May 9, at 7:30 p. m., in Room 215, Mendel.

Fresmen interested in joining the staff of the paper are particularly urged to attend.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE. The Wildcats scored their second 10-0 decision of this season at the expense of Loyola last Saturday on the local diamond. LeFever, Villanova outfielder, scores ahead of the throw (arrow) in the big eighth inning.

Wildcat Cagers Pick All-Opponet Quintet

The East, the Midwest, the Mountain States and the Ivy League placed players on the All-opponent Team selected by the members of the 1950-51 Wildcat basketball squad.

It is truly a cosmopolitan outfit, and indicates the caliber of players faced by the courtmen throughout their very successful season. The first five consists of Ed Smith, Utah; Jack Feeman, Toledo; Jack Kearns, Princeton; Carl Pachaca, Duquesne; and Bob Lochmueller, Louisville. Smith and Feeman were unanimous choices.

Smith Outstanding in Tournament

Ed Smith was probably the outstanding pivot shot that the wildcats faced all season. It was mainly his 23 points and general all around court brilliance that eliminated the Main Liners in the first round of the Bradley Campus Tournament. Late in the game, when the Blue and White went ahead, the versatile Smith moved outside and threw in three straight set shots, including the game winning basket.

Of Jack Feeman, Toledo's sensational soph, his coach, George Busch said after the Villanova game, "He is good enough right now to play with almost any pro team in the land." The 6' 4" set shot also dropped in 23 points in his Palestra appearance and blocked numerous shot attempts by Larry Hennessy.

Kearns Shut Out Hennessy

Jack Kearns of Princeton will be remembered chiefly by 'Cat rooters for his feat of holding Larry Hennessy without a shot during the limited time that the latter played against the Ivy Leaguers. Kearns played outside man in Princeton's tight zone and was instrumental in holding down Villanova's scoring that evening.

The only man of the first five, whom the Severancemen faced twice during the season was Carl Pachaca of Duquesne. He received most of his votes on the strength of his showing in the game at Pittsburgh. Hitting from outside with uncanny accuracy, Pachaca forced the 'Cats to go all-out to register a last-minute victory. His scoring efforts were throttled in the Palestra, allowing Villanova to rack up a fairly easy triumph over the Dukes.

Lochmueller Only Repeat

Lochmueller, Louisville's hook-shooting pivot ace made the All-Opponent Team for the second year. It was his terrific shooting during the previous season that administered one of the few defeats to Arizin and Co. This year the lanky center amazed the local fans with his work in the pivot, often shooting without turning to look at the nets. He also distinguished himself in the NCAA playoffs by his fine play against Kentucky's national champs.

Other Squad Members

Other players who received votes in the balloting were: Walt Dukes, Seton Hall's gigantic center; Bubas and Kukoy of North Carolina State; Swanson of Detroit; and Garrison of Tennessee.

Jack Feeman.

Cappozzoli Beats Barry To Tape in Record Breaker

Main Liners Fail to Place in Any of Four Other Events

By Harry Range

Villanova came within fifteen yards of an Eastern Championship last Saturday at the Seton Hall Relays as Georgetown's Charlie Cappozzoli beat the Wildcat's John Joe Barry to the tape in the anchor mile leg of the distance medley.

The silver second place medals garnered by Bob Cunjak, Jim Reardon, Fred Dwyer and Barry in the distance event were the only laurels won by the Main Line thinclads in the Fifth Annual Setonia Carnival. Coach Jumbo Elliott's charges were entered in four events in which they did no better than fourth.

Defending champions and odds-on favorites to win the distance medley, the Wildcats bowed to a record-breaking Georgetown quartet of Frank Sowa, Dick Saunders, Tom Voorhees, and Cappozzoli who hit 10:16.1 to completely shatter Villanova's year-old mark of 10:32.7.

Lead-off man Bob Cunjak turned in a good quarter performance, passing the stick to Halfer Jim Reardon, only five yards behind pace-setting Syracuse and Georgetown. Reardon then proceeded to run one of his best halves, clocking an unofficial 1:55.2 and taking over the lead on the far straightaway.

But Fred Dwyer was unable to hold the pace on the three-quarter leg and fell back to third before passing the baton to Anchor man Barry. John Joe picked up second place after a half but just didn't have it to beat the Hoyas' anchor.

In posting a 10:17.8 for the 2½ mile course the Mainliners also broke their own record of a year ago.

The Wildcats were rated as probable placers in the mile contest between Seton Hall and Morgan State but a pulled leg muscle by Pete Simigan forced them to finish out of the money with Fordham taking third. Simigan's injury on the third leg lost too much yardage for Anchor man Jim McKenna to make up on the final quarter in the race that went to Morgan State in 3:17.1.

The 880 club of Tom Irish, Ed Bausenwein, Ron Ritter, and John Furlinger won their heat but ran out of the money as the winner was decided on a time basis. The two-mile and Freshman medley clubs both finished 4th.

Gridders Finish Spring Practice With High Hopes

George Scanlon

Coach Jim Leonard's charges completed their Spring practice last week with high hopes for next season's gridiron wars. The coaching staff got a break from the weatherman as they were fovored by some fine days which helped whip the squad into shape.

Scrimmage Navy

The Wildcats had but one scrimmage this Spring, that being with Navy. The result of that setto was very satisfactory to Coach Leoard as the Cats outplayed and outscored the Naval eleven. The marked superiority of the Mainliners was due to fine conditioning and a display of top-notch football.

Strong Reserves

The Villanova backfield next season will again be on the small side, emphasizing sped and a good aerial game. The line, both offensive and defensive, has been bolstered considerably by the addition of some fine looking freshmen who tip the scales at 200 plus. The strong reserve strength of the Blue and White will play a major role in next season's efforts.

Tough Schedue

The schedule that the Cats must face is one of the most difficult in Villanova history. The Mainliners play an eight-game card without one breather, and must square-off with some of the nation's leading teams. The Wildcat eleven can't afford to get off on the wrong foot because their first four games are Army, Penn State, Alabama, and Kentucky; and sorry to say, all of these games are on the road. As the schedule stands now, Villanova fans won't be seeing their club in action at all because all the contests are on foreign grids.

The squad will be together again come August and have the confidence that there isn't a club on their schedule that can't be beat.

PHONE CONTEST

Answer the phone with "Hello, ABC,-always buy Chesterfields" on Friday nights and you are apt to win a carton of Chesterfields. Representatives for the company will make several calls to halls on the campus between seven and eight in the evening.

Those who answer the phone with the phrase correctly will be awarded the carton of Chesterfields from Representative Bill Lemmer, 326 Fedigan Hall.

John Watson

Has Pitched 26 Consecutive Scoreless Innings

1951 Baseball Fortunes Depend On John Watson, Wildcat Pitching Star

By Jim Gallo Sports Editor

The baseball fortunes of Coach Art Mahan's Villanova Wildcats are largely dependent upon the strong right arm of John Watson.

The 20-year-old sophomore Finance major, in his first year of intercollegiate competition, occupies the Number One starter spot on the Mainliners' mound staff.

Only Fifth Loss

When the chunky righthander from Lancaster, Pa., dropped a 2-0 decision to Maryland in his first collegiate appearance, it was only the fifth time that he had finished a game on the short end. Watson's record in competition before he became a Villanovan is indeed an impressive one.

In the schoolboy league he hurled for Manheim Township, filling in at shortstop when he wasn't chucking. In the off-season, the blonde, 5' 9", 180-pounder filled the quarterback slot for the Manheim gridders and played basketball to round out a full athletic year.

Most Valuable Player

It was in the American Legion Junior Baseball circuit that Watson gained most recognition in his pre-collegiate days. Pitching for the Manheim Township Post Number 664 for five years, he was chosen to participate in the annual Legion All-Star game at Shibe Park in 1946 and 1947. As the winning pitcher in the '47 contest, he was given the Most Valuable Player Award. In addition, he went on to Chicago and the East-West All-Star game which features the nation's outstanding Legion performers.

Watson has spent his last two summers in Maine, toiling for the Augusta Millionaires of the Down East League. He boasts 20 wins and only one defeat as a Downeaster.

Shut Out Penn

During the first two weeks of the current diamond campaign, Coach Mahan called upon Watson to start three games. In the opening game, he gave Maryland but four hits and two runs. Four days later he faced Princeton and lost, 4-3, yielding six hits to Tiger batsmen. With only two days' rest, Watson came back to turn in a masterful six hit shutout over Pennsylvania.

With a full season ahead and only one other starting pitcher, Jim "Red" Wright, to rest him, Villanova's John Watson will have ample opportunity to display his ever-improving assortmen of hooks and fast ones. And Wildcat opponents will find him a very stingy man when it comes to handing out base hits.

Alumni Toppers Win 1-M Tourney Crown Sophs Defend Interclass Track Title

Annual I-M Meet Set For May 10

BY DAVE MAYNES

Cummin Clancy's Sophomore track and field champs will be defending their crown for the first time on May 10, when the second annual Inter-Class Field Day comes to the fore on the sports agenda.

Last year, as Frosh, they swept firsts in all four field events and in two of the six track contests. Frank Rehak paced the winners, earning gold medals in both the shot put and the Javelin throw, to be the only two event titleholder.

Juniors Runner-up

The present juniors were a close second in the standings, garnering the other four firsts along with a number of seconds. Their quarter mile relay team of Till, Liotta, Van de Beryhe, and Rilo won that event by a five yard margin over the seniors, and then Fred Georgi teamed with Rilo, Till, and Van de Beryhe to cop the half mile relay, also. For the runner-ups' other two firsts, Joe Rilo took the 100 yd. dash in 10.7 and Dick Van de Beryhe's 24.8 was good enough for number one spot in the 220.

The Soph's John Gillman grabbed the 880 title with a 2m20.6s effort, and Jim Davis also held up Soph prestige by bringing home the 440 title in 57.9 seconds.

In the remaining two field events 'Pancho' Melconian hopped on his flying carpet and soared 18 ft. 6.5 in. to capture the broad-jump laurels, and Jack Mullin went over the bar at 5 ft. 4 in. to gain the Soph's sixth first place wreath.

Practice Scheduled

Cummin Clancy will again be the Soph's mentor, with George Thompson at the Freshman helm. Jim Reardon and Jim McKenna will lead the Juniors and Seniors, respectively. Any man who reports to his class coach for practice will be eligible for competition, with the exception of varsity track candidates. The following schedule has been posted by the coaches for their initial practices. Any man not able to be present must contact their coach before that time.

Freshmen, Wed., April 25.....3:30
Sophomore, Mon., April 30.....3:30
Juniors, Tues., May 1.....3:30
Seniors, Thurs., April 26.....3:30

O'Hearn Stars As 'A' League Champs Beat Rumrunners In Final Game

DAVE MAYNES

Larry O'Hearn, "the tallest Topper of them all," scored 26 points last Wednesday night to lead the Alumni Toppers to a 55-47 victory over the Rumrunners and the Championship in the first annual "All Villanova" Basketball Tournament.

The Toppers won their way to the finals by downing the Gunners 59-46 in the first round, outswishing the Swishers to the tune of 53-38 in the quarter finals, and then rolling over the Doms 58-39 in the semi-finals.

The Rumrunners shot at the title came by virtue of wins over the Barracks 64-35, the Hawks 52-43, and finally the Alumni Caps 39-33.

Rumrunners Lead

The darkhorse Rumrunners looked like they might upset the pre-game dope, by jumping off to a fast 7-3 lead in the first five minutes, and still holding the edge 14-13 at the ten minute mark. They increased this to 26-23 at the halfway mark, mainly on the uncanny shooting of Tom Short who tallied 15 points in this half. The Runners also cashed in on eight of nine charity tosses up till this point.

O'Donnell Switched

With the start of the second half Tom Flynn, Toppers captain, pulled big Jude O'Donnell, number two Topper scorer, out from under the boards and set him to watching Short. This decision payed off, as O'Donnell, although tallying only seven points, held Short without a counter the remainder of the contest.

With Short handcuffed, the "Pride of Alumni" struck back to tie the game at 30 on a long set shot by Bill O'Brien and two tap-ins by O'Hearn.

Toppers Pull Out

From that time on the Toppers had things all their own way. Lanky Larry rammed in 17 of his 26 point total in the second canto, and the 'A' League champs pulled out to a 42-36 lead at the ten minute mark. The closest the Runners came after that was 49-45 with four minutes left. However, a push shot by Bill Decker and a lay-up by O'Donnell at this time iced the decision for the Champs.

The only effective scorer for the Runners during the second half was Frank Cone who cut the meshes for five deuces and added a singleton for eleven points.

SPALDING SPORTS SHOW

DIAMOND JUBILEE FOR TWO!

The National League was founded 75 years ago (1876)—the year that Al Spalding started the company that has always set the pace in fine sports equipment. The Spalding base ball has always been the Official ball of the National League. 1951 marks the Golden Anniversary of the American League, which has used only the Spalding-made Reach ball all of its 50 years.

SPALDING SETS THE PACE IN SPORTS

Mother's Day Will Begin With 11:00 Mass

As reported in last week's edition of this paper, Mother's Day activities on the opening day of Junior Week will begin promptly at 11:00 a.m. with Mass in the College Chapel.

Bud Conklin, Mother's Day chairman, reaffirmed the 11:00 a.m. time last week to clarify things after a handbill distributed throughout campus gave a different time.

"I hope all juniors will note the correct time, and make arrangements to be at the Mass promptly," the chairman said. Conklin further urged as many Juniors as possible to Communion at this Mass for their mothers, according to tradition.

He does not expect that many mothers will be able to receive Communion because of the late hour of the Mass, and assured that they should not feel obliged to do so.

The Mother's Day committee has completed preparations for all other activities for the opening excercises of Junior Week, and expect a unanimous turnout from Juniors with their mothers and guests.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 17... THE OWL

"So I'm a wise guy —so what?"

"Speotyto cunicularia" — Speo, for short, majors in the classics. But in this case, he's dropped his Latin leanings and slings American slang with the best of them. He comes right out "cum loudly" whenever he voices his opinion on these quick-trick, one-puff cigarette tests. They're a snub to his high I.Q.

He knows from smoking experience there's just one intelligent way to judge the mildness of a cigarette.

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke — on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why . . .

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

Juniors Prepare For 'Their Week' Which Begins Next Monday

Blazers Available Today In Austin: 11 A.M. to 3 P.M.

Rollins Blazer Company is fulfilling its promise for delivering Junior Class blazers before Junior Week by distributing the jackets all day today in Austin Lounge from 11:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Over seventy blazers were ordered just two months ago by members of Class of '52. During distribution today Rollins representatives will fit each blazer, and arrange for any necessary alterations to be made by a local tailor.

Blazer committee chairman, Harry Mason, reminded Juniors who ordered blazers that they must make payment of the balance due when they pick up the jackets today.

According to Mason, the Rollins Company will also deliver blazer seals that were ordered, and sell flannel jackets to all Villanova students during the same hours in Austin lounge today.

T & T WILL GIVE MUSICAL REVUE

be a list of "boosters" of the club, those individuals sporting the red-and-white T & T buttons on campus.

Turf and Tinsel first became a part of Villanova in 1932 under the guiding hand of Harry Studlreher, varsity football coach at that time, and a former Notre Dame All-American. The first T & T show combined the "talents" of the football stalwarts of the college with those of the musically-inclined students. Annual T & T productions followed for several years during the thirties.

In 1948, with the helping hands of Rev. Michael O'Donnell, O.S.A., club moderator, Whalen and Noake, the group was reorganized.

"John Smith, Esq.," began a string of successful presentations that year. "Cleo Was a Lady" followed in 1949, and last year came "Piper Heidsieck, '98." A growing popularity and enthusiasm have greeted the productions each succeeding year.

Whalen forecast confidently last week that the combination of new faces and experienced talent, coupled with the music which again should be top-notch and the expert advice of George Noake, will make "Pardon the Expression" a light, fast-moving review with plenty of laughs.

Pie Shop, Mendel Hall Ticket Sale Sites

Junior Week preparations swung into high gear this week, with large ticket sales indicating sellouts for all the traditional functions being held this year from April 30 to May 5.

Dinner-Dance invitations, Prom bids, and Blazer Ball tickets will be on sale in the Pie Shop from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. until Junior Week, according to Class ticket salesmen.

Tickets Being Sold in Mendel

In addition to this, ticket chairmen have arranged to sell tickets in Mendel Hall during lunch hours, and to canvass dormitories throughout the campus.

Dinner-Dance ticket chairman James Griffin urged Juniors to note that invitations to this activity are available only at the Pie Shop ticket booth. Since table reservations have to be made at the time invitations are obtained, students can have them at only one location.

Most of Tables Reserved

Griffin added at publication time, the end of last week, that most tables were already reserved, but accommodations will be made for all Juniors who want to attend.

Blazer Ball chairman, Kevin McCrane, reported that plans for his informal mid-Junior Week dance are complete. Joseph Driscoll, decoration chairman, is now making final arrangements for a "fireman" theme to emphasize the dance slogan. "You don't need a blazer to go to the Blazer Ball."

Prom decorations are also in stages of completion, and according to Phil Brennan, J. P. chairman, the decorations committee will be ready to adorn the Field House as soon as Wednesday's Blazer Ball is over.

25 SCHOOLS TO ATTEND TWO-DAY MEETING

has consented to judge on the grammar and public speaking techniques of the contestants.

Since the opportunity of being host school for this contest can only come approximately once in 25 years to Villanova, a large attendance by students in the school of electrical engineering is expected at the contest and dinner.

Beta Gama Debaters Pitted Against Swarthmore Team

Tri-Win Trophy Up As Winner's Prize

Should Non-Communist Nations form a new world organization? This National question has been argued by Beta Gamma in every debate this year.

Moderated by Mr. Joseph T. Jonas, the society has engaged in competition with such worthy rivals as Georgetown, Temple, and Rosemont. A week-end in New York, saw the Society engage Fordham, Hamilton, and Yeshiva in three fiercely contested debates. No decision was rendered, because most colleges are refraining from reaching a verdict, due to the lack of competent judges.

The last in this year's series of debates will be held on May 3rd, at 7:30 p.m., in the auditorium of Springfield High School. President William Creamer and Secretary Carl Rahr will lead their charges against the Maroon and White of Swarthmore College. This attraction will be sponsored by the Springfield Holy Name Society.

Swarthmore triumphed over St. Joseph's last year, to win the first leg on a trophy, and have chosen to debate Villanova this year.

Three conquests would permanently secure the trophy for the winning college. Every college from the Philadelphia area will compete for the trophy, and the winners are entitled to choose their competitors for the following year. The award has been donated by The Saint Francis of Assissi Holy Name Forum.

Other members of the debating society are Thomas Briody, Frank Jeffers, Robert Gerstrung, Frank Cunning, Stan Stevens, Richard Hayes and Roger Hanafin.

The outstanding ballroom team of "Leslie and Laurence" has also been signed for the show. A series of sensational "lifts and spins" feature this team's repertoire. For the lighter side, "Sangor, Ross and Andre" have been included on the agenda. "The Vanderbilt Boys" who recently closed with a ringing success at the Paramount Theater in New York, will give their "taprobatics" at presentation, too.

Aids Seminarians

Father Coffey pointed out that the purpose of the Seminary Guild is to give financial aid to young men studying for the priesthood in the Order of St. Augustine. He explained that it takes well over one thousand dollars a year for each seminarian.

"My goal," said Father Coffey, "is to make enough on this show to put three boys in the black for a year."

'Joy Street' Author To Talk In Phila. Library

Villanova students are invited to hear Frances Parkinson Keyes, author of current best-seller Joy Street, at the Philadelphia Catholic Library Association's luncheon April 28 at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel.

Mrs. Keyes' only personal appearance this spring will highlight the day-long program of the group's spring conference.

Author of Dinner at Antoine's, Crescent Carnival, and Came a Cavalier, Mrs. Keyes will autograph her books after the talk.

Miss Margaret Mary Henrich of Villanova Library will be glad to tell you that the lady's name is pronounced K-e-y-e-s, like "pies" instead of K-e-y-e-s like "please"—and even happier to sell you a ticket to the luncheon and Mrs. Keyes' lecture.

Seniors Top High Of Test Average

Twelve out of thirteen senior education majors earned scores above the national average in the National Teacher Examinations recently, according to Dr. Francis J. Donohue, head of the education department.

Against a high national score of 600, the Villanova students averaged a total weighted score of 673 for the so-called "common examinations" of the NTE. These cover professional knowledge in the field of Education, plus general background in such fields as English, history, literature, fine arts, and science and mathematics.

Approximately 79 per cent of the candidates taking the examinations throughout the nation received lower total scores than the averages for the Villanova seniors.

The test was prepared by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J., which gives such tests as the College Entrance and Naval Aptitude examinations.

Rosemary Mulvaney, Miss NROTC

Highlighting the successful spring NROTC Ball was the selection of Miss Rosemary Mulvaney as Miss NROTC of 1951. Miss NROTC, escorted by William Detrick, was presented with a silver bracelet engraved with her name during the dance at the Adelphia Roof Garden.

Miss Mulvaney, who is a student at Immaculata College, will preside over the activities at the ceremonies in observance of Armed Forces day, May 19. This affair was inaugurated last year and is the highpoint for the NROTC activities.

During the ceremonies Miss Mulvanev will present the winning company of the competition with the colors. These colors signify that that particular company excelled over all others in all around performance during the year.

Paris Theme For Junior Prom

Buddy Williams To Play 'Echoes' Friday Evening

"Golden Echoes" in a background of dazzling Paris, young Americans on an Offenbach holiday, Villanova students at the Junior Prom —no matter how you say it, the idea still equals music by Buddy Williams and a theme of "Evening In Paris."

Put them both together and you'll have Friday night's Junior Prom, highlight of the spring season, that is commemorating this year's two thousandth anniversary of La Belle Paris.

Decoration men began months ago to construct a 30 foot replica of the Eiffel Tower and models of Paris streets to change the Villanova Field House into a dream-like version of the city on the Siene.

According to Phil Brennan, Junior Prom chairman, a capacity crowd of Villanovans and their dates will picture themselves as the tourists who inspired Gershwin melodies, taking a holiday on an "evening in Paris."

They'll dance past the Follies Bergere and the Bal Tabarin, glide along the Champ de Mars, in time with the music of Buddy Williams and his orchestra. Dancing will be continuous from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m., with Frank Teti's Blue Notes supplying intermission music for their fifth straight performance at campus formals.

High point of the evening will come at 10:30 p.m. when the young lady chosen Queen of Junior Week will receive

PHIL BRENNAN
Junior Prom Chairman

her crown and scepter from bandleader Buddy Williams.

A first-time perfomer for student activities on campus, Williams will blend into the Parisian theme the "Golden Echo" rythms he displayed in the Field House last year at the Seminary Guild variety show.

A Tradition

Junior Week Began 1924; Time Even Changes Prom

By Robert J. Quinn

Freshmen are amazed by it; Sophomores plot to out-do it; Juniors forsake school for it; and Seniors can only remember it—such is the domineering position held by the beloved tradition of Junior Week.

The initial cause for this annual social explosion could probably be traced to a few white-flanneled lotharios who jokingly decided that the only way they could pacify all their loves would be to have a full week of social events. They promptly disguised this idea as potential tradition and suggested it to their Junior Class.

Be it true or not, the labors of someone paid off.

In the understatement of the decade a 1924 issue of the VILLANOVAN announced, "The Junior Class, in inaugurating Junior Week, hopes to establish something which will become an annual event." Just for the record, they did establish something — but they'd never recognize it today.

"Collegiate" Week

Their week began on Tuesday, and featured a "really collegiate" inter-class Tug-O-War, followed by a Soph-Junior baseball game. They must have been athletes of the Jack Armstrong variety, for they spent the following day watching the Varsity play Holy Cross, after which there was an informal Tea Dance (Now you know where Rosemont got its idea.)

Thursday everyone gathered to watch, of all things, another baseball game; this time against Boston College. Ah, but Thursday night—the Junior Prom.

Apparently the Class of '25 liked dancing as much as watching baseball, because they traveled to the Majestic hotel and danced to the music of Weingait's "Pennsylvanians" till midnight.

They Go Ivy-League

Then, instead of going elsewhere like any modern collegian would do, they danced on, to the Ivy-League music of the Yale University dance orchestra. This ended some time after two o'clock, and after that, all records maintain a dignified silence.

Nevertheless, the Juniors appeared on the following evening at a Smoker given in their honor by the Senior Class. Incidentally, for the Prom the accepted attire was white flannels, a white cap with class numerals (to signify fraternalism), and finally, believe it or not, a cane. Carrying a cane, in those days, was equivalent to donning a knight's armor for the first time.

"Grotesque" Dance

The following year the Class of '26 continued the week of athletics, but they also gave birth to the Grotesque Dance, which was later to become our Blazer Ball. (Ed. note—This does not in any way imply that the Blazer Ball is grotesque.)

In 1926 an inter-squad football game replaced one of the many baseball games, while the Class of '28 later made a double contribution to the growing tradition. Along with introducing the first blazer jacket on campus, they inaugurated the tree-planting

Saturday's Dinner-Dance to Be Quiet 'Finis' of Week's Socials

Johnny McGee to Provide Dance Music at Ben Franklin's Main Ballroom

A comparatively quiet and surely memorable ending to the social activities comes Saturday night when the Class of '52'ers go formal for the last time this year and escort their dates to the main ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel for the Junior Dinner-Dance.

Good food in the form of a roast turkey dinner, and good music from the trumpet and orchestra of Johnny McGee will help the Prom-weary Juniors write a quiet "finis" to the spectacular activities of their Week.

Dinner - Dance Chairman Stan Karminski reports a complete sellout for this event, the only closed social affair on the Junior Week calendar.

About fifty tables, seating four couples each, were filled by the early part of last week, according to James Griffin, ticket chairman. At the time of purchasing their invitations Juniors could make table reservations so that parties of friends could be seated together.

Ben Franklin waiters will begin serving dinner at 7:30 p.m. sharp. Throughout the meal, until about 9:00 p.m., a trio from Johnny McGee's orchestra will play dinner music.

Chairman Karminski assures that after - dinner speeches will be short and limited in number. Among the dinner guests will be Class Moderator, Rev. Dante L. Girolami, O.S.A., Rev. George McLaughlin, Director of student activities, and the Queen of Junior Week with her escort.

After dinner and speeches are over, tables will be cleared from the floor and Johnny McGee will play dance music until midnight. A local group that has played at Penn., Princeton, St. Joe's, Rosemont, LaSalle, and Temple, the orchestra of Johnny McGee plays what he terms, "a more subtle and sophisticated approach to a smoother type of melody."

Adequate parking facilities are available for all Juniors driving to the Dinner-Dance. The hotel, located at Ninth and Chestnut near the heart of the city, provides parking service, and there are many public lots and garages in the vicinity.

Palumbo and Lanson Agree On Difficult Choice of Queen

Judges Select Winner to Reign for Week

"It was no easy task," the two judges of the Junior Week Queen contest commented, but after a little compromising and a lot of consideration last Monday evening Frank Palumbo and Snooky Lanson agreed on the lovely lady to win the title.

The prominent Philadelphian, Palumbo, and Lanson, star of Saturday night's radio and TV "Hit Parade" had to consider twenty-six pictures before coming to any final judgement of the contest.

End of Two Month Search

The pictures were all those submitted to this paper in the course of the Queen search during the past two months. Selection was made from pictures alone this year to enable the judges' choice of Queen and her court to be printed in this edition of the VILLANOVAN.

Junior Paul Hughes carried the pictures last week to Lanson, who is broadcasting from New York, and then to Palumbo at his Philadelphia restaurant. A long-distance call between the two men brought the results of the contest that you can see by turning to Page 5 of this edition.

Informal Blazer Ball Offers Casual Wednesday Program

Mid-Week 'Firehouse' Theme to Decorate Field House; 'Don't Need Blazer'

By Jerry Micallef

There will be only one informal dance during this year's Junior Week. According to custom the Blazer Ball will give a short warm-up before the big weekend of the Prom and Dinner - Dance swishes the Week to a three-point-landing.

Wednesday evening the casual Blazer Ball will be the event of the campus with dancing in the Field House from nine 'till one o'clock.

Expects Crowd

Music of the "Villanovans" is expected by Blazer Ball Chairman Kevin McCrane to give everyone who attends a very satisfying evening. "And at only a dollar eighty a couple everyone in the college should come," Kevin said.

"My ticket chairman, Paul Pirhalla, has already sold a good number of tickets, but we still expect some late comers to pick them up between today and Wednesday. Probably a few fellows will wait until they get to the door Wednesday night."

Publicity Brings Results

Most of the tickets alotted this year for the Ball have already been sold. "This is a direct result of our publicity program, "McCrane asserts. Publicity director for the Blazer Ball is Bob Roland.

McCrane has been making it known to everyone with whom he speaks about the Ball that Blazers are not required. He usually puts it this way, "Some season rushers expect to appear in seersuckers. And we're glad to have them aboard. We also expect a few sport suits."

Juniors To Attend Mass On Sunday

Ending Junior Week on a religious note similar to the one with which it began this morning, members of the Class of '52 will attend Mass with their dates at noon on Sunday, the day after the Dinner-Dance.

Rev. E. T. Grimes, O.S.A. College Chaplain, is scheduled to celebrate the Mass, at which Juniors and dates will sit in reserved pews in the front of the Chapel on either side of the main aisle.

'Best Girls' Visiting For Mother's Day

Traditional Exercise Honors 'Mom' At Week's Start

By James Gallagher

Juniors all have dates today, very special dates with very special girls who are going to help the Class of '52 inaugurate their Junior Week with a day of homage and tribute to each Junior's "best girl," his mother.

Over 400 mothers arrived at the College Chapel this morning for the 11:00 o'clock Mass that formally opened the day-long activities of a traditional Mother's Day program. Adorned with corsages, gifts of the Juniors, the mothers watched as many of their sons went to the altar rail to receive Communion in their honor.

Tradition enlivened by innovation is the theme set by General Chairman John "Bud" Conklin for this year's program to open Junior Week with heart warming remembrance of Junior mothers.

Traditionally, the day's schedule begins at the Mother and Son's Mass, celebrated by Rev. Dante L. Girolami, O. S. A., Junior Class moderator. In place of College President, Rev. F. X. McGuire, O. S. A., who is unable to be present, Father Girolami will deliver the sermon, and extend the College's official welcome to the visiting mothers.

Tree Planting at 12:30

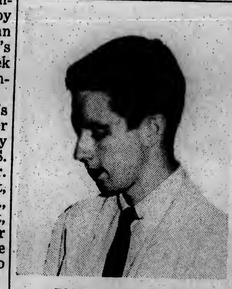
After opening on this religious note, activities are to continue in traditional order with the Junior Class annual tree planting ceremonies at 12:30 p.m. in front of Austin hall. Class officers will help Conklin with the shovels to plant a dogwood that had been donated by T. H. Doyle Landscapers.

Following this bit of physical exercise, the Juniors and mothers will be guests of the College at 1:00 p.m. luncheon in Mendel hall cafeteria.

Tours All Day

Campus tours are Conklin's general order of the day for any free time, with his advice not to miss the Library and its Mother's Day exhibit.

Later in the afternoon, at 2:15 p.m. in the Field House, Jack Kelly's entertainment program will present talents of the College Band and Glee Club, followed by a preview number from Turf and Tinsel's forthcoming production "Pardon the Expression," topped off with a Junior skit, "Mother Was a Flapper."



"Diaper Dan" Revealed

Innovation then enters the proceedings when mothers will view results of Junior Week's "top secret" in which they had a part, Mother's Day "Diaper Dan" contest. To be held in Austin Lounge at 4:00 p.m., the contest will display baby pictures that were submitted by about two hundred mothers without the knowledge of their Junior sons.

Again touching on a fitting religious note, the day's official program will conclude at Benediction in the College Chapel at 4:45 p.m.

Evening Banquet Added

At the conclusion of this ceremony innovation will again take over in the form of a Mother's Day banquet to be catered in the Field House at 6:15 p.m. About 200 Juniors are expected to invite their mothers and guests to the banquet, added to the

Banquet Guests

Guests at the banquet will include Father Girolami; Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., College Dean; Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., College Chaplain; Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Moderator of student activities; and, of course, mothers of Junior Class members.

On this note of tribute activities for Mother's Day will come to a close, leaving mothers a corsage to be pressed in her book of remembrances, a small holy card gift from the committee, and a treasure trove of memories about her son, his college, and a wonderful day with him, as the guest of the Class of '52.

Rosemary Clooney Guest at J. Prom

Rosemary Clooney, twenty-two year old singing sensation who charmed the Seminary Guild Variety Show audience Thursday night, tentatively accepted an invitation from the Class of '52 to be guest of honor at the Junior Prom Friday night.

Rosemary said that the only thing to prevent her appearance will be an unforseen radio or TV engagement.

Paris Theme For Junior Prom

Buddy Williams To Play 'Echoes' Friday Evening

"Golden Echoes" in a background of dazzling Paris, young Americans on an Offenbach holiday, Villanova students at the Junior Prom —no matter how you say it, the idea still equals music by Buddy Williams and a theme of "Evening In Paris."

Put them both together and you'll have Friday night's Junior Prom, highlight of the spring season, that is commemorating this year's two thousandth anniversary of La Belle Paris.

Decoration men began months ago to construct a 30 foot replica of the Eiffel Tower and models of Paris streets to change the Villanova Field House into a dream-like version of the city on the Siene.

According to Phil Brennan, Junior Prom chairman, a capacity crowd of Villanovans and their dates will picture themselves as the tourists who inspired Gershwin melodies; taking a holiday on an "evening in Paris."

They'll dance past the Follies Bergere and the Bal Tabarin, glide along the Champ de Mars, in time with the music of Buddy Williams and his orchestra. Dancing will be continuous from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m., with Frank Teti's Blue Notes supplying intermission music for their fifth straight performance at campus formals.

High point of the evening will come at 10:30 p.m. when the young lady chosen Queen of Junior Week will receive her crown and scepter from bandleader Buddy Williams.

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

Mothers Fooled Juniors With 'Diaper Dan' Contest

For over a month mothers of Junior Class men have been in a sort of good natured conspiracy against their sons' dignities. You see the results of their plot in the accompanying picture, the winner of the "Diaper Dan" contest conducted as part of Mother's Day Activities.

It all started just before the Easter vacation when the Mother's Day committee mailed out letters to every Junior's mother. Ostensibly the letters were invitations for the mothers to visit Villanova and help the Class of '52 open its Junior Week activities.

Plot Thickens

But, enclosed in the folds of the perfectly harmless invitation there was another letter, bearing the warning, "Destroy this paper after you have read it. By no means let your son see it."

The plot began to thicken. This second sinister letter asked the mothers to send in baby pictures of their sons, the cuter the better. Together, the Committee and the mothers were going to change Mr. Junior, the professed "man of the house," into "mother's little boy" again.

Mothers Kept Secret

Response to this plan was tremendous, as the pictures on display in Austin Lounge today will verify. And so was the hoax, because every mother kept her secret, as can be seen from all the surprised Juniors today. Even mothers of the committee members wouldn't breathe a word of the contest to their sons.

And who's the little man in the picture who romped off with the title of "Diaper Dan" of Mother's Day? Twenty years ago when this picture was taken he was the little darling of Mrs. Basil Tihansky, upstate in McAdoo, Pa. Today he's still Mrs. T's darling, but not so little any more.

Around Villanova we've known him for the past three years as "Hank" Tihansky, an arts student who lives in Alumni hall. He's changed a little, smokes now, and no longer makes a habit of sitting in water buckets, but for today at least he's going to be the Junior Class "Diaper Dan."

Tradition of Junior Week

ceremony with the words, "As this tree grows stronger and more beautiful, so also does our love for Villanova."

More Dancing

The Class of '29 brought about more changes. It was because of Villanova's "big fire" that they used Rosemont for the location of the Blue Blazer Ball and their Tea Dansant. As a result they must have met a number of young ladies, because they rushed out and scheduled a Farewell Dance to be held on Saturday, supposedly in honor of the Senior Class. Oh, well! Anything for a dance.

This group must have been a fast crowd, though. At their Prom they danced to the "Blackbottom" and "Ain't She Sweet," among others, as played by Phil Napoleon, his Victor Recording Orchestra, and his Original Memphis Five.

Moved to May Date

In 1929 Junior Week moved to the first week of May, supposedly "to avoid usually inclement weather," while in the following year Juniors added Monday to the festive days. Anything to avoid those "early-week quizzes."

Finally, the fathers of our happy-go-lucky Juniors began wondering where all the money was going, and so, in 1931, as proof positive that Junior was still going to college, the first day of Junior Week became "Father's Day."

Pop Backs Out

This custom continued until the Class of 1934 came into power. Apparently Pop got tired of hearing the Profs denounce his son, or else he figured "boys-will-be," etc., but for some reason he failed to show up.

Nevertheless, a few fellows still managed to borrow enough to sport classy white blazers. That was the reason why the chairman of that year's Blue Blazer Ball was seen creeping about the campus, crossing one word off each of the dance posters.

Even in those days the Profs were inclined to be too honest with Dad, but they were gratious liars when Mom was around. So to celebrate a day with Mother, as well as to cancel the correct opinion that had been given to Pop the year before, an open house for mothers was established in 1934. This cleared up all difficulties.

Dinner-Dance Begins

Apparently Mom thought Junior looked "washed out", so our clever Junior promptly blamed it on the food. Thus was born the first Junior Dinner-Dance in 1935.

But a rubber check can stretch only so far, so it was this same year that the Farewell Dance formally ceased to exist. As a concession, Seniors were admitted to the Blazer Ball as guests of the Junior Class.

Finally, in 1937, the first day of Junior Week was dedicated to the Juniors and their "very best girls." In official approval of this idea, the administration began its annual luncheon in honor of the mothers of the third year men. (The rumor that this gracious hospitality was designed to prevent Junior from complaining about meals at school is entirely without fact.)

New Activities for Mom

From then until now the main problem had been to maintain all the functions already established. Yet, today, the Class of '52 makes the newest mark upon a wonderful tradition.

Confident that their Junior Week would easily better all previous ones, they triumphantly established an evening banquet to further honor the most wonderful ladies in the world.

Though future classes will strive, and perhaps even succeed in bringing improvements to Junior Week, of this we are sure—None shall ever love Mom, or Villanova, more.

Men On The Eiffel Tower

COLLEGE JUNIORS turned painters and carpenters for the past month in order to prepare decoations for Friday's Junior Prom. The Eiffel Tower centerpiece is shown above as it neared completion last week.

You've heard of April in Paris, and Americans in Paris, but have you ever thought of having Villanova in Paris? Sure, the idea's crazy, so rather than do that, the Junior Prom Friday night will bring Paris to Villanova. It's simple.

All you have to do is to start decorations chairmen, Bill Shilling and Tom Delaney thinking, and before you can say "Eiffel Tower," they've rounded up a group of hard-working Class of '52ers, and built one that scrapes Field House girders as center-piece of the "Evening In Paris" Prom theme.

And that's not all. Surrounding this 30 foot scaled replica of Paris' landmark, models of the cafes, night clubs, and theaters of the city will lend atmosphere. Standing an average of nine feet, these latter models have been painted on flats to portray three dimensions and present an appearance of reality to the Prom-goers.

Work on the Prom decorations began months ago when the committeemen gathered photographs of Parisian scenes and scaled down the originals to Field House size.

No one dares estimate of the number of sore thumbs, paint-splattered faces, and hours of work that Junior workmen put into construction of the decorations.

At any rate, together with a star studded ceiling, the decorations will form a tribute to the Juniors who are bringing "An Evening In Paris" to Villanova.

Friday Prom Intermissions Fifth Blue Note Campus Date

When Frank Teti sits at the piano to lead his Blue Notes in intermission music at Friday night's Prom, his opening chords will mark the beginning of the Blue Notes' fifth consecutive appearance at campus formals.

Popular and dependable music makers, the four man combo has been playing sort of "second fiddle" on campus ever since the Junior Prom of two years ago.

But, side men though they may be, the Blue Notes' smooth music often proved more popular with dancers than the songs of "name" Prom bands. It's not been unusual to have more dancers on the floor during intermissions than during regular dances.

Other Dances

After the 1949 Junior Prom the Blue Notes' popularity recalled the group for campus engagements at last year's Senior and Junior Proms, and the Senior Prom in the fall semester of this year.

Teti, an ex-Villanovan himself, leads the Blue Notes' distinctive brand of combo music, played by himself at the piano, and trumpet and bassmen, and drummer.

Queen of Junior Week...

Janet Farrell of Rosemont To Reign Over Festivities

Junior C&F'er Bill Cullen Will Escort Blue-Eyed, Blonde Contest Winner

Miss Janet Farrell, nineteen year old "American Beauty" pride of Rosemont College, will reign as Queen of Class of 1952 Junior Week, on the arm of her beaming escort, C&F Junior William Cullen.

Janet, a sparkling blue-eyed blonde, was the first place choice of both judges, Frank Palumbo and "Hit Parade" star, Snooky Lanson.

Cullen and the Queen will be guests of the Class at all Junior Week functions, and formal coronation ceremonies will take place Friday night at the Junior Prom.

Crowning At Prom

Bandleader Buddy Williams will place the crown over her golden hair during the 10:30 intermission. After receiving an engraved compact and a bouquet of American Beauty roses, Queen Janet will preside at a Coronation Dance in her honor.

The following evening she and Bill will again be guests of the Class at the Junior Dinner-Dance in the main ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel.

Rosemont Soph

Now a Sophomore Biology major at Rosemont College, Janet is a resident of West Reading, Connecticut. She came to the campus of Villanova's "sister college" from the Holy Child school in Suffern, N. Y.

Bill Cullen, her escort, is a business major in the C&F school, from Garden City, N. Y.

Choice From Pictures

Janet's picture was chosen by the judges from pictures submitted to this paper by Juniors during the last two months of searching for the Queen of Junior Week.

Palumbo and Lanson made their selections from pictures alone, to allow publication of their choice in this Junior Week edition of the VILLANOVAN.

They also chose four lovely ladies as runners-up in the contest, to act as the Queen's court. Each of these girls will be presented a nosegay bouquet during the Prom coronation ceremonies.

.... and Her Lovely Court

Joan Harkins

Jim Moore, Junior Arts student, is bringing this lovely secretary all the way from New Rochelle, N. Y. to Villanova for the Junior Week activities. Another lissome Miss, Joan Harkins, stands five feet, three inches under her crown of brown hair, and promises to keep one of her green eyes jealously on escort Jim Moore.

Marion McBride

Brooklyn has something more than a baseball team, and Frank Haskins will be glad to tell you so. Marion McBride is the reason he's become a Dodger fan.

This sophisticated, nineteen year old lady will leave her secretarial duties for the Prom weekend to add her lovely five feet, four inches to the Court of Junior Week Queen.

Annemarie Breithaupt

Rosemont sent two of its lovely students to the finals of the Queen contest. Here's Annemarie Breithaupt, an eighteen year old sister-college freshman who dayhops to the Main Line campus from Drexel Hill.

Blue eyes and blonde hair make this refined young Miss the Court lady that John Jay Nestor, C&F, will escort to the Prom.

Patricia Ann Behan

You've seen this comely blonde before, both in this newspaper about four weeks ago, on the arm of C&F'er Herbert S. Walters. Hazel eyes, five feet three inches of height, and her 101 pounds make nineteen year old Patricia Ann a worthy member of the Court of Junior Week Queen.

She lives in Upper Darby, and became a secretary after graduating from Drexel Institute of Technology in Philadelphia.

Mother's Day

Laughingly it is said that "Mothers are nice people, and no family should be without one." It is true that the comment is a bit flippant, and yet it points out a fact that mothers are an integral part of every family, and in turn essential to the community and to the continuation of human life itself.

From birth to maturity a man needs the protection, courage, understanding and wisdom of a mother. A man, like an oak, begins his appointed time with more of promise than appearance. The fulfillment of that promise involves years of work, anxiety, tears, and pain. That is the role of the Mother.

Yet there is more to motherhood than the mere physical aspect. There is a spiritual significance even deeper than the bearing and raising of children. It is that grace from God which makes raising children possible. That grace, called love, the love of which a Mother's heart is capable, reflects the divine love of God. It is through his mother that man first realizes the love, wisdom, and authority of God.

Though we are tempted to speak of motherhood in general terms of praise it is rather a relation which demands individual praise, individual love.

Here at Villanova it has become a tradition to set aside one day to honor a woman who has taken upon herself the role of Mother in our behalf. The day is not long enough even to begin to repay our debt of love, yet our hearts are full of love for the wonderful person who has given a lifetime to bring us where we are today. The events at school will end in a matter of hours this afternoon; our prayers and love will extend into eternity.

Congratulations

The originators of Junior Week certainly had a good idea. The men who started the now traditional first week in May intended a celebration for the class about to enter the final year of college. Yet these same men could hardly have realized the proportions that this week would take after years had passed.

The work that the present Junior class has done to prepare for the week that begins today has been tremendous. They deserve the highest praise for continuing so zealously this proud tradition of Villanova.

For the first time in the history of its publication, the VILLANOVAN is today running art work on the entire front page, in honor of this Junior Week. Junior staff cartoonist Bob "Smokey" Beers captured the spirit of the week in his cover design for this edition, doing work that has distinguished him as Junior art specialist.

This Week Good Time To Audit Accounts

By Jim Griffin

Junior Week! It happens every year; and yet, from another point of view, it happens only once in a lifetime. Of course, there is a Junior Week each year, but it is only when one is a Junior that he really feels that he is part of it and that it is part of him.

Overdone?

Perhaps it sounds a little overdone, because, after all, Junior Week is just a string of social events packed into the space of seven days. But, check the most calculating, even the most cynical, Junior of your acquaintance, and the odds are heavy that he is exerting his most powerful efforts these days to raise the cash he needs to jump into Junior Week with both feet.

A Milestone

And that is why we say that Junior Week is a once in a lifetime event; it occurs many times, but it can only be part of a fellow once. Actually, it is a milestone, and men begin to stop and take notice of the speed with which the time since freshman year has passed. From Junior Week it looks a lot further to the beginning than it does to the end of a man's day at Villanova.

"Dull" Moments

Perhaps it has not occurred to you as yet to look at Junior Week that way. But it would have, before the week was out, in one of those off moments between the dinner dates and dances, the proms and parties. For those "dull" moments are the ones which bring the thoughts that come with milestones: how rapidly they come and how quickly they fly away.

Coming . . . And Gone

And so it will be with Junior Week. Since freshman year the days have seemed at times like eternities, but the months and the years have clicked by like seconds on a stop watch. Junior Week is coming, and it, too, will be gone almost before we realize that it has come.

Perhaps it is a good thing that milestones come and go so rapidly. For in passing they make us stop and take notice that time is slipping away. And automatically we start counting up weeks and months, and evaluating ourselves, and comparing those evaluations with past ones we have made.

Trees to the Mill

Such evaluations may at times be disappointing, but it is then that they are most valuable. For milestones are merely check points, to indicate more effort when more effort is necessary. Junior Week is such a milestone. Freshman and sophomore years are trees to the mill when it has come, but the Junior Year is still being hacked at, and the big final is as yet untouched.

In the Red?

Junior Week is a good time, then, to balance the books. It may be something of a self-embarrassment to find that the balance puts us in the red for the first segments of our attempts at education, but it may also prompt us to make the business of education a paying proposition, at least for the time that is left.

PASHA THE PIT

by "Yankee Pasha"

Editor's note—There's a belief on campus that the day of the mahof is over; no longer do we have those fellows who do everything, belong to any number of organizations, are seen all over the campus at once. Maybe so, but we'd like to interject a few words about Junior Tom Pasha, and let you make your own judgments.

Besides writing this weekly column that has achieved at least notoriety at Villanova, Tom, as President of the Junior Class, is the hub around whom the wheels of the Class revolve. He took over as director of the Band when Father Handran left in February. But as if all these things aren't enough, he finds time to work as a musician on weekends and study his English major courses.

Hailing from Detroit, Wilkes Barre, and more recently, New Haven, Tom brought to Villanova an exhuberance and zealousness for Class activity that has led his Class of '52 to a Junior Week worthy of all his effort.

Dear Mom:

Today is dedicated to you. We have set this day of Junior Week aside in order that we might express our deep appreciation and love for the woman whose forbearance, love, and understanding made it possible for a boy to become a man of Villanova. It is a humble way of saying "Thanks, mom, for everything, you're a wonderful girl."

Yes, mom, you truly are a wonderful person and I realize that at times your son may have given you the impression that you were forgotten or left out of things, however, this was unintentional, and I hope that you will forgive me.

You see, mom, when I'm away at school, I seem to have a tendency toward living in a little world all my own with the idea in mind that I can get along without an outside assistance from a person who wouldn't understand the situations in which I'm involved.

Then when the going gets a little too rough and I feel like quitting, I call home and much to my surprise find that after talking to you and listening to your guidance and encouragement that the outlook isn't quite as black as it had appeared.

Have a wonderful time today, mom, and remember always that I'm your son and that I love you dearly.

Your Junior Son

MOTHER'S DAY: Where would this old world of ours be without someone around to take care of running noses, torn pants, and skinned knees? Yep, mom, is the gal that takes care of such incidentals in a man's life. . . . She can cook, make beds, write letters, wash dishes, darn socks, run vacuums, and buy groceries. . . . Mom takes care of a college man's moldy laundry, report card explanations to the man in the house, and finally, the collegian's financial status when it is taken into the higher masculine courts. . . . A guy has a difficult time finding a girl like the one that married dear old dad.

OLD AXIOM: It takes a mother twenty-one years to make a man of her son whereas it takes another women twenty-one seconds to make a fool of him. . . . H-m-m-m! How true.

THANKS GIRLS: Wondered what I'd head this portion, however, girls, as far as girls are concerned are always girls no matter what age they might be. . . . The cooperation of the mother's in the "Baby of the Week" contest was gratifying to say the least. . . . The committee would like to thank all who helped make the contest successful. . . . All your "Little Diaper Dans" are on display in the Austin Hall Lounge. . . . It was a difficult job to judge the photographs, however, we believe that we have come up with a winner. . . . He may look "a little pail" but he is really a king. . . . He cried so much when he was a baby that he had to be diapered at both ends.

The Three 'Big' Years

Headline History Shows Class Keeping Promise of First Day

By James Gallagher

The day was a memorable one on the Villanova campus, that morning of September 15, 1948. Cloudless skies dawned blue over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks; not a raindrop in sight. But its dry weather isn't the only reason for recalling this day.

Eight hundred thirty-six young men, fresh from senior high school classes in most cases, arrived from all parts of the country to add their names on this college's student roster. A blue and white sign over the entrance of Mendel Hall greeted them, "Hi, Frosh, Class of 1952."

Duly classified, registered, photographed, adorned with blue "dinks" and indoctrinated into the "hello habit," the new collegians convened in C & F auditorium.

President Spoke

College President, Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A. addressed the men, "I now feel proud to call you gentlemen of Villanova and welcome you to this college. I can remember the day when Villanova's entire student body could gather here with seats to spare; now your class overflows the room.

"As a class you have already set records at Villanova for enrollment. I expect further big things from you."

That was the beginning.

Those high-school boys of yesterday, now college men, accepted the challenge in the President's invocation with clamorous and spirited cheers. They had a job to do at Villanova, a promise to keep.

Headlines Trace History

Headlines in the accompanying montage trace the activities of those Villanova men, the Class of '52, from that momentous morning to their current Junior Week zenith. Take a close look and you'll see highlights of a story of metamorphosis—high school seniors to Villanova Juniors, in three 'big' years.

But headlines don't tell the whole story—they couldn't. Only in the memories of the Juniors themselves will remain the days of Frosh orientation — the notorious Count Zorro who inspired rebellion against "Quinn's Baby Beaters" of the Orientation Committee.

The Whole Story

You won't see it in the headlines, but Juniors will remember their class activities, elections with blaring loudspeakers and sign-toting convertibles that still give Father McLaughlin headaches to think about.

And how about the Soph Cotillion, with its "Falling Leaves" theme that fell successfully into the spectacular pattern forged by this class.

Year Is "Best Yet"

One need only mention "Operation Yule" and recall the gratitude of the St. John's orphans last Christmas to know that no other reason be needed for terming this year the "best yet."

But there are other reasons; look around you today, and judge the Class of '52's Junior Week on its own merits. Nothing else need be said except that for the Class, this is not the end. They are going on, keeping a promise they made three years ago, on their first day as Villanova students

Shades of the Twenties

By Bob Quinn

This was the day of Texas Guinan and Helen Morgan. "Hello, sucker" was a standard greeting, and everybody knew a chorus to "Smiles." This was 1921.

This was the year that someone long since forgotten suggested that the Class get together to arrange a dance to forget the Big War, final exams, and school work. Perhaps that Villanovan was a convincing talker, or maybe everyone agreed with him, but, nevertheless, intermingled with sounds of that "Hi-Ho Everybody" man, and talk of "Sally" and the lovely Marilyn Miller, the idea for a Class Dance flourished.

Finally, on May 20, 1921, the ideas of this unsung hero materialized in the "Junior Hop." This innovation—an entire class of forty Juniors dancing with their dates in the gym to the music of Herzburg's ragtime—became the annual event that we now know as the Junior Prom.

Only thirty years have passed since that first simple dance, but the splendor and preparation of this year's Prom give further testimony to the achievements of that man who successfully dreamed up the first Junior Hop.

To the men of the Class of '21 who were responsible—Thank you.

Junior Activity Guided By Good Counsel of Fr. Dan

Moderator Inspires Class Unity

"Good counsel has no price," advised Guiseppe Mazzini a hundred years ago when he was working for the unification of Italy, his homeland. Today, on the Villanova campus, that patriot's statement finds noble use in describing the activities of the man whose good counsel has been the priceless element that keeps the Class of '52 working as a successful unit.

That man? The moderator of the Junior Class, Rev. Dante L. Girolami, O.S.A.

A Serious Man

Picture a small, serious-looking priest in his middle thirties walking down the campus with a slow, determined gait. He is wearing a black fedora, pushed back just enough off the forehead to show a crop of hair that matches his habit of the Augustinian Order.

He has two books cradled under his left elbow, one is most likely math, the other, religion. Ostensibly buried in thought, he appears almost unaware of the noise and bustle of students around him during class changes.

A student speaks to him, and receives in response a reserved smile and a soft, but warmly extended, "Hi, son, how're you doing." The priest ambles on, his head slightly bowed as before.

Meet the Moderator

Do you have the picture? Good. But the man you just had in mind was Father Girolami, priest and math teacher. Now meet "Father Dan," moderator of the Junior Class.

In the latter role the reserved man of before changes to a confident and beloved leader of his loyal students. His retiring smile turns into a broad grin when he speaks of his "boys."

"Sure, I've got the best Junior Class in the history of Villanova, and I'm glad to tell you that I know it. You have to face the facts."

He's Responsible

But if the facts of Father Dan's statement are true, no one is more responsible than himself.

As a hard working, interested moderator he has done more than fill the required duties of advising and overseeing. His good counsel mentioned before has been the steady hand that kept his spirited class from going overboard with their youthful and collegiate exhuberance.

By no means has his aid been only negative. A hard worker himself, he injects his own eagerness and initiative into the class as a whole, counseling, directing, unifying, leading his "boys" to success in college.

A Former Villanovan

A native of Philadelphia, Father Girolami rose from this city's parochial school system to the minor Augustinian seminary at Staten Island, New York. After spending his year at Good Counsel Novitiate in upstate New York, he came to Villanova as a young professor in 1934.

Graduating with the Class of '38, he went to the Augustinian College, and then to Catholic University, Washington, D. C., where he earned his M.S. in math and physics in 1942.

Returning to Villanova in that same year, this time as a teacher, Father Girolami became assistant professor of mathematics. In addition to his regular math classes, he taught navigation to the Navy V-12 group at this college during the war years.

An Experienced Counselor

Since he joined Villanova's faculty Father Girolami has been serving as dormitory counselor, in the Barracks, and Fedigan and Austin halls. The first resident counselor of the barracks, he survived this "ordeal" and for the past five years has been stationed on the first floor of Austin.

An active athlete while in college, participating in football and basketball, Father Dan is one of the best informed sport fans on campus.

The Billiard Expert

With Rev. Joseph Kemme, O. S. A., Father Girolami served as Co-Director of Intramural sports for five years. But he admits that lately the only thing athletic he has endeavored has been a fast game of billiards in the Monastery recreation room.

Regarding Junior Week, the moderator expressed his confidence in his class by answering, "Well," and then stopping for a chuckle, "Well, I'll just say that the boys had better live up to my statement that they form one of the finest groups in the history of Villanova. And I don't think they'll let me down, do you?"

Mother's Day

Laughingly it is said that "Mothers are nice people, and no family should be without one." It is true that the comment is a bit flippant, and yet it points out a fact that mothers are an integral part of every family, and in turn essential to the community and to the continuation of human life itself.

PASHA THE PIT

by "Yankee Pasha"

Editor's note—There's a belief on campus that the day of the mahof is over; no longer do we have those fellows who do everything, belong to any number of organizations, are seen all over the campus at once. Maybe so, but we'd like to interject a few words about Junior Tom Pasha, and let you make your own judgments.

Besides writing this weekly column that has achieved at least notoriety at Villanova, Tom, as President of the Junior Class, is the hub around whom the wheels of the Class revolve. He took over as director of the Band when Father Handran left in February. But as if all these things aren't enough, he finds time to work as a musician on weekends and study his English major courses.

Hailing from Detroit, Wilkes Barre, and more recently, New Haven, Tom brought to Villanova an exhuberance and zealousness for Class activity that has led his Class of '52 to a Junior Week worthy of all his effort.

Dear Mom:

Today is dedicated to you. We have set this day of Junior Week aside in order that we might express our deep appreciation and love for the woman whose forbearance, love, and understanding made it possible for a boy to become a man of Villanova. It is a humble way of saying "Thanks, mom, for everything, you're a wonderful girl."

Yes, mom, you truly are a wonderful person and I realize that at times your son may have given you the impression that you were forgotten or left out of things, however, this was unintentional, and I hope that you will forgive me.

You see, mom, when I'm away at school, I seem to have a tendency toward living in a little world all my own with the idea in mind that I can get along without an outside assistance from a person who wouldn't understand the situations in which I'm involved.

Then when the going gets a little too rough and I feel like quitting, I call home and much to my surprise find that after talking to you and listening to your guidance and encouragement that the outlook isn't quite as black as it had appeared.

Have a wonderful time today, mom, and remember always that I'm your son and that I love you dearly.

Your Junior Son

MOTHER'S DAY: Where would this old world of ours be without someone around to take care of running noses, torn pants, and skinned knees? Yep, mom, is the gal that takes care of such incidentals in a man's life. . . . She can cook, make beds, write letters, wash dishes, darn socks, run vacuums, and buy groceries. . . . Mom takes care of a college man's moldy laundry, report card explanations to the man in the house, and finally, the collegian's financial status when it is taken into the higher masculine courts. . . . A guy has a difficult time finding a girl like the one that married dear old dad.

OLD AXIOM: It takes a mother twenty-one years to make a man of her son whereas it takes another women twenty-one seconds to make a fool of him. . . . H-m-m-m! How true.

THANKS GIRLS: Wondered what I'd head this portion, however, girls, as far as girls are concerned are always girls no matter what age they might be. . . . The cooperation of the mother's in the "Baby of the Week" contest was gratifying to say the least. . . . The committee would like to thank all who helped make the contest successful. . . . All your "Little Diaper Dans" are on display in the Austin Hall Lounge. . . . It was a difficult job to judge the photographs, however, we believe that we have come up with a winner. . . . He may look "a little pail" but he is really a king. . . . He cried so much when he was a baby that he had to be diapered at both ends.

The Three 'Big' Years

Headline History Shows Class Keeping Promise of First Day

By James Gallagher

The day was a memorable one on the Villanova campus, that morning of September 15, 1948. Cloudless skies dawned blue over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks; not a raindrop in sight. But its dry weather isn't the only reason for recalling this day.

Eight hundred thirty-six young men, fresh from senior high school classes in most cases, arrived from all parts of the country to add their names on this college's student roster. A blue and white sign over the entrance of Mendel Hall greeted them, "Hi, Frosh, Class of 1952."

Duly classified, registered, photographed, adorned with blue "dinks" and indoctrinated into the "hello habit," the new collegians convened in C & F auditorium.

President Spoke

College President, Rev. F. X. McGuire, O.S.A. addressed the men, "I now feel proud to call you gentlemen of Villanova and welcome you to this college. I can remember the day when Villanova's entire student body could gather here with seats to spare; now your class overflows the room.

"As a class you have already set records at Villanova for enrollment. I expect further big things from you."

That was the beginning.

Those high-school boys of yesterday, now college men, accepted the challenge in the President's invocation with clamorous and spirited cheers. They had a job to do at Villanova, a promise to keep.

Headlines Trace History

Headlines in the accompanying montage trace the activities of those Villanova men, the Class of '52, from that momentous morning to their current Junior Week zenith. Take a close look and you'll see highlights of a story of metamorphosis—high school seniors to Villanova Juniors, in three 'big' years.

But headlines don't tell the whole story—they couldn't. Only in the memories of the Juniors themselves will remain the days of Frosh orientation — the notorious Count Zorro who inspired rebellion against "Quinn's Baby Beaters" of the Orientation Committee.

The Whole Story

You won't see it in the headlines, but Juniors will remember their class activities, elections with blaring loudspeakers and sign-toting convertibles that still give Father McLaughlin headaches to think about.

And how about the Soph Cotillion, with its "Falling Leaves" theme that fell successfully into the spectacular pattern forged by this class.

Year Is "Best Yet"

One need only mention "Operation Yule" and recall the gratitude of the St. John's orphans last Christmas to know that no other reason be needed for terming this year the "best yet."

But there are other reasons; look around you today, and judge the Class of '52's Junior Week on its own merits. Nothing else need be said except that for the Class, this is not the end. They are going on, keeping a promise they made three years ago, on their first day as Villanova students

Shades of the Twenties

By Bob Quinn

This was the day of Texas Guinan and Helen Morgan. "Hello, sucker" was a standard greeting, and everybody knew a chorus to "Smiles." This was 1921.

This was the year that someone long since forgotten suggested that the Class get together to arrange a dance to forget the Big War, final exams, and school work. Perhaps that Villanovan was a convincing talker, or maybe everyone agreed with him, but, nevertheless, intermingled with sounds of that "Hi-Ho Everybody" man, and talk of "Sally" and the lovely Marilyn Miller, the idea for a Class Dance flourished.

Finally, on May 20, 1921, the ideas of this unsung hero materialized in the "Junior Hop." This innovation—an entire class of forty Juniors dancing with their dates in the gym to the music of Herzburg's ragtime—became the annual event that we now know as the Junior Prom.

Only thirty years have passed since that first simple dance, but the splendor and preparation of this year's Prom give further testimony to the achievements of that man who successfully dreamed up the first Junior Hop.

To the men of the Class of '21 who were responsible—Thank you.

Junior Activity Guided By Good Counsel of Fr. Dan

Moderator Inspires Class Unity

"Good counsel has no price," advised Guiseppe Mazzini a hundred years ago when he was working for the unification of Italy, his homeland. Today, on the Villanova campus, that patriot's statement finds noble use in describing the activities of the man whose good counsel has been the priceless element that keeps the Class of '52 working as a successful unit.

That man? The moderator of the Junior Class, Rev. Dante L. Girolami. O.S.A.

A Serious Man

Picture a small, serious-looking priest in his middle thirties walking down the campus with a slow, determined gait. He is wearing a black fedora, pushed back just enough off the forehead to show a crop of hair that matches his habit of the Augustinian Order.

He has two books cradled under his left elbow, one is most likely math, the other, religion. Ostensibly buried in thought, he appears almost unaware of the noise and bustle of students around him during class changes.

A student speaks to him, and receives in response a reserved smile and a soft, but warmly extended, "Hi, son, how're you doing." The priest ambles on, his head slightly bowed as before.

Meet the Moderator

Do you have the picture? Good. But the man you just had in mind was Father Girolami, priest and math teacher. Now meet "Father Dan," moderator of the Junior Class.

In the latter role the reserved man of before changes to a confident and beloved leader of his loyal students. His retiring smile turns into a broad grin when he speaks of his "boys."

"Sure, I've got the best Junior Class in the history of Villanova, and I'm glad to tell you that I know it. You have to face the facts."

He's Responsible

But if the facts of Father Dan's statement are true, no one is more responsible than himself.

As a hard working, interested moderator he has done more than fill the required duties of advising and overseeing. His good counsel mentioned before has been the steady hand that kept his spirited class from going overboard with their youthful and collegiate exhuberance.

By no means has his aid been only negative. A hard worker himself, he injects his own eagerness and initiative into the class as a whole, counseling, directing, unifying, leading his "boys" to success in college.

A Former Villanovan

A native of Philadelphia, Father Girolami rose from this city's parochial school system to the minor Augustinian seminary at Staten Island, New York. After spending his year at Good Counsel Novitiate in upstate New York, he came to Villanova as a young professor in 1934.

Graduating with the Class of '38, he went to the Augustinian College, and then to Catholic University, Washington, D. C., where he earned his M.S. in math and physics in 1942.

Returning to Villanova in that same year, this time as a teacher, Father Girolami became assistant professor of mathematics. In addition to his regular math classes, he taught navigation to the Navy V-12 group at this college during the war years.

An Experienced Counselor

Since he joined Villanova's faculty Father Girolami has been serving as dormitory counselor, in the Barracks, and Fedigan and Austin halls. The first resident counselor of the barracks, he survived this "ordeal" and for the past five years has been stationed on the first floor of Austin.

An active athlete while in college, participating in football and basketball, Father Dan is one of the best informed sport fans on campus.

The Billiard Expert

With Rev. Joseph Kemme, O. S. A., Father Girolami served as Co-Director of Intramural sports for five years. But he admits that lately the only thing athletic he has endeavored has been a fast game of billiards in the Monastery recreation room.

Regarding Junior Week, the moderator expressed his confidence in his class by answering, "Well," and then stopping for a chuckle, "Well, I'll just say that the boys had better live up to my statement that they form one of the finest groups in the history of Villanova. And I don't think they'll let me down, do you?"

13 Juniors Gridders To Be Nucleus Of '51 Team

By H. William Range

Thirteen outstanding ballplayers represent the Class of 1952 on the gridiron. Included in this array of talent are Co-captains Joe Rilo and Nick Liotta who are the first captains of a Villanova football team to be elected before the season since 1941.

Ed Blazo: Ths 218-pound tackle hails from Dearborn, Michigan. It's his first year with the varsity, but Ed has a wealth of service ball behind him. As an Army lieutenant he played with the Fort Benning team.

George Claffey, tackle. A big, rugged, 230 pound lineman who saw considerable service on the defense. George is a fierce competitor who adds great strength to the Wildcat line. From St. Joe's Prep and Trenton, N. J.

Coletta Features Speed

Reds Coletta, halfback. Elusive and hard-to-stop back who was one of the finest high school performers in Philadelphia a few seasons back. A real speed merchant who should be seeing a good deal of action both on offense and defense.

Ed Coughlan, end. Big Ed is a strong, steady performer on the defense. A two letterman, Coughlan was also an outstanding discus and javelin tosser in high school.

Franny Dunn, halfback. Did outstanding work as defensive half. A fine pass interceptor and a very deceptive runner, Franny is a Marine vet who saw service in the Pacific during the war.

Gildea In Both Platoons

Tom Gildea, center. Has been used on both offense and defense and has performed exceptionally in the two capacities. Tom, a vicious tackler and a fine team-man, will receive a commission in the Marine Corps a year from June.

Nick Liotta, Guard. Co-Captain. Veteran guard and one of the finest linemen on the club, Nick will be seeing his third season of regular

Staff Cartoonist, Football Writer, Both Served With U.S. Marine Corps

By Jim Gallo

Two ex-Marines and a former Fordhamite comprise the Junior section of the VILLANOVAN sports staff.

The work of Bill Farrell, the staff cartoonist, must be familiar to all of our faithful readers, for Bill is called upon almost every week to fill the top-left corner of Page Six. Art work is the favorite hobby of the tall Marketing major who, at present, makes his home in Woodside, Long Island. Farrell sandwiched 19 months of Marine Corps service between his graduation from LaSalle Academy, New York City, in 1946 and his entrance to Villanova in 1948.

Russo Follows 150's

Ronald "Bud" Russo is the other ex-Marine currently pounding out sports copy for the leading campus weekly. During his two years of duty with the Corps, "Bud" traveled the Pacific from California to Hawaii and thence to China. As a sportswriter, his travels have been confined to the areas invaded by the Villanova 150-pound footballers. A Pre-Medical student from Pelham, New York, Bud was recently elected treasurer of the Dante Society.

Joe Corcoran came to Villanova after whiling away his freshman year at Fordham. A Liberal Arts student and regular N.R.O.T.C. midshipman, Joe calls Patterson, New Jersey, home. He began

Hauck, Swayze and Holmes Promising Diamond Stars

Three third year men represent the class of 1952 on Coach Artie Mahan's diamond squad. Walt Hauck, Mike Holmes, and Ed Swayze are the members of the trio who are all new to Villanova flannels and spikes. Hauck is on the first team, while Holmes and Swayze go to make up part of the nine's capable reserves.

Walt Hauck, a lanky 6' 4" first baseman comes from Wyncote, Pennsylvania. He took over the vacancy left at the initial sack by John Wieglicki's graduation last year. A long ball hitter who has given a good account of himself this season, Big Walt is equally adept in the fielding department, and has been viewed frequently by the interested eyes of the major league scouts.

Holmes A "Spot" Moundsman

Jerseyite Mike Holmes will probably be the "spot" moundsman in Coach Mahan's pitching scheme. Mike, a product of Paterson's Saint John's High, needs only experience before he becomes a consistent winner.

The only southpaw on the pitching staff is Ed Swayze,

Brennan, Stewart Valued Court Men in Big Season

The highly successful Wildcat cagers of the 1950-1951 season have been so often tagged "amazing sophs" that even the most fanatic followers of the Severancemen is likely to forget that Tom Brennan and Ben Stewart are third-year men.

Brennan, a Commerce and Finance student began his Varsity career at Villanova as an understudy to the 'Cats' great All-American center, Paul Arizin. The towering Brooklynite, as a sophomore, dropped in an extra-period field goal to give the Main-Liners a one-point victory over North Carolina State at Raleigh. During the past season his excellent rebound work and scoring ability (he was second to Larry Hennessy in that department) were invaluable to the Wildcat quintet.

Ben Stewart, the only other holdover from the '49-'50 outfit, performed consistently all season, but really hit the jackpot in post-season tournament play. The high-jumping guard from York, Penna., netted 19 points in each of the invitational contests to grab the scoring honors in both games.

Eight Juniors On Track Team Bring Wildcats Fame

By Ted Sheehan

Villanova's nationally-known track squad claims eight members of its 1951 team as Juniors. Indeed, it would be safe to say that coach Jim Elliot's talented charges would be in a sad state if it weren't for these eight men. Four of them are the backbones of every Wildcat relay from the sprint medley to the mile. Two of them are the team's best half-milers and the remaining men are better-than-average field men.

Bob Cunjac, who comes from Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, when he is not trying for his degree, is primarily a quarter-miler. Bob is a steady member of the Villanova mile relay and can be counted on for a good performance in any distance from the 300 to the 600.

Furlinger is Versatile

Another member of the mile relay is John Furlinger. John is quite the versatile lad and can compete in either the 220, the 440 or, if the situation calls for it, broad jump, a respectable distance. Furlinger hails from Saint Albans, New York. He was on the relay team that won the Liberty Bell trophy, last January at the Inquirer meet.

Jim Reardon adds a touch of internationalism to the track team along with a touch of the brogue. Jim comes from the "Ould Sod" and while there he captained the Irish Olympic team in 1948. Jim is at his best when he is running the quarter or half and his work in the former at the New York K. of C. meet this past March was one of the best quarters of the indoor season.

Simigan Best in Quarter

Pete Simigan is the man that rounds out the Junior aggregate of quarter-milers that usually makes up any relay from the Mainline campus. The 440 is Pete's natural distance and he seems to be at his best in it. Pete calls Bayonne, New Jersey, his home and he too was a member of the Liberty Cup winning relay.

Art Klepper — tall, thin, and good natured—is one of the two-mile relay's dependable men. Art is also good for individual competition in both the half-mile and the mile. Klepper comes from Malvern, New York.

The other Junior half-miler is Larry Paturzo from Woodside, New York and former city champ while at LaSalle High School in New York City. Larry can be counted on to do a commendable job in the half or mile. He was a consistent member of the two-mile relay.

There are two Juniors on the field team—one a high jumper and the other a weight man. The high jumper is Marty Panzner of Springfield, Pennsylvania. The weight man is Bob Ruggerio from Leonia, New Jersey. Bob excells in the shot and discus throw.

Runners Begin Practice In Preparation For Coming Soph Sponsored Field Meet

By Dave Maynes

With the Freshmen and Seniors already having their initial practices under their belts, and the Sophmores all set to go this afternoon, this year's Interclass Field Meet looks like the best yet.

The defending champion Sophmores will be sponsoring the 1951 games, and class president Paul Sollami has high hopes of seeing his boys repeat last year's decisive victory. Cummin Clancy, coach of the second year men, reports that all of his 1950 medal winners will again be repeating, along with a large number of new men.

Frosh and Seniors Confident

Both George Thompson and Jim McKenna, Freshman and Senior mentors respectively, were well pleased with the caliber of runners who turned out last week, and neither is conceding anything. And both are confident that the Classes of '52 and '53 aren't going to walk off with all the honors this year again.

Tomorrow afternoon will see the unveiling of this year's Junior threat. Most of the cindermen who teamed up to take number two in the final standings last spring are expected to report to coach Jim Reardon at this time.

duty. Won first letter as a defensive man in '49 and played with both platoons last season.

Tony Marollo, guard. Running mate of Liotta and definitely on a par with him. Tony, another bruising tackler, is also a two letter winner and is one of the most dependable linemen ever to play on a Wildcat eleven.

Bill Padula, halfback. Bill is another fleet runner who was a sensation in his first game against Duquesne two seasons ago. Very fast around the ends and a good broken field man. Hails from Upper Darby, Pa.

Patrick Defends at Half

Jack Patrick, halfback. Although Jack is officially listed as an end he is in reality a defensive halfback. A fine pass catcher both on offense and defense, Jack was president of the class in his sophomore year. A Navy vet from Mt. Carmel, Pa.

Joe Rilo, end Co-captain. Probably the fastest man on the team, Joe is another winner of two letters. The likeable Rilo is the best pass receiver on the club which is amazing considering that his 5 feet 9 inches makes him the Main Liners' smallest end. A great competitor.

'Students' Night' Planned For 'Pardon Expression'

Reduced Rate Considered for Students by College Musical Group

A special "Students' Night" is being contemplated by Villanova's Turf and Tinsel Society, now preparing its forthcoming musical review, "Pardon the Expression."

Mr. Robert Whalen, Musical Director of the group, reported last week that the T&T has a plan under consideration whereby Villanova students and their dates would be admitted at a reduced price for one performance. Whalen stated that nothing definite had been decided in regard to this, but that he hoped to be able to make a definite announcement on the subject in the next issue of THE VILLANOVAN.

The finishing touches are being put on the production this week, with its presentation dates of May 17, 18 and 19 only two weeks away. Director George Noake, Whalen and Moderator Rev. M. J. O'Donnell, O.S.A., were "polishing off" the rough edges, and readying what Whalen promised will be "a top notch show."

Dancing choruses, combining veteran and ambitious Frosh talent, were swinging into unison with the singing groups, promised to be "better than ever," to provide a background for the series of original skits that are scheduled to provide the "body" of the show.

Villanovan Staff Meets Wed. May 9

The present staff of The VILLANOVAN and all students interested in joining the staff for next year have been requested by Editor Frank Gobes to attend a meeting Wednesday evening, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. in 215 Mendel Hall.

"Our entire staff for the 1951-52 year will be set up, all editors for the year announced, and plans for the coming Dinner-Dance of this year's staff will be discussed," said Gobes. He has requested all members of the News, Sports, Feature, Circulation, Business and Photography staffs, and all editors and managers, to attend.

Positions Open

In regard to those interested in obtaining positions on the staff next year, Gobes commented that "I am anxious to have all those who are at all interested join. We need a good number of new staff members for next year, and all students who wish to join next year should be at the meeting."

To emphasize the advisability of newcomers attending the meeting, the editor remarked ". . . and, this will be the only real opportunity to join the staff for next year."

Heads of the various departments on the paper are contacting all their staff members to remind them of the meeting. But, to those not on the staff, who desire to join, this will be the only announcement.

"Golden Echo Music," the bandleader explains, is his entirely new approach to popular dance music, using euphoniums, trombone-like instruments never before exploited in dance orchestras.

In his own words, Williams' "Golden Echo Music" is "not commercial, not ultra-progressive, just a danceable medium between the extremes of Kay and Kenton."

At his Field House performance Friday night Williams will be accompanied by his vocalist, Marie Caruso, along with a "mello-vocal" trio, the Two Buds and an Orchid.

Prom programs suitable for the Paris anniversary theme have been designed by program chairmen Louis Oberle and Frank Gervey, and will be distributed at the door.

Prize Winners In Art Contest Are Exhibited

All prize-winning entries in the annual Library Junior Week Art Contest will be on display in the College Library all this week, according to an announcement by Rev. Daniel Falvey, O.S.A., College Librarian.

Entries closed last Monday, and judging in the contest took place the end of the week. The various classes of work considered in the judging were photographs, water colors, and oil paintings.

Prizes Awarded

Judges for the contest were: Rev. John J. McShea, O.S.A., Assistant Professor of English; Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., Professor of Engineering Drawing, and Dr. George N. Quam, Professor of Chemistry.

First prize winners were awarded ten dollars, five dollars going to each of the second prize winners in each group.

Dan Simeone, end. Dan saw reserve duty in his first campaign as offensive end and was then switched to defensive tackle last season. The 210 pound bulwark from Hartford, Conn. is another steady contributor who has merited two letters his lineplay.

Joe Till, halfback. Joe received a back injury last season after four games as a very valuable defensive half and as a result will be unable to play in '51. While he was in Joe was a savage tackler as well as a good line smasher. Will receive a Marine lieutenancy with Gildea next June.

Senior's Engineering Paper Receives Prize At Lehigh U.

Robert V. Curry, a Senior in the Civil Engineering Department, has been awarded third prize in the annual "technical paper competition" at the thirteenth annual Student Chapter Convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers, held at Lehigh University, April 23.

Curry, representing Villanova, presented a paper on the subject of "A Pre-stressed Concrete Tee Beam." His paper was derived from a thesis project recently planned and performed by Raymond Kase, Daniel Dagit and Jerry Caroll.

Four Point Spread

There was but a four point spread between the first three prize-winning papers, thus it was a really outstanding honor for Curry. The judges expressed the fact that they had had much difficulty in determining the first three awards, due to the high rating of each paper. Five prizes were awarded in all.

Competing schools at the annual convention of the student engineering groups were Bucknell College, Delaware University, Lafeyette College, Lehigh College, Princeton University, University of Pennsylvania, Swarthmore College, and Villanova College.

Number 18...THE RACCOON

"They can't trick an old grad like me!"

Shades of the roarin' 'Twenties! All duded up in his ancient benny — but he has modern ideas on testing cigarette mildness! He's tried every "quickie" cigarette test in the book — and they're not fooling him one bit! He knows for dang-sure that cigarette mildness can't be determined by a cursory sniff or a single, quickly-dispatched puff. He doesn't have to go back to school to know that there is one real test — a test that dispels doubt, fixes fact.

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why . . .

Drill, Dance To Mark NROTC 'Armed Force Day' Program

A competition among the Drill Team of the Villanova College NROTC unit and the units of Philadelphia area colleges will feature the celebration of Armed Forces Day, May 19, at Villanova.

An open house at John Barry Hall will open the festivities, according to an announcement by Captain James McCormick, NROTC unit commander. Visitors will be escorted thru the building by Midshipmen guides at the open house, with still other Midshipmen stationed throughout the hall to explain the equipment of the building. The open house will begin at one o'clock in the afternoon.

NAVY DRILL TEAM that has been practicing in early morning sessions for the past several weeks in preparation for competition on Armed Forces Day, May 19.

Teams Compete

Two o'clock will be the starting time of the competition between the colleges' drill teams. The Villanova Drill Team will be commanded by Midshipman F. W. Haskins in the contest.

Captain McCormick announced that skilled drill masters from all of the armed forces will judge the performances of the various teams in this contest.

Following the drill there will be a parade by the college Naval Reserve Officers' unit, climaxed by the awarding of the "colors" to the company of the Villanova unit winning company competition, by Miss Rosemary Mulvaney.

Cup Awarded

Miss Mulvaney, who will make the award, was recently chosen "Miss NROTC" at the Naval Unit's dance.

Following the presentation of "colors," individual academic and sports awards will be presented. The rifle team will be presented with a cup for winning the District competition for the second year.

Public Invited

Captain McCormick stated that the public is invited to witness the celebration and drill.

A dance will reward the midshipmen for their exertions of the afternoon. The midshipman recreation committee has planned a dance to be held in the armory of Barry Hall. Midshipmen and their dates are invited to attend. The dance will be at six-thirty, and close out the day's proceedings.

Student Council Will Handle Drawing For Stadium Drive

The first phase of the Villanova Stadium Drive will come to a close next Monday evening, one week from tonight, in the College Field House. Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., Moderator of Athletics, stated last week that the drawing, to be performed by the Student Council, will take place at that time.

Father McKee reported that a "last minute rush" began a week ago, as tardy students began turning in their chance stubs during the final fourteen days of the drive. "The drive picked up last Monday," said Father McKee, "but there are still many students who have yet to make a return on their books."

Students Invited

College students are invited to attend the drawing of prizes on the chance books next Monday. Many guests, alumni and friends of the college are expected to attend the function. Father McKee announced that he was attempting to arrange to have the college band attend and play.

Meanwhile, Rev. James Donnellon, O.S.A., chairman of the drive, urged all students to put out a special effort in this, the final week of the drive. "This is the only part of the drive in which the students will be asked to sell chances," Father Donnellon stated. He added, "Let's make it a success."

Ideas Considered

Father Donnellon commented that several functions contemplated for the future are not yet decided upon. He said that such fund raising ventures as a fashion show, a dance and/or card party, and possibly an athletic contest to benefit the drive were under consideration.

REV. E. B. McKEE
Closes Campus Drive

In speaking of the chance-book drive, Father Donnellon noted that the students, who bore the main brunt of the drive, were aided by various labor, religious and fraternal organizations in the drive. These organizations took varying numbers of books and had their members sell them. Their stubs will be mixed in with those of the students for the drawing.

Following this chance drawing it is unlikely that any other phase of the drive will follow, as far as the students are concerned, immediately.

Plans for additional functions to aid in raising funds, as previously mentioned, are not in the immediate future.

Drive In Telling Stage

To a large extent, it was pointed out by both Father McKee and Father Donnellon, the future undertakings of the Stadium Drive will be dependent on the success of this initial phase. "In fact," said Father McKee, "to a major degree, the success of our efforts for a new stadium hinges on this first portion of the drive—thus, on the students. I'm sure they won't be a disappointment."

Paper Staff Dines Again at Barclay

Staff members of the VILLANOVAN, leading campus weekly, will hold their annual Dinner-Dance May 19 in the Mirage Room of the Hotel Barclay, site of the event last year.

After the dinner, Rev. John A. Klekotka, O. S. A., the publication's moderator, will make awards to graduating staff members. Editors for the 1951-52 staff will also be named at that time.

Law Dean of Seton Hall To Address Last Forum

Dr. Rooney to Speak May 15 in C & F

Dr. Miriam Theresa Rooney, Dean of the Law School of Seton Hall University, will address the Villanova Forum next Tuesday evening, May 15, on the subject, "Human Rights and The Family of Nations." Dr. Rooney's talk will bring to a close the 1950-51 series of the forum.

Mr. Charles Bruderle, Forum Chairman, scheduled Dr. Rooney as the final speaker last week. He pointed out that her topic will serve to round out this year's forum theme of "Human Rights and Natural Law."

Dr. Rooney is one of only six women in history to serve as assistant to the legal adviser in the Department of State. She was appointed to that position in 1946.

Prior to her association with the legal branch of the State Department, the speaker had long experience in the department. From 1928 until 1950, Dr. Rooney was attached to the department, first as legal reference librarian, and subsequently as divisional assistant in the Division of Commercial Policy.

Catholic U. Grad.

Dr. Rooney attended Harvard University from 1926 until 1928, switched to the Catholic University of America in 1929, where she received the A. B. in 1930, the M. A. in 1932, and the Ph. D. in Philosophy in 1937.

Junior Week Hits New High

Traditional Affairs Led by Class of '52

By Jim Keats

Most of Villanova is recuperating this week from what is now recognized as the best planned, best organized, best effected, in short, the best Junior Week to take place on the campus of the Main Line College.

Both Class of '52, Moderator, Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A., and President Tom Pasha expressed their gratitude for the cooperation given by the members of the Junior Class, and by the rest of the student body, that helped to complete success this traditional Villanova College function.

Even Good Weather

Receiving unusual encouragement from even the Main Line weather bureau, the Junior Class began its week of activities on Monday morning, April 30, with an 11:00 a.m. Mother's Day Mass in the College Chapel.

Over 400 Junior mothers visited campus for the day-long Mother's Day program. Following the tree-planting ceremonies in front of Austin hall, the College played host at luncheon in the cafeteria. An entertainment in the Field House, the surprise "Diaper

Council Picks Stadium Drive Stub Winners

Drawing Last Night in Field House

Villanova's Stadium Drive closed its first phase last night with the drawing in the Field House. The student Council arranged and executed the drawing. A complete listing of winners will be published in the next issue of the Villanovan.

Chancebook sales have been in progress for this drawing since the opening of the stadium drive last November, when books were distributed to the students.

Students Make Success

Rev. James Donnelon, O. S. A., was chairman of the drive, which he hoped will help Villanova eventually to have a modern stadium. In this drive the students' sales represented the major portion of the revenue, so that the success or failure of the drive depended largely upon their efforts.

Although the drive was slow in starting, it picked up considerably during its last weeks. This was the only phase of the drive which is to be a raffle. Plans for raising additional funds next year are now under consideration

All Weekly Staff Meets Tomorrow

The VILLANOVAN will hold a general staff meeting tomorrow at 5:00 p.m., in 215 Mendel Hall. All members of the present staff of the paper and all interested in joining next year's staff are requested to attend.

Frank Gobes, editor of the weekly, announced that the entire staff for 1951-52 will be set up at the meeting.

Gobes said, "All staffs for next year will be arranged. Members of the news, sports, feature, circulation, business and photography staffs this year have been told to attend. All those not now on the staff and interested in joining should be there."

In regard to those who may be interested in joining next year's staff, the editor commented that "We need a number of new staff members for next year, and this will be the only real opportunity to join."

May 17 Is Set For Student Elections

Classes Will Elect Officers And Student Council Representatives

In a flurry of last-month activity before the closing of the spring semester class elections have been scheduled by Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., moderator of student activities, to be held in Alumni hall gymnasium Thursday, May 17, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

To set up nominations for the coming elections all three classes have scheduled general meetings this week. President Tom Pasha of the Junior Class is calling a meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in the C&F auditorium.

Other Class Meetings

Sophomore President Paul Sollami has listed his class meeting for 7:15 o'clock this evening, at the same location, and the Student Council will conduct a Freshman meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in 215 Mendel.

With elections less than two weeks off, all classes anticipate campaigning to begin as soon as nominations are completed and cleared through the College administration.

Class Officers

One president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer are to be chosen by each class to lead the groups for the 1951-52 school year. In addition, Juniors will elect five Student Council representatives: Sophomores, four; and Freshmen, three.

Father McLaughlin, expecting an even more spirited election turnout than in previous years, outlined the general election rules that will be imposed during campaigns.

FR. McLAUGHLIN
Supervises annual elections.

The moderator of student activities commented that certain campaign restrictions will be in effect. "Among these are the facts that no sound equipments may be used except during the periods between classes, and that posters nominees post in Mendel Hall and in the C&F building are restricted to the bulletin boards."

In regard to the nominations of candidates, Father McLaughlin reminded that no student may hold office in more than one organization. "Class presidents," he pointed out, "receive a seat on the council by virtue of their class office. They are the only exception to this rule."

As in past years, there will be three balloting sections in the Alumni Hall gymnasium, one for each class. Elections will be under the supervision of the elections committee of the Student Council.

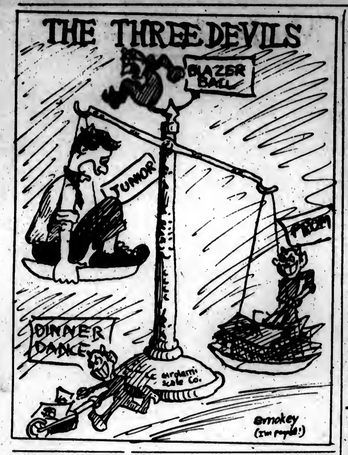
ELECTION RULES

1. All classes will elect four officers (president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer). In addition Freshmen will choose three Student Council representatives; Sophomores, four; Juniors, five and one Senior Alumni representative.

2. Use of sound equipment is restricted to the periods between classes.

3. Notices in Mendel hall and the C&F building are to be posted only on bulletin boards.

4. Posters must be removed immediately after elections are completed.



5. Elections will be held in Alumni hall gymnasium Thursday, May 17, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

NOTE. As soon as possible all organizations having representation on the Student Council are to hold elections so that the Council may be reorganized late this month.

'DIAPER DAN' PIX

Junior Week publicity chairman Bob Roland reports that he still has a number of baby pictures from the "Diaper Dan" contest that can be picked up tomorrow afternoon in the VILLANOVAN office.

Most of the pictures submitted were returned to the mothers directly on Mother's Day, after the display in Austin Lounge. Roland is requesting Juniors to pick up the remaining pictures in order to save committee members the trouble of mailing them to each mother individually.

The Villanovan

If there be those students who would like to spend some of their leisure moments in educational and constructive pursuits during the coming year they might attend the meeting of the VILLANOVAN staff tomorrow evening in 215 Mendel Hall.

As THE most active extra-curricular organization on campus, the paper offers instruction and weekly practice in newswriting, feature writing, sports writing, photography and business managing. The opportunities are as big as any man makes them. The knowledge gained is invaluable to the would-be journalist and worthwhile to the college student. No course at the college devotes as much time to journalistic writing and criticism.

There is a drastic need for copyreaders and rewrite men and places open for cartoonists, photographers, layout men, circulation men, and future editors.

Besides developing abilities in various skills, these opportunities offer untold futures. You can't help but enlarge your acquaintances with the faculty as well as students, learn about what is going on in the school you attend, develop your character and personality.

These are jobs that count, at least at college.

All Over . . . .

It's all over now.

Around the campus wrinkled white coats are hanging glumly in closets, with wilted rosebuds still in the lapels.

The Prom and the Dinner Dance are now conversation, and swiftly becoming just memories, but fond ones. The Blazer Ball, and the parties, the picnics and the quiet dinners with the best girl—in the future a few days ago, are now part of a week that has passed.

The books on the corner of the desk have gathered dust in the last week or so.

And most of the wallets around campus are getting used to that empty feeling once again.

It's all over now, but it couldn't have been better. And in a way, it will never really be all over, so long as there are two men from the class of fifty-two who can get together and talk it over.

Oscmosis Developed By Villanovan O. T.

New Learning Process Solves Problems for Students, Profs

By Bill Brenninghouse

There can be no doubt that Spring is here. All the little juniors have taken their daddies' cars back home. Grass stains have appeared on the seats of the trousers of those who persist in sedentary studying on the campus green.

The venerable editor of this sheet has composed an editorial aimed at the naturalists in the school. Most of the boys have that vacant lost look and Ford's has reopened at its new stand. Spring has all and everything in its daydreaming clutch.

Oscar Twomp, not to be outdone by other gay collegians has given up studying for Spring. He has embarked upon a project that, when completed, will shock the world.

Mr. Twomp believes that he has found a way to study by a process akin to osmosis. (Osmosis—some kind of process or something in biology or botany or something.) If successful the process will be known as Oscmosis in honor of its discoverer.

Genius in Simplicity

Oscar's system is fundamentally simple but like most simple things required a genius to discover it. A meat chopper, electrical or mechanical, is used to cut up a textbook into small pieces. The resulting pulp is deposited into a pot of boiling water. The mixture is cooked until a light paste develops. The paste is then spread over the forehead of the subject and the whole business is allowed to bake in the warm sun for two or three hours. At the end of that time the subject will have complete knowledge of the contents of the textbooks.

Precautions, N. B.

Several precautions must be taken before using this system. Book covers need not be used as they add little knowledge and dull the meat grinder. Appendices and indices, or appendixes and indexes, also may be omitted as they sometimes become a little blurred and hard to understand after being oscmosed.

The process is by no means completely developed. Just how much water to use, how thick the paste should be, and exactly how long paste and subject should be baked are still matters of experimentation. Twomp, however, is confident of complete success.

Set-Backs

Using his system in studying for an exam in Middle European Linoleum Development, Oscar baked too long and flunked. He added too much water for Advanced Psychomatic Insect Behavior and flunked that, too. He feels that the inevitable finals will be his first real challenge. Oscar wants it known that he expects no material gain from his discovery. Anyone may use it at any time. Permission need not be asked.

Wish Him Well

Yes, it's Spring all right. Softballs are cascading through windows. Intra-mural athletics has given new impetus to the crutch business. Oscar Twomp has discovered a way to beat cramming and studying for final exams.

May Is Unique Month From Every Viewpoint

By Jim Griffin

May days. There are a hundred different varieties, with a thousand variations. There are social May days, political May days, religious May days. There are Mother's days, and Memorial days. And in between the official ones are scattered dozens of smaller, less formal, but no less valuable May days.

And Literature

Poets have written volumes about the month of May, and those without their gift of expression corroborate their feelings by action every year. May is unquestionably the most beautiful month of the year.

It is no surprise then, that May has been dedicated to the most beautiful creature of all time. For this month is the reflection in nature of the beauty of God, and of the most beautiful of His handiworks —His mother Mary.

Cynically

Sometimes we are inclined to smile a little cynically at talk of May and Mary. Perhaps our American TV and radio educations have ingrained in us an idea that talk of beauty, and talk of sanctity, are things which flow from weakness. Inherently we admire both, but because of our backgrounds, we sometimes seem loathe to admit our admiration.

But in Moscow

On the other side of the fence, the situation is quite different. Those who hate Mary, and the God who sheds beauty on the earth during her month, take full advantage of the spirit which comes with the spring. The red May day is the most planned-for display of the Communistic calendar.

Instinct and intellect tell the leaders that each voice raised in hymns to the state is one which cannot murmur a silent Hail Mary, and every youth who marches in the May day parade is one whose knee will not bend that day in worship of her Son.

So That . . .

We might learn, then, from those who would destroy us. We might observe, and note that what we believe in is worth talking about, and worth acting upon. We might look upon the beauty of May with some insight, and realize that the daisies and daffodils which God gives us this month are worth sending to His Mother, counted off on our rosary beads.

PASHA THE PIT

JUNIOR JOTTINGS: If you have ever experienced the feeling that you were sitting on the top of the world then you have a fair idea as to how the writer felt at the conclusion of Junior Week. But what was responsible for this feeling of exhiliration? Was this individual hanging from the balcony, did he alk out of the fifth floor Austin or was he just a victim of the results brought about by a feeling of supreme satisfaction? Without a doubt the latter was the cause.

Today, the writer would like to dedicate his column to a most wonderful class as a means of expressing his appreciation to an outstanding group of Villanovans who worked so diligently in order tht their class might be the most successful in Villanovan history. It was only through the full cooperation of the men of '52 that Junior Week met with such outstanding success. Thank you, men, you did a wonderful job.

Of course, in order that the class in general could support the various functions, it was necessary to have chairmen who could make plans for the events. Here too, the Class of 52 was fortunate in having good men who were untiring in their labors and who possessed an indominable spirit of working together that the desired results might be obtained. The general chairmen of Junior Week gathered their crews about them and informing them as to what had to be accomplished set up th ecommittee work until it was carried through to its completion.

The writer would like to express his most sincere and heartfelt gratitude to his chairmen and their committees. If at times, due to timetables set-up, the writer gave these men the idea that they were being pushed a little too much he would like to simply say, "Sorry, but thanks a million for everything."

I would like to thank Bud Conklin for his outstanding work on Mother's Day an affair which was the most widely celebrated at Villanova since the day s set aside as a tribute to mother. From tht morning Mass to the beautiful setting of the banquet in the evening, the day was perfcetly arranged.

Another Bud Kept the Week moving when Tuesday evening engulfed the Juniors. This time it was Bud Holland who made the concert a success.

Wednesday brought tht Blazer Ball and a near heart-attack to its Chairmn Kevin McCrne. This was due to the fact that Kev was witnessing the largest Bazer Ball since its introduction at Villanova.

Tom Cullen kept things going with an outstanding picnic on Thursday and then wt all waited for the Friday Night prom.

JUNIOR WEEK CLIMAX came at the Class Dinner-Dance Saturday night in the main ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin hotel. This was another sold out event at which Juniors topped off the week by dancing to the music of Johnny McGee's orchestra, eating turkey dinner, and listening to a few short speeches of gratitude for "the best Junior Week ever."

Yearbook Begins Senior Portraits

Sittings for portraits to appear in next year's Belle Air began yesterday morning in the campus Radio Station, and will continue until May 25 for all Juniors and Senior I's.

Noting that response to the picture appointment lists in the Pie Shop has been poor so far, yearbook editors are issuing another notice to all students who are eligible to have their portraits in the Belle Air's senior section.

Appointments Necessary

"Appointments must be made immediately," said the announcement, "so that all next year's seniors may be photographed by Zamsky studio during the three week period. All juniors and senior I's will have to make appointments prior to their sittings."

Yearbook editors further urged all now-eligible students to have their portraits taken, whether or not they are sure of returning to school next year.

Service Charge

No pictures will be scheduled after the end of this semester, since Belle Air makeup requires that all Senior portraits be in at the beginning of next fall semester.

Service charge of one dollar is made by Zamsky studios when students appear for sittings in the radio station behind the barber shop.

The Villanova football Wildcats will open ltheir next season September 29 against Army at the West Point gridiron.

Barry, Reardon, Clancy Also Win Over Manhattan

By Speed Keats

The double victory of sophomore Fred Dwyer in the mile and 880-yard runs, plus the wins of John Joe Barry, Jim Reardon, Cummin Clancy and the mile relay highlighted the annual Villanova - Manhattan track meet, held last Saturday, at New York's Van Cortland Park Stadium. Despite these victories the Wildcats went down to defeat 101-39.

In losing to Manhattan, the intercollegiate indoor champions, Villanova lost to the team considered by many people to be the best in tht eastern half of the nation. What accounted for such a lop-sided score, despite the many first-places taken by the Wildcats was the tremendous depth which the Jaspers possess.

Clancy Wins In Field

The factor of depth was especially true in the field events, where, except for Clancy's first in the discus throw, the Wildcats were almost completely shut out. In four of the seven field events Villanova registered nary a point.

One encouraging sign, however, was John Joe Barry's easy win in the two-mile run. John has had a tough time of it lately and this win might be just the thing to bring him around again. In beating the Jasper's Bill Lucas he bested that schools best distance runner.

Jim Reardon, who ran a great unheralded quarter at the Penn Relays, last week, continued in stride by winning the 110-yard run in :49:3. Jim also ran on the victorious one mile relay team. Bob Cunjac was second in the 440.

Dwyer Scores Double

Fred Dwyer gave a bit of the old iron man stunt by winning the mile run in 4:22:0 and, after a half-hour's rest, came back to do the same thing in the half mile run. His time in the latter distance was an impressive 1:53:2. If Dwyer can do the same thing against Seton Hall tomorrow afternoon the Wildcat chances will be greatly improved. Larry Paturzo was third in the half mile run.

Relayers Nip Jasper

The mile relay quartet, running with John Furlinger, Bob Cunjac, Ed Bausenwein and Jim Reardon nipped the Jasper team with a 3:23:2 clocking.

Cummin Clancy, the modern Irish "whale", kept his victory skein going by beating his teammate Ed Coughlin in the Discus throw. Cummin heaved vulcanized platter 149 feet 11 inches. This distance was shorter than his victorious Penn Relay performance.

To a journalist a filler is a bit of copy that is used when a regular story does not fill all the space assigned to it. This is a filler.

CUMMIN CLANCY, Irish born Wildcat, made the fourth best discus throw ever recorded at the Penn Relays by tossing the iron platter 161 feet 11 inches at the annual Franklin Field Carnival.

Clancy Leading Discus Threat After Penn Win

Ireland's gift to Villanova, big Cummin Clancy, established himself as a leading contender for national discus titles by winning the platter heave at the Penn Relays last week. His toss of 161 feet 11 inches was only 8 feet 8 inches short of the Carnival record and was the fourth best throw ever recorded at trackdom's greatest show.

Clancy, by his win, became a member of a very select company of Mainliners, those that wear the Pennsylvania watch. That group, which now numbers six, includes the 1942 mile relay squad which won the class "B" mile relay championship, and John DiCarlo who won the 400 meter hurdles in 1946 with a clocking of 55.1.

One thing that makes Coach Jim Elliot smile over the Irish giant's performance is the fact that Clancy now stands head and shoulders, literally and figuratively, over his IC-4A competitors. On the basis of his Penn performance Clancy looks like a good bet to join Freddy Dwyer as an IC-4A champ for this year of 1951.

It also goes without saying that Clancy will be one of the Wildcat's best point getters in the dual contests as well.

Cindercats Hosts To Seton Hall Tomorrow

The Villanova track team plays host to Seton Hall University's thinclads tomorrow afternoon at the Main Liners' Stadium. Considering the power of the Seton Hall squad this dual meet looks to be a repeat of last Saturday's affair with Manhattan.

With Captain Jim McKenna benched with a pulled leg muscle the Wildcats chances look dimmer than before. Jim was a sure bet to take the quarter as well as place in the 220 and anchor the mile quartet.

Sprints to Stanfield

Pre-meet predictions give the 100, 220, and broad jump to the Pirates' IC4-A and National AAU champ, Andy Stanfield. Stanfield recently broke the broad jump mark at the Penn Relays with a leap of 25 feet, 4½ inches. He also captured the Invitation 100 at the Franklin Field Carnival in 9.8.

The Pirates also get the nod in the quarter with Bob Carter expected to better the McKenna-less Wildcats to the tape. Australian Olympian Morris Currota looks good for second in this event.

Reardon and Dwyer in the Half

In the half the pick goes to Villanova's Jim Reardon or Fred Dwyer while Dwyer should team-up with John Joe Barry in the mile for one-two positions. With Art Klepper and Larry Paturzzo turning in good performances the Wildcats can be safely predicted to take the first three places in the half and the mile.

With McKenna out of the mile relay, which would have been a close contest, develops into a sure win for the Pirates. Their quartet of Harry Bright, Morris Currota, Charlie Slade, and Bob Carter is rated as the third-best in the nation.

Villanova's one sure winner comes in the person of the affable smiling Irishman, Cummin Clancy, who will take the discus with no one else close. Clancey won the discus title at the Penn Relays with a toss of 161' 11".

Watson Gives Up Six Hits Fans Eight For Third Win

Three Runs in Eighth Frame Win Game; Hauck's Homer and Wright's Triple Star

By Ted Sheehan

Last week might have been Junior Week, but last weekend was "New York Weekend" as the combined forces of Villanova's track and baseball teams descended on that metropolis. The results were both good and bad because, while the track team was losing to Manhattan, the Wildcat nine was trimming Fordham 5-2.

Jack Watson, the fire-balling right hander looked excellent as he scattered six hits along the route to down the Rose Hillers. It was the third victory for Watson against four defeats and for the Wildcats it was the sixth win in eleven attempts.

Villanova got off to a good start by tallying in the first frame and held that lead until the third inning when the Rams tied the score with a double by pitcher Carl Chiaramonte, two walks and an infield hit. They scored again in the fifth inning on two errors but this the last Fordham was to see of the scoring department.

Villanova's big bats began booming in the eight frame as first baseman Walt Hauck belted a tremendous home run to deep center field to tie the score at 2-2. Tom Jones kept the rally going with a double. Next up was Benny Moskal and he was robbed of a sure double by a superb over-the-shoulder catch in center by Don Ryan.

Rams Commit Triple Error

Ram soach Jack Coffey replaced Chiaramonte with Vin Healy and Poor Vincent was imediately tagged for a single by Jack Watson. Jack aided his own cause with the single as Jones scored. Ryan, who previously had robbed Moskal, let Watson's hit go between his legs for a three base error and Stubby Jack scored all the way from first base.

Villanova tallied for the final time in the ninth inning on Jim Wright's triple to left field and Walt Hauck's fly ball to center.

Villanova Loses To Penn, 8-5, to Split '51 Series

A three run outburst in the eighth inning by the Pennsylvania nine sent Villanova down to an 8-5 defeat. Jack Watson who pitched shutout ball against the Red and Blue two weeks ago was the victim of Penn's 14 hit onslaught.

Blaha Homers

The Wildcats had a comfortable 5-3 lead at the end of 6½ cantos, paced by the heavy clouting of second baseman Don Blaha. Blaha found left field to his liking as he poled a homerun and a double to the left garden.

The roof fell in on Watson in the seventh inning as leadoff man Bill Dueber tripled over centerfielder John Morris' reach. Consecutive doubles by Jerry Cook and Paul Fitzpatrick knotted the count at five apiece.

Dueber Doubles

In the fatal eighth Dueber played cat-killer by lashing a two run double to left center. The combination of four singles and Dueber's devestating clout snuffed the Main-liners' hopes with 3 big runs.

Errors Costly

Watson's pitching was below his usual performance as was the cat's fielding. Three errors aided the Quaker cause and the high wind played tricks with anything that was hit in the air. Villanova's record at this writing is 5 and 5, the next home game is with Lakehurst Naval Base.

If all the cars in Philadelphia were stretched out bumper-to-bumper they'd be trying to get into the Villanova parking lots just before an 8:30 class.

During the first fifty years of the history of Villanova College, a total of 1599 students were taught. During the past fifteen years, the enrollment in any one year has exceeded this fifty-year total.

Planning Soph-Sponsored I-M Meet

PAUL SOLLAMI, Sophomore President, discusses plans for the Second Annual Inter-Class Field Meet with John Gillman, last year's victor in the 880 yard run.

Sophs Point For Second Championship At Intra-Mural Cinder Fray Thursday

Villanova Stadium will be the scene of the Second Annual I-M track and field Meet this Thursday. Last year's games, which were sponsored by the class of '51 were such a success as part of the Junior Week festivities, that they are getting separate billing this year.

The Sophs, who are sponsoring this year's meet, hope to retain the title they grabbed last year by winning six of the ten events. However, according to George Thompson, Jim Reardon, and Jim McKenna, coaches of the Freshmen, Juniors, and Seniors, respectively, they are going to find this a difficult task indeed.

Senior Contestants

McKenna has so far chosen the following men in the seniors' bid to end their years at Villanova as champs: Tom Madonia, and Jim McDonough, who has competed in several weight lifting championships will compete in the weight events.

For the sprints, Jim has rounded up Jack Bianchi from Vineland, N. J., Mal Southerland, former Detroit high school star, and John Geppi, who is known here at Villanova more for his speed on the gridiron than for the fact that he ran a 9.6 century in high school and was Maryland state sprint champ.

Callahan to Broad Jump

Jack Callahan will compete in the broad jump. Jack was a prep school star before he entered the service in 1943. Don Stefanik, one of the greatest all-around high school athletes Chicago ever produced, will throw the javelin for the fourth year men.

Now we come to Jim Reardon's juniors, who missed first place last year by only three points. Taking both sprints and both relays, they also copped a number of seconds and thirds.

Reardon's Reliables

Reardon will go along with last year's winners in the same events, namely: Joe Rilo in the 100, Dick Van de Berghe in the furlong, Joe Till, Nick Liotta, Van de Berghe, and Rilo in the quarter mile relay, and Till, Rilo, Van de Berghe, and Fred Georgi in the half mile relay. The rest of the team is not yet picked, but Jim says he expects to do well in the field events.

The unknown quantity now appears in the form of George Thompson's Frosh team, and it would seem that this is the strongest team of all, in forces of numbers anyway.

Big Frosh Entry

George had a big turnout, and has more than the maximum number of entries for several events. Therefore he has tentatively named only three starters at present. They are Bob Aissa in the 880, George Eberly in the quarter, and Mike Quinn in the weights.

Cummin Clancy has picked the following men for the champs: Scullen in the sprints, and Frank Rehak in the weights. It is a toss-up between Jim Davis and Joe Matson in the 440, and John Gillman will be in the 880. Walsh will compete in the high jump and 'Pancho' Melconian will attempt to retain his title in the broad jump.

Good Counsel Early Upset Winner Over Mendlecases

by DAVE MAYNES

Good Counsel started their season off with a bang last week as they went out on opening day and upset the highly touted Mendelcases by a score of 9-8. Tony Tranelli's pitching and Paul Sollami's big bat were the deciding factors in a game that went 11 innings for a decision. Trailing 6-8 going into the seventh, Sollami rapped out a single that scored two, tieing the count, and then in the fourth extra inning he again came thru with a one bagger to score Cardinale from third.

17 Tilts on Tap

Seventeen games were played in the four leagues last week with a like number scheduled for this week.

JUNIOR WEEK HITS NEW HIGH

Dan" contest in Austin lounge, and Benediction rounded out the regular program for the day.

Banquet a Success

Then the Mother's Day banquet, a Class of '52 innovation in the traditional program, was catered in the Field House. Mother's Day chairman Bud Conklin reported that over 500 juniors and their guests attended this quiet ending to the hectic day.

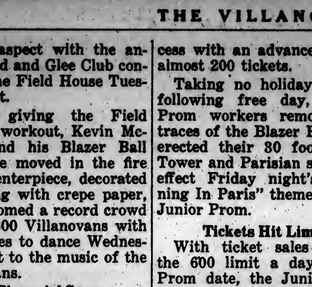
No sooner had most of the mothers been put on homebound trains than Junior Week activities took on a musical aspect with the annual Band and Glee Club concert in the Field House Tuesday night.

Then, giving the Field House a workout, Kevin McCrane and his Blazer Ball committee moved in the fire engine centerpiece, decorated the ceiling with crepe paper, and welcomed a record crowd of over 300 Villanovans with their dates to dance Wednesday night to the music of the Villanovans.

Ball Financial Success

Reporting a financial success on an event that is accepted as a traditional financial flop, McCrane showed early signs of Blazer Ball success with an advance sale of almost 200 tickets.

Taking no holiday on the following free day, Junior Prom workers removed all traces of the Blazer Ball, and erected their 30 foot Eiffel Tower and Parisian scenes to effect Friday night's "Evening In Paris" theme for the Junior Prom.



Tickets Hit Limit

With ticket sales hitting the 600 limit a day before Prom date, the Juniors had a capacity crowd to dance to Buddy William's "Golden Echo" music, and watch the bandleader crown Rosemont's Janet Farrell as Queen of Junior Week.

Rodney, Ranieri Are Commissioned Naval Engineers

James R. McCormick, Captain, U.S.N., Professor of Naval Science, recently announced the appointment of Richard Rodney and Joseph Ranieri to the Civil Engineering Corps. McCormick also stated that John Redman had been appointed as alternate to Rodney and Ranieri.

"Only twenty men were picked from the fifty-two Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps Colleges in this country," said the captain. "Out of the twenty eight principle and alternate men appointed, only one other college out of the fifty-two had as many named as Villanova," McCormick added.

Rodney and Ranieri are both scheduled by means of their appointment to receive commissions in the Civil Engineering Corps of the U.S. Navy. This coming summer they are supposed to attend a six weeks camp at Ohio State University.

ROTC Contract Quota Raised

Plans are now being made by the NROTC Unit to receive applications for Contract students for next year. Villanova will be allowed a quota of 110 contract students.

Applications and interviews will start in July. Circulars are now being mailed to Prospective Freshmen outlining the program. Prospects from the surrounding area will be screened during the summer and those from farther areas will be screened during registration week. Final selections will also be made during registration week.

The enlarged quota represents an increase of twenty students.

Only Freshmen will be eligible for Contract status. One exception is a sophomore five year student who would be able to spend four years in Naval Science courses before getting a degree.

Senior Dance Tickets Ready

The annual dinner-dance of the Senior Class will be held Saturday evening, June 2, at the ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel. Tickets for the affair are now on sale in the Pie Shop for $7.50.

Traditionally, the affair has been held on the evening following the Belle Air Ball, but the Class of 1951 chose the June date to provide a final social gathering before graduation.

This innovation will extend the graduation week-end to three days. The Baccalaureate Mass will be held on Sunday, followed by the commencement exercises on Monday morning.

The main ballroom of the Ben Franklin Hotel and Leo Zollo's Band, remembered as the site and orchestra of the class's very successful Junior Dinner-Dance, have again been selected. The meal featuring roast turkey, is scheduled to begin promptly at 7:30 p.m.

The dinner-dance, as is customary, will be a closed affair; only Seniors may purchase tickets. Table reservations will not be open until May 15 to afford Seniors an oportunity to arrange their parties.

Larry Gallen and Bill Gormley, co-chairmen of the Senior Dinner-Dance, expect the affair to be the largest of its kind evér held at Villanova. Seniors are reminded to purchase their tickets early to avoid disappointment.

According to College regulation, nominees for office in any class or club must have (1) Satisfactory scholastic achievement, or approval of the Dean; (2) "Good standing", or approval of the Dean, Chaplain, and Dean of Men; (3) Legitimate appointment or election. Dr. Rooney Talks At Forum's Finale

Seton Hall Law Dean to Speak Tonight

"Human Rights and the Family of Nations" will be the title of the final lecture in the 1950-51 Villanova Forum series to be held in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 8:30 p. m. this evening. Dr. Miriam Theresa Rooney, Dean of the Law School of Seton Hall University, will be the speaker.

C. P. BRUDERLE
Forum Chairman

The general theme of the forum this year has been "Human Rights and Natural Law." "This final in our series, by Dr. Rooney," Mr. Charles Bruderle, forum chairman, commented, "should serve to round out our topic. We began with the individual and have worked up. The lecture this evening completes our discussion of the topic."

Law Dean

The speaker this evening assumed the deanship of the Seton Hall law school last year. Prior to that she had been Assistant to the Legal Advisor in the Department of State, being one of six women in history to receive such an appointment.

Dr. Rooney received her A.B., M.A., and Ph.D in Philosophy from the Catholic University of America. She received her LL.B degree from the George Washington University Law School. The speaker also attended Harvard University.

Papal Blessing

She is one of the few women in the world who has earned the equivalent of a canonical doctorate from a pontifical university. In 1947 she received from Rome the Apostolic Blessing of Pope Pius XII for her writings in the philosophy of law.

The "Archbishop Messmer Award" is among other literary credits awarded the speaker. She received that award for her Peter

Classes Elect On Thursday

Class, Council Voting Set for Alumni Gym

By Tony Galati

In a final splurge of extra-curricular activity Villanova students are bracing for class elections scheduled for next Thursday. Balloting will take pace in Alumni Hall Gym from 10:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

The Student Council's election committee will set up three booths, one for each of the three classes participating in elections. Council members will be on hand during election hours to distribute ballots and give instructions for filling in ballots.

Choose Class Officers

Four Class officers will be chosen by the Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman classes. In addition to this the Juniors will elect five Student Council representatives, Sophomores, four, and Freshmen, three.

The Sophomores got the jump on the other classes last week, by holding their nomination meeting Tuesday evening in the Commerce and Finance auditorium. With president Paul Sollami presiding, the Class of '53 named three candidates for the office of president, about which most of the interest centered.

Juniors followed with their nominating session Wednesday, at the same location, with president Tom Pasha presiding over the meeting.

This year's Freshman class held their meeting, also on Wednesday evening, in 215 Mendel Hall. This meeting was conducted by the Student Council's election committee.

Chapel Cuts Many

Names of the nominees were then put through various administration channels for approval. The last stage of approval was the Chaplain's office. Unsurprisingly, this proved to be the "Waterloo" of many "would-be" candidates. Chapel delinquency seems to be a rather common disease among resident students.

Party Slates

Campus campaigning began yesterday with a flying start evident. Campaign posters found their way even to the most far flung corners of the campus. A group of industrious Freshmen added a touch of big-time politics to the campaign by creating a "King Cole" party and urging their supporters to vote a "straight-ticket". With three days remaining until the decisive moments in Alumni Hall, much

Turf & Tinsel Opens Thursday With 'Pardon The Expression'

All-Male Musical Group To Present Original Revue For Three Day Run on Field House Stage

A half dozen original skits, entirely new dancing routines and a score of original music will highlight "Pardon the Expression," when Turf and Tinsel presents that production on the Field House stage for the first time Thursday evening.

The College society will give repeat performances Friday and Saturday evenings. A special "Students' Night" is scheduled for Thursday night, when all students will be admitted at a reduced seventy-five cent rate. Staudents' dates will also be admitted for this price.

Stadium Drive Winners Out; First Phase Comes To End

Father Donnellon Says Students Deserve Credit for Success

The Villanova Stadium Drive which came to its conclusion last Monday, has been reported by its chairman to have been a "great success." Rev. James Donnellon, O.S.A., speaking for the committee in charge said "I want to thank the students for their wonderful support in putting this drive over."

Father Donnellon explained that the College now has a workable capital with which the stadium drive can progress to further fund-raising ventures. Father Donnellon commented that the stadium drive can now be "a reality in full force."

Complete Returns Later

The chairman also pointed out that the committee now is planning further methods of raising additional funds. He reported that the completed returns of the first phase of the drive will be announced in the near future.

Last Monday's drawing brought to a close the first phase of the stadium drive. It marks a brief respite for Father Donnellon and his committee, who had conducted the drive for the last seven months.

More Next Fall

Additional events which will help raise more funds will be held sometime next fall or winter, according to the committee. These events will be announced at that time.

The winner of the first prize of the drawing that concluded the drive was ticket number G66857,

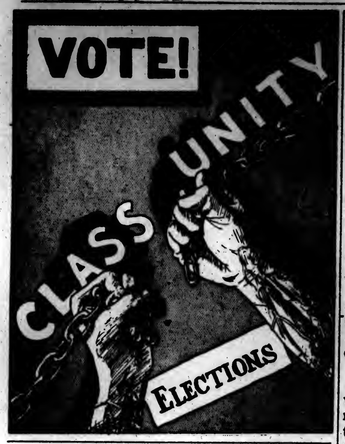
"Midshipman Roberts," by Bill Breninghouse, and "Birthday Party," by Jack Gibbons head a top-notch array of original skits, written by College students. Comedy skits by Jack Kelly, Bob Resnick, Herb Matthews, and Steve Keiss will round out this portion of the production.



Solos by Jack Kelly and Jack Fay will top the musical element that will augment the skit segment of the show.

Show Review

"Down Memory Lane," a nostalgic series of backward glances at the last three T&T shows, will be a feature of this year presentation. It will be run just prior to the final curtain.

Bob Whelan, musical director of Turf and Tinsel, announced last week, as rehearsals went into the final stage, that "three outstanding productions in this year's show will be 'Country Fair', 'Omar Kahyam' and 'It Pays to Advertise!'

Whelan also stated that the specially priced "Student Night" tickets are now on sale daily at the Pie Shoppe.

Elections

This ought to be an editorial about class elections that are to be held Thursday. It is, but it's not going to preach, telling you how important it is that every student cast his vote. The campaign posters put up this weekend remind you of that everytime you turn around.

What it will remind you of is something that's not so evident from the posters and the electioneering. It is this—the spirit behind these elections.

Here we are, a group of college students, young men with insecure futures, to say the least. Yet, not knowing for sure how many of us will be here next year, we're going right ahead making our plans and organizing our classes.

It's not foolhardy, but on the contrary, shows a lot of common sense and clear thinking. To wait for the worst to happen, to sit here twiddling thumbs and worrying about what might happen is the foolish thing.

But to support the elections, to go ahead making plans for a bigger and better next year, that is the sign of a level head despite insecurity.

The old saying states that everything comes to him who waits. In a case like this, though, it must be rephrased to say everything comes except achievement and success.

You've made a good start in nominating men for election who are worthy candidates to accept the responsibilities that are noncomitant with the honor of class office. The candidates have shown the right kind of intentions by their spirited and extensive campaigns. It's VILLANOVAN policy to back no particular candidates, so we recommend them all.

Now it's up to you, the student body, to continue this line of level-headed action. Go to it on Thursday.

Turf Classics Similar to Life

Thoroughbreds' Training Analogues to "Minor" Problems

By Jim Griffin

The gates swing open, there's a moment's hesitation, and they're off! Six of the finest horses are pounding down the first quarter mile, with six gaily clad figures crouched low over their backs. And then they're rounding the first turn, spreading out into an uneven line . . .

The Home Stretch

On the home stretch—a furlong to the flag, straining, pulling, driving every muscle for that extra few yards that make a show horse a winner. And then a roar from the crowd as the line is crossed, and it's all over.

Afterwards

Some of the people start towards the betting windows; some just wait in their places for the next race. But everyone is chattering away, about the jockeys, the strategies, the take-off, the stretch run . . .

The Horses' Viewpoint

I wonder if very many people ever take the horses' point of view about a race, even for a minute or two? The race is just a race to the fans watching it, but to the horses (presuming an intelligent horse or two) it is a compact resume of a whole lifetime—the careful lineage selected for him, the precise training schedule imposed upon him, his practice runs, etc., etc. In fact, it is in his life, packed into a few pulsing minutes.

And actually, that is the way life in general seems to be: a long stretch of training, and then the test, with the climax coming and going like a few hoofbeats on the track.

Different Angle

But a trained horseman will place the emphasis differently. To him it is not the race which determines the winner, but what goes before it. The careful breeding and training which goes into a thoroughbred before he begins the slow walk to the gate brings him the bouquets, not the thrill-packed minutes which it takes for him to prove himself.

Made . . . or Broken

In reality that is the proper emphasis, for life and for horses. A long stretch of minor, or seemingly minor items, and then a big test. And the analogy holds further. The big tests are won or lost before they ever approach—they are made or broken in the endless series of little things which make up a lifetime.

One Difference

There is, however, one point of difference which stands out.—the stakes. And they are immensely higher in the game of life than in the most fabulous of races, for in life the low bet is eternity, in heaven or in hell. It will pay then to take a little care in the training period, to place a little scrutiny on how we are handling the "minor" items, just to make sure that we'll be up whenever a test comes. If we can manage that, the whole thing becomes easy . . . as easy as a champion's winning a race.

Father Zeiser, Member of College Athletic Board, Dies

Solemn Requiem Mass was sung in the College Chapel yesterday morning for Rev. Blasius J. Zeiser, O.S.A., who died last Wednesday in Bryn Mawr hospital after a short illness. Burial in the Augustinian Order cemetery on campus followed the Mass.

Father Zeiser, a graduate of Villanova, has been a member of the Augustinian Order for nearly half a century. He was ordained in 1907 by Archbishop Edmund Prendergast at St. Charles Borromeo Seminary.

Ten years later, in 1917, he became rector of St. Nicholas of Tolentine Church, N. Y., where he served for 29 years.

While pastor of St. Nicholas Church Father Zeiser was instrumental in building a new church and high school. He was also moderator of one of the largest Holy Name Societies in the New York area.

After retiring to the Villanova Monastery in 1949 Father Zeiser received appointment to the College athletic board, on which he served until his death.

A familiar figure at all Villanova sports events, Father Zeiser was himself a player on the famed Wildcat football team of the 1898 season.

Vote for Twomp

Oscar Begins Campaign-Plans Campuswide Revolt

By Bill Brenninghouse

Twomp for everything! What we need here is an iron-fisted dictator. Once again the campus resounds with the blare of political foghorns. Each class has chosen its candidates and the would-be wheels are in the thick of political wrangling.

Oscar Twomp, eminent men about nowhere, has decided to toss his hat into the ring. Twomp is running for everything from President of the college to freshman student council representative. He isn't eligible for any position but it's a free country, isn't it?

Oscar's Platform

Twomp's platform has several solid boards. When elected he will abolish the student council and send its members to concentration camps in South Philadelphia. After that he will burn down the Pie Shop at high noon. (He is now sponsoring a pool which will award $5,000 to the man who guesses the number of survivors.

Twomp will then send a crew of ruffians to the library and have them mix up all the books. A triumphant first day in office will come to a beautiful close with the public hanging of all his opponents in the Mendel Hall parking lot at sundown.

Sweeping reforms in legislation will take place. No student will be allowed to graduate in less than thirteen semesters. Room reservation fees will be raised to thirty dollars, with which Oscar will buy himself a few new automobiles. Tuition and room and board will be doubled, hammocks will replace beds and the food will remain the same. Al profits will go to the Oscar Twomp Foundation for Oscar Twomp.

Twomp for Supreme Wheel

These are a few advantages to be gained by installing Oscar Twomp as Supreme Wheel on campus. In addition, he will poison the water supply and burn all mail. There will be student floggings every hour on the ten minutes past for all violators of Twompian laws.

All these things will be carried out in the spirit of brotherly beneficence. It is something the students need but rarely find.

So when you cast your vote, don't be indifferent, don't be apathetic. Vote for the man who will do the most good for himself. He represents no party, no faction or no elements. The only force behind him is his own burning ambition to rake in as much as possible.

. . . of, by, and for Oscar Twomp

He stands for government of, by, and for Oscar Twomp. He will promise you everything and promise you his promises are worthless.

Once he gets in power, he intends to stay there. There will be no more elections after his ascendency into office. So get to the polls on election day and vote, not once but many times, for that sterling and selfish leader, Oscar Twomp.

Turf & Tinsel Is Successor To Inital '33 Musical Group

Tradition of Stuhldreher And Gill Began In 1933 Carried On By Whelan, Fr. O'Donnell, Noake

By Jim Glavin and Dick Cashman

Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week the latest chapter in the history of one of Villanova College's most active and popular organizations will be written. On those evenings, the Turf and Tinsel Society will present its sixth production, and its fourth since its re-inception on campus four years ago.

"Turf and Tinsel" and "T&T" are well known phrases to any Villanovan. Certainly even the greenest Freshman knows that Turf and Tinsel is the college's musical--comedy group; that the energetic T&T society has climbed the pinnacles of success in the past three years.

"Inside Story"

But, what is the "inside story" on Turf and Tinsel? Who are the figures that make the mechanisms of this organization tick like clockwork? Here's the story.

In the winter of 1933 Turf and Tinsel was first conceived. Mr. Harry Struhldreher, then Coach of Football at Villanova, and Mr. Martin L. Gill, present Alumni Association President, were the "founding fathers." They had as their basic plan the organization of a musical comedy group composed solely of athletes.

BRENINGHOUSE AND WHELAN

Putting Together Words and Music

"Turf and Tinsel" was a most suitable name for the infant group. "Turf" suggested sports, the participants in which composed the greater portion of the club; "Tinsel" refers to those affiliated with any phase of stage activity.

First Directors

Stuhldreher, Gill, Rev. Bernard McConville, O.S.A., first moderator of T&T, Mr. Edward A. Keough, first director, and Miss Helen B. Plaff, handling the dancing, set about for the first production of the new group.

REV. MICHAEL O'DONNELL

Turf and Tinsel Moderator

"Look Who's Here," a two-act musical which satirized big business corporations, was the initial show. A review at the time said of it, "the only musical since 1920 in which no allusion to the depression was made." The show was a ringing success.

Thus, the "braintrust" of the group energetically set about planning the next year's presentation. The aforementioned men and woman, aided by Mr. Raymond Baratta and Mr. Robert Whelan, of whom we will hear more later, outdid even the great accomplishments of their first endeavor in their second try.

'34 Show

"Let's Go Places," the 1934 production, is best described by its director, Mr. Keough. Said the director, "Take a group of athletes, place them in a tropical locality, stir well into this mixture a band or sea pirates and a revolution, then add a spoonful of romance, a few drops of jealousy, flavor with laughter, sprinkle with dancing, and garnish with tuneful melodies, decorate with scenery and costumes—and there you have a musical run festival."

A period of indecision, coupled with a lack of original music, hampered the group for several years after 1934. The turbulent war years completely squelched any continuation of Turf and Tinsel.

The years immediately following World War II witnessed a growing need and demand for a group on campus like the "Turf and Tinsel" of the thirties had been. The call for such an organization was not to go unheeded.

T&T Revitalized

Instrumental in a T&T revitalization movement on campus were Mr. Robert M. Whelan, present Musical Director of Turf and Tinsel and College Athletic Secretary, and Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, O.S.A., present moderator of the group.

"Bob" Whelan

From the priests and lay members of the faculty to the Freshman who stood in line for his Palestra double-header basketball ticket, Robert M. Whelan is "Bob." Popularly known as the "Mr. Chips" of Villanova, Bob Whelan is perhaps the most avid supporter of anything and everything "Villanova." Not one to confine himself to an office and desk in the field house, he can be spotted in the Pie Shoppe, chatting with students in Mendel Hall, and has even been known to be brave enough to partake of student "chow" in the cafeteria.

One of the original directors of the first T&T show in 1933, Bob is the man who "puts the parts together" and "gives the tunes their oomph" for the present Turf and Tinsel group.

Father O'Donnell

Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, O.S.A., took up the "T&T" cause soon after his discharge from the Seabees, whom, incidentally(he is proud to proclaim "won the war."

Financially, it is doubtful if T&T could survive without Father O'Donnell. It is a well known fact to each of his English students that the marks of T&T "boosters" have been known to soar to unequaled heights. Those that don't boost T&T? In his classes there just aren't any.

George Noake

Responsible for the staging of the group's casts and the musical numbers of the show is a man who has become well known on the college campus in recent years. Mr. George Noake, director of Turf and Tinsel, is a man whose work is evident. The preciseness of the dancing choruses of T&T productions is a tribute to the talent of Mr. Noake, a very talented man from Jenkintown, Pa.

"O'Donnell, Whelan and Noake," said one student recently, "put them together and you've got T&T's backbone."

Post-War Shows

Turf and Tinsel has presented three productions in its post-war era under the guidance of the above three men. "John Smith, Esq.," by Messrs. Noake, Whelan, Resnick, O'Donnell, et al., was the 1948 presentation. "Cleo Was A Lady," by Bill Breninghouse followed in 1949, and "Piper-heidsieck, '98" came last year, by Mr. Whelan.

"John Smith, Esquire," was a lampoon on the life of John Smith and Pocahontas.

"Cleo Was a Lady," the 1949 production, was a provocative musical that incorporated the lives of Cleopatra, Mark Anthony and Caesar.

"Piper-heidsieck '98" was a humorous takeoff on a late nineteenth century "artistocratic" Main Line family.

Baccalaureate Ceremonies To Be Held Sunday, June 3rd

Senior Dance Tickets Ready

The annual dinner-dance of the Senior Class will be held Saturday evening, June 2, at the ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel. Tickets for the affair are now on sale in the Pie Shop for $7.50.

Traditionally, the affair has been held on the evening following the Belle Air Ball, but the Class of 1951 chose the June date to provide a final social gathering before graduation.

This innovation will extend the graduation week-end to three days. The Baccalaureate Mass will be held on Sunday, followed by the commencement exercises on Monday morning.

The dinner-dance, as is customary, will be a closed affair; only Seniors may purchase tickets. Table reservations will not be open until May 15 to afford Seniors an oportunity to arrange their parties.

Commencements 11 A. M. Mon. in Open

Ceremonies marking the observance of the 108th annual commencement exercises of Villanova College will begin, as is traditional, on the first Sunday of June.

Mass On Sunday

The baccalaurate Solemn Mass will be celebrated by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, college President, at 10 A. M., June 3, in the Field House. He will be assisted by Rev. Edward B. McKee, vice-president, and Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, Dean.

Commencements

Final commencement exercises are scheduled to take place the following morning at 11 A. M. on the lawn in front of the College Library. This program will be highlighted by the presentation of honorary degrees to four distinguished guests.

421 to Graduate

Following these awards will be an address by the main speaker and the presentation of diplomas to the four hundred and twenty-two graduating seniors.

Twenty-one men will be commissioned in the U. S. Navy and the U. S. Marine Corps during this exercise, following their four years of study in the N. R. O. T. C. program.

In Case of Rain

In the event of inclement weather, the exercises will be moved indoors to the Field House. There will be no limit placed on the number of guests who may attend.

T&T Student Tix

A special Students' Night will be offered by the Turf and Tinsel Society Thursday evening, for the first performance of "Pardon the Expression."

Student tickets for the special night will be priced at $.75. Students may obtain two tickets each at this price, so that if they desire they may bring their dates at the reduced price.

All other performances, Friday and Saturday, will have the regular student admission price of $1, and each student may also obtain only two at this price.

Anthony Tranelli Chosen As Sanctuary Society's Leader

Group Holds Annual Vote for Officers

Anthony Tranelli, a C&F Junior, took over duties of president of the Sanctuary Society May 7, following his election at the last meeting of the organization for the present school year.

Election results at the meeting also named William Noonan, vice-president, Robert Hogan, secretary, and George McGoldrick, Student Council representative.

All the new officers took over their appointments at once, and will serve for the remainder of this year in addition to all of next year.

Closing the year's activities for the group, Rev. E. T. Grimes, O.S.A., moderator, thanked Sanctuary members for their loyalty and help at all College religious functions throughout the year. David Anthony, who will receive his B.A. at graduation in a few weeks, is the society's retiring president.

Study Travel Council Schedules Sailings

More than 1400 students and teachers have been assigned space on the student ships sailing to Europe this summer under the auspices of the Council on Student Travel, it was announced last Wednesday. These include members of groups as well as individuals.

Among the organizations which have reserved space on the Council's Ships are the Boston University School of Education, the Scandanavian Traveling Seminar and the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society.

After a nine-day voyage, student ship passengers will disembark at LeHavre, Southhampton or Bremerhaven, and from there they will scatter throughout the British Isles, Europe and the Middle East.

Pardon Our Mistake...

JAMES L. HENRY

The Right One This Time

If you haven't any idea why the editors of this paper have been slinking about the campus all week, faces buried in coat collars, here's a clue.

On page eight of last week's edition there was a mistake, the likes of which make editors' hair turn gray.

The picture accompanying the story of Mr. James Henry leaving the faculty was accompanied by a picture of Mr. Henry, but the Mr. William Henry of the picture was not the Mr. James Henry of the story.

Rather than explain how the mix-up occurred in the VILLANOVAN'S dusty files, we'll apologize to both men, wish Mr. James Henry success in his new appointment with the Warner Company, and hope for many more years of faithful service from Mr. William Henry on the Villanova faculty.

Accounting Group Lists 3rd Dinner

Tomorrow evening, May 16, at 6:30, the Accounting Society will stage its third annual dinner at the Drexelbrook Inn.

The program has been planned and will feature addresses by Mr. George Harrison, CPA, Mr. Joseph Lester, CPA and Mr. Joseph Furdham, CPA. These three gentlemen have all spoken to the group in previous meetings this year and have accepted invitations to address the group at its annual dinner.

Another feature of the program will be the honoring of a faculty member and also of an outstanding student to be announced at the dinner by John Ervin, President of the Society.

Mr. Joseph Linsalata, Moderator of the group will announce the results of society elections, held last Thursday and install the newly elected officers.

All Accounting majors are urged to attend as this will be the last function of the year for the society and possibly the last opportunity for the present members to meet in a group.

In addition to Ervin, officers of the society are John Gounis, Vice President; Albert Hevey, Secretary; William O'Brien, Treasurer; and James O'Keefe, Librarian.

Time Out for Music in College Library

IN LIBRARY MUSIC ROOM several students take advantage of the recorded music collection recently added to the facilities of the College Library.

Response to the new service, according to Library officers, has been "encouragingly satisfactory" during the first month of its operation.

Originally begun on a trial basis, circulation of the records has met with sufficient student response to make library officials plan for addition of the service as a permanent feature next year.

Available to Students

As the program is now in operation, facilities of the record collection and the Music Room are available for student use during regular library hours.

The collection now includes albums of classical and lighter recordings. Albums are listed in a separate drawer of the card catalog, and can be checked out at the Circulation Desk for use in the Music Room.

Although the present collection is still below one hundred albums, donations are increasing the number.

Moskal's Double Beats NYU In 11th, 5-4 Dual Track Meet Goes To Seton Hall

Four New Marks Set as Pirates Sink Cindermen

Four new Villanova College Stadium records, along with double victories by three men, two of them from Villanova, created the big news at the Villanova-Seton Hall track meet, held last Wednesday at the college stadium. Despite the two double wins the Mainline runners fell prey to the Pirates 80-51.

Wildcats Win Six

Villanova won six of the events on the fifteen contest card and four of the six came from two men. Cummin Clancy extended his winning streak in the discus going to three. His winning heave of 154 feet, 4 inches created a new stadium record and eclipsed Manhattan's Johnny Ogie's mark by more than three feet. Cummin also took the honors in the 16-lb. shot.

Fred Dwyer, who is swiftly developing into one of the East's best milers scored another double by beating John Joe Barry in the mile run, and then came back to take the 880-yard run. The mile victory was only a matter of choice as Dwyer and Barry jogged home practically holding hands for the last half-lap.

Stanfield Sets Furlong Mark

Seton Hall supplied the other record-breaking performances in the afternoon's interesting meet. Andy Stanfield, the real successor to Jesse Owens, broke his own record in the 220 and just missed another in the 100. Morris Curotta, the Australian Olympic man, shaved more than a half second off the record in the quarter-mile with a 48:6 winning try. Matt O'Gorman wrote a new standard in the high jump with a jump of 6 feet 4 inches. Stanfield also won the 160-yard low hurdles.

Villanova acquired a pile of second place finishes. Tom Irish was second in the 100, Jim Reardon was second in the 440, Bob Ruggiero in the shot and Marty Panzner in the high jump. Ruggiero also won the javelin.

Barry Wins

John Joe Barry, repeating his performance of the Manhattan weekend, won the two-mile run in a hotly contested battle. He and Don Shanks of the Pirates ran the last half-lap together, and until Barry opened up with a tremendous sprint about eighty yards from the tape the contest was in doubt. The time for the race was 9:54:5.

The cindermen will face NYU at New York this Saturday in their last dual meet of the season. The 'Cats will face a power packed squad in the Vloets in this ,their last tune up before the IC-4A championships.

"Miss Jones," said the Columbia science professor, "would you care to tell the class what happens when a body is immersed in water?"

"Sure," said Miss Jones. "The telephone rings."

Liniment Derby Again Goes To Frosh Forces

By Ted Sheehan

Every one of the ten existing records were broken in the Second Annual Intramural Track and Field Championships held last Thursday at the College Field. The freshman led throughout the whole affair and finally won by almost thirty points in the final team score.

Frosh Squash Opponents

The yearlings, tutored by George Thompson, compiled 59 points to far out-distance their former tormenters, the sophomores. The second year men, who had Cummin Clancey as their coach, were just able to beat out the juniors by one point, 30½ to 29½. It took the final event of the meet to decide who would get second-place honors. The seniors, under Jim McKenna finished last with 11 points.

Mike Quinn, a strapping freshman, broke the existing javelin record by almost thirty feet with a toss of 165½ feet. Second was Pancho Melconian, sophomore, third was Bob Callahan and fourth was Frank Rehak.

Huzar Wins Shot

The shot put was taken by John Huzvar, a freshman, with a 41 foot, 10 inch try. Pete D'Alonzo and Rehak were second and third, respectively. Mike Quinn was fourth.

Jack Lewis was first in the high jump followed by Ward Welsh. Both are freshmen. The broad jump was won by Pancho Melconian, a sophomore, and Bud Holland was second. Jim Brown was third. The shot and high jump winners both added four inches apiece to the existing records, while the broad jump standard was increased 15 inches.

Final Race Decides

The final standings in the meet were not decided until the completion of the last event, the 880-yard relay. The freshmen team, composed of Thomas, Hayes, Heller and Addiego, conquered the junior squad of Guthrie, Van deBergne, Liotta and Mergens in a close race that wasn't decided until the last three yards. The senior quartet of Scanlon, Cooney, Gerrity and McDonough was third. This second place finish for the sophomores gave them the necessary point they needed.

In the program's only other relay, the 440, the same junior team that was second in the half-mile relay took the honors. The race was highlighted by a "sparkling" 110-yard prance by a boy named Nick Liotta. Nick shows great promise in this event and if he isn't busy next fall with the tennis team he has pledged to give the track team a try.

Second in this event was the freshman team of Huzvar, Spencer, Spear and Lewis. Third was the sophomore group of Mattan, McLaughlin, Davis and Scullen. The seniors were fourth

Addiego Sets Record

However, it is in the individual events that the afternoon's most interesting races were held. In the 100 yards, Ben Addiego shaved two-tenths of a second off the existing 10.7 record. Junior Joe Rilo was second and "Torch" Scullen was third, followed by Jim Moore.

Dick Van de Berghe, who along with another Intramuraler, Jim Guthrie, was co-captain of the Brooklyn Prep track team, won the 220-yard dash in a fine race. Scullen finished behind Dick. Thomas and Collins were third and fourth, respectively. Van de Berghe also shaved two-tenths of a second off the existing record.

Wright Relieves To Gain Mainliners' Ninth Victory

Third Sacker's Bases-Loaded Bingle Comes After Violets Take 4-3 Lead

By George Scanlon

A bases-loaded double by Villanova's Benny Moskal in the 11th inning gave the Mainliners a well earned 5-4 win over New York University.

The hustling third sacker, who also collected two more hits, brought Vilanova's season log to a 9-5 count.

With Jack Watson on the hill, the Cats played steady ball and the Violets could not score until the seventh. Villanova made its first tally in the second when Red Wright, Tommy Jones and Moskal all singled.

In the sixth inning catcher Jack Jamison doubled to left and scored on a passed ball giving the Blue and White a 2-0 lead.

The Violets countered their first talley in the top of the seventh. In the top of the eighth Watson lost control and the New Yorkers tied the game. Violet chucker, John Kuharetz, led off with a single and Watson walked the next three men to force in a run. At this stage Wright came in from left field to retire the next two men on infield pop-ups.

Extra Innings

The contest went into extra innings and in the tenth, with Wright still on the mount for the Wildcats, N. Y. U. scored what looked like the winning run. Charley Grace, the Violets' left fielder, lashed a long drive to left center and circuted the bases easily beating the relay.

Maurer Doubles

The Violet lead was short-lived as Bobby Maurer, the Cats' leading hitter, doubled to left and scored on a costly two base error to knot the count, 3-3.

The New Yorkers were determined to win this one and in the top of the 11th Bob Clayton led on with a double. Pete Brown and Joe Totaro then bunted safely to score a run. Again Wright bore down to retire the side without further damage.

Moskel Hits

Red Wright, proving his versatility, led off the eleventh with a clean single to left. First baseman Walt Hauck contributed an infield single and converted flychaser Tommy Jones singled to right to load the bases. On the first pitch Moskal lined a drive to right-center and Wright and Hauck scored the winning runs ahead of the desperate throw to the plate.

Coach Art Mahan's chargers are improving with every game and Saturday's performance was the Mainliners smoothest to date. The fourteen hits the Cats collected at the expense of Violet pitching indicate that the hitters have found the range, and the Watson-Wright mound combo are continuing to give the steady pitching necessary for a winning season.

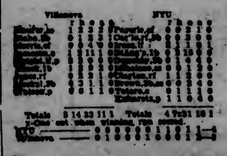
Tossers Topple Drexel, Sailors In Midweek Games

The Villanova nine got back into the win column last week by registering an easy win over Drexel on Monday and slaughtering the Lakehurst NAS club two days later.

Paced by the four-hit pitching of Jim Wright and a 12 hit attack the Wildcats made short work of the Drexel Dragons, 8-1. The Ole Redhead chalked up his fourth win against one loss and his third straight triumph. He struck out 11, walked two, and hit two batters.

Had it not been for an error in the ninth Wright would have had a shutout. Drexel scored its lone run in this inning while the Wildcats spread their's over four stanzas.

Jack Morris and Walt Hauck were the offensive heroes with three hits apiece.



Lakehurst Downed, 25-0

The Lakehurst nine fell victim to a merciless slaughter on the part of the Main Liners which accounted for 24 hits and 25 runs.

With John Watson hurling a one hit shutout it almost looked like a ball game with the locals on top, 6-0, at the end of five. But an explosion of 10 runs in the sixth and 9 in the seventh caused the affair to lose all semblance of a baseball game and look more like a parade of Lakehurst sailors to the showers.

Mahan cleared the bench for the first time this season and even allowed two other pitchers to share the chores with Watson. Bob Maurer, currently pacing the Wildcat batters, plastered the oppositions' pitchers for six hits in as many trips.

At the completion of fourteen games the Main Liners had a record of nine wins and five losses. Converted catcher Jim Wright leads the chuckers with 4 and one while John Watson has five wins and four losses.

JACK JAMISON

BY BILL FARRELL

JACK, A TWENTY YEAR OLD SENIOR, IS AN AUGUSTINIAN STUDENT ALL THE WAY— HE GRADUATED FROM THE AUGUSTINIAN ACADAMEY ON STATEN ISLAND IN 1947 AND HE EXPECTS TO GRADUATE FROM VILLANOVA THIS JUNE WITH AN ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING DEGREE— JACK IS AN EXTREMELY VERSATILE PLAYER— HE IS A CAPABLE OUTFIELDER AND A SPLENDID CATCHER— HE IS ALSO ONE OF THE HEAVIEST HITTERS ON THE TEAM AND BATS IN THE CLEANUP SPOT—

JACK HAS HAD MANY AWARDS FOR HIS FINE PLAY-- HE WAS VOTED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN THE STATEN ISLAND HIGH SCHOOL LEAGUE IN 1946 AND 1947 -- HE WAS ALL-METROPOLITAN IN N.Y.C. IN 1947 ---

JACKS OUTSTANDING THRILL IN SPORTS CAME IN THE ALL-STAR GAME BETWEEN N.Y.C. AND JERSEY CITY HIGH SCHOOL PLAYERS IN 1946 WHEN HE HIT 2 HOME RUNS ---

Jamison and Moskal Leave Diamond This Year

Next year, when Coach Art Mahan makes up his roster for the coming season, he will not have to start exactly from scratch. However there will be large voids to fill, two of which will be catcher and third base. Nor will it be an easy task to replace two consistent three-year performers, Jack Jamison and Benny Moskal.

Jameson will be probably the hardest to replace for he handles the arduous duties behind the plate. Over the last two years Jack has been ably abetted at his post by the Cats ace utility man, Red Wright. However when Wright had to assume pitching duties this year, Coach Mahan turned over the whole department to Jameson. In addition he spotted him at the clean-up post inthe batting order. It was a heavy dual responsibility for the twentyone year old catcher to assume and, as indicated by the squads record, he shouldered it in the true style of an "old pro."

Jack came to Villanova four years ago from the Augustinian Academy on Staten Island, N. Y. He had caught there for four years and had attracted sufficient attention to compete with the Staten Island High School All-Stars and with the leading independent teams on the Island. The big league scouts were barking at the door of the Jameson homestead but Jack wisely choose Villanova and, after a year of apprenticeship, took over the regular catching duties in his sophomore year.

There never was any doubt of Jameson's capabilities. His heavy bat alone was enough to guarantee his success. Last year he batted a lusty .320. This year the average dropped a little but this is understandable, considering the added responsibilities an dthe fact that he is up there to hit the long ball. This he does with regularity and also with pleasure. The proudest moment of his baseball career occurred at Providence College in Rhode Island, last year when he belted that dream of all hitters, a grand slam home run.

During the last three summers Jack has augmented his income by working up in New England while playing ball in the Halifax District and Down East Leagues. Upon graduation in June he expects to work for the General Electric Corporation. Considering the fact that he is an honor student in Electrical Engineering, heis certainly G. E.'s gain but doesn't the Army need some good catchers?

Sharing the spotlight this week is another E. E., third baseman Benny Moskel. During the previous two seasons this ball o ffire alternated between shortstop and third. This year he planted his spikes on third for good and, with aggressiveness and competance, has filled the bill admirably.

Benny hails out of Carteret, New Jersey, and played high school ball for St. Mary's in Perth Amboy. After high school the Army sent out its call and Ben donned two uniforms; one, the familiar khaki for a tour of duty in the Philippines, and the other, a baseball uniform for Ft. McClellan where he played the infield for a season.

On his discharge Benny matriculated to Villanova and joined the regular infield at the beginning of the 1949 season. He played well during the next two seasons in which Villanova was hampered not only with a mediocre squad but also with very poor weather. This year the Wildcats, the weather and Benny have all come into their own. After a slow start he really began to pound the ball and now is right around the .300 mark. In addition the extra-base hits are catipulting off the Moskel bat with more frequency.

Benny had probably his greatest day against N. Y. U. last Saturday. He collected three hits, two of them doubles. The last mentioned of these came in the eleventh inning with the bases loaded and gave the battling Mainliners a 5-4 victory over one of the East's superior teams. The stocky blond was mobbed by his teammates who will never forget the clutch playing of their departing third - sacker. From Villanova Benny expects to go into industry and at present is milling over lucrative offers from various engineer firms. One which also needs a good third baseman will probably get his call.

Close Finish In I-M 880-Yd. Run.

PICK THE WINNER? Jim Nugent and George Eberle strain for the tape in the half-mile run. Both freshmen, they ran abreast for the last hundred yards. Nugent finally was the winner by a half-yard margin. They continued their rivalry in the quarter-mile run and Eberle defeated Nugent by a wide margin in that race. Nugent's time for the half was 2:12:5.

LINIMENT DERBY AGAIN GOES TO FROSH FORCES

Eberle and Nugent Vie

The big individunal rivalry of the aftrenoon was between two freshmen, George Eberle and Jim Nugent. Eberle was running with an infected tooth and a half-hour before he ran he had to take a big dose of penicillin. (He wasn't disqualified for being "doped up").

Nugent took the half-mile run in a very close race with Eberle inches behind him. Gillman, a sophomore was third and Dave Maynes was fourth. Both Nugent and Eberle broke the old record and Nugent was clocked in 2:12:5, eight seconds faster than last year.

Eberle broke into the winning column by taking first place in the quarter-mile dash. Davis, Nugent and Konesky followed in that order. Eberle clipped nearly two seconds from the old record of 57.9.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 20...THE BALTIMORE ORIOLE

Clean-up man on the baseball nine, this slugger doesn't like to reach for 'em . . . wants it right over the plate.

And that's the way he likes his proof of cigarette mildness! No razzle-dazzle "quick-puff" tests for him. No one-whiff, one-puff experiments.

There's one test, he's discovered, that's right down the alley!

It's the test that proves what cigarette mildness really means.

THE SENSIBLE TEST . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke—on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis.

After you've enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why . . .

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

politicking will engulf the campus in the meantime.

Pie Shop "Hit"

As usual, the Pie Shoppe was a favorite target of office aspirants. The unofficial "headquarters" of every hungry Villanova student was quite literally plastered from its deepest recesses to its front.

Inevitable confusion reigned all throughout yesterday as initial campaigning got under way. In contrast to the mass confusion, the Student Council promised an orderly and well-disciplined election.

Scholars to Meet Here May 19, 20

Villanova College plays host to a distinguished group of scholars on May 19 and 20 when the Catholic Commission on Intellectual and Cultural Affairs meets here for its Sixth Annual Conference. The general topic for discussion is to be "Catholic Participation in the Intellectual Movements of Today."

Scholars From Entire Nation

The Commission, comprised of a representative cross section of some two hundred intellectual and cultural leaders from all over the country, was organized five years ago by Reverend Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., a former president of Villanova, at the request of the Administrative Board of the American Catholic Hierarchy. Father Stanford continues to serve the Commission as its Executive Director.

Villanova College is one of the "founding" institutions which have provided financial assistance to the Commission. Last year the Commission met at Fordham University and the year previously at St. Louis University, also "founding" institutions.

Seniors End Year At Dinner-Dance

Graduation Weekend Date of Social at Ben Franklin

A final phase in the history of the Class of 1951 will be presented on June 2nd. On that date, the annual Senior Dinner-Dance will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Ben Franklin Hotel.

In past years this affair was held the evening after the Belle Air Ball. These socials were usually held in January by the graduating class.

Last Social Meeting

However, it was decided that holding this dinner-dance at a later date would afford the Senior Class an opportunity for a last social meeting before graduation.

Co-Chairmen for the occasion are William Gormley and Larry Gallen. Both men anticipate a

Voting Strong At Elections

Brennan Is Elected by Junior Class

Philip A. Brennan, Paul J. Sollami, and William J. Brown won the presidential positions on the Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman classes during spirited class elections last Thursday that drew 67% of the Villanova student body to the polls, the largest turnout on record.

A total of 1076 out of a possible 1611 eligible student voters cast their ballots in Alumni gym after six days of political campaigning that littered the campus with posters and ended in a blaring four and a half hour session of College electioneering.

Polls Crowded

Under Student Council direction, elections began at 10:30 a. m. Thursday morning. Using everything from free sticks of gum to party bulletins encouraging the voters, hopeful candidates crowded around the entrance to Alumni hall, that had already been recorated to overflowing with last-call banners and placards.

Loudspeakers Add Effect

Four blaring loudspeakers, operating simultaneously at one time during the height of the election, added more of a carnival than electoral effect to the spirited campaign climax.

Commenting on this year's elections, Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., moderator of student activities, stated that "the spirit shown by the students is encouraging, certainly a good sign of success in our activities next year."

Brennan Unanimous Choice

Philip A. Brennan, chairman of this year's Junior Prom, was swept into office of Class of '52 president by polling 183 of a possible 331 votes in the four-way race for this post.

Looking Back

With this issue we mark the end of another academic year. Certainly it was not an ordinary year at college. Gathering war clouds on the international scene brought many new problems to students. Yet despite these problems this Main Line College experienced many happy and memorable events. In the field of sports and at social affairs marks were set that will be looked back on with pride by future men of Villanova.

The largest part of the student body, however, is eager to be done with examinations and papers, and with well-laid plans face a three month respite. Those getting ready to graduate are already looking back over four years of memories.

Whether four years or one the time has slipped by more quickly than seemed likely.

Even the task of putting out a paper each week through the year has now ended. With a certain amount of reluctance some of us must leave the school, the paper and friends to whom we have become quite accustomed during the years. From each we have gathered a certain amount of knowledge and wisdom which we will carry always.

To all those who worked so that the paper would improve with each passing week we owe an irreparable debt of gratitude. Many succeed us in jobs as editors after their invaluable assistance during the year. To these we offer sincere prayers in publishing an even better VILLANOVAN.

Although he was born on Prince Edward Island, Father claims Lawrence, Massachussetts as his home, since his parents moved there while he was very young. After two years at St. John's Prep in Danvers, Massachusetts, John Crawford, entered Villanova Prep. He graduated to the college in 1917, and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Philosophy in 1921.

Ordination

Two years later, on September 23, 1923, he was ordained to the priesthood by the late Bishop Crane of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia. After ordination Father Crawford spent one year in graduate studies at Catholic University, where he was awarded his Master of Arts in Physics.

HEAD OF PHYSICS DEPT., Fr. Crawford was the man whose teaching ability and extra help pulled students through one of College's toughest courses. He leaves for Merrimac at end of semester.

His Return to Villanova

In 1924 Father Crawford came to Villanova as a teacher. He remained here until 1933 when he entered the School of Advanced Studies at Johns Hopkins University. However, because of a pressing need for his services here, Father Crawford was unable to complete the work towards his doctorate. He was awarded an A.M. degree and returned to Villanova, where he has served as Head of the Physics Department until now.

Extra Curricuars

Father Crawford has an impressive record in extra-curricular activities on campus. He was Athletic Director from 1929 to 1933, during which period intra-mural athletics began at Villanova. Father was moderator of the Belle-Air, the Villanova yearbook, for a seven year stretch from 1926 to 1933. He has also been moderator of the Physics Club since its organization in 1931.

Two Great Fires

In his years at Villanova, Father Crawford has seen many of the events generally acknowledged as especially noteworthy. Included among thees are the fires which razed College Hall (replaced by Mendel) in 1928, and that which swept the monastery in 1932.

His Personality

Personally; Father Crawford is characterized by his consistant smile and his easy going acuteness. He seems to have mastered the art of getting things done with no fuss or bother, so that it appears almost as though the things are doing themselves. This ability, coupled with his keeness of observation and general awareness of things, seems to suit him well for his position as Dean of a new Engineering School.

Wishing Him the Best

To Father Crawford Villanova owes a debt of gratitude beyond repayment, and to him it extends the very best of its wishes for success in his new position.

Success Stories Sometimes Only Apparently Successful

By Jim Griffin

"I have measured out my life with coffee spoons . . . "
—T. S. Eliot

He was sitting at the bar with a cigarette in his hand. A piece of ash fell on the slate grey suit he wore, but he didn't bother to brush it off . . . He kept on talking.

"... So what's the use..."

Successful

He looked totally dejected, and yet he should have been more nearly exuberant. He had been rambling on for fifteen minutes from the beginning of his story right up to its peak, through his college days, his first working days, his major good fortunes and his minor bad ones. For that was his career; a series of major good fortunes and minor bad ones. But his comment on it all: "...so what's the use..."

The Details

I could fill in the details of the story myself, the false handshakes that he must have poured his soul into, the banquets and the cocktail parties which he must have abhorred. For he was a man into whom the sense of futility struck deeply, and painfully.

He had set his sights while young, on the thing that he valued most: success — in business and society. And he had struggled unflaggingly after it.

Minor Disappointments

Undoubtedly some of his minor disappointments had been the anti-climaxes he found in achieving goals which his anticipation had embellished and defied. But he was a tenacious fellow, and minor disappointments had fazed him but little . . . previously.

Head On

But that night, for a while at least, he was facing it head on—all spread out before him. He was realizing and admitting that the task into which he had poured his personality and his life had a hollow note from the past that he hadn't noticed when it was still in the future.

A Different Story

It was drumming through my mind what a different story his would have been if his plan had been integrated with another item: motive, worth the while. Then it would have mattered but little to him whether his success was its own reward or not, or whether it was failure, since even a failure is of value in the life of a man determined to serve God as God would have him serve. For motive is a miraculous word when it means for the love of God. It puts a house-painter on a par with Michelangelo, and an absence of it tears gaping holes of futility in the best of careers . . . as it had in his.

Still . . .

But when I looked up he had gone. I saw him by the door, and as he passed an acquaintance I saw him reach out and shake hands, smiling broadly. The cavern had closed, he was himself again. But down deep inside him there was still that hollow voice, telling him how useless it all was, how totally void, how futile . . .

Exchange Student Opens Home to All Villanovans

Editor's Note—Hubert Blaesi is a German exchange student who spent the last year here as a Villanovan. During that time, he made many friends on campus, and was a regular member of both the Glee Club and the Schola Cantorium. Anything that Villanova has done for Hubert has certainly been worth the while, and for his loyalty during his stay here Villanova also has only one word: Thanks.

Fellow Villanovans:

Before I leave Villanova at the end of this semester to return to Germany, I would like to say "Goodbye" to everybody I have met here. The memories I will take back with me I shall always treasure. There is only one word which seems appropriate to me in this place: Thanks. Thanks for everything.

Since it is well possible that some of you will be coming to Europe and to Germany, be it as tourist or in the army, I leave my address with you in the following, in the hope that some day some Villanovan finds his way into my home. If there is anything else you would like to know or hear about Germany, please feel free to write me any time.

Brown Elected By Freshmen

Ex-Lieutenant Polls Over Half of Votes

Bill Brown, 26 year old Electrical Engineering student, led most of his United Students Party into office in the Freshman elections last Thursday. Out of a possible 542 Freshman, 351, or 69%, voted the largest turnout ever recorded.

Joseph Kenny, an Arts Resident, and Charles Pearson, a C&F Day Hop, were elected Vice-President and Secretary respectively with this party. Joseph Bradley, also C&F, was chosen Treasurer.

Tom Kern, Charles McGuckin, and George Eberle are the new Frosh Student Council representatives.

Brown, an ex-lieutenant in the Army, beat Bill Rooney, an ex-sergeant, his closest rival by 45 votes, 150-105. Kenny scored late to beat Art Quinn, 111-97, and Pearson maintained his lead throughout, beating Ed Barry, 132-113. In a close race undecided until the final count, Joe Bradley, with 97 votes, beat Hank Lavery and Don Miller by 4 and 7 votes respectively.

Kern, a Physics Major, polled votes for the second highest Freshman total of the day. C&Fers McGuckin and Eberle, 116 and 111, led the other 14 Student Council canidates by a safe margin.

Brown is a resident of Wollaston, Mass. He attended Newton High School in Newton, Mass. In the army he rose to the rank of first lieutenant before his discharge. He is attending Villanova on the G. I. Bill.

At the end of the election Brown thanked his party and his supporters. "We'll try to live up to the confidence you have placed in us by bringing success to our Sophomore year," he said.

Graduate Still Perplexed Pleads Good Intentions

By Bill Brenninghouse

Out into the cruel, cruel world must go Oscar Twomp. Gone are his gay college days. He is one of the old timers who has been trudging about the campus since the library was a hole in the ground and the Pie Shop was a musty sub-sub-cellar in Mendel Hall.

Of course there are others who spent many more years carousing around the campus green than our Oscar but they have usually become embittered by their experiences. Oscar is still the happy-go-lucky fuzzy faced kid that first set foot into the mud of the campus with joy in his heart and ideals in his head.

Oscar Leaves Puzzled

For four years Oscar looked around himself, observed, and contemplated. Never was he known to gripe about the food, the administration, or the system. His was the faith of an innocent child and everything was always right. Several things, however, mystified him and still remain unanswered.

First, who sold the snow fences to the school? There, indeed was a salesman. This place needs snow fences like it needs a Karl Marx Klub. Their only purpose has been to trip up a few leaping freshmen each year. Now if they had bought some mud fences . . .

Another mystery to Oscar was the man in the brown overcoat who prowled about the campus parking lots. He never said anything or took numbers (license numbers, that is) but all automobile drivers lived in dire dread of him. Rumor had it that he held a controlling interest in a certain local garage that specializes in towing services.

Cement the Area

Who has not wondered why this campus has such an affinity for mud. All that is needed is a heavy dew and the place becomes a quagmire (from the French, meaning "quite muddy"). Many months of careful investigation only deepened the mystery and the only answer is to cement the whole campus.

Oscar wonders why the editor of this paper insists on writing editorials on nature. The annual tribute to Fall is most annoying. Perhaps an ode to Spring will appear this week or then again a preview of summer.

Crusading For Laughs

These mysteries must remain unanswered for Oscar is about to fade away. To him, the biggest mystery of all has been his loyal fans. They read about his adventures week after week and show no outward signs of pain. There is no mystery to the critical razz that greets poor Oscar's antics on Tuesday mornings, but every chuckle that manages to sneak through the other noise is hard to understand for Osc sometimes is in a rut.

When Oscar has finally faded away those chuckles will be all he cares to remember, because they were all he has been trying for. It is true that from time to time old Twomp has been a cynical misogynist, or a crusader for something or other, but he just wanted to make people laugh.

Juniors Choose Brennan, Briggs For Class Office

Going into senior year offices with Brennan are two of his Student Action Party running mates, C. Donald Briggs, Vice-president; and Stanley J. Karminski as Treasurer.

Kevin F. McCrane, who served as Class treasurer in Sophomore year, gained appointment to the office of Secretary and John Thompson was elected Alumni Representative by a large margin.

Conklin By Landslide

In the voting for Senior year Student Council representatives John Conklin, chairman of Junior Week Mother's Day, tallied the most one-sided vote of the day by earning a 203 vote majority in the Engineering school.

Paul Pirhalla, Junior ring committee chairman, won the race for C&F Council representative, while George L. McGoldrick in Arts and Joseph Till in Education completed the slate.

In a campaign hampered by difficulty to get for nominees the customary approval of the College administration, the Class of '52 kept up much of the spirit shown throughout its successful Junior year.

Active Year Planned

Brennan, the newly-elected President, based his campaign on the promise to carry over Junior year success to the Senior year. Completely satisfied at the spirit of the class during the elections, he expressed confidence in his Class to support the active Senior year the new officers are planning.

As his first official act after the elections last Thursday, Brennan issued a statement thanking Junior year president Tom Pasha for his work in leading the class through a successful Junior Week, and stating, "I hope I can live up to the precedent he has set."

The newly-elected president is an accounting major, from West Hempstead, N. Y.

'Expression' New T&T Hit

"Jessica James" To Be Name Of '52 Show

Turf and Tinsel tried something new on campus last week, and if you'll "Pardon the Expression," added another success to the T&T tradition.

Entitled with the name quoted above, the show was a musical revue ,tried this year instead of the usual musical comedy. Billed as "an original musical comedy with music and lyrics by Bob Whelan," "Expression" was produced by George Noake.

It combined the old standby — "something old," a nostalgic "Memory Lane" number; "something new," skits by Villanova students and Whelan's music; and "something borrowed", dazzling set decorations that almost stole the show for themselves.

Next year's show, as announced in the closing "It's Been Nice" number, will be entitled, "Jessica James."

Class of 1953 Picks Sollami

President Re-elected by Large Margin

The class of 1953 returned Paul Sollami to the presidency of the class by a majority of almost forty votes in the class elections, held last Thursday in the Alumni Hall Gym. Over 72% of the sophomores voted in the all-important elections which decided who would guide the class through Junior Week ceremonies next year.

Sollami, an Arts man from Trenton, is now president of the Sophomore class. The race between Paul and Don Blaha was close throughout the first four hours of the balloting, but in the final hour Sollami began to pull away and he finally won by nearly 40 votes. Paul is a graduate of Tenton Central, and is a resident of Good Counsel Hall. Besides performing his duties as president, he is the Student Council represenative for Intramural athletics.

Joseph Ranieri, an engineer, Lawrence O'Hearn of Arts, and Joseph Billera of C&F round out the list of newly elected class officers. Ranieri, a native of nearby Brookline and Billera, a resident of Allentown, Penna., were elected to the offices of Vice-President and Treasurer respectively. O'Hearn collected the largest number of votes of all the candidates in running off with the race for Secretary. Larry is a member of the Arts School and is a resident student from South Orange, N. J.

In the balloting for the four Student Council seats appeared the tightest race and also the only "shoo-in" Bob Quinn a Physics major from Plainfield, N. J., edged out Jude O'Donnel by a vote of 188-175 for the position of Arts representative. Richard Miller of the Education School was a sure bet—he was the only one running from this school. Dick Boehling an Engineer, and Adoph Bergen of C&F, were both elected by a clear majority.

"YOU'RE BEAUTIFUL," sings John O'Hara to Bill Miller, dolled up in furs and frills, for one of the entertaining numbers in T&T's musical revue, "Pardon the Expression".

Alumnus' Mother Donates Library, Honors Hero Son

Mrs. Mary F. Buckley, mother of Lt. Francis E. Buckley, Villanova '42, and her sister Miss E. Gertrude Riley, have recently donated their private library of 300 books to the College library.

More than a third of this collection are Latin and Greek works, which will be the core of a Classics Department office-library distinct from the classics collection of the main library of the college.

Rembrance of Officer

All the books are gifts in memory of Lieutenant Buckley, who was killed in action in Italy in 1944, and was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. He is believed to be the only Villanova graduate to receive this award.

Mrs. Buckley has made several previous donations to the library.

Trackmen Bow To NYU In Season Finale

Violets Outpoint Wildcats While Clancy Doubles

Villanova's track squad wound up its dual meet season last Saturday at New York where they bowed to the Violets of N. Y. U., 86⅔ to 52⅓. The Wildcats took five first places on the sixteen event card, plus a third interest in a three-way pole vault tie.

Big scoring gun for the Mainliners was Cummin Clancy who lowered the boom in both the shot put and discus throw for ten points. His platter heave was 144 feet 10 inches, while he put the sphere 43 feet 6 inches.

Dwyer Does 4:20.4

Best individual performance was turned in by Fred Dwyer who clocked a 4:20.4 mile in spite of the heavy wet track on rain-swept Ohio field.

This was the slender Jerseyite's last tune-up before next Saturday's 1C-4A outdoor championships ,and he came through in great style, defeating Larry Ellis and Old Jupe Pluvius.

Barry Wins Two Mile

John Joe Barry won the two mile in the good time of 9:36.9 to defeat Scott of N. Y. U. Art Klepper was third for the 'Cats in the long grind.

Marty Panczner won the high jump with a 5 feet 8 inch effort and was joined by teammate Ed Coughlin who made it a Villanova one two. In the pole vault Dick Lynn split first place honors with the Violets' McGrath and Stephenson. The height was 11 feet even.

Dick Maiacco of the New Yorkers turned in a very nice 48.2 quarter in one of the day's better times as he defeated Jim Reardon and Jim McKenna. McKenna, who has been on the injured list for the past three weeks, also took second in the 220.

Two Violets Double

Two Violets scored double victories. Les Shulman won the century in 10.2 and the furlong in 22.3. Bob Hatch won the 120 high and 220 low hurdles in 17.3 and 24.7 respectively.

Larry Ellis came back after losing the mile to Dwyer and won the half mile in 1:56.7. Bob Cunjac and Larry Paturzo managed to keep a little balance, however, by taking second and third for Villanova.

I.C.'s Sat. at Franklin Field

Next Friday and Saturday the Villanova thinclads will make their bid for 1C-4A honors at Franklin Field. Leading contenders for the Cats are Fred Dwyer, who will seek the outdoor mile title to complement his indoor crown; Jim McKenna in the quarter mile; John Barry in the two mile; and Cummin Clancy, who will try for the discus gold medal.

JIM "RED" WRIGHT, the versatile Villanovan who returned to the mound staff this year to post a 4-1 season's record. A catcher last year, Wright also toils in the outfield between pitching stints.

Wright Serves as Pitcher Catcher, Fielder For 'Cats

By Jim Gallo

A ballplayer who can be counted upon to pitch, catch, play the outfield and maintain a .390 batting average is the answer to a college coach's dream. And that's just what Jim "Red" Wright has been to Phil Weinert and Art Mahan during Villanova's last three diamond campaigns.

Although the versatile Redead first attracted attention as a backstop, it was no new experience for him when assigned to the mound corps by Coach Weinert in his sophomore year. At Cumberland High School in Valley Falls, Rhode Island, Red also performed dual service, and turned in a no-hitter as a schoolboy.

Last year he gave up his pitching chores and donned the catching gear exclusively. This year, however, he was called upon by Coach Mahan to revert to the delivery end of the battery.

Jim responded by winning four of five starts, beat N. Y. U. in relief, and dropped only his outing against Rutgers. He has also guarded the right field spot on occasion and is currently wielding the willow at a .390 clip to further prove his versatility.

Editors, Four Others Wind Up Sportswriting Careers

By X. Ed. Keats

This last edition of the leading campus weekly affixes the "30" mark to the collegiate journalism careers of six members of the VILLANOVAN sports staff.

The retiring co-editors, Jim Gallo and Bill Cooney, will be replaced by Ted Sheehan, a sophomore transfer from Manhattan College, at the sports desk come September. During the past year, Ted has covered track and baseball with equal facility.

Will Join Select Group

Gallo and Cooney, along with Harry Range who occupied the desk last year, will join the very select circle of "ex-es" which at present includes the not-entirely-forgotten names of Hugh Johnson, Jim Plunkett, Bill Canino, and Ray Keats. Gallo and Cooney will receive commissions in the Navy, while Range will don the garb of 2nd Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps.

Also reaching the goal of all college sportswriters . . . graduation . . . are George Scanlon, Bob Forsyth, and Bill Klucsarits. All three were invaluable to the staff because they could be called upon to pound out copy describing any sports event. Forsyth will become an Ensign, U. S. N., on June 4th; Klucsarits is an Army Reserve; and Scanlon is 1-A.

Military Outfit

All of which goes to show that this year's staff was quite a military outfit. So, to borrow a well-worn but still popular expression, they're all just fading away, dumping all the headaches into the lap of the unsuspecting Ted Sheehan.

ECAC Returns War Ruling Villanova Will Use Frosh

War Personnel Situation Spurs Move — Ivy League Shift Unlikely at Present

By Ted Sheehan

Rev. Edward B. McKee, Director of Athletics, in an exclusive Villanovan interview, stated last Thursday that "Villanova plans to take full advantage of the new Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference ruling and that the school will start using freshmen, starting with the football season."

The ruling which was mentioned was the permission by the E. C. A. C., allowing all schools the use of freshmen on all varsity teams during the coming year.

Enrollment Drop Feared

A mail vote of the ninety-one member group produced a two-thirds majority necessary to pass the ruling. The reason for "this drastic step" was the fear that personnel demands by the armed forces will cause further drops in enrollment.

In doing this the conference enlarged the rule passed last March, which allowed schools with enrollment of less than 1,000 to use freshmen. Now all colleges, regardless of size, are allowed the use of the yearlings.

Father McKee said that the ruling will be used to the advantage of the college and any freshman coming out for next year's football squad will have as much chance to make a position as any of last year's veterans.

It is believed, however, that this ruling will have more effect on such teams as the baseball and track teams rather than it will on the football and basketball squads.

Ivy League Balks

The Ivy League schools have voiced their disapproval of the law and they plan to continue their present status. The Big Ten, Southern, Southeastern, Big Seven and Pacific Coast Conferences have already taken steps to make freshman eligible.

This ruling applies only for the 1951-52 academic year and probably will be voted on again at the end of this time. The ruling is similar to the one that existed during the war years of the 1940's.

Lurking in the background of all the excitement over this ruling for the freshmen is the same question that befuddled this nation's collegiate athletes at the end of World War II; namely, what will constitute four years of varsity competition? This problem was still having its effects a few months ago in the case of the three basketball players from North Carolina State. Sam Ranzino, Paul Horvath and Vic Bubas were barred from competition in the N.C.A.A. basketball tournament because that organization deemed them ineligible for further competition. The unlucky three were playing varsity ball for N. C. State back in 1947, when the war clause was still in effect, and this counted against them.

Penn State Nips Cats, 12-5, With Grand Slammer

Villanova's baseball team, falling prey to a six-run eighth inning, went down to defeat at the hands of a strong Penn State nine. The score was 12-5 and it put the season's record for the Wildcats at nine and six with two games yet to be played.

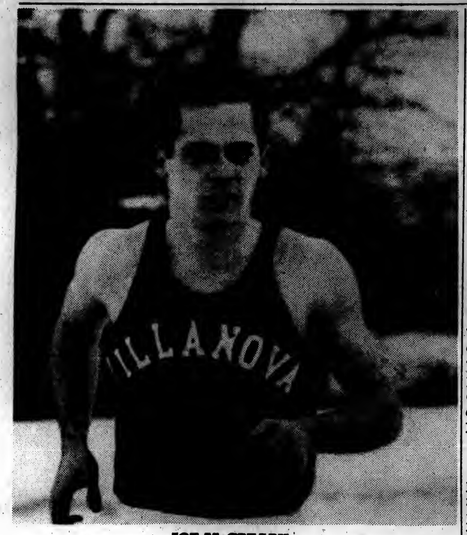
The Mainliners scored two runs in the first frame partly because of the wildness of the State pitcher, Owen Dougherty, but after that the Staters began their scoring parade and at the end of the seventh the score stood at 6-3.

Staters Score Six

It was during this frame that starter Jack Watson was replaced by Jim Wright. Penn State exploded in the eight inning to tally six times before Wright was able to shut the barn door. Four of the six runs came as a result of a grand slam home run by Clarence Buss. Bill Hooper had gotten a two-run homer in the third.

Dougherty ran into trouble in the ninth inning when he loaded the bases with two out. It appeared for a while as if the Wildcats were going to get back in the game but Bill Brown came on and got the final out.

Two Games Left



The baseball team has two more encounters scheduled before the season ends. On tomorrow the team travels to Bethlehem to play the engineers of Lehigh University. On Saturday the season will come to conclusion with a home game with the Pirates of Seton Hall.

JOE McCREARY

McCreary Among the Most Versatile In 'Cat Annals

By Harry Range

It is said that good things always come last, but we feel that there is one personage in the Villanova athletic world who should have been brought into the sportlight many issues ago and given a chance to enjoy some of the honor shared by comparative lesser-lights on the pages of the Villanovan.

He happens to be one of those people who become known as "underrated" through no fault of their own but because they are team men who always turn in an outstanding performance regardless of what the somewhat erratic "stars" do.

This is, of course Joe McCreary, truly one of the most consistent all - round athletes ever to don the Blue and White.

For four years McCreary ran any distance from the 100-yard dash to the half-mile run and could always be counted upon for a much - better - than - average race. Certainly Joe was never the fastest man to put on spikes for Villanova but he was beyond all doubt the most dependable.

He was on the sprint medley team that broke the record in that event for two years in a row and currently holds the world's mark at 1:53.6. In addition to his efforts indoors Joe was equally dependable at both the quarter and the half, outdoors. It was never an unusual sight to see him lead-off the two-mile relay and a half-hour later come back and run the same leg on the mile relay.

Besides his "work horse" position on the boards and cinders Joe also did rather well for himself on the gridiron. To say "rather well" is about as gross an understatement that can be made because for two years he was the hottest thing the Eastern Collegiate 150 Pound Football league had ever seen.

During the 1949 season Joe led the league with nine touchdowns in five games and repeated this performance a year later to become the highest scorer in league history. Fifty-yard touchdown sprees were nothing for Joe who turned homecoming day at Princeon into McCreary Day as he romped into pay dirt four times.

Joe's eligibility expired last January and since that time he has become manager and assistant coach of the track team. The affable West Catholic alumnus is a track bug from the word go and it shouldn't be too surprising someday to find him in a coaching position.

A Navy veteran of three years, Joe graduates this June with the rest of the remnants of the "Old Corps" at Villanova. It is with sincere appreciation that we say thanks to one of the most dependable athletes in Villanova history and wish good-natured Joe McCreary all the luck in the world.

NROTC Rifle and Pistol Teams Win Championships

Villanova's NROTC Rifle and Pistol teams have once again won the Fourth Naval District championship. This makes the third consecutive year for the rifle team and the second for the pistol team. In addition, a member of the pistol team, James Delaney, had the highest individual pistol score in the country.

Championship of the District was awarded to Villanova in view of the high scores that both teams achieved in National competition. Villanova's scores were considerably higher than the six other colleges in the Fourth Naval District.

Third in Nation

In National competition the pistol team ranked third in the nation. Their score was only 12 points below that of the first team. The team is captained by Joseph Friend.

The standing of this team was greatly helped by Delaney with his record score.

Delaney, who is only a Freshman, shot a 283 out of 300. This was nine points above the nearest man, placing him first among all the competitiors from the 52 NROTC colleges in the country. For his outstanding efforts he received the congratulations of the Chief of Naval Personnel. He will also be awarded a silver cup with his name engraved on it.

The rifle team, captained by Frank Haskins, placed sixth out of 87 teams competing.

Graduating Seniors are invited by the Alumni Assoc. to attend the annual "Alumni Reunion Weekend", June 8, 9 and 10. Additional information can be obtained from the Alumni office, Mendel hall.

Intra-Mural Softball

Intra-Mural softball play hit into it's final week yesterday, with two of the four league races virtually decided.

In the Barracks League, the Outlaws have posted a 6-0 record, while the Ramblers lead the quest for the Austin league diadem with a similar record.

In the Mendel League it looks like a close battle between O'Dwyer (3-0) and Fedigan (4-1). The Mendelcases with a 4-2 posting are also a slim possibility.

The Gunners are the only undefeated nine in the National League, but they have played only one game, while the Phutile Phils and the Engineers both have a 3-1 record, and are just as much in the running.

Art School Curriculum To Be Altered Next Term

A minor change in the AB curriculum at Villanova has been announced by Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., Dean of Arts.

Freshmen and Sophomores will hereafter have a basic curriculum and will not select their majors until the termination of their Sophomore years. At present Sophomore History majors take a different History course from other Arts Sophomores.

Arts Faculty Aids

A system of faculty advisers has also been set up by the Dean to assist in the guidance of Freshman and Sophomores in the Arts school. Each AB Freshman and Sophomore will be assigned to an adviser. The positions of advisers will be handled by fifteen members of the Arts faculty.

These advisers will have as their duties the guidance of the students assigned to them throughout their Freshmen and Sophomore years. They will also assist their students in selecting a major for their Junior and Senior years. Present Freshmen in the AB curriculum have already been assigned to a faculty adviser. Incoming Freshmen will be assigned to their advisers on registration day in September.

Present Frosh Affected

Present Arts Sophomores and Juniors will not come under the new system, as it is intended for the guidance merely of Freshmen and Sophomores throughout their first two years, which the upper classmen have already passed; and for the aiding of the student in the selection of a major, which upper classmen will have completed by the end of this semester.

Seton Hall Law Dean Cites Ideas In World's Problems

Dr. Miriam T. Rooney Last Forum Guest

"The present world struggle is not so much one of force as it is one, to a far greater extent, on the spiritual and intellectual level."

Dr. Miriam Theresa Rooney, Dean of the law school of Seton Hall University, and final speaker in the 1950-51 Villanova Forum series, summarized her topic "Human Rights and the Family of Nations" with that statement at the final forum last Tuesday evening.

Three Approaches

The speaker expressed her belief that the topic of "Human Rights and the Family of Nations" could be approached from three views, the historical viewpoint, the view to proposals submitted affecting the problem, and the view that considers the soundness of the proposals submitted in regard to the problem.

Dr. Rooney said that the problem today is caused by the same underlying reasons as it has been for centuries, "the problem caused by suppression of human rights and their obliteration."

Legal Outlook Essential

Emphasizing her view that the present world struggle is primarily on an intellectual plane, Dr. Rooney said that the struggle must, therefore, be won on that level. "The problem that faces us must be carefully analyzed from a legal standpoint before we act upon it," stated the speaker.

A legal thinking and consideration of the problem that faces us on the intellectual level today is essential, the speaker opined, especially with such beliefs prevalent today as "Wrong is no longer to do wrong but rather to get caught doing wrong."

Quotes Text

"Cases and Materials on World Law," a new law text on international law and proposed international law, served as a basis for a major portion of the lecturer's talk. Dr. Rooney quoted freely from this work.

Three Priests Advanced By Changes In Administration

Fr. Burke Named New Registrar

Administrative changes this year have placed three priests in new positions in the college. Effective this term, the new

REV. THOMAS BURKE
New Registrar

Registrar is Rev. Thomas Burke, O.S.A., formerly Assistant Professor of Electrical Engineering.

The new Comptroller of the College is Rev. Edward Quinn, O.S.A. He assumed this position at the end of the Spring term last year but too late to be made note of in the last issue of the Villanovan.

Rev. John Curran, O.S.A., who also assumed his position last Spring, is now the Procurator for the College. This position combines the positions of Purchasing Agent, Grounds Superintendent and Dining Room Supervisor.

Father Burke received his degree in Electrical Engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1933 and his Master's Degree from The Catholic University in 1942. He has been on the Villanova Faculty since that year.

Two '51 Graduates Listed With New Faculty Members

Associated with fifteen new faculty members of Villanova this year are two members of last year's graduating class. They make it a total of seventeen additions to the faculty this year.

Mr. Francis Pitocchelli, an Assistant in the Business Administration Department, and Mrs. Emeric Rockford, Assistant in the Biology Department, are the two Villanova graduates added to the faculty.

Other Additions

Other new members, representing eight seperate departments of the College include: Mr. Ralph D'Iorio, Mr. Donald Glossner and Mr. Edward Sutula, both instructors of Business Administration. Mr. Harry Arader and Mr. Austin Kilcullen are instructors of English.

Mr. Fred Khouri is Assistant Professor of History and the new Instructor of Modern Languages is Mr. Andre Malecot. Assistant Professors of Naval Science are Lt. Anthony DiVito, U.S.N., Lt. Cmdr. Wm. O'Brien, U.S.N., and Lt. Cmdr. Harry Schard, U. S. N.

The Psychology department acquired two new members, Mr. Lester Recktenwald, Assistant Professor, and Mr. Anthony Summo, Instructor. Mr. Frank Metzler is an instructor of Sociology.

Villanova's present faculty now has nineteen less members than last year, which is attributed to the post-war decrease in student enrollment.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—After 36 years of hapless trekking to the plains of West Point, the Villanova College football ttam finally defeated Army. With sophomore Ben Addiego scoring three times, twice on Bill Brannau's passes, the Wildcats downed the Cadets 21-7, last Saturday before a crowd of 17,000 at Michie Stadium.

In this game the Wildcats showed their superiority from the kickoff and weer able to ploy through the woefully weak defenses of the Army eleven almost at will.

Villanova Opens 109th Academic Year; Convocation, Mass Mark First Day

Some 2000 students attended the Solemn High Mass and the academic convocation in the Field House Friday, September 21, as Villanova College formally opened its 109th year.

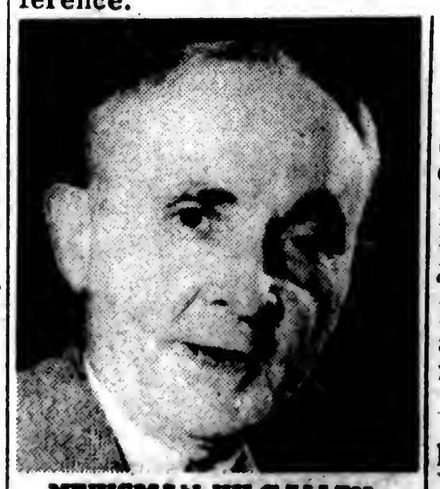
Highlight of the opening ceremonies was the presentation of the honorary degree of Doctor of Naval Science upon George Charles Manning, Professor of Naval Architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

President Celebrates Mass

The Solemn High Mass, celebrated by Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., president was sung by the Seminarians from St. Mary's Hall.

Father McGuire also delivered a welcoming address at the convocation, which was opened by a procession of the faculty.

Most Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., Prior General of the Augustinian Order, along with Father McGuire, conferred the degree to Prof. Manning.



In an acceptance speech, Mr. Manning expressed his thanks upn receiving the honorary degree and noted that at a recent international conference of naval architects which he attended, the professional achievements of those present far outweighed any consideration of national origin.

Here We Go Again

A brand ne wvolume of the paper and a fresh new start of another year. It's the latest lap in our yearly hurdle race, the one that gives higher hurdles as grand prize.

The draft, exams and similar problems may be bothering us now, but it's all part of our basic training for life after college. Which brings us right to the reminder at hand — what to do now to prepare ourselves for this cold, cruel world.

This start of a new year gives a renewed opportunity to make the most of our training. And this year we have been more incentive to make it worth while. We have been lucky enough to return, and now is no time to sit in the academic ivory tower ignoring the rest of the world.

The present job is our education; the goal, service to ourselves and our country and to God. There's no need to beat that idea into anyne's head. We all realize the duty, even though it may tak a little effort to make the good intentions show. But all it takes is that little effort.

Incidentally, we are glad to see that so many have returned, and welcome all the newcomers. The spirit already shown on campus portends a great year in all respects. So let's get started.

More of 'Em

Rallies, that is. Rallies like the one last Thusday night. More men like Carl Koenig, too, who rates as many cheers as he raised at the rally. And while you're at it, a couple for the Bryn Mawr and Merion fire companies who lent the engines that made this rally outstanding. To say nothing of the students who raised the spirit behind a fine team that really did beat the "brimstone" out of Aamy.

Koenig Killers 'Kill' Sly Senior Sleuth

Editor's note—Senior Mascuch, the author of this expose, was given an assignment to "find out the lowdown on this orientation business". Donning a long-unused blue dink, he sallied forth into the arms of Koenig's killers of the Orientation Committee. Here's what happened:

By Joseph Mascuch

My friend had definitely made up his mind. "Joe," he said (he calls me Joe), "you are going to be a Freshman tomorrow!" In a moment of acute weakness, my will power not working too well, I agreed, trying to smile through it all and do my best for realism and the Villanovan. I would once again become an underclassman to study the unique problems facing the orientating Freshman, although I thought the transformation would be easier for a Sophomore.

"KILLER" KOENIG, chmn. of the orientation committee, gives the White Hat treatment to bewildered frosh on Porter. Jim Campbell stands by as model for fall styles among Villanova frosh.

The physical change from Senior to Freshman was amazingly simple. I merely dusted off my old beanie, which I always carry close to my heart, borrowed a button from an unsuspecting Freshman and prepared to face the cruel world. I casually tossed away three years of hard earned dignity and, feeling three years younger, raced out the front door of Fedigan and ran smack into Carl Koenig. "Why," I said as he helped me to my feet, "Imagine running into you." At the time I thought that original remark to be very clever. Carl turned to an accomplice who was carrying a whip and other odds and ends and quietly asked for Koening's Black List.

Carl Turned Cold

"What is your name, Frosh!" "Frosh" annoyed me. I gave some name or other which should keep the Business Office on its toes for a few days and spell doom for the I.B.M. machines. The summer had hardened Carl and he turned an icy stare upon me. I shivered. He looked at my feet. His accomplice looked at my feet. I looked at my feet. They looked at me. I looked at them. My feet again became the center of attraction for us. I looked at Carl's shoes. They weren't shined either. (It was only a true Journalistic spirit and the feeling that I was being "real newspaper," that stopped me from discarding my disguise and calling the whole thing off.)

"Your cuffs, Frosh!" There was no reaction on my part. "Your cuffs!" Suddenly a bell rang. I chuckled, rolled up my cuffs, expressed extreme sorrow at not having my handbook with me and after a lecture on my particular position in society (which, I might add, was not too high). I was permitted to go my way. They had promised me something nice at four-thirty.

Up Three Floors

Past experience should have warned me against passing Alumni Hall, but one forgets a lot in three years as a number of my profs will agree. Ironically, a rather large Sophomore requested that I carry his trunk upstairs and since he had been nice enough to carry mine downe to the barracks last year, I thought it was only fair that I help the fellow out. I suddenly felt six years older, but with the confidence he showed in my ability, I managed to cimb three foors with his wardrobe on my back. I thanked him for letting me be of service and hastily departed.

I was not quite up to Austin Hall when another White Hat, who should have recognized me, even with my beanie on, called attention to my cuffs. They had fallen down. I rolled them up, begged forgiveness and hurried on. Every one of the white hats seemed to know I was coming. One of them asked me if I knew the Alma Mater. I certainly did I told him. And I did, but he made me nervous. I stuttered and stammered. (Two semesters of Public Speaking, shot!) Once again, I was promised something nice for four-thirty.

Dreaded Disease

What was wrong with me? I began to psychoanalyze myself. Where was that Senior spirit. Why was I avoiding people, particularly people with white hats? I found the answer. I had been hurriedly rehabilitated. I was a ground-studier, a glance-avoider. I was befuddled, which was nothing new, and I was suffering from what is called "college daze." In short, I had Freshmanitis.

Four-thirty arrived on schedule and so did my surprise. I learned the ins and outs of musical instruments. The polishing area of the tuba amazed me. I had just put aside my last horn when a white hat containing an ambitious Sophomore drew near. I waited for words of wisdom.

Singing the Song of Love

My musical education was completed in the stadium stands as I sang the Alma Mater with a screaming mass of blue-dinked Freshmen. This went on until I was too exhausted to take notes. After a few tries our volume reached the required strength and we were permitted to leave.

My whole life had been shaken. My nerves were on

Kick The Ball Up The Center; A Little Wobble Can Mean Lots

By Jim Griffin

There is a trend. It is a trend that has been running for years, perhaps even for centuries, but never quite so near to the surface of things as it now seems to be. To those who hold it in high favor, it seems merely to be common sense; a slightly more antagonistic group might label it secularism; its mortal enemies name it what it is; godlessness.

The first and last groups are the clean-cut division, the pros and the cons, the atheists who brazenly deny the very existence of a Supreme Personal Creator, and the men of faith and intellect who see the danger for what it is and choose to fight it.

Drifting Along

Perhaps more of us lie in the middle category: the drifters, the large majority who feel helpless to attempt to stem or turn tides of human thought and action. Perhaps most of us lie in that large, rather undefined center, that center which seems so easily lead, so weak, and yet actually holds in its grasp more potential for effective action than either of the other two.

For we ARE the humanity of this twentieth century; we are those who pick and choose, judge and determine our course at every turn of the ways; and for that very reason we are those at whom the bombasto of atheistic materialism, with all its subleties and modifications, all its catchwords and quaint phrases—we are those at whom the effort is aimed. Similarly we average people are the concern of the spiritual leaders who see where secularism can lead, who see the clever prying-bar tactics being employed, and the gradual drift of common action in the wrong direction.

Feel Important

It makes one feel slightly important to consider the effort that is directed in influencing him. And that is exactly how we should feel about the trends of our age. For we are important; in fact, we are vital. In the last analysis it is individuals who make up a crowd, and individual thought which makes a trend.

It is therefore quite necessary that we realize our own place in the scheme of our society. For in this frame of mind we will hardly need to be reminded that each time we turn against the tide of secularism we gain a little. Each time we seek to be motivated by the final end rather than the proximate one, by the love of Christ in preference to the affections of wooing but erring philosophers, just so many times are we placing stones on the only barricade that can stop the flow of non-God materialism. It is well within our power. If the ball wobbles it is because we didn't kick it up the center.

We're on Christ's team—let's not foul up.

MAIN LINE PERAMBULATIONS The doors of our old Alma Mater were thrown open a short time ago to welcome her returning flock as well as a number of starry-eyed, enthusiastic, collegiate-clad Freshmen. . . . Yes, all were greeted with a piece of slate from the heights of Mendel Hall. . . . This operation has many of the residents in Mendel puzzled, of course, the Frosh are the most confused. One frosh complained that he had no roof in his room but a white cap answered him readily with "That's all right, kid, the fellows upstairs don't walk around much."

FRESHMEN FOLLIES: Who was the beanied clad individual who, complete with button, rolled trousers, and newly acquired books, walked down the middle aisle a few half hours late at the last convocation? The fact that he interrupted the President's speech and disturbed the whole assembly wasn't too out of the ordinary but—What is he going to do with the books? Oh, well, as the old saying goes—"You can always tell a Freshman but you can't tell him much!"

ADDITIONS AND DELETIONS: The bill board across the Pike which was formerly used to announce "home" ball games is blank this year—Can't understand why? Of course, there was an individual who couldn't stand the sight of the big white monster. . . .He had to decorate it with an appropriate slogan for the Army game. . . . Tch, tch, Sech langoowege. . . . Who noticed the Books for sale sign on the Pie Shop (College Store to the Frosh) bulletin board. . . . "Sale, almost brand new—Hardly used." . . . Typically C&F.

LYNX ENLIGHTENING: No longer will a tract be necessary in order to reap an understanding of the Literary Lynx. . . . The new regime is endeavoring to deviate from the archaic English spelling and pronunciation which in past years has been its policy. . . . All Villanovans should acquire a copy of the forthcoming issue which is now ready to go press.

CINEMA CAPERS: "The Big Carnival," a flick concerning the evil doings of a newspaperman, is getting the best of the boys on the campus green. . . . Joe Mascuch wants to bury Bill Brody in the hole around the new chimney and then crawl in and feed him sandwiches for a two month period. . . . He figures that it will take this long to make an effective story since the Villanovan is a weekly publication.

UP INTO THE BLUE: Without a doubt, the comic "Space Cadet" is coming to the foreground as the leading Sunday favorite since the triple decker beds have been introduced to the various dormitories. . . . The infirmary has reported a number of nose-bleed cases caused by the high altitudes. . . . No longer are pajamas the thing. . . . Now a fellow has to wear a G-suit complete with oxygen mask if he is to survive the night. . . . Speaking of heights—If they hadn't stopped work on the stack when they did, it would have come to a point.

THINGS TO COME: What with a new boiler house, and plushy-set type drapes in the chow hall, we can now look forward to new improvements. . . . The most outstanding of those to come will be a renovated students lounge . . . It promises to be something of which we can be proud. . . . All we have to do now is put a stop to the Day-hop luncheon which takes place every afternoon.

Freshman-Senior Navy Cruise Sees European Ports

By Joseph McNulty

Anchors aweigh, and read all about it! On June 4, sixty-two Villanova midshipmen, sophomores and seniors, left Norfolk, Va., for their eight week summer training cruise. The purpose of this cruise was to train the sophomores in the three basic shipboard departments, operations, gunnery and engineering, and to give the seniors practical work in navigation and leadership.

The middies were embarked on various ships including the battleships Missouri and Wisconsin. Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., was aboard the Wisconsin as the faculty representative for Villanova.

Practical Demonstrations

Practical demonstrations of depth charge attacks and star shell illumination aided in making the cruise a far cry from "textbook" learning .

The only great unpleasantness encountered was a terrific storm in the North Atlantic during which about ninety percent of the boys in blue helped to "feed the fishes".

Liberty is High Point

The high point of the cruise was when liberty rolled around in the ports of Edinburgh, Scotland; Oslo, Norway; Goteburg, Sweden; Copenhagen, Denmark; Lisbon, Portugal; Cherbourg, France; and Rotterdam.

At Oslo and Lisbon the Middies were guests at embassy receptions, and various socials were attended by all the trainees.

On the return trip the force dropped anchor at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, for gunnery practice.

However all good things must come to an end ,and on July 27 our heroes debarked, tired perhaps, but proud of having completed one of the most vigorous parts of their NROTC training.

Southland Summer Toughens Sophomore Middies For War

By Jack Redmond

Back to civilian life again are the thirty-five second classmen of Villanova's N.R. O.T.C. Back to the comforts of the campus are the ensigns of 1953 after six weeks of the finest Marine discipline possible.

Our land cruising middies will long remember the blistering heat of The Amphib base at Little Creek, Va., the bloodless invasion of the Virginia coast ,the never laxing discipline of the Pensacola Naval Air Station, the horrors of aerobatics: the 1951 Aviation; Amphibious Cruise.

Ivy League Competition

At Little Creek, in the face of competition from the richest Ivy League and Big Ten traditions, the Villanova platoon took the fore in military proficiency, entertainment and athletics.

The training at Little Creek consisted in lectures and demonstrations in all branches of amphibious warfare, tours of amphibious craft, handling of landing craft, and a three day tenure aboard ship. During these three days the midshipmen collaborated with marines of the Second division from Camp Lejune in a full scale invasion of Camp Pendelton.

Facilities at the base were all within jet plane distance of the NROTC area. Tennis courts, baseball diamonds and the beach were all easily accessible if a box lunch was carried. A special beach was made available to midshipmen, jellyfish, flies, and many other unidentified flora and fauna.

Pensacola Bound

With the termination of the three weeks at Little Creek, the middies then embarked on the most horrible part of the cruise, the trip to Pensacola, Fla. During the 750 mile trip which required 42 hours via troop train, the boys got a very scenic picture of the South, from every siding along the route.

But meals along the way were good!! Saturday the dining car served a delicious GI meal of Virginia baked ham. Sunday morning they marched thru Macon for ham and eggs. At noon it was Georgia baked ham in Columbus. At evening tide a dining car was added. The menu? Baked ham.

At 3:30 a. m. Monday morning the train finally pulled into Pensacola. There to greet them were a bunch of Marine Sergeants who reminded them that reveille was at 5:30. By the time rooms were assigned, bags unpacked, and showers taken, the bugle sounded. Pattern for Pensacola had been set. The sun came up, demerits were assigned to everyone for everything, classes began, field days proclaimed, and sleep was posted for sometime during the week when nothing else was scheduled.

Final Day Arrives

During these three weeks the training consisted of instruction in all phases of flying, along with three flights in patrol bombers and trainers. It was during this time that the Villanova platoon won the basketball championship.

At long last the final day arrived. Sea-bags were packed and best uniforms donned for the admiral's review and departure. As the 880 middies lined up for the inspection, fate intervened. The heavens opened, the rains came, the admiral didn't. There was no review, and the cruise came to a screeching halt.

Staff openings are available on this college weekly. Circulation men report to the Villanovan office Tuesday afternoon. Men for photographic,, news, copy staffs report Thursday afternoon

Student Council Convenes With Delaney As Chairman

Pep Rallies Planned at First Meeting

Considerable business was begun last night at the first official meeting of the Student Council of the academic year. Presiding over the meeting was Council chairman Thomas Delaney, a senior in the Marketing department of the Commerce and Finance school.

Minutes of the final meeting of last year were read and Delaney then appointed standing committees on Spirit, Election, and Ways and Means.

THOMAS DELANEY
Student Council Leader

Rallies Planned

The Council plans to have football rallies prior to some of the major games this year. Council President Delaney said that this will first be discussed with college authorities.

Before the meeting adjourned plans for the election of a new Secretary-Treasurer, to replace incumbent Dick Miller, were formed. Miller withdrew during the summer vacation.

Final official act of last year's Student Council was the presentation of a set of cuff links to each of the graduating Seniors. Present Council members and officers were installed at that meeting, which was held late in May.

"Lynx" Literary Starts Circulation

"Hot off the press" was the cry yesterday as Kevin McCrane and the Lynx Circulation staff began distribution of their latest issue.

The Summer Issue, which goes on sale next Monday, contains many interesting stories, including "The Irish Gypsy," by Cummin Clancy, Ireland's gift to Villanova's track team, and an amusing tidbit by Jim Mason entitled, "On the Advantages of Being Completely Without Talent." Various other poems and fiction add a wide and varied scope to the magazine.

In preparing for a renovated Fall issue, Editor Bob Quinn promises many changes in the way of illustration techniques, general layout, and literary content.

To help achieve these results, Bob Beers will direct all art work and Jim Griffin will govern the poetic content. Quinn requested that those interested in magazine publication contact him (No. 110 Fedigan) before October 15, deadline date for all manuscripts.

Frosh Lay Hopes On Field Day to End Orientation

Freshman are looking forward to the conclusion of orientation on October 11.

This year's freshman class, although possessing fewer veterans than any class since the war, has been complaining a bit about its orientation. Many call it "kid stuff" or "high school foolishness," not realizing that the main purpose of orientation is to help to weld their class into a unit.

Its main purpose, say the Student Handbook, is to foster in all freshman a love for their college and to promote a hearty cooperation in all college activities and interests.

Freshman orientation this year began at the last table in the Field House on Registration Day. The dinks, buttons and rolled-up cuffs distinguished them from the other undergraduates. A special program was put into effect for the freshman on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of registration week.

Frosh Welcomed

Among those who addressed the new students were: Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., vice-president of Villanova, Mr. Eugene Powers, director of intra-mural sports; Rev. Ed. T. Grimes, O.S.A., college chaplain; Rev. D. P. Falvey, O.S.A., librarian; Rev. G. J. McLaughlin, O.S.A., dean of student activities; Phil Brennan, president of the Senior class; and Tom Delaney, chairman of the student council. The deans of each division (Arts & Sciences, C&F, Engineering) welcomed the freshmen of their respective schools. School opened formally with the solemn high mass and the convocation on Friday.

Field Day Scheduled

With the advent of the upperclassmen, many blue-dinked freshmen, mumbling something like "wait till the 11th," were observed carrying trunks around the campus. They were referring, of course, to the novelty field day between the Frosh and the Sophs. Among the scheduled contests are a three-legged race, a wheelbarrow race, a football throwing contest, and many others. A touch football game will climax the day. If the Frosh garner the most points from the events, they may remove their regs. If they lose, the regs must be worn until the Villanova-Detroit football game on Nov. 17.

Annual Retreat

for 9:30, 11:30 a. m. and 2:30 and 4:30 p. m.

Father Grimes also reminded the students that Friday, the 5th, is First Friday of the month. Masses in the college chapel Friday will be at 6:00, 6:45, 7:30, 8:00, 9:00 and 12 noon.

Second Death

edge, I could hardly speak, I even ate chow. Once in my room I was thankful it was over. I returned my beanie to my trunk and wrote out my copy, satisfied that Carl Koenig and Company would make sure the Freshman were orientated. All things weighed, I'd rather be a senior. I was content with my accomplishment until that evening when I realized that I could have gotten realism in another way. Someday I must ask why I couldn't have been a white hat for a day.

Sanctuary Society Meets Tonite To Draw Plans for Coming Year

The Sanctuary Society will hold the first meeting of the year this evening immediately after evening Chapel in the Basement Seminar Room of the Library.

The society, directed by Anthony Tranelli, President, will make arrangements for the One Day Retreat to be held this Thursday. Plans will also be drawn for the coming religious activities of the College, including assignments for all day adoration of The Blessed Sacrament, to be held on every First Friday. This devotion will begin this Friday and continue for the entire scholastic year.

The Rev. Edward T. Grimes, O.S.A., moderator of the Society, will address the group, and he requests that those interested in joining the Society will attend this meeting.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 22...THE WOODPECKER

Woodrow almost bit off more than he could chew when he tackled the cigarette tests! But he pecked away 'til he smoked out the truth: Such an important item as mildness can't be tossed off in a fleeting second! A "swift sniff" or a "perfunctory puff" proves practically nothing! He, like millions of smokers, found one test that doesn't leave you up a tree.

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a day-after-day basis. No snap judgments! Once you've enjoyed Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

FROSH TEAMS MERGE WITH VARSITY ART RAIMO REPLACES JIM LEONARD

Brings Alumni Staff of Bell And Michaels

The programs at the Wildcat grid contests will show a major change this fall, the name of Arthur F. Raimo replacing that of Jim Leonard in the space reserved for "Head Football Coach." The illustrious fullback of the mid-30's Blue and White elevens moved from player to backfield coach and has now ascended to the top spot vacated in July by Leonard.

Art's promotion, announced shortly after Leonard resigned due to the pressure of business, was popularly received by football followers throughout the east and especially by the band of gridders which he leads into Villanova's "toughest-ever" schedule this month. Raimo has selected two former teammates to assist him in handling the club. Ed Michaels, all-time Villanovan and All-American guard in 1935 is the new line mentor while Alex Bell left a sterling scholastic coaching mark behind to tutor the ends.

The new head coach has been on the Mainline staff for five years, serving as backfield mentor under Jordan Olivar for the first three and aiding Leonard in the same capacity since Olivar moved to Loyola of California in 1949.

Art is a native of Everett, Mass., the same town that has given Villanova its present co-captain, Nick Liotta, and Ralph Pasquariello, the great fullback of two years ago. Raimo learned his football fundamentals at Everett High and enrolled at Villanova in 1934. Art caught the eye of Harry Stuhldreher, then coaching here, and after a season as captain of the Frosh club moved into the starting fullback berth on the varsity. As a "watchcharm" fullback of 150 lbs. Raimo led the 'Cats in scoring in both his junior and senior years.

On Undefeated Team

Seeing duty on offense and defense, Art was mainly responsible for the 1937 eleven's undefeated season. That Wildcat club suffered only a scoreless tie with Auburn in an otherwise unblemished nine game card. Raimo graduated in 1938 with a B.S. in Education and immediately took up his coaching chores as backfield tutor at St. Joseph's under Heinie Miller.

Raimo came back to the Main Line one day after his discharge as backfield mentor for former teamate Olivar. His backs have always shown the distant Raimo touch, being fast and powerful. Art's vast knowledge of his former position has allowed the Blue and White rooters to boast of such stellar fullbacks as Pasquariello, Pete Delonzo, and for all-around play, perhaps the best of them all, junior Bob Haner.

NEW COACHING STAFF who led the Wildcats to victory last Saturday over Army, are all Villanova grads. Left to right, Alex Bell, '38, end coach; Art Raimo, '38, head coach; Eddie Michaels, '36, line coach. All three coaches were teammates during the 1935 season when Micheals was Wildcat captain and first Villanovan to receive All-American recognition.

Wildcat's 150 lb. Team Out For 51; Back In 52

The Villanova 150 pound football team has been discontinued for this year. There are several reasons for this. In a meeting last winter during the confusion about the draft status of every available male, it was decided by the Eastern Intercollegiate 150 pound Football League to hold a moratorium for the League until such time as would be advisable to compete again.

However the National manpower shortage due to the leniency of most Draft Boards never developed. This summer the League reconvened and scheduled a season among the following—Princeton, Rutgers, Navy, Cornell and Pennsylvania University. Villanova, under the auspices of the Athletic Board decided to abide by the first meeting and be left out for this year. Several reasons made this the only practical solution.

Financially the school wasn't prepared, because the budget had all ready been drawn up and approved with the 150 pound football team allocation not on it.

Field House Too Small

Another big factor which make it unadvisable is the lack of adequate facilities at the Field House for two large squads of football teams. For the locker space and shower rooms are not only crowded, but the medical facilities and trainers are overburdened with a double responsibility, posing a problem for everyone.

Wildcat Rise Fast

In the last few years, the Wildkittens have risen from the doormat of the league to one of the foremost clubs, winning the Championship in 1949, winning three shutouts last years, and losing one of the other two games by only a touchdown in the last seconds of an exciting game.

Of all the intercollegiate sports played on campus this is indeed the Simon Pure. Long hours of drill and scrimmage are spent by these boys with no material recompense in the way of tuition, food, extra credit, school letters or sweaters. Anything they get, they get themselves.

In order to show that we are still in the League as members in an active sense, Villanova will hold the Presidency of the Eastern Intercollegiate League for this year. Next year, we will again enter the league competitively and field a team if all goes well.

Philco, WIP Air Games

All Villanova football games, both home and away, will be broadcast to the Philadelphia area this year by station WIP, according to an announcement from Rev. E. B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of athletics.

Jim Leaming, ace sportscaster for the station began the coverage last Saturday from the press box in Michie Stadium, and will continue throughout the season, traveling with the team.

The Philco Corporation is sponsoring the Widcat game broadcasts for the entire season.

X-Country Team Bows to Army 28-40; Navy Next

The 1951 cross-country season began last Friday when the Villanova track team engaged the Army team at the West Point course. The Cadets triumphed over the Main Liners 28-40.

This season the team faces a rugged schedule with some of the most talented teams in the East. Navy, Seton Hall, NYU and Manhattan are listed on the schedule.

"Jumbo Jim" Elliot, track coach, has had his thin-clads out for about three weeks in preparation for the season. Among the standouts on the team for the coming season will be John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer, IC4A two mile and mile champs, respectively. Also on the squad are Art Klepper, Jerry Utter and Bart Moynahan. Coach Elliot also has some freshmen prospects which he thinks will show great promise.

Navy is the opposition this Saturday. The Mainliners will travel down to the banks on the Severn to meet the Middies. Two weeks later the team will meet Seton Hall at South Orange. The Orangemen are always rough competition and the team will really be put to a test. Following that comes meets with NYU and Manhattan and the season will end on November 19 with the IC4A championship in New York.

New ECAC Ruling Makes Freshmen Varsity Material

By Bud Russo

Villanova, since the new ECAC ruling last year which provided that incoming Freshman are eligible candidates for the varsity teams, has dropped Freshman activities.

The reason that intercollegiate games between Freshman teams have been abandoned is that the best players of Freshman squad which are allowed to play with the varsity, will then be ineligible to play Freshman ball. It is therefore considered that the best policy will be to eliminate them completely.

In the coming basketball season at the Field House, the time that was originally alloted to Freshman basketball, will be used by Intramural teams, picked by the Intramural Basketball Committee.

Coach Art Raimo, however, inclines to believe that this will in the long run hurt the Freshman. For these boys are just out of High or Prep school without enough training or coaching behind them to warrant their competing against two and three year old varsity players. The practical experience of having a separate coach and a team of their own caliber will be lost. Freshman games which would provide them with invaluable experience will be lost. A few outstanding members of this squad can compete quite successfully with the senior members of the varsity squad, but these are the exceptions. Most, will not be ready to play till next year or the following.

That is Art Raimo's biggest job, for he has a lot of fine material which he will surely be able to develop if he can hold these players back and train them correctly, and not have them become discouraged because they're not used immediately.

Five or six Freshman have made one of the first three teams. Especially important is the fullback slot with two yearlings backing up Bobby Haner.

The teams have been working at Goodreau Stadium under wraps with strict orders that none of the student body or faculty can watch. Coach Raimo hopes this won't be misunderstood, for with the heavy schedule that our team is packing he wants no chance of being watched and being reported on. This way, at anytime he may want, plays which should be listed as top secret can be practiced. Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated by not only the coaching staff, but the players themselves.

Sports Chatter

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

Although the semester is scarcely more than a week old the amount of sports news happening would suggest that we are in mid-November. Jim Leonard's departure, Art Raimo's arrival, the suspension of the 150-lb. football team and all freshman sports, the bright victory over Army, the coming battle with Penn State and the start of the cross-country season all bear mentioning in the first issue of the "Villanovan".

Art Raimo started his career as Wildcat football coach last Saturday and he probably couldn't have asked for a better present. Besides winning the opener over Army, a team that shapes up to be helpless on defense but quite good on offense, has brought much attention to the Wildcat eleven. The statistics of last Saturday's game seem to prove that on the offensive side, Earl Blaik may not be in so deep after all. They were able to make 20 first downs and gain 218 yards rushing.

Last Spring, when the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference passed the freshman eligibility rule, they had visions of the nation's campuses ravaged by losses in student body due to the draft. As of now, this loss has failed to materialize and now athletic teams find themselves not only with their normal flow of talent, but also with the use of many freshmen. As a result of the use of freshmen, many colleges are dissolving their freshman athletic program into the varsity sports. Villanova is one of these schools and this year (and until the ECAC ruling is amended) there will be no frosh teams.

Also in line with this is the suspension temporarily of the 150-lb. football team. The league, which comprises Villanova, Penn, Navy, Princeton and Rutgers, decided earlier this year to suspend the league until the draft picture became clearer. It was decided to have a moratorium for at east a year and, accordingly, Villanova fitted its athletic plans to fit the suspension.

Later, the league decided to continue its activities for 1951 and made up the schedule for this fall. Villanova, having already agreed to abide by the first decision decided not to go along for this year with a team. Next year should see the resumption of the popular team.

This Saturday, when the football team travels to Allentown for their game with Penn State, they will be meeting a team which is considesed by many to be the leading secondary football power in the East. The Nittany Lions played Boston University, last Saturday, and triumphed 40-34. In doing so they had to come from behind three times. Ted Shattuck, junior halfback exploded for three touchodnws and gained 160 yards. Paul Anders of State carried the ball seventeen times for 123 yards. These two boys ought to put on a good show for the crowd. Our series with them dates back to 1902 and they hold a 2-5-1 edge on us. Tickets for this game are on sale at the Field House at 3.60.

Looking ahead to the future games on this year's schedule (the toughest in modern years) the opponent's record is starting to take shape. Alabama swamped Mississippi Delta State but Louisiana State downed them last weekend 13-7. Kentucky took Tennessee Tech in stride but has suffered two straight losses to Texas, 7-6, and Mississippi, 21-17. Houston swamped Detroit 33-7. Boston College, which hasn't won a game since 1949, lost to Wake Forest earlier in the season. LSU remains undefeated over Mississippi Southern and Alabama. Tulsa, after beating Hawaii, lost to Cincinnati, 47-35. In the pre-season polls, Kentucky, Alabama, Tulsa and Houston were all considered in the nation's top 20 teams.

Michaels and Bell

Ed Michaels carved his name in the Blue and White Hall of Fame before receiving his degree in 1935. Ed won the starting right guard berth in his sophomore year and held it for the remainder of his college days. In his senior year, the burly Delaware-ite captained the Mainliners and became the first Villanovan to gain All-American recognition. Michaels played pro ball with the Bears, Redskins, and Eagles from 1936 to 1947 except for a 3-year stint as playing coach of his home-town Wilmington Clippers in the American Pro League. For the last few autumns Ed tutored the linemen of the Ottowa Rough Riders in Canada.

With a 20-game winning streak plus a pair of diocesan titles at Delone Catholic High near Harrisburg as a recommendation, Alex Bell returns to his Alma Mater to teach the flankmen some of the tricks he used to advantage as a Wildcat gridster from '35 to '38. After a pro career, shortened by the recurrence of a college injury, Alex stepped into the coaching ranks as an assistant at Loyola in Los Angeles. He served as a naval gunnery officer for four years before moving to Delone. During the 1950 season, Bell went again to handle the reins of St. Augustine High School's squad in Los Angeles. Alex, now living in Drexel Hill, has a wife and two children.

Frosh-Soph Meet, Tennis, Football Start I-M Year

With the opening of a new school year, room 112 Alumni Hall is once again occupied by Mr. Eugene Powers. For the benefit of the Frosh, room 112 is the location of the Intramural Athletic office and Mr. Powers is the man, who last year supervised and made possible the biggest and best year in intra-murals here at Villanova. This was most noticeable in basketball where there were 43 teams as opposed to 7 the year before. He inaugurated the Soph-Frosh Novelty Track Meet and the awarding of a trophy to the hall scoring the most points in intra-mural competition.

Last Year's Champs

These were the champs and runners-up of 1950-51: Novelty Track, Sophs, Frosh; Decoration, Delury, Simpson; Touch Football, Fedigan, Simpson; Basketball, Alumni Toppers, Rum Runners (day hop); Softball, Austin, Dom; Track, Frosh, Sophs; Tennis, George McCann, Pat Highland.

The standings at the end of last year for the point trophy were:

Alumni	1040
Doms	1010
Austin	850

All entry blanks for touch-football and tennis must be in by Friday, October. 5. They may be obtained at either the Intra-mural Athletic Office, 112 Alumni or at the Chaplains Office. There will be two divisions this year in the tennis tournament; one for advanced players and one for novices. No matter what your game is like, get your entry in now.

Frosh Meet

The Frosh will get their big chance on Thursday, Oct. 11, in the Novelty Track Meet against the Sophs. If they win, the orientation period is over, but if they lose the White Hats stay in power until the Detroit game in November. The events will consist of a chariot relay race, tug of war, 3-legged race, football throw for distance, football kick for distance, 220 yard dash, egg toss, and a touch football game.

Haner Converts Thrice Patrick Stars On Defense

After the kick-off, Villanova started an 84 yard march and capped it with a touchdown—their first against Army since 1916. Bill Brannau, whose passing accounted for two of the touchdowns, passed to Joe Rilo and on the next play Addiego scored on a 14-yard aerial from Branau. Bob Haner made the conversion and the Wildcat rooters went wild.

Army came back and fought down to the Villanova 24, only to lose the ball on downs as the burly Wildcat line, out-weighing the Cadets by 30 pounds per man, jelled and Villanova took over.

Fake-Out Pays Off

The Wildcat ground-gainers began their drive upfield and, again, Addiego went over for the TD. From the 8-yard mark, Ben faked a pitch-out and went around end.

This was all the scoring that was to take place during the first half by either side, although the Cadets seemed to get a bit stronger in the second quarter as the "first game jitters" seemed to leave them.

Twice Army went to the ten only to be stopped cold there by the fine defensive work of end Jack Patrick. Patrick recovered an Army fumble and on their second camping at the ten he threw them for a loss to the 20. With 8 seconds to go Army crossed the goal only to have the play nullified by an off-sides penalty.

Leichweiss Recovers

The Wildcats began their scoring early in the second half when Joe Lechweiss recovered an Army fumble with two minutes gone on the Cadet 43.

On the next play, Bill Brannau, although surrounded by Army men got off as magnificent pass to Ben Addiego. Addiego caught the ball on his finger tips and continued for twenty more yards, zigzagging down the field, to score for the third time.

Haner Converts Third

Haner made the conversion, as he did the other two, and Villanova led 21-0. In the final period, Army finally cracked the defenses for their only score of the day. A fumble late in the third quarter set up the touchdown and John Wing went over through middle.

The day was perfect for a football game as a warm sun shone down upon the crowd. The Wildcat rooters, fully enjoying themselves throughout the game, rushed on to the field at the game's end to mob the team and Coach Art Raimo, who was making his debut as the Wildcat coach.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

SHEEDY was a big walrus-flower. "All I ever get is the cold shoulder," he blubbered. So his roommate said: "Tusk, tusk, you old soak—try a new wrinkle on that messy hair: Wildroot Cream-Oil! Non-Alcoholic. Contains soothing Lanolin. Freeze your hair from annoying dryness and loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-nail Test!" Now Sheedy's really in the swim! Just sealed his engagement to a pretty young flapper—and he's about to wisker off to an ivory-covered cottage. So water you waiting fur? Get a tube or bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil Hair Tonic at any drug or toilet goods counter! And ask your barber for professional applications. "Now," you'll say, "Ice sea why there's snow other hair tonic like Wildroot Cream-Oil!"

Seniors To Meet Thursday Important Plans On Agenda

Father's Day Set for November 10

A meeting to plan the coming year's Senior Class activities has been called by President Phil Brennan for 7:30 Thursday night in the C&F auditorium. A feature of the meeting will be the introduction of the new class officers and the senior year activities chairmen.

Brennan has listed on the agenda of the meeting a discussion of three major social events for the Class of '52. Included in the seniors' plans is an innovation, "Fathers' Day," to be held on November 10, and which will be similar to the highly successful "Mothers' Day" of last year's Junior Week.

In addition, Brennan has announced that the Senior Prom will be held on Washington's Birthday, February 22, preceded by the annual Senior Dinner-Dance on February 21.

Further information concerning the functions will be made known at Thursday's meeting. Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A., class moderator, will preside.

TARDY SENIORS TO ORDER RINGS

Supplementary orders for Class of '52 rings will be taken by a representative of Dieges and Clust Co. Friday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., in the rear of the Pie Shop.

Paul Pirhalla, last year's ring committee chairman, has made arrangements with Mr. Wilson of the ring company to take orders from all members of the Class of '52 who did not order rings during junior year.

Arrangements for payment and delivery can be made with Mr. Wilson at the time of placing the order.

Steve Berry Named To Cotillion Post

Joe Kenny Named Class President By Act Of Student Council

Steve Berry, a C&F Day Hop, will head this year's Sophomore Cotillion, to be held on the evening of Oct. 26 in the Field House. At a meeting of the Sophomore class officers, student council members and orientation committee members, Berry was elected chairman of this semester's first major social event.

STEVE BERRY
Soph Cotillion Head

Berry was in class at the time of his election. When told of the honor Steve promised that he would do his best to make this year's Cotillion the best ever. He also announced that he would shortly call a meeting to arrange the dance committees. At the meeting Rev. John R. Dunne, O.S.A., moderator of the Sophomores, stated that the affair would be especially for the freshmen, as a good will gesture after the conclusion of orientation. Father expressed his hope for a large turnout at the Cotillion.

Joe Kenny, vice-president elect of the Sophomore Class, was named president pro tempore by the Student Council, acting through Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activities, announced Rev. John Dunne, O.S.A., moderator of the Sophomore Class.

Bill Brown, president elect, failed to register for this year, it was announced. The post of Vice-President will remain open until an election can be held. No date yet has been set for this election.

In 1948 he won the coveted George Holmes Memorial Award for his brilliant coverage of the Alger Hiss indictment by the New York Grand Jury. A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., he is the father of Dorothy Kilgallen, famed Broadway columnist.

Father Simonds Welcomes Delegates

Rev. John Simonds, newly appointed chaplain at Immaculata College, gave the invocation and welcomed the delegates in the name of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia.

Among the prominent speakers for the various panels were Leonard McAdams, city editor of the Phila. Inquirer, and Francis Martinez, Phila. public relations consultant.

William Lohr, editor of the sponsoring Belle Air Yearbook, also gave a brief welcoming address and outlined the day's program.

Juniors to Pick Standard Design For School Ring

The activties of the Class of 1953 begin tonight with a meeting of the ring committee in room 215 Mendel at 7:30. The purpose of the meeting is to select a ring chairman.

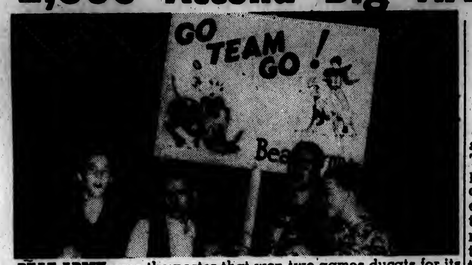
This year will inaugurate a new system with respect to class rings. The ring adopted by this year's Junior Class will be the ring all future classes will wear. This will eliminate the selection of a ring for subsequent classes.

New Seal on Ring

The ring committee of the Junior Class, together with some faculty members, will help to choose the ring and select the model. It will include some changes from the past rings, including the adoption of the new school seal.

Four ring companies have requested to submit information and bids on their products. The next task which faces the committee is to narrow the bids down to a final choice.

To Be Official Ring



This choice will carry with it a heavy responsibility for this selection is directed to form a standard which all future classes must follow. The ring selected by the Class of '53 will become the official design and style worn by all future graduates.

ture and Design at M.I.T., and member of the faculty council and faculty committee of the graduate school, he finds time to make further contributions to naval construction.

The Mass and convocation climaxed a frantic week of registration for the entire college and Orientation for the 500 Freshmen students. Preliminary figures released by Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O.S.A., Registrar, indicated that the schools of Commerce and Finance, and Engineering, registered the largest number of students.

Coach Says 'Cats 'No Guinea Pig'

"Beat Army" reverberated across the Villanova campus Thursday night, as the largest post-war pep rally of the college was held in the stadium. Over 2500 Villanovans, their friends, and girls from neighboring colleges voiced their confidence in the team that played Army Saturday.

"In years gone by Villanova, in the openers, has been the yardstick of Army's power. No longer is Villanova going to be Army's guinea pig." With that statement, Head Coach Arthur Raimo brought thundering applauses echoing for miles around.

Wildcats and "David"

Rev. John O'Leary, O.S.A., delivered the principal address. He compared the Villanova and Army teams to David and Goliath. He announced that he was expecting the wildcats to come through like David.

With floodlights lighting the Stadium, the sirens and bells of the Radnor Fire Department and the college band adding to the din, the introduction of co-captains Nick Liotta and Joe Rilo brought down the house.

"'V' for Villanova," the Alma Mater, and "College Days" rang thru the night air from the stadium during the rally that followed a motorcade through the campus that noisely proclaimed the chant of the night—"Beat Army!"

Girls Attend

Students from Bryn Mawr, Rosemont and the Bryn Mawr Hospital were in attendance, the girls having been invited en masse by the committee.

BELLE AIR NEEDS SR. PIX, HISTORIES

William Lohr, yearbook editor, requested all seniors who have not yet posed for Belle Air portraits to make an appointment with Zamsky Studios, 1007 Market Street, Phila., before October 12. Failure to comply with this suggestion will result in exclusion from the Senior yearbook section.

Further, Lohr announced that Senior History forms are now available in the Pie Shop and the Belle Air office in Mendel Hall.

Cotillion Tickets On Sale Season's First Social Event

Committees Named By Steve Berry

Tickets for the October 26 Soph Cotillion went on sale today in the Pie Shop and at the information booth in Mendel Hall. Tickets cost $2.50 per couple.

Steve Berry, chairman of the Soph Cotillion, has signed the Villanovans to provide the music for the Cotillion, first major college social event of the year. The informal dance will be held in the Field House.

Pearson Heads Tickets

Berry also reported that the various committee chairmen had been selected. George Eberle will head the Band committee, Tony Pearson will lead the Ticket committee, and Ray Laventure and Jack Kneafsey are co-chairmen of the Publicity committee. Tim Cole is in charge of refreshments and George Colon will arrange for the decorations for the affair.

Joe Kenny, president pro tempore of the Sophomores, joined with Berry in expressing the hope that as many freshmen as possible attend this function. Kenny said that a large advance sale was hoped for, with most of the tickets being sold by Saturday afternoon. There will be a ticket booth open at the Field House on the night of the dance, he said.

Spirited Crowd Cheers Gridders

Mendel Field was the site of the second pep rally of the year last Friday evening, when a spirited crowd of college students, alumni and friends let loose on one big theme—"Beat Penn State!"

The scene had shifted from the stadium to Mendel Field for this second rally. The team was meeting a different opponent, Penn State. Some of the grandeur of the first rally, such as fire trucks, was missing. But the spirit was the same. The crowd let it be known that they were one hundred per cent behind the gridiron Wildcats.

The college marching band, under the direction of Assistant Director Tom Pasha, and the cheerleaders led the rally. Familiar cheers and songs rang out. Time and again came the chant of all—"Beat Penn State."

The rally was under the direction of Carl Koenig, vice-chairman of the college student council, and his spirit committee.

As at the first rally, the coaches and players were the big hits. Head coach Art Raimo and his assistant coaches, Alex Bell and Eddie Michaels, received long ovations. Co-captains Nick Liotta and Joe Rilo came in for their share of the cheers, and so did the entire team.

Frosh Attempt To End Regs In Athletic Clash Thursday

by John Gillman

Other colleges around the country have as one of their biggest activities the staging of a contest between the upper classmen and the Frosh for a prize or privilege of one kind or another.

Mr. Powers the Intra-Mural Athletic Director, who has revitalized our I-M system in the one year he has been here, hopes to build up just such a contest here at Villanova in the form of MUFF (Move Up Forward Freshmen) Day, which will be a contest for a privilege.

If the Frosh win, their privilege will be to discontinue Orientation, but if on the other hand the Sophs win, it will be their privilege to continue lording it over the lowly Freshmen and generally making their lives miserable until the Detroit game in November.

Contact Managers

Therefore, Freshmen who would like to move Forward better get in touch with one of the three managers of the Frosh team, who are: Ed Rogers, 125, Barr. 1; Ed Zahorsky, 417, Barr. 4; or Dom Borrelli, day hop. The managers of the Soph team are John Fucigna 323 Fedigan, and Chuck McGucken 326 Fedigan.

The events and the maximum number of contestants to a side are as follows:

Ludwig Memorial Scholarship Begun By School Alumni

At their annual reunion held on the college campus this past June, the Villanova Alumni Association pledged itself to create a living memorial in honor of a recently deceased member of the Villanova family. This memorial is to take the form of a permanent scholarship in memory of Father Francis W. Ludwig, O.S.A., of the Class of 1928.

LATE FR. LUDWIG
Memorial Scholarship

The story of Father Ludwig, as explained in the Alumni appeal, is, from its humble beginning to its tragic end, a typical one of any student desirous of entering Villanova. As the son of very humble parents, he enrolled in the Preparatory Seminary. After having successfully completed the rigorous twelve years of prescribed study, he was ordained to the Priesthood on June 9, 1931.

Extensive postgraduate work brought him many advanced degrees, additional honors and, finally, a Professorship of Biology. Following in the footsteps of his famous predecessor, Abbot Gregor Mendel, Father Ludwig became widely known in scientific and educational circles as an outstanding man in his chosen field.

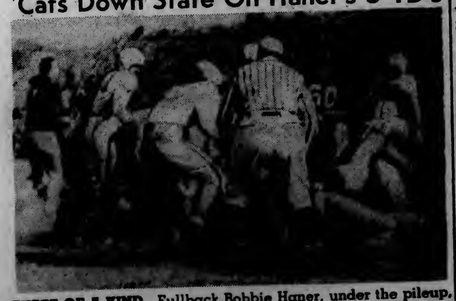
Fr. William Faunce Conducts Annual Fall Retreat For College Men In Field House

Rev. William C. Faunce conducted the annual one-day fall retreat of college men last Thursday in the college Field House. The retreat is held annually preceding the First Friday in October.

Father Faunce is an experienced Retreat Master. Prior to coming to Villanova, he had given numerous successful retreats at preparatory schools throughout the East, and recently conducted a retreat for the men at his alma mater, La Salle College in Philadelphia.

Presently, Father Faunce is serving as the Assistant Pastor of the church of St. Francis Assis in Springfield, Pennsylvania.



The retreat was opened at 9:00 a.m. with a high mass. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., vice-president of the college, and was followed by a brief sermon by the retreat master.

Two conferences were conducted by Father Faunce following the mass. They were held at 11:00 a.m. and at 2:00 p.m.

The retreat was brought to a close at 3:30 p.m. with a Holy Hour conducted by the retreat master. Benediction closed the Holy Hour and the THREE OF A KIND. Fullback Bobbie Haner, under the pileup, scores the first of his three touchdowns during the first quarter of Saturday's 20-14 victory over the Nittany Lions. The burly Kentuckian made this 2 yard plunge into paydirt after Jack Patrick's recovery of a Penn State fumble set up the play. Haner missed this conversion after a Villanova penalty, but returned with two more TD's in the third quarter and two conversions for the winning score.

There's One For You!

From the number of club notices hanging on campus bulletin boards, attached with everything from thumb tacks to wads of used gum, it has become evident that the collegiate extra-curricular year is now getting warmed up.

The term "extra-curricular year' we use advisedly as in conjunction with ,rather than in opposition to the "academic year." Extra-curricular activities purpose to complement the academic curriculum with experience in goup relations and the social graces. And without a knowledge of how to meet and talk with others, all the studying in the world will be useless to anyone but a recluse. Not that we want anyone to go overboard in either activity or study, but to get just enough of both to achieve what Sociology 101 calls "adjustment in society."

The student handbook lists 34 different organizations functioning on campus at present, with several newer ones waiting for official recognition. Aside from the five fraternities, there are dramatic, musical, language, publication and athletic groups now opening their memberships for the coming yer.

All you have to do is watch the bulletin boards and the pages of this paper for meeting announcements. Pick out the one or ones that stimulate your interest. And have no fears, there are enough to go around.

And while on the subject, we'd call the attention of the student body, frosh and sophs in particular, to "Muff" day being held on Thursday. It's an important part of this year's orientation program, and besides, ought to be a lot of fun. For details see the front page.

Prof. W. Henry Spans Quarter Century Of C&F

By George Ferguson

"It is edifying to us that so many of our pre-law students from our Commerce and Finance School attained such high scholastic rating." Such was the observation made by Mr. William C. A. Henry, Professor of Business Law, now entering his 26th year of teaching at Villanova College.

Modestly disclaiming any credit for the invaluable services and outstanding work he has contributed toward making Villanova one of the foremost institutions of learning in the country, Professor Henry continued: "the college has changed so much, that one who has not seen it in twenty-five years would almost be lost today."

Today In the Field

Concerning the part which Villanova is now playing in the field of higher education, he stated that the college has expanded its influence to such an extent that professional schools and business houses, as well as the public in general, everywhere, give us a very high rating. This is true also among ranking officials of the United States Navy."

PROFESSOR WILLIAM C. HENRY
Twenty-five year man in Commerce and Finance.

Born and brought up in Philadelphia, Mr. Henry is a life-long resident of that city, where he presently resides with his wife and three children. A graduate of Villanova, Class of '25, he earned his LL.B from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1928, and entered the law firm of the late James A. Flaherty, Esq. He later acquired his own practice in general law.

Instructed Supply Corps

Professor Henry has taught Insurance and Real Estate at Villanova, and during the years 1941 to 1945, instructed students who were training for the Navy Supply Corps, and acted as an adviser to both the Navy and Army. Referring to these years, Mr. Henry stated: "I enjoyed particularly the experience during the war years in cooperating with the Naval and Military Intelligence, in their seeking information and judgemnt of the capabilities of those students who were seeking commissions as officers."

Witnessed Great Growth

Among the changes which Mr. Henry has witnessed in his twenty-five years of faithful service at Villanova were the creation of a separate division of Pre-Law course for students interested in preparing themselves to enter law schools, the construction of a new, separate Commerce and Finance Building in 1928, and the increase in college enrollment from about 700 students, in 1926, to approximately 2,700 in the post-war years. It now approximates 2,000.

Success With Accountants

Part of Mr. Henry's work has to do with the teaching of Business Law to the Accounting students, who are preparing for the Certified Public Accountant examinations. "In practically all cases, let us say, our graduates have been successful in their initial attempts in passing the Business Law section of such rigorous examinations," Professor Henry concluded.

The staff of the "Villanovan" join with the members of the faculty and the student body in congratulating Professor William Henry on the completion of twenty-five years of service to Villanova.

Fact-Facing Degeneration Team Challenging Mary And Dominic

By Jim Griffin

Things are rotting at the core.

The undercurrents have been running, and have been growing with each passing month, each degenerating year. Optimists will say that nothing has changed; that things were always just as bad as they are now, and that the only characteristic of our age is that we face the facts. And they ask: What's wrong with admitting what really is?

Nothing Is Wrong

The answer to this question is a negative one—nothing is wrong with facing the state of things as they are. But our age is not one which just faces what is wrong with it . . .It is one which faces things, and then quickly turns its back on them. It decries divorce and relaxes the divorce laws at the same time. It bemoans Communism, socialism, and violation of property rights, and winks at business and government immorality which stirs up followings for such beliefs. It wails at the lack of religion in men's lives, and smiles mockingly at men who pray to God.

Perhaps these generalizations are unjust to the sincere, God-fearing men of our age. Indeed there are many who are trying to stem these tides that threaten to ruin the work of 2000 years of Christian culture. But for the age as a whole, the balance is unfavorable.

Story Is Old One

Such a situation is not completely unique, however, in human history. Heresies and revolutions have swept the Christian world before, and have finally been stemmed or mitigated. One such was the Albigentian heresy, which threatened Catholicism during the time of St. Dominic. It was no case of a barbarian invasion, no threat by foreign elements.

Like our real danger today, it was a rotting at the core. It spread through Christianity like a flood tide, and all efforts of religious leaders to stem it seemed in vain.

Dominic's New Strategy

And then St. Dominic began a new strategy: he chose to depend on more powerful forces than logic and philosophical discussion. He took his problem to Mary, directing his efforts toward the spread of devotion to the rosary. And where defense had threatened failure, the counter-attack of the holy rosary swept the field; where Dominic and his associates were helpless, Mary showed the way.

Perhaps we worry too much about what we can do, for, after all, we can do very little. Perhaps Dominic's problem points out the proper method for us. Mary is waiting to be asked; she has asked to be asked. And this is the month of her miraculous string of beads. Let's try to fall in line with His Holiness' recent letter. Let's take our problem to Mary!

Oscar Twomp Is Capital Advisor But Young Webster Missed Advice

by Bob Allen

The Twomp is dead! Long live the Twomp!

But the strange quirk of genetics which gave Oscar Twomp to the world and to Villanova has repeated itself. There is yet a chance that frightening has struck twice. Bill Brenninghouse, Oscar's keeper for the last four years, explains in his letter:

"Dear Bob, you have asked me for some information on O. Twomp. Well, after June graduation, he was supposed to leave with me for the P.L.C. (Platoon Leaders' Class) at Quantico, Va. He signed up thinking it was a Potential Lunatics' Convention. Following four weeks of training, I realized he hadn't shown up. I went back to Villanova, and found him sitting in the Field House reading the small print in his diploma. He figured it would keep him out of the Army. By then, it was too late to join the P. L. C., so Oscar's draft board reclassified him from minus 4½Q (for Queer) to 4F. He was inducted the next day for tank warfare. The doctors found that he was the only man in the country with a steel plate in each head. Besides, he confessed to having done a tank job once in Madison Square Garden.

Medicos Showed Interest

"At the induction center, medicos showed much serious interest in Oscar. The first question he had to answer was, "Animal, vegetable or mineral?"

"He replied, 'Oscar' and made a big hit with the Chaplain, who admired him for his forthrightness.

"After a half-hour, the psychiatrist had stamped "Gov't. Grade A Mutton" across Oscar's forehead, and both were treated for hysteria.

"Back in civilian life, Oscar has two sources of income. He has rented his brain to the Mayo Clinic, and is, meanwhile, serving as a White House advisor.

Webster Just Registered

"On the brighter (?) side, Oscar has told me that his brother, Webster, has just registered at Villanova. Oscar said in his letter, 'The folks called m'brother Webster 'cause words couldn't describe him.' When he was 3, Ma held the vacuum cleaner too close to his ears and sucked his brains right out.' That is the reason why Webster can not work for the Mayo Clinic.

"Keep your eye out for him, Bob. He's an Oscar in spades. He's walking around campus at this very moment underneath a Frosh dink. Sincerely, Bill."

Hmm, wonder which one he is?

PASHA THE PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

THE CORN IS GREEN: The hum-drum, uneventful routine of Paoli-Philly commuters was disrupted last Thurs. a.m. when a fair damsel, Rosemont bound, boarded the train with an armful of corn stalks. . . . Remarkable, the extent to which some gals will go to be noticed. . . . After all, the little Rosymonite would have gained just as much recognition had she boarded the caboose with an elephant in tow. . . . At least it would have been a more subtle approach to the problem.

RAVE NOTICES: Along with posting pictures of "Slick" Willie Sutton and his cohorts, the Post Office was exhibiting two post cards that had evidently been lost in the shuffle. . . . What some letter carriers get to read. . . . "Nothing much happening, haven't got a bed, have been sleeping on a mattress for two weeks." . . . The Fall social season is getting into full swing as is evidence by the number of announcements regarding "Tea" dances at the various fem institutions. . . . One poster gave all the particulars but neglected one minor item—the name of the inteetooshun at which it was to be held. . . . Could it be that we are taken for granted?

PENNING PENN STATE: There were some choice remarks made during game at Allentown, however, we believe topper was lispingly uttered when the Naval unit made its entrance. . . . "I haven't seen so much excitement since the opening of the A&P market in Philly." One of our illustrious tuba-ticklers, his initials slip the writer's questionable memory at the moment, but his name is Frank Licipolic, wishes his name mentioned in order that he might show his family that he is making good on the campus. . . . Frank Licipoli.

GIANTS and YANKEES: Once again presidents of two major leagues put together a schedule that conflicted with our retreat. . . . The Dodger supporters in Alumni Hall received a tremendous blow to their pride and social obligations when Thompson hit that ninth inning homer. . . . Not only did they have their Flatbush flattery flattened but they were also restricted for that evening. . . . Next time they'll think twice before voting.

AS THE CAISSONS GO ROLLIN': The Wildcats display of football cunning at Army game was the motivation that led Main Line rooters to the opposite ends of the gridiron on a dismantling mission. . . . It was the first time since 1893 that the Kadet goal post hit the dirt. . . . Those posts had been there for so long that they were preparing to leave the Army on the points system. . . . One of the local pumping stations has been given the cross-bar from the goal that was unscored upon. . . . Looks like an old fashioned battering ram.

LITERARY HEADLINE: The sports page of this leading campus weekly contained quite a New York type lead; "Haner converts thrice." . . . Sech classy language for the sports page. . . . The editor was approached by a surprised individual who inquired as to when Haner entered the missionary field.

COUNTRY DANCE: The men who went up to Chestnut Hill on Friday returned with some very good reports. . . . Freshman livestock is the best that has been herd from in a long time. . . . Leave it to the Hill when it comes to publicity or didn't you see the poster. . . . "Dance free—Free FOOD." . . . Guess they believe in the old Napoleonic Axiom.

Extension School Back To Campus; Sisters Top Nurses

by Joseph Mascuch

The Extension Division of Villanova College has returned to the campus after an absence of seventeen years and it has caused, to say the least, a tremor among the day students. The Extension School classes had been held on the Villanova campus until 1934, when they transferred to Hallahan Catholic Girls' School in Philadelphia.

A few nurses had been attending the classes at Hallahan, but when the need for advanced study for teaching and administrative positions in nursing became more apparent, enrollment increased. This year Villanova College decided to separate nursing education from the Extension Division, giving birth to the Division of Nursing.

Tradition Down For Progress

The Nursing Division is under the direction of Sister Mary Alma, S.M., of Misericordia Hospital, Philadelphia, and Sister Mary Margarella, O.S.F., of St. Joseph's Hospital, Philadelphia. These Sisters are the first women on the Villanova College Faculty, which breaks a tradition of one hundred and nine years.

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing is offered by the school only to qualified registered nurses. Nurses are, at present, on a part time schedule, gracing our campus only from 4:30 to 8:00 p. m. To complete the present nursing course, requires five years.

It Works Out Well

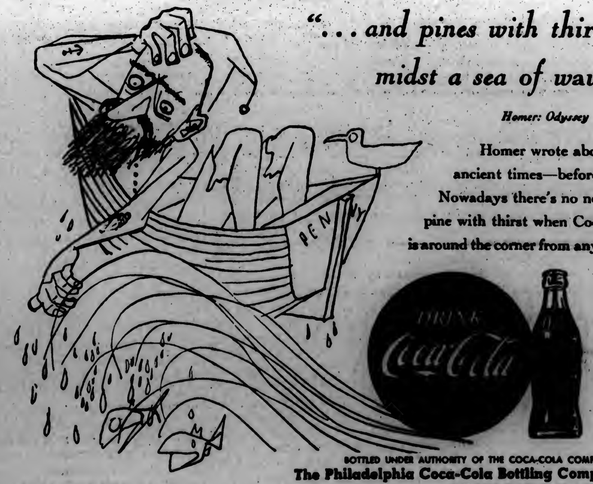
There are approximately thirteen hundred students in the Extension School, the Nursing Division contributing seventy. Among these seventy there are seven very fortunate male nurses from the Veterans' Hospital of Valley Forge and the Coatesville Hospital, which leaves, for those of you who have been trying to count them the past few days, sixty three female nurses. The nurses enjoy attending classes here on campus, so we are told, and we here on campus enjoy having the nurses here. It works out well all around.

Stagger to Mendel

Not only do the nurses follow a busy schedule of classes, but many are working as doctor's nurses and in the hospitals in this area. Which makes for a good many of them, a rather crowded day.

If anyone is taken suddenly ill between the hours of 4:30 and 8:00 p. m., we suggest that you stagger over to Mendel Hall, which is a good deal closer than the Infirmary, and fall down there. It will be a pleasure to be sick.

Something New—Coeds In Class On Main Line Campus



FOR THE FIST TIME in Vilanova's 109 years, large groups of women are attending classes on the main campus during the regular school year. Girls are nurses in training at downtown hospitals and studying at the college for their degrees. Mr. Francis J. Donohue, Professor of Education lectures to a mixed group of nurses and priests during one of these classes.

Samples Considered At '53 Ring Meeting

Juniors' Steering Committee Holds Opening Session

Activities of the Class of 1953 got under way last Tuesday night, when the ring committee met for the first time. Chairman Don Blaha and his committee interviewed two representatives of nationally known ring firms during this initial meeting.

Mr. S. W. Hampson of Loren Murcheson & Company, and Mr. William Wilson of Dieges & Clust, were the two agents interviewed.

DON BLAHA
Junior Ring Chairman

Both men presented sample rings, and disclosed the choices of rings and styles that their companies offer. The final decision on the contracting firm is still to be made. Tomorrow evening two more agents are to be interviewed, while samples from other firms will be shown to the committee.

Ring Delivery

President Paul Sollami disclosed that the delivery date for the rings probably will be shortly after the Christmas vacation. The necessity of making a different die for the new style of rings will account for most of the delay.

Another phase of the busy Junior year was looked into last night, when the steering committee held its initial meeting. The purpose of this meeting was to select a chairman for the committee, and to start plans for Junior Week.

Lynx Sales Soar As the Fall Issue Nears Publication

With a Lynx sales campaign which began late last week, Kevin McCrane and his newly appointed circulation staff have already increased student subscriptions over 14%.

During this week the members of the staff, including Paul Pirhalla, Bob Roland, and L. M. "Whitey" Schneider, are soliciting new sales as well as new talent, by visiting all the undergraduate English classes.

Meanwhile, the Editorial Staff is hard at work on the Fall issue. The new issue, while not yet filled, is known to contain a history of Villanova Football Coaches, including our current Art Raimo.

Another innovation will be the use of "Square Span." This new method of printing, devised to simplify reading, has appeared only two or three times since it was originated.

Plans Photo Section

While the material is well near completion, there is still room for more, and Editor Bob Quinn requested that all material be submitted on or before next Monday. This is to allow time for illustrations, layout, and printing to be completed before mid-November. In formulating plans for a prize-photo section, Quinn asked that all campus shutterbugs contact him immediately.

LKD Med Frat Now Active

The Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity held its first meeting of the year last Wednesday evening. The meeting opened with the introduction of officers by President Ed Fesco. They are Paul Garell, Tony Dudzic, Bud Russo, and Ed Brunner.

Paul Garell then explained the purposes of the fraternity, which are to promote friendship among the pre-medical students and to enable them to get together and hear prominent speakers from medical schools.

This latter Garell emphasized as the most important since it enables the members of the fraternity to get information on various medical schools. It also gives them hints on the best way to pass the admissions interviews, Garell explained.

President Fesco closed the meeting with the hope that the freshmen would take an interest in the fraternity's activities and join.

DPE MEMORIAL

Two former members of Delta Pi Epsilon (C & F fraternity) were recently killed in Korea. They are Robert T. Munday, class of 1950, and William Gaul, class of 1952.

A special Mass of Requiem will be celebrated at 12:00 noon tomorrow, Wednesday, by Rev. William Gordon, fraternity moderator. Fraternity members will attend the Mass in a group.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 23 THE AARDVARK

This classy campus caper-cutter got his snootful of cute cigarette tests. It didn't take him long to dig out the fact that cigarette mildness can't be determined by a mere single puff or quick-sniff experiment! Millions of smokers, on and off the campus, have discovered there's only one true test of cigarette mildness.

IT'S THE SENSIBLE TEST . . . the 30-day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a day-after-day basis. No snap judgments. Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

WILDCATS TOPPLE PENN STATE, 20-14; TRAVEL TO ALABAMA FRIDAY NIGHT

Twice-Defeated Crimson Tide Up For Friday Game

The undefeated and high-flying Villanova Widlcats take to the air again this Thursday as they travel to Tuscaloosa, Alabama to engage the twice-beaten Crimson Tide of Alabama, on Friday night, at Denny Stadium.

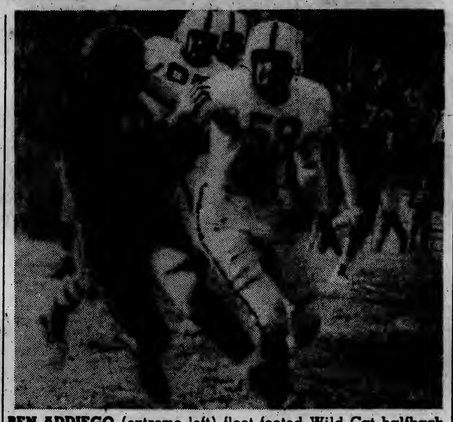
Alabama Twice Beaten

Fresh from their sparkling victory over the caged Lions of Penn State, the Wildcats will meet a team that was rated, before the season began, as one of the top five gridiron powers in the entire nation. However, two successive defeats in the past two weeks have left the pollsters guessing a scratching as to the 1951 football fate of 'Bama and this will be the game that the Crimson Tide MUST win to stay in any contention for top ten honors.

Villanova has no plans of making their Deep South invasion to Tuscaloosa merely for the purpose of putting Alabama back on its football feet again and they too, will be out dearly for this win.

Stop Marlow

If the Main Liners are to triumph they will have to stop the 'Bama right halfback, Bobby Marlow. Marlow, in 1950 gained 882 yards in 118 tries for a 7.47 yard-per-carry average, second best in the nation. The 196 pound "Troy Express" also shines on defense and as such rates as the Tide's best line-backer.



Another man to be stopped is Bimbo Melton ,their slight (163) but fast left halfback and Clell Hobson, their quarterback. The Alabama line will average about 210 pounds as compared to Villanova's 230 average. Jerry Watford, the Tide's agile guard is the main point in their line and he is one of the reasons why they set three conference records last year for first downs, plays from scrimmage and yards rushing.

Big Game for Both

Last year, Alabama was rated the best twice-beaten team in the nation and this year they were out to better themselves. After crushing Mississippi Delta State, 89-0, they met LSU and the Bayou boys put them back, 13-7. Last week, the Tide met Vanderbilt, their traditional rivals, and the Commodores trimmed them 22-20, so now they have already two defeats and they will have to win all their reaining games to equal their 1950 record.

Game Broadcast

The Villanova - Alabama football game will be broadcast on Friday night at Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Jim Leaming will carry the boadcast at 8:55 P. M. over WIP, 610 on the dial.

BEN ADDIEGO (extreme left) fleet footed Wild Cat halfback, displays some more of his fine broken field running as he reverses his field and breaks away from two Penn State tacklers, Wilson (85) and Shumock (58). Also visible is Bill Hegerty (70) Villanova tackle. This run gave the Wildcats a first down on the Lions 30 yard line.

Seventeen Frosh Bolster Main Line Varsity Eleven

By Joseph Corcoran

Last spring's ruling by the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference to the effect that, in the future, all freshmen would be eligible for varsity sports has introduced a number of new faces to followers of the Wildcat grid squad. Varsity jerseys were handed out to 17 frosh who'll forego their normal yearling seasoning games in order to add their talents to the senior Wildcats.

Many Local Prospects

Included in the rookie crop are one quarterback, 4 halves, 3 fullbacks, who, incidentally will alone furnish relief for Bob Haner when the Mainliners are on the offensive, a pair of ends, 2 centers, and 5 tackles. The lone "T"-master representing the class of '55 is southpaw tosser, Dick Scott. Those listed at halfback are all products of high schools in the Philadelphia area, Charlies Bruno and Wilson of Frankford and St. Matthew's of Conshohocken, respectively, Malvern's John Giordano, and Steve Smolczynski of North Catholic.

The freshmen slated to give Haner respites throughout the year incude John Sullivan of New Haven, Conn., Jack Helm from Downingtown, and Len Szafranski of Wilmington, Del.—end coach Alex Bell's hometown. Long Island's Chaminade High has contributed pivotman Joe Viverito to the 1951 edition of the Blue and White while Lancaster Catholic grads will be keeping a watchful eye on Tom Floyd, another fledgling center.

230 lb. Tackle

Joe Leichweiss, a brusing 230 lb. tackle who acquitted himself nobly in the West Point fray, hails from Harrison, N. Y. and graduated from Iona Prep last June. The four remaining frosh tackles are Stan Brzenk, who also received his baptism of fire in the Army game, Joe Kwapinski, of St. Joseph's in Camden, Dan Hurley from Medford, Mass., and John Keenan, fresh from Northeast High in Philly. Both of the recruit flankmen stand 3 inches over 6 feet, weigh about 200 lbs. and are fast and agile. By name they are Pete Haley of Wilson High School in Bethesda, Md., and Mike Mayock of St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia.

Haner Scores Three Times Before 16,000 At Allentown

By Bud Russo

The Villanova Wildcats squeezed by a never-say-die Nittany Lion team by 20-14, last Saturday at Allentown, before a sun-drenched crowd of 16,000 fans.

"Battling Bob" Haner bulled across the Penn State goal three times and kicked both extra points to account for all of the mainliner's points.

Joe Rilo, Co-captain, led his teammates with his amazing catches throughout the game. Ben Addiego and Dick Bedesem constantly clicked off yardage with their rapier-like running. Bill Brannau kept the game in hand with his cool field generaling and his fine ball handling. Nick Liotta, Bill Heggarty and Jake Patrick were just a few of the outstanding in Villanova's wall of defense.

Score On Fumble

Villanova's first score came after a recovered fumble on the State 16. Branau passed to Bedesem to the 2, and Haner smashed through the middle. The extra point was nullified because of a penalty, and the second try failed.

State who the previous week had come from behind three times to beat Boston U., bared its claw and fought back, finally surging ahead before the first half ended by scoring on a long pass and making the extra point.

Touchdown Recalled

Shortly before, a Villanova touchdown, Brannau to Rilo on a 55 yard pass, was called back because of a 15 yard penalty.

Trailing in the 3rd quarter, Brannau again fired a long spiral to Rilo who caught the ball and landed flat on his back on the two, with two Penn State men on him. Haner then hammered it acros and split the uprights to put the Wildcat's ahead 13-7.

Before the third quarter ended, Villanova scored its final tally. Again, Brannau to Rilo set it up, with Rilo garnering in a 35 yard pass on the Penn 20. Addiego waltzed it to the 2. For the third time Haner blasted the ball over.

Barry and Dwyer were clocked in the identical time of 20:51 over the four mile course. Coach Elliot was extremely pleased with the stellar performance of fledglings Utter and Fekete, who both figured in the team scoring.

Sports Chatter

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

The sports picture in this country in the last week has taken on the aspects of a movie double feature, with both pictures drawing as much attention. Early in the week it was the New York Giants, who stole the whole scene with their dramatic capture of the National League Pennant and their battle in the World Series with the Yankees. Later in the week (the weekend, to be exact) came college football, which is, believe it or not, almost four Saturdays old and beginning to take some definite form.

Villanova met and vanquished Penn State in a game which will be discussed more for what they players didn't do as what the officials did do. The whistle-happy refs handed out 129 yards in penalties to Villanova which gave us the questionably famous mark of 238 yards in penalties in two gmes.

While the Wildcats were taking care of Penn State there were other games going on which might have some effect on Villanova's football future in 1951. Alabama was being beaten by Vanderbilt, 22-20, and Kentucky was losing to Georgia Tech, 13-7. Both these teams were thought of as invincible in early September and if any person had said then that these teams would have two and three loses, respectively, at this stage of the season he would have been accused of sorcery, if not plain insanity.

There are two schools of thought concerning what the outcome of Villanova's meeting with them will be. One group claims that the Alabama, or the Kentucky team is already broken and that a good team like Villanova will be able to take care of them as an ordinary opponent.

The other group logically contends that the two teams (Alabama and Kentucky) will be up for their game with Villanova and will be eager to roll up a huge score in order to salvage what remnants of prestige might still be around. Villanova will enter these games as one of THE leading independent teams in the East and a victory over us would look good.

Both these groups in their analysis are overlooking the fact that Villanova, fresh from two victories and still undefeated, might be able to overcome them even at their best. Actually, the only way to find who is right is to wait and see the results as they are heard over WIP and make your conclusions from that.

Also, while this was going on last Saturday, the revamped Crusaders of Eddie Anderson, Holy Cross, was lacing it into Fordham at their own stamping grounds at Worchester. Fordham went into that fray undefeated but left the old mill town staggeing from a 54-20 defeat. Charlie Maloy is leading the Crusders with his strong-arm passing right into top contention. It may be that in six weeks or later the "experts" will be wishing that Villanova and Holy Cross would play each other so that the leading eastern independent could be determined.

Yesterday afternoon in Philadelphia, the Mainliner's little quarterback, Benny Addeigo, was awarded the Maxwell Award for being the outstanding football player in the East during last week. His 18 points against Army and his all-around play won him the distinction. Coach Art Raimo spoke at the presentation ceremonies. The award is given weekly during the season to the outstanding player of the previous week.

However, while Benny was getting this honor, he was losing another. Bob Haner surpassed him as the team's leading scorer when the stocky fullback rolled up 20 points at last week's Penn State game. Benny has scored 18 points via three Army touchdowns while Haner has 23 points. Bob made his points by three conversions at Army and three touchdowns and two conversions at Penn State. He made the third conversion at Penn State but a penalty nullified it and the retake was unsuccessful.

Touch Football Campaign Opens With 13 Teams

By JOHN GILLMAN

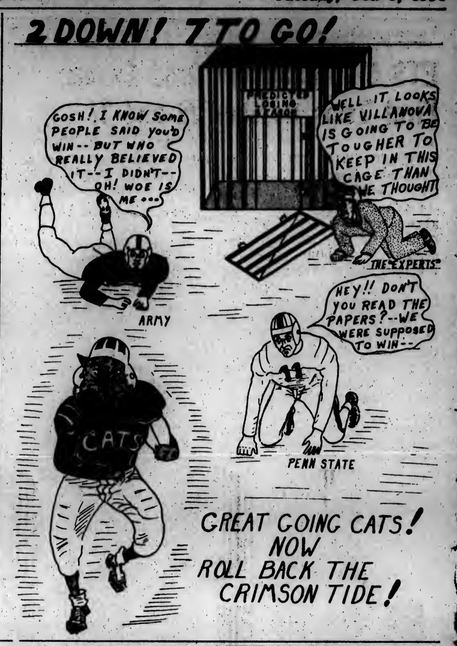
The 1951 Intra-Mural touch football season swung into action yesterday with games being played on both Mendel and Austin fields. At present, 13 teams are entered and chances for several more are expected. Fedigan, Alumni, and the Doms appear to be well-manned at this writing, since they have several of last year's stars returning.

Dorm Managers

Any individual wishing to get on his dormitory team should see his Dorm manager. They are:

Alumni—Henry Cauciglia, 102
Austin—John McDermott, 319
Bar. 1—Fr. Gallagher
Bar. 2—Jonathan Porter, 205
Bar. 3—Fr. Calpin
Bar. 4—Dick Gorman
Deludy—Fred Heigl
Fedigan—Bill Barbary, 105
Mendel — John Mulcahy, 240
O'Dwyer—Jack Hartung, 3
Simpson—Fr. Grimes
Good Counsel—Joe Billera, 344

Tennis Soon to Start



Tennis also will come into the limelight in the near future as soon as the draws are made for a large field which includes such well known players from last years as George McCann, Pat Highland, and Vahe Melconian. Mr. Powers hopes that the division of the tournament will give the less experienced players a chance to stay in competition instead of losing out in the early rounds.

Cross-Country Run

Early plans have already been made for an Intra-Mural cross-country run to be held on the campus a short time before Thanksgiving Day with a turkey to be given to each of the first two finishers.

Last year at the completion of all but the last event, which was the touch football game, the score was all tied up at 30 points apiece.

However the Sophs won out by a score of 40-35 on the strength of their victory in that contest. They won it 12-6 but the Frosh supplied the excitement by scoring their lone touchdown on the last play of the game, with a pass run combination which covered 85 yards.

After playing various college songs, the band boys formed a football which Drum Major Lou Havens then kicked, signifying the opening of the 1951 season.

Ironically enough, even the surgeon who operated upon him in the final stages of his incurable illness, cancer, was one of "his boys." Yet, though he gave willingly of his advice and counsel in the scientific field, his humility and innate goodness attracted many students to him for spiritual guidance.

Father Ludwig was not the ordinary teacher. Zealous, conscientious and hardworking, he is likely to be remembered for many reasons. During his twenty years' service to Villanova he made many loyal friends and created inestimable goodwill for the school.

Seniors Hold Vote Tomorrow To Decide Father's Day Issue

The Senior Class decided tentatively on two important issues—Father's Day and the Prom Band—at a meeting last Thursday evening in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

It was decided that Father's Day will be referred to a ballot by the class tomorrow in the Pie Shop. The issue is whether the function should be held November 10 or on some future date in the second semester.

Several bands were discussed for the senior prom, but one drew overwhelming support and was selected. Class officials stated after the meeting that the selection would be made public as soon as some definite arrangement is contracted. They emphasized that it would be premature to name a band until it was under contract.

The Father's Day issue was hotly debated. Those supporting the November 10 date are urging its acceptance so that the function may be held in conjunction with the Detroit Football Game on that date. Those opposing that date urge that the issue be put aside until some time in the second semester. President Philip Brennan urged all Seniors to cast a ballot in the Pie Shop tomorrow on this issue.

NROTC Middies and Marching Band Parade at Allentown Football Game

Make Home Debut For 1951 Season

Allentown High's million dollar stadium was the site of the Villanova Midshipmen Battalion's first public appearance of the year last Saturday when they marched onto the field prior to the game.

Under the leadership of Midshipman Cmdr. George Crist, the NROTC was preceded in march by the Villanova marching band, under the direction of Paul Teal.

Generally reserving their marching until one of the home games at Franklin Field or Shibe Park, this year's appearance at Allentown was the first time the entire battalion has ever traveled en masse. Having been well advertised beforehand in the Queen City, the Wildcat sailors were well received as they gave the traditional Navy cheers for the opponents and the home forces.

Navy Drill Champs

Because of the early date of the game, only the three upper classes took part in the ceremonies. The entire battalion, including the freshmen, is expected to strut their stuff again in Philadelphia on November 10, when the Mainliners meet Detroit. The NROTC Fancy Drill Team, Fourth Naval District Champions will make their initial showing at this time.

At Army last week, the marching band for the first time, used the policy of having a man in the press box informing the spectators of the meaning of the band's maneuvers over the public ad-

Juniors Will Discuss Rings At Class Meeting Thursday

With sales talks, samples, and interviews over, the ring committee of the Class of 1953 is now ready to bring its findings before the entire class. This initial meeting of the Junior Class will take place Thursday evening at 7:30 in the Commerce and Finance auditorium.

Although the prime purpose of this meeting is to discuss the class rings, President Paul Sollami will bring other matters before the group. Presentation of the following chairmen elected by the steering committee, will also be an important part of the meeting: Hugh Flaherty, Mother's Day; Art DeVittis, St. John's Orphanage; Joe Ranieri, Blazer Ball; Bob Quinn, Blazer Jackets; Don Brown, Junior Prom, and Dan O'Connell, Dinner Dance.

President Sollami has stressed the point that this first class meeting is of the utmost importance to all Juniors. "A large turnout is bound to insure a successful year for the class," he advised. Refreshments will be served following the completion of the business at hand.

Seniors Vote NO For November 10 Father's Day

In a balloting conducted last Wednesday at the Pie Shop, the Senior Class decided 140 to 57, to hold Father's Day at some possible future date instead of November 10, as was originally proposed.

At a class meeting held two weeks ago, the vote on the proposal ended up in a tie, so President Phil Brennan decided to put the decision up to a general class vote, which produced the unanimous verdict.

Brennan stressed, however, that everything possible would be done to make the much discussed event a reality, probably sometime during the second semester.

Prom Heads Named

In other activity Wednesday, the Senior Prom committee met to get plans organized for the Belle-Air Ball which is scheduled for Washington's Birthday, February 22.

Bob Beers, Prom chairman, named the men to head the various committees for the dance. Bill Schilling and Jack Kelly will be in charge of the decorations, Jeff Rioux will head the Orchestra committee, and Bob Roland will handle publicity.

Whitey Schnieder was named as refreshment chairman, Frank Garvey and Lou Oberle, programs; and Joe Mascuch will head the ticket committee.

These men all have a big job on their hands, said Beers, therefore any man who is interested in helping on any of the committees should get in touch with one of the five above named men.

Student Tests For Deferment Given Again

The Director of Selective Service is again making it possible for college students to qualify for deferment from military service. Students may qualify by attaining a minimum score on the College Qualification Test to be given Dec. 13, 1951, and April 24, 1952.

Any full-time college student between the ages of 18 and 26 is permitted to take the examination. In order to take the test, one must procure an application blank from a selective service local board and mail it to the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey.

Forms at Bryn Mawr

Applications do not have to be obtained from one's own draft board. Villanova students may get the blanks at the draft board in Bryn Mawr. The board's address is War Memorial Bldg., 9 S. Bryn Mawr Ave.

The blanks should be sent in as soon as possible regardless of the date on which you choose to take the test. Applications for the Dec. 13 test must be postmarked not later than midnight, Nov. 5.

Urges All to Take Test

Rev. Joseph Boyle, O.S.A., Coordinator of Military Affairs, strongly urges all students who are eligible to take the examination to do so. Some students unnecessarily handicapped themselves by not taking the test. Last year between 350 and 400 Villanovans took the exam. At least 500 men were eligible. This means some 100 students passed up the opportunity.

Father Boyle said "At least a dozen of our students who did not take the exam have been called to report for preinduction physical examination."

Reserves Need Exam

Men who are currently in reserve organizations such as Villanova's NROTC should also avail themselves of this opportunity to take the College Qualification Test. Changes in the regulations which may result from the diminishing man power pool, might easily cause a situation where students in such reserve groups would have to depend upon a deferment as a student in order to remain in college.

Although a "passing" mark on this exam does not insure one of deferment, it will count heavily towards that end. In considering college students for exemptions, most draft boards are placing more emphasis upon the score achieved on this test than upon class standing.

Cotillion Postponed Till Early December

Field House Repairs Cause Setback Berry Still Confident Of Success

By Jim Nolin

The Sophomore Cotillion has been postponed for about six weeks due to the construction work in the Field House, Steve Berry, Cotillion chairman was informed last week.

College officials expressed their hope that a successful dance could be held as soon as possible after Dec. 1, the new date advanced by the contractor for the completion of the repairs.

Labor Delays

Due to unforseen labor difficulties and a shortage of necessary materials, the original finishing date of September 26, had to be pushed back. Also, because only the Field House was large enough to accommodate registration and retreat, the workers lost another fifteen days.

The walls of the Field House are being entirely refinished, and a shortage of some of the materials held back progress. The Cotillion will probably be the only dance held before Christmas, because of Advent, which is usually closed season for social events. No change in the scheduling of basketball games is foreseen at this time.

Steve Berry, Cotillion chairman, expressed his disappointment at the unexpected news, but added that he and the committee heads will continue to work towards the biggest Sophomore Cotillion ever.

MUFF Day Thursday After Rainy Delay

A muddy track and rain have combined to postpone Muff Day scheduled for last Thursday, until next Thursday, October 18. Place and time remain the same, 4:30 in the stadium.

The bad weather has caused regret in both camps. The Sophs are sorry because, to quote one of their managers, "we will have to wait until next week to show our superiority over the Freshmen," while the Frosh claim that the Sophomores had to resort to aid from the weather man to keep them under Orientation rules for another week.

Both sides were quick to add however, that the delay will in no way affect their teams' condition, and that victory for them is a foregone conclusion.

Anyone who thinks he can strengthen his class' team, should get in touch with Freshman Managers Edward Rogers, 125, Bar 1; Edward Zahorsky, 417, Bar 4; or Dom Borrelli, day hop, or with the Soph mentors, John Fucigna, 323 Fedigan, or Chuck McGucken, 326 Fedigan.

RAINED OUT—MUFF Day managers stand in the rain last Thursday on the stadium field where Sophs were slated to meet Frosh in athletic contests to determine the end of orientation. Frosh managers Joe Rogers, left, tests the precipitation while Sophs Charley McGuckin, center, and John Fucigna just look glum about the whole thing. They'll get another try this Thursday, weather permitting.

Congratulations in Order

We usually take a quick look at most of the papers received in this office from the collegiate exchange, and last week one of them made a particular impression. In was the "Hawk" from St. Joseph's College here in Phildelphia. Across the top of the front page appeared the numerals 1851-1951.

A little puzzled, we investigated further, and found the numbers to signify that this year is the centenary of St. Joseph's, the hundredth anniversary of Jesuit education in Philadelphia.

On a memorable occasion such as this we have decided to throw off all the assumed friendly rivalry with the Jesuits and the St. Joe's men, and sincerely extend the congratulations of Villanova to a brother college working for the same ideals under the same conditions.

Villanova was not even a decade old itself when the American missionaries of the Jesuit Order planted on City Line avenue their Old World traditions of well-founded Catholic education. From the beginnings, both schools have held as their basic tenets of education that size and quantity are not measures of intellectual or spiritual progress. Virtually side by side, in geography as well as in ideals, the two colleges have brought sound cultural training to Catholic men of Philadelphia and the rest of the nation.

On our Main Line campus we are familiar with the accomplishments of Villanova in its 109 years. In almost as long a time St. Joseph's has carved out for itself an equally inspiring record.

In its century of existence St. Joseph's has produced 13 college presidents, four Catholic bishops and several hundred priests, Jesuit, secular and in other religious orders.

Its graduates in the legal and medical professions have risen to places of distinction. Of its 3500 living alumni, a majority of them residing in the Philadelphia area, there are 327 surgeons and physicians and 218 lawyers.

That's not a bad contribution to Church and country coming from any college at all. In fact, viewing St. Joe's record, we are even willing to call off the journalistic duel of sorts that has been popping up on occasion between this paper and the "Hawk." The college as a whole rates a handshake on its centenary this year, and let's hope Villanov's salutation is one of the heartiest.

Evening Div. Adds C&F, Engineers

By Al Hennessey

Several of the courses in the Evening Division of the college have accompanied the School of Nursing to the campus this fall, according to an announcement by Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O. S. A., Ph.D., Dean of the Graduate anu Extension schools.

Father McCarthy reported that courses in Accounting, Marketing and Engineering are now being held evenings in Mendal Hall. He pointed out that these classes are held for the benefit of adults seeking further education in a specific field, who are prevented from attenaing regular college sessions.

Classes are held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

New Additions to School

The Dean said that the Marketing and Engineering courses are new additions to the evening school curriculum, in that they have not previously been offered at Hallahan High School, where all courses in the Evening Division have previously been held.

The Accounting course prepares the student for the position of Accountant, Auditor or Comptroller. The curriculum emphasizes Accounting, but includes courses in Business Law, Finance and Economics.

Preparing for Distribution

Marketing majors are preparing positions in the field of distribution. Preparation is in the areas of wholesaling, retailing, advertising, personnel and related fields.

The Engineering Certificate Course is designed to provide technical training for industrial personnel. The program provides basic engineering knowledge applicable to industrial positions. Sufficient mathematics is provided in this course to provide the necessary background for Physics and all Engineering subjects.

Drawing Is Included

Also included in the Engineering course is a class in Drawing, intended to enable the student to be proficient in composing and reading shop drawings, and likewise intended to supply the prerequisites for machine design.

The Engineering Materials course covers the manufacture, properties and uses of the more common materials used by the engineer.

Britain's Elections Should Settle War

By Jim Glavin

Great Britain goes to the polls in a national election October 25. The English people seem confident that a change in government will occur on that date. They, and people the world over, feel that Winston Churchill will once again become Prime Minister, replacing Clement Attlee at 10 Downing Street, London.

The attitude in England today is much the same as it was in the United States in 1948. "Dewey can't lose," Americans said then. "Churchill can't lose," Britishers say now. Is Attlee another Truman? The possibility that Attlee will pull a Harry Truman and remain in power is, by many people, considered very remote.

"Can't Be Worse"

The fact that Churchill is considered a "shoo-in" does not stem from any new popularity gains by the man. Rather, it seems to stem from an attitude of "let's get new faces—things can't be worse" by the English.

What of the present Winston Churchill, who seems destined to return to power? As has already been recorded by history, Churchill is a great leader and a great admirer of the United States. He has a firmness of character that will not see him deviate from the course he first chooses.

But, more important, how will American relations with Great Britain be affected if Churchill is returned to power? If he is returned to power, the former prime minister would probably spend more personal time in international affairs and relations than Mr. Attlee has, leaving the domestic affairs to his associates. Mr. Churchill is

And The Flags And The Trumpets We Hardly Know Ourselves Today

- By Jim Griffin -

Stone, bronze, stone, steel, stone, oakleaves, horses' heels
Over the paving.
And the flags. And the trumpets. And so many eagles.
How many? Count them. And such a press of people.
We hardly knew ourselves that day, or knew the city.
—T. S. Eliot

We hardly knew ourselves that day, or knew the city.

Know thyself! It isn't quite as easy as it seems. It's tough at times to cut through the maze of excuse and rationalization which surrounds one's inner self, and to get at the core, at the real genuine person which thrives beneath the camouflage. And many never bother to try.

How ironical the situation seems. With all the clatter and din of power and politics, with all the beating of drums and blaring of trumpets which surround our high-powered democracy, we hardly know ourselves.

Know Yourself First

Perhaps that is our basic difficulty. Perhaps the floundering free world is searching in vain for a solution to the involute problems of international relations. Perhaps a prerequisite to a world which knows itself is a world composed of people, each of whom knows himself. And with this condition satisfied, perhaps the problems of the world would shrivel to trivialities, wither away and die on the vine.

For a man who knows himself is a man who has trouble doing the wrong thing. It is only when a man allows himself to be confused by the artful cajoling of his appetite, to be led astray by the clever rationalizations which shut off or at least dim his conscience—only then is he a man to whom the wrong thing seems right.

Only then, when he has lost the true picture of his selfish, erring self, and substituted the wronged, indignant, sufferer he tells himself he is.

Build from the Bottom

Let's start at the bottom to build this world civilization we hope some day to see. And let's combine that job with a more urgent and a more personal one—that of saving our own immortal soul. Let's look closely at ourselves, at the men we really are, and try to do something about it.

Cross off the good skate your buddies consider you. Check into all the little selfish traits you've cultivated and kept under cover. Analyze your reactions to situations which might strain the high standards you think you hold for yourself. It may be disappointing at first, but it will inevitably send you where you must go for help—to God and His Mother. For no matter what one finds deep down inside, he can correct and sanctify, if only he is willing to ask for help. It might not be so tough as it seems, and it's surely worth the try.

Young Webster Now Living Real Life Of Colligian Tea Dancer

by Bob Allen

You can't be within 6 inches of a Twomp without noticing it.

As I left Austin Hall last Tuesday, I sensed that there was something traveling along beside me, very close to the ground. It was round and blue, with a small, white dot on top.

Hoping to do some service to Villanova, I stepped on it, and to my surprise, it yelped, "Please getcha foot offa me dink, please. It cost a dollar." On closer examination, the thing turned out to be Nature's answer to the ju-jube, Webster Twomp.

Webster Begins Story

I introduced myself, telling him of Brenninghouse's recommendation, and before we had piggybacked as far as Mendel Hall, we were fast friends. Webster told me of his many problems, since Registration Day.

"I went in the wrong door at registration," he said, "an' afore I knew it, I bought all Section 28 for the Army game."

He told how, before the Stadium Rally, "Killer" Koenig had found him too frail for the mock Army team. Karl was afraid that Webster might collapse when the lights hit his eyes. Having failed to make the squad, Webster went the way of all old soldiers. He faded away into THE FOREST.

Fights Fires

As consolation, Leader Koenig allowed Webster to ride on the fire engine, but unfortunately, he fell asleep under the ladder. He had put out three fires in Devon and two in Wayne, before he realized the rally was over.

The brightest spot in Webster's relation was how he had progressed socially, since his arrival. He commented, especially, on Rosemont's Dewdrop Hop.

"I never saw such nice people in me life," he remarked. "They gave me a paper cup, when I came in, and all I had to do was open the window for a glass of water." He expressed surprise, however, that there were some Villanovans who kept saying, "This is all wet," even after they had come in out of the rain.

Surprised While Dancing

While dancing in the crowd, Webster, overcome with curiosity, reached upward and removed his partner's rain hat. It was Billy Brannau. Drawing his lower lip slowly off the floor, Webster retreated apologetically.

Finally he met and danced with the girl of his dreams—petite, beautiful, soft-spoken, agreeable, considerate, attractive, understanding. As always happens to Webster, she had to leave just as they were getting acquainted. She bid him a hasty, "My girl friends are waiting," and hurried toward the door.

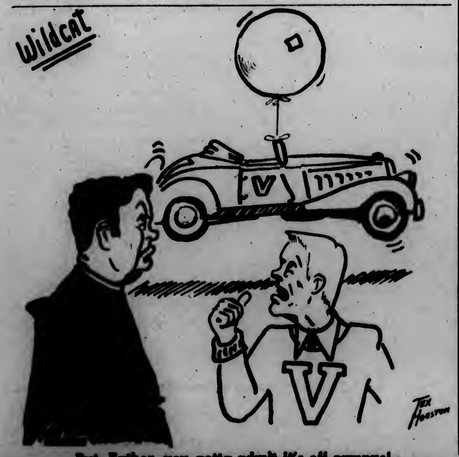
PASHA THE PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

TINGLING TITLE: Gene Ruane, Villanova's publicity man, received a crowning blow at the Penn State game. . . . After a day of nervous exhaustion, Gene's attention was called to a story lead in the program. . . . "State Penn Officials." . . . Fortunately the game was being played on a neutral field. . . . This col'm thought the title quite appropriate after the 'Cats were penalized 128 yards to State's 20 yards. . . . The ref just didn't understand our boys, who become somewhat peeved when the opposition attempts to extract a number of molars with five digits in a fistic formation.



INTESTINAL FORTITUDE: After a grueling afternoon on the gridiron which eventually led to his being taken from the game, Jack Patrick exhibited more of the "Stuff" that is making the Wildcats the talk of the East this year. . . . While being carried from the field on a stretcher, Jack looked up to the stands and gave a reassuring wave to the folks in order to let them know that the injury wasn't as serious as it might appear. . . . You can't beat a team that possesses men with that brand of spirit.

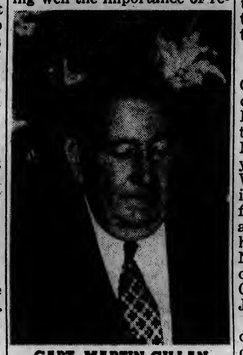
AND THE WALLS COME TUMBLIN' DOWN: Went walking the Lancaster Circuit last ehyam and happened to amble into the Field House where the new improvements are underway. . . . The gym floor resembled a picture of the Dust Bowl district which was left in the wake of the tremendous wind storms that swept the West a few years back and which wiped out many a farmer's retreat. . . . The dust was about two inches thick except in the spots where it had drifted. . . . Here, it was a good seven inches. . . . From the looks of things, it will be sometime before a social gathering is held within those former walls. . . . It would be a nice gesture on the part of the student body if it would send a "Get Well" card to the channel swimmer who is residing in the infirmary. . . . Seems that he took a running dive into the swimming pool and was half way down before his attention was called to the fact that there wasn't any water in the pool. . . . It was all for the better anyway. . . . He had forgot to hold his nose.

TYPICALLY SOPH ERROR: It is a fortunate occurrence in regards to the Field House situation for the Sofymores. . . . It will give them an opportunity to obtain a refund on the tickets that have been printed for the gala Soph social. . . . Seems that the person who proof-read the tickets before they were turned out enmasse overlooked the spelling of SOPHOMORE'S. . . . Those "O's" do become evasive at times.

EVENING REVERIE For those who are looking for entertainment on the week-ends after the week long burden of studies, this col'm would like to recommend the "Three men of Note" that are appearing Fri. and Sat. Nites down around Bryn Mawr way. . . . This promises to be an up and coming trio for the Main Line. . . . You'll like their renditions of all the new hits that are flooding the juke boxes across the nation. . . . Notice on a local marquee—"They Died with their Boots on and Selected Shorts." . . . The Hamburger Hearth was the scene of mild enthusiasam last week when the fellow in the kitchen threw out a pair of horse shoes. . . . They still have the finest in ground beef on the Main Line promenade.

RINGIN' FOR RANGE: Don't know how many of those present on the campus remember the great Harry Range who always held the mark of distinction of being the founder of the "Old Corps" but for those who do, Harry is about to take the big step. . . . Yes, he is getting married on the 10th of November. . . . This is the same date as that of the Detroit game. . . . Must be serious for those who knew Harry, the illustrious sports editor of old, just can't picture the old boy missing a football contest.

But, Father, you gotta admit it's off campus!



Research Division Opens In Galberry

Little Known Department Active Industrial Development Lab

By Joe Mascuch

Probably not half of the students at Villanova know the location of Galberry Hall. However, it is there that the new Research and Development Division is doing work which bids fair to spread the name of Villanova College far and wide in educational circles. Galberry Hall is at the extreme east end of the campus, just beyond the stadium.

In May of 1949, our president, the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., knowing well the importance of research to the college and the nation, established the Research and Development Division of Villanova College.

CAPT. MARTIN GILLAN

Division Co-ordinated Research

This division co-ordinated all research going on on campus, with the prime purpose of advancing the educational value and policies of the college and to aid and encourage members of the faculty to undertake basic and applied research. It was upon this principle that the Research and Development Division was formed, with Captain Martin J. Gillan as its head. He is assisted by an advisory council.

Comprising the advisory council are six well known members of the Villanova faculty, Professor John J. Gallen, head of the Civil Engineering Department, Professor Robert E. White, head of the Chemical Engineering Department, Professor Miles B. Potter, of the Civil Engineering Department, Professor George H. Auth, of the Mechanical Engineering Department, Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A. of the Mechanical Eigineering Department, Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., head of the Electrical Engineering Department.

During our interview with Captain Gillan he emphasized that these men had freely given a great deal of their time and that they had contributed immeasurably in organizing and starting research.

Galberry New Quarters

All research had been undertaken in the school labs until June of this year, when the division occupied its present quarters in Galberry Hall. Here, all summer long, many members of the faculty worked for the advancement of research, and to paraphrase Captain Gillan, did an outstanding job in a very short time.

The Research and Development Division has completed some thirty-five projects since its formation in 1949, all but three of which were sponsored by industry in the community and the Federal Government, the Bureau of Ordnance of the Navy Department in particular.

Research in Hydrogenation

Fr. Edward F. Jenkins, O.S.A., for example, has been doing research on High Pressure Hydrogenation for the Research Corporation of New York for close to two years. Professor Robert E. White, of Chemical Engineering has been doing research for the Lukens Steel Corporation of Coatesville, Pa. Work has also been done for the Neapco Products Corporation of Pottstown, Pa., and for Consumers' Research in New Jersey.

The division is now working on two tasks for the Bureau of Naval Ordnance. They are preparing acceptance inspection instructions. This requires highly skilled technicians and the staff members have fulfilled that need. The nature of the work being done prevents publication of details, but that Villanova is doing its share for the advancement of science, we can be sure.

Captain Gillan Pleased

Captain Gillan said that he was exceptionally well pleased with the work the division was doing. He remarked that in doing this work, Villanova College is contributing considerably to the National Defense Program and that Villanova would continue to measure up to all colleges and to contribute to the advancement of higher education.

Research in all departments has recently been co-ordinated under the Research and Development Division of the college. Soon perhaps, we can more fully know, "What they are doing in Galberry Hall."

NOW UNDER REPAIR. Galberry Hall at the far end of the campus beyond the stadium, has been in use since last June as the site of operations for Villanova's Research and Development division. Formerly a residence hall for campus maintenance workers, the building will soon be ready for capacity operations. It was named for one of Villanova's former presidents.

All Souls Cards Available Now

College Chaplain, Rev. E. T. Grimes, O.S.A., wishes to remind all students that All Soul's Day cards are now available at his affice.

Students are requested to pick these cards up and fill them out with the names of all deceased members of their families, friends and others they would like to have remembered at Mass during the month of November, the month devoted to the Faithful Departed.

If filled out and returned before All Soul's Day, November 2, the cards will be placed on the main altar of the chapel. Those named on them will be remembered in every Mass offered in the College Chapel during the month.

William Ryan Given First Tool Engineer's Scholarship

Winner, Engineering Senior, Tops In Class

William Paul Ryan, of Collingdale, Pennsylvania, Engineering Senior at Villanova, has been announced as a winner of the first National Scholarship Contest sponsored by the American Society of Tool Engineers.

WILLIAM RYAN
Wins ASTE Scholarship

The scholastic award is given only to outstanding students preparing themselves for entering industry in some phase of tool or production engineering. Taken into account in awarding the scholarship were the recommendation of J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of Villanova School of Engineering, and the fact that Ryan has earned all of his college expenses to date except part of his board.

He also ranks first in his engineering class at Villanova. In earning his college expenses, he has worked during vacations for several companies including Penn Beef Company as a clerk, Sun Ship Company as a ship fitter's helper and Berlanti Construction Company as a highway construction worker.

In addition to the National Scholarship, he won a scholarship award sponsored by the Philadelphia Chapter of the ASTE last year.

The ASTE is the national technical society of some 19,000 engineers concerned with manufacturing processes and equipment in industry.

Spanish Glee Club Will Entertain December Meeting

Frank Cauz, newly elected president of the Spanish Club, welcomed members of the club to the initial meeting of the year, held last Tuesday night in the C&F auditorium. Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., club moderator, told of plans for "Spanish Night" which is to be held in December.

Father Lozano introduced George Downing and Juan Donestevez, as new Vice-president and Secretary respectively. Jim Nolin is Treasurer.

All members interested in joining the Spanish Glee Club, which will entertain on Spanish Night, are requested to see Father Lozano immediately.

The treasurer reported there was thirty dollars in the treasury and urged all members to pay dues promptly. Membership cards will be distributed by Father Lozano and the other teachers of Spanish, upon payment of dues.

It was also mentioned that a special subscription rate for the Spanish magazine Americus, can be secured. It will be available to members only, at the price of one dollar for five months and one dollar seventy five cents for nine months.

Writing to students in Spanish-speaking countries, a campaign of the International Society of Spanish Students, will be one of the activities of the club.

Meetings will be held once a month. Announcement will be made in the "Villanovan," and on the bulletin boards of group activities.

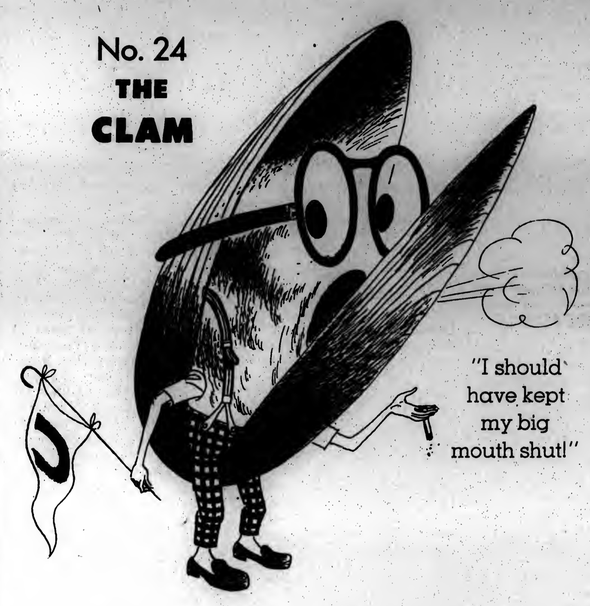
ASCE Members Observe Engineer Advancements in Phila. District

The Villanova Student Chapter of American Society of Civil Engineers participated in a tour of recent municipal improvements in Phila. last Tuesday, Oct. 8. The inspection trip was arranged through the cooperation of the Phila. chapter of the engineering society and the American Public Works Association.

The Phila. Dept. of Public Works, under the able direction of Mr. Thomas Buckley, provided transportation, P. A. systems, motorcycle police escort, and well informed engineers who gave precise descriptive accounts of projects visited.

Chief Engineer Samuel Baxter and Engineer Elmer Black of city's Public Works Dept., acted as field generals for the party. Dean John Gallen and Professor Charles Georgi accompanied the embryo engineers.



The itinerary provided an afternoon field trip to the Market Street Subway Portal, International Air Terminal Building, Southwest Sewage Treatment Works, Penrose Avenue Bridge, Rubbish Incinerator, and Pier 80, South.

The afternoon's activities were discussed in the relaxing atmosphere of the Engineers' Club Bar, after which dinner was served.

A vivid and complete discussion of the erection of the Penrose Avenue Bridge was presented by Mr. Frank Masters of Modjeski & Masters, and Mr. Leon Gurkey of Bethlehem Steel Corp.

"I should have kept my big mouth shut!"

Fresh out of Bivalve, N. J., he arrived on the campus all bug-eyed and his big mouth hanging open. He was immediately sucked into a "shell game" and found himself making all the quick-trick cigarette tests. But his native instinct told him that such an important item as cigarette mildness couldn't be tossed off lightly. Millions of smokers everywhere have discovered, too, that there's but one true test of mildness.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke... on a pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

Wildcats Roll Back Crimson Tide, 41-18; Meet Kentucky In Saturday Nite Tilt

Parilli and Co. Thrice Beaten, Ready for 'Cats

Villanova's undefeated football team — victor in three straight games this season — leaves this Friday morning for Lexington, Kentucky in preparation for their Saturday night stuggle with the Blue Grass Wildcats.

Paul Bryant's charges, after dropping three straight, have finally been able to get their band wagon moving again. Last Saturday they downed Mississippi State with ease, 27-0. Despite this the Kenturky team in 1951 has been a failure.

After winning their opening game they lost three straight to Texas, Georgia Tech and Mississippi. However, the combined difference in point scores in the three games total only eleven points.

Sure Top Ten

Before the season started Kentucky was regarded as a sure thing to make the nation's top ten, despite the fact that the team had lost nineteen veterans through graduation. The main reason for this selection was the fact that despite the nineteen men not coming back ONE was returning. This one returnee was a 188 pound quarterback—Babe Parilli.

Babe Parilli is a boy who ranks a slight bit behind the Kentucky Derby as the Blue Grass State's best athletic attraction. Considering the fact that the "Run for the Roses" is about 55 years older that's not a bad distinction.

"Kentucky Babe"

Parilli holds the Southeastern Conference record for yardage gained in one season, 1627 and touchdown passes completed, 23. Babe has shown his class and ability every time the two Wildcat schools have gotten together on the gridiron and most experts agree that if Villanova is to continue undefeated their main task will be keeping Parilli from throwing any of those TD passes.

Has Rugged Line

Although Kentucky has lost nineteen lettermen, the situation has not become too serious. The team has seven other quarterbacks, eighteen halfbacks and five fullbacks plus a rugged line. Defensively, the nineteen man loss will be felt more severely.

Kentucky was first in defense in the nation in 1949 and second in '50. This year's line will have Jim MacKenzie at tackle, Gene Donaldson at

Wildcats Against Wildcats Always A Crowd Thriller

By Joe Corcoran

Won none, lost two, and tied one. Those figures relate Villanova's position in its series with Kentucky as the two Wildcat elevens prepare for their fourth entanglement, due Saturday evening at Lexington.

It's Wildcat versus Wildcat, Blue and White against Blue and White in this renewal of the youthful rivalry which had its inception in the late Great Lakes Bowl at Cleveland in December of 1947.

Bowl Score 24-14

The Mainliners dropped that one, a 24 to 14 decision, in Municipal Stadium and have had trouble righting themselves since. Jumping off to a 10 to 0 halftime spread, the Southerners fought off a late Villanova surge to win. Sparked by Andy Gordon's passing, our Wildcats cut the lead only to have Kentucky register the clinching points on an interception of an errant toss by Gordon. Ralph Pasquariello, playing his first season of varsity ball, scored Villanova's initial T.D. on a 10-yard thrust while John Sheahan snared a Gordon pass for the other tally.

Villanova travelled to Lexington in 1948 for its second crack at "Bear" Bryant's Dixieland Wildcats. Rain, a nullified pass - interference penalty, and a story book finish by the Blue Grass boys thwarted the visitors' victory bid in the 13-13 deadlock.

Cats Tally Twice

The Mainliners tallied twice in the opening half, Bill Doherty and Bob Polidor firing scoring aerials to Ed Berrang and Frank Kane. Early in the fourth period, with Villanova leading, 13 to 6, pass interference was called against the Kentuckians on their two, but was nullified by a backfield-in-motion ruling charged to Jordan Olivar's men. That threat having been foiled, Kentucky unleashed a 61-yard touchdown pass in the last eight seconds, from George Blanda to Jim Howe and stood by, anxiously, as Jim Brooks tied the 13th and deadlocking point.

Franklin Field Was '50 Scene

The Mainliners met Kentucky again after a one year lapse, playing host to them last fall at Franklin Field. Our feline brethren, romping through a schedule marred only by a later 7-0 upset at the hands of the Tennessee Vols and capped with a Sugar Bowl victory over the previously undefeated Oklahoma Sooners, trounced Villanova, 34 to 7. The victors, paced by All-Americans "Babe" Parilli and Bob Gain, jumped to a 20-0 advantage at the intermission, and coasted through the second half.

Parilli Our Nemesis

Parilli, who set a collegiate record last autumn with his 23 scoring heaves, passed for one touchdown and tallied another in the rout. Pete D' Alonzo, top ground gainer of the day with 102 yards to his credit, marked up the only six-pointer of the day for our Wildcats, a one-yard plunge midway in the final stanza.

Parilli's back, but Gain is gone and the Kentuckians seem to miss the huge tackle this year. With three unfavorable verdicts in their first four starts, the men of Bryant will be at their clawing peak. But then again, so will Brannau, Liotta and Co.

Addiego Again Honored As the Week's Best Back

Halfback Ben Addiego was honored yesterday by the Brooks-Irvine Memorial Football Club as the "College Back of the Week" for his outstanding play in Villanova's victories over Army, Penn State and Alabama.

The award was made at the weekly luncheon meeting of the club at Kenney's Restaurant in Camden, New Jersey.

Coach Art Raimo shared the spotlight with his pupil and was principal speaker at the affair.

Haner, Addiego, Bedesem And Rilo Share Scoring

Defensive Line Limits Tide to 64 Yads Rushing; 'Cats Gain Season High of 421

By BUD RUSSO

Before a crowd of 15,000 stunned Southern rooters the Villanova Wildcats struck with such surprising fury that it left the Crimson Tide of Alabama a mere backwash behind a 41-18 score at Denny Field, Tuscaloosa. Villanova humbly went into the game a 12 point underdog, however, Alabama came out greatly embarassed by going down to its worst defeat in forty-four years.

Villanova led 21-0 at the first half and then came back in the second to match Alabama touchdown for touchdown.

The Main Liners proved themselves outstanding on defense as well offense, as they limited Alabama to a total of 64 yards on the grourid. In the air they showed their weakness as Alabama gained two touchdowns and a total of 181 yards.

Line Play Outstanding

The line men played heads up football. Farragalli and Fitzpatrick recovered several fumbles; Gildea, Leichweiss, Kershaw, Coughlan, Cecere and co-captain Nick Liotta were outstanding on defense all evening.

Villanova's offense was geared to three big, fast speedsters in the way of Dick Bedesem, Ben Addiego and Bob Haner, who averaged 5.6, 7, and 6.3 yards respectively to roll up a total of 348 yards of the 421 gained for the night. The 41 points were well distributed among Haner, Addiego, Bedesem and Rilo.

The first quarter proved uneventful in the way of scoring. Haner broke away and got to Alabama's 20 for the only threat Farragalli later blocked on Alabama kick and Villanova opened up an attack that fizzled on the 22.

However, in the second quarter Farragalli again gave the Villanovan's another chance as he recovered a fumble on the Alabama 20. The Wildcat's didn't let this opportunity slip by and in four plays put over the first of a series to follow. Haner converted and the 'Cats led 7-0.

Farragalli Again

The second touchdown was set up when Fitzpatrick recovered a fumble on Alabama's 15. Bedesem brought this one to pay dirt. In less than three minute Farragalli recovered another Alabama fumble. Two plays later Alabama was behind 21-0 as Ben Addiego, behind some fine blocking, went all the way.

The second quarter opened with a fighting Alabama team marching 69 yards for their first touchdown. Alabama's Bobby Marlow bulled over from the one. The extra point was not good.

Villanova's Wildcats immediately came back with a 67 yard drive of their own, topping it with an eight yard touchdown pass to co-captain Joe Rilo from Brannau. Haner made the boot and the score was 28-6.

The Crimson Tide then took to the air and scored on a 75-yard aerial, Hobson to MacAfee, which put them behind only 28-12 at the beginning of the fourth quarter.

'Cats Stike Back

Not fazed in the least, Villanova began another drive which went for 66 yards in seven tries, with Bedesem doing the honors. The extra point was not good as Haner's understudy failed to connect, so the Blue and White lead 34-12.

Undaunted, Alabama came back with anther passing attack to score it's third and last touchdown, again it was Hobson to MacAfee. Alabama kept its record clean by again failing to get any of its extra points.

The Mainliner's shrugged this off and started another march of 66 yards down field for the final touchdown of the game. Ben Addiego took it over from the four. The score lengthened to 41-18 as Haner booted it over.

Cat vs. Cat

Bill Brannau again proved his cool resourcefulness as he piloted the Wildcat's to their third consecutive victory. At this rate he will soon stand out as one of the nations finest quarterbacks.

Sports Chatter

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

Last August when the average college student was busily engaged in the acquisition of a healthy sun tan and the papers were filled with the stories of West Point doings and the supposed one-sided Dodger victory in the National League, there appeared the yearly rash of pre-season football magazines.

Most of these athletically-minded pulp magazines follow a set pattern of playing up their selections for All-American pushing their ideas of how each section in the country will end up footballwise and then devoting the rest of a pin-up section of cavorting, fierce-looking football players, prancing abut the old college campus.

The same schools are picked for the same honors, the same players are pictured in the same positions and, all in all, the only difference in them is their front covers. However, once in a while one of them goes out on a limb and picks a school which hasn't received too much publicity from the other magazines.

Just such a selection happened when the magazine, "Sport Life" went out on a gridiron limb and picked the Wildcats of Villanova as the outstanding independent in the east. In the article, written by Art Morrow of the "Philadelphia Inquirer', we were given the nod over such powers as Navy, Holy Cross, Syracuse, Boston University, Fordham and Rutgers.

This is only the fourth week of a nine week season and many things can happen in those five weeks. Things like injuries and upsets and the rest can come unexpectedly to plague a coach and ruin predictions that have been quite carefully thought out. However, as things stand at this moment Art Morrow's prognostications seem awfully good.

All the other teams mentioned as possible pre-season favorites have been jolted at least once. Navy tied Yale and later lost to Rice. Holy Cross lost to Tulane despite Eddie Anderson's stamping and complaining. Syracuse was pummeled by Illinois and BU was knocked off by Penn State, which in turn lost to Villanova. Fordham was buried under Holy Cross and so the list continues, ad nauseum. Whether or not Mr. Morrow will be proven right or wrong is a matter of time and one which will be watched by many eyes for many different reasons. (Here's hoping, Art.)

In the Villanova victory over Alabama a few interesting records were set in the Friday night encounter. Alabama lost their third straight game for the first time since 1927 and they had the biggest score rolled up against them since 1907 when a valliant and now-forgotten Sewanee eleven trounced them 54-4.

Before this game the Crimson Tide had high hopes of trouncing Villanova and getting back in contention for a bowl bid. Now they will be lucky to get an invite to the Tuscaloosa Municipal Tournament.

History has a funny way of turning itself about. Last year the Kentucky Wildats were scheduled to meet Villanova at Franklin Field and this was to be our chance to show our stuff in front of the hometown crowd. So what happens? After beating Duquesne, we dropped decisions to Miami and Tulsa and all the game could draw was about 5000 people, half of which were Ivy Leaguers who thought Penn was playing.

This year we are undefeated, so far, and playing a team like Kentucky, despite their three loses, we could easily draw fifty thousand. By the way, Villanova is looking for its first win over the Blue Grass Wildcats after three unfruitful tries. In 1947, in the Great Lakes Bowl, they bowed 24-14. In 1948, the Main Liners did a little better and tied 13-13. Last year, Babe Parilli went crazy and they triumphed 34-7. This might be the year.

Positions are now open on the staff of this paper for men who like to get free passes to any and all athletic contests. The only catch is that these same men have to be competent writers who can cover all phases of Villanova sports. Good Counsel Top Scorer as I-M Football Begins

Last Monday the Austin Troopers beat the Alumni Luminaries 13-0. Bob Heller threw a thirty yard pass to Peters for the first score and in the closing minutes Brosnin carried 9 yards for the second touchdown. Sandhaas got the extra point with an end run. Also on Monday the Alumni Characters squeezed past the Austin Lions 7-0, with Vahe Melconion scoring on a ten yard run and Brabson carrying for the extra point. The play of Neary and Cauceglia also stood out for the Characters.

Luminaries Strike Back

The Luminaries got into the win column on Tuesday when they topped the Cruds 12-0, on a thirty yard run by Ayers and a forty yard interception return by Weber. In a game between two of last year's best, the Alumni Toppers slipped by the Fedigan Flyers 6-0, when Driscol flipped one to O'Hearn. The passing combination of Driscol to Moore contributed greatly to the Toppers' win.

Good Counsel Wins

Good Counsel walloped Delury 31-0 on Wednesday in the highest scoring game of the week. A yard-eating ground attack was Good Counsel's main offensive weapon in a game which saw Brick and Labeque each score twice and Solami once. The Cruds lost the second straight Wednesday, with the Sophs taking a 6-0 verdict. A pass play from Ward to Castialione which covered 45 yards was responsible for the score.

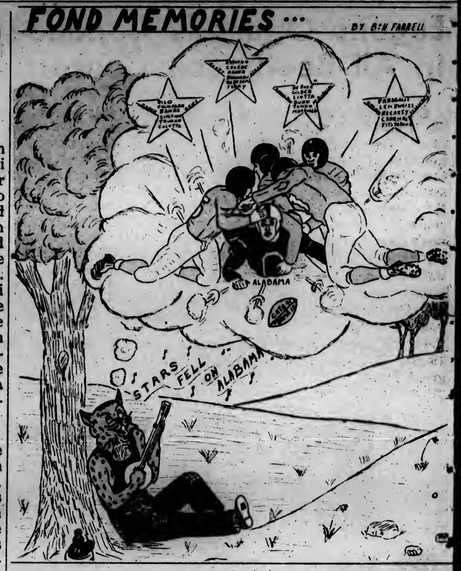
guard and Doug Mosely at center. Besides this they have a good man in End Bob Fry and Bob Proffitt—both seem well able to catch the tosses of Babe Parilli.

Paper Strength

Despite all this strength on paper Paul Bryant is having his worst season since raising Kentucky to national prominence. Whether the fact that they have lost three games or that they have lost these three games by only a combined total of eleven points is difficult to say.

Judging from their game with Mississippi State they have gotten on the glory road again and Art Raimo's boys will be faced with their toughest assignment to date come this Saturday night. Kentucky paced their offensive attack and scored in every period of that game.

X-Country Men Face Pirates Away on Saturday



The Villanova Cross-Country team travels to South Orange, New Jersey, this Saturday, to engage the Pirates of Seton Hall College.

The Mainliners now have a .500 record, by virtue of their defeat by Army two weeks ago and their victory over Navy the following Saturday. Coach Elliot and the squad seem to think that they will return this weekend with a win over Coach Johnny Gibson's Pirates.

Barry and Dwyer Lead Way

Leading the Wildcat contingent will be the IC4A champs, John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer. These two finished in a dead heat for first place in the Navy meet and this greatly helped to cement our 25-30 conquest of the boys from the old Severn.

Also running for the Wildcats will be Art Klepper, Bart Moynahan, Jerry Utter, Jim Brown and George Eberle. These boys will be trying to round out the needed first five scoring places.

WILDCATS BOARD PLANE FOR SOUTHLAND

MAINLINE TEAM and coaches leave Phila. Airport last Thursday morning via Eastern Airlines for meeting with Crimson Tide. The squad arrived in Birmingham shortly after noon. From there buses transported them to Tuscaloosa, site of their victory over Alabama in Denny Stadium.

Eugene Ormandy Conducts In All-Beethoven Concert

Eugene Ormandy, the musical director of the Philadelphia Orchestra, is ever mindful of public demand in considering repertory. Last season, when the ballots for the Request Program were counted, several of Beethoven's symphonies were in the top bracket with four of the immortal nine receiving many hundreds of votes. Therefore, Mr. Ormandy decided to devote the entire program of the third pair of concerts, Oct. 19 and 20, to the music of the great Titan.

Two movements from the music for the ballet "The Creatures of Prometheus" — the Overture and the Adagio —will open the program. The major portion of the program is devoted to performances of two symphonies of contrasting character. On the first half the rustic beauties of the Pastoral Symphony will be welcomed by at least a few hundred of the audience who requested it last spring. After the intermission the perennially popular C minor Symphony (No. 5) will climax the bill.

more outspoken in his kinship for the USA than is Mr. Atlee.

Churchill's international ideas are well illustrated by his idea that the western powers should drop loaves of bread on the poorest fed regions of the USSR, the loaves carrying such words as: "We drop this bread now. We can drop atomic bombs just as easily"

Winston Churchill is a shrewd bargainer. He is a showman, in a sense, with a knack for perfect timing. He is a friend of the USA. If, come October 25, Winston Churchill is returned to power, it is our opinion that he will perfectly blend all of the above attributes.

Mendel Bulletin Organizing For November Publication

Edward Fesco, editor-in-chief of the Mendel Bulletin, has stated that the deadline for this semester's issue is November 1. The Mendel Bulletin is the campus magazine of the Science School; all science majors receive it. Students in any of the sciences, whether Frosh or Senior, may contribute articles.

EDWARD FESCO
Mendel Bulletin Editor

Last June the Mendel Bulletin published its first issue since the war forced it to cease operations in 1943. The pre-war Bulletin enjoyed a high reputation among the undergraduate scientific periodicals of other schools.

Under the leadership of editor-in-chief Edward Fesco, his staff, and the guidance of its moderator, Rev. Charles F. Kropp, O. S. A. assistant professor of Biology, the new Bulletin is fast regaining its predecessor's fame. Today issues are sent to 400 colleges and universities in the United States, Canada, and France.

According to Ed Fesco, the articles in the Mendel Bulletin are not reports on original student research; they are only comments on contemporary developments in the scientific fields, with the purpose of stimulating interest in science in general.

Editor-in-chief Fesco is proud in the fact that several of the articles in the June Bulletin greatly impressed faculty members in a number of schools which receive the magazine. The authors of these pieces received mail from Ph.D.'s and heads of departments in other colleges. Moreover, he feels, the excellent impression created by these student efforts has helped their authors gain admittance to post graduate institutions.

Glee Club Recruits Singers

With membership at its highest in many years, the college Glee Club has listed its initial meeting for October 17, at 7:15 p.m., in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

WILLIAM MILLER
Present Glee Club Director

The club is headed by William Miller, director. President of the group is Thomas Blackmore, who is scheduled to take over Miller's position upon the latter's graduation in January.

Miller stated last week that the organization has an exceptionally heavy schedule for the year. In addition to the annual local tour with the college band, the group has listed a Christmas Concert for the first time.

Spring Concert Plans

The Director also announced that plans are now underway for an extended concert tour in the spring, which will not include the band, that will carry the choristers into many parts of this state, New York and New Jersey. Rev. Joseph J. Burns, O.S.A., the group's moderator, is supervising the plans for the trip.

Miller also stated that the club has a completely new repertoire of selections. "I think this will be one of our most outstanding seasons," commented the director.

State Dept. Offers Foreign Training To College Grads

In order to discover outstanding college seniors and graduate students with backgrounds in foreign affairs and related fields, the United States Department of State has announced its Fourth Intern Program—The Foreign Affairs Intern Program—to colleges and universities throughout the United States. The Foreign Affairs Intern Program, which will begin in September, 1952, will include 50 members selected through a screening process designed to secure a highly qualified group of people who show promise of developing into top administrators for the challenging years to come.

Select from Civil Service

As was the case last year, the Department will select trainees for the Foreign Affairs Intern Program from the register of those who pass the Civil Service Commission's Junior Management Assistant Examination. This examination will be announced by the Commission early in October.

Applications must be on file with the Commission by November 13 so that the applicant may be certified to take the examination when it is given, in all parts of the country, on December 8.

It is of the utmost importance that students who wish to be appointed in the Department, file for, and take, this Junior Management Assistant Examination.

The Civil Service Commission will send announcements to Mr. George Harris, in your College Placement Office and, in addition, the announcements will be posted in all first and second class post offices.

Nominated by State Dept.

Students wishing to be considered for the Foreign Affairs Intern Program must also be nominated to Department by the Department of State Nominating Board which has been established by the faculty of your college. Selections made by your nominating board must be received by the Department not later than December 1, 1951, that is, about one week before the Junior Management Assistant Examination is given.

The Department has found that the correlation between those nominated by their colleges and those passing the Junior Management Assistant Examination is very close, so that students selected by their college boards have an excellent chance of being selected for the Foreign Affairs Intern Program.

Contact Faculty

Students should get in touch with their faculty advisers or the chairman of the nominating board as soon as possible and ask to be considered for nomination to the Department of State.

Foreign Affairs Interns will receive nine months of specialized on-job training which will include courses at the Department's Foreign Service Institute, periodic conferences and seminars, and both observational and work assignments in the various operating divisions.

The Foreign Affairs Intern and the Junior Management Assistant trainee appointments will be in Washington, D. C.

DON'T let those stripes fool you. J. Paul was no prisoner of love! His hair looked like a tiger rag, and he was feline mighty low. But did Sheedy buy a wig? No! He's not a cheetah! "I hate to be catty," his roommate said, "but even an ugly puss looks better with Wildroot Cream-Oil! Non-alcoholic! Contains soothing Lanolin! Relieves annoying dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the fingernail test!" Sheedy got Wildroot Cream-Oil, and now he has every girl on campus waiting in lion for a date! So, be cagey . . . get a tube or bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil Hair Tonic at any drug or toilet goods counter today. And ask your barber for professional applications. First 1951 Forum To Present E. Bentley, Once Commie

Star Witness of Un-American Activities Committee to Inaugurate Series in C&F October 30

Miss Elizabeth Bentley, former member of the Communist party in this country and more recently star witness for the Senate Un-American Activities Committee, will be the first speaker in the 1951-52 Villanova Forum series. She will talk on "The Communist Threat Inside the U.S.A." in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium, October 30.

Mr. Charles Bruderle, Assistant Professor of History at Villanova, and Forum Chairman, announced the appearance of Miss Bentley to the Forum last week. "She will be the first speaker in this year's series, which we hope to be our finest," the chairman commented. Mr. Bruderle added that the second and third of the series will be held at dates yet to be announced in December and January.

Best Speaker to Date

In securing Miss Bentley as a speaker, the Forum has obtained one of the most well known speakers in its history. The story of Elizabeth Bentley was front page material for several months during her testimony in Washington.

Miss Bentley was born in Connecticut. She moved in childhood to Pennsylvania. Later she moved to Rochester, where she attended high school. The speaker attended Vassar and graduated in 1931.

Joined Communist Party

She taught at Foxcroft School, Virginia, for two years, and later secured her Master's Degree from Columbia University, New York.

Upon completion of her studies at Columbia, Miss Bentley went abroad and studied at the University of Florence, in Italy.

She became a member of the Communist Party after her return to this country.

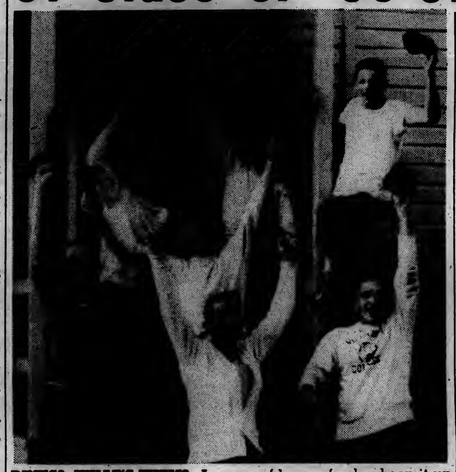
Her sensational autobiography, "Out of Bondage", will soon be published.

Juniors Delay Ring Choice; Models On View In Mendel

Final selection of the new standard Villanova class ring was delayed by the Class of 1953 until sometime this week. At the initial meeting of the Junior Class held last Thursday evening, it was decided by the entire class to postpone the choice to enable all members of the class to view the different rings.

The original intent of the ring committee was to place the rings on display in the library, but the site was changed to the Mendel Hall information booth for convenience sake. Final selection will be made tomorrow or Thursday after the three sample rings have been examined by all Juniors.

Although the class ring was the prime interest of the meeting, President Paul Sollami brought other matters of business before the class. The various chairmen of the many junior activities were presented to the class by the president.



BEAT THE COUGARS

RING COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN Don Blaha, left, and Class President Paul Sollami talk over the qualities of the various rings from which the Junior class will choose. The rings have been on display at the information booth in Mendel Hall for inspection by class members. At the next class meeting scheduled for later this week, the final choice will be made, subject to the approval of the faculty.

Frosh Win Out

MUFF Day Victory Brings End Of Class Of '55 Orientation

DINKS? WHAT'S THEM? A group of happy frosh whoop it up after they scored a decisive 58-51 victory over the sophs in the second annual MUFF Day contests. As a result of their victory the yearlings finished their days of orientation a month early.

Blue Dinkers Lead Sophs All The Way

Orientation is over for the Freshman class. The class of '54 couldn't repeat last year's Sophomore victory as they went down before a fighting Frosh team that took the lead in the first event and held it until the end of the anti-climatic, last event, football game. The score was 58 to 51, with the Frosh taking 6 out of 8 firsts.

The first event was the 220 yard dash won by Murphy, a Frosh, followed by Bob Heller, Soph, Mulligan, Frosh, and John Carella, Soph. Score 7-4. In the three-legged race the Frosh grabbed another first with Utter-Speciale, and a third with Zahorsky-Pettit. The Soph team of Dick Brady-John Soli took second with John Flynn-Dick Naclerio bringing up the rear. Score 14-8.

The Frosh duo of Higgins-Heaps got ten more for the victors in the egg toss when the Soph team of Art Pelletier-Joe Kenny broke their egg—on Kenny's chest. Score 24-13.

Sophs Win Relay

The Sophomores finally got a first, when George Eberle pushed Bob Conlin across the finish line 40 yards ahead of Utter, who was wheeling Kilker in the Wheel Barrow Relay. John Kelly, Tom Cuff and Bill Belleville pushed the first three legs for the Sophs in that order and Guida, Pettit and Speciale did the same for the Frosh. Score 29-23.

The Freshmen got back in their winning ways when they took the tug of war, making the score 39-28. Dodge, Helm, Hurley, Crowley, Forhecz and Kilker were the victors while the defeated Sophomores were Fucigna, Barbary, Gestwick, Riccrani, Serena and Causeglia.

In the football pass, Freshman Miller and Cieszko took first and fourth respectively; second and third went to Quinn and Imgrund of the Sophs. Score 45-33.

Booters Win, Place

Freshman booters Barna and Crowley were winner and runner-up respectively, in the football punt with Sophs Pecora, third, and Cheswick finishing out the scoring. Score 53-36.

Since the winner of the football game could only get

Council To Drive Campus Needs

In a hotly-debated meeting last Tuesday, Villanova's 32-member Student Council moved to inaugurate a number of what it considers needed reforms on campus. Appointing Tom Fucigna as general chairman, Student Council president Tom Delaney named a committee to take action on the following items:

1. Cafeteria hours. A motion was introduced to open the Cafeteria at 11:15 to better accommodate students with mid-day classes. It was felt that by opening fifteen minutes earlier, the long line in the hall at 11:30 would be eliminated.

2. Cafeteria clean-up. A concerted drive is planned, first through posters and later through disciplinary action, to "Keep Your Cafeteria Clean."

3. Book Store Investigation. In view of the apparent inability of the Book Store to cope with the demand for books and equipment, the committee was charged with the responsibility of finding the cause of the situation and attempting to effect a solution.

4. Parking lots. Areas for parking under the jurisdiction of the college authorities have become overcrowded and poorly controlled, according to views of Student Council members. Action to relieve the congestion will be taken by the group.

Phones In Mendel

Moreover, the committee will seek replacement of pay phones in the third floor of Mendel Hall and will look into the possibility of the Cafeteria serving milk at lunch instead of breakfast. The posting of a daily menu on the bulletin boards will also be considered by the committee.

LATE NEWS

Nov. 9 New Date Of Soph Cotillion

The Sophomore Cotillion wil be held the night of November 9, Steve Berry, Cotillion Chairman, announced last night after receiving word from Rev. George McLaughlin O. S. A., dean of Student Activities.

Work on the field house will have proceeded sufficiently far to allow for the early date, Berry said.

Make It Good, Junior

There was quite a hassle last Thursday night at the Junior Class meeting to select the school ring design. To say the least, it was a poor display of class loyalty and leads one to doubt the ability of the juniors to make such an important decision.

You won't find it in the news story this way, but here's what really happened. The Class ring committee, selected for the purpose of choosing the best designs for presentation to the class as a whole, selected the two rings they considered best in design, engraving, and all the other peculiar things that go into the making of a school ring.

This method of selection was the ordinary and accepted means of choosing a ring for the class—until this year. At the meeting a group of juniors, with open-faced self-interest in the ring contract, rejected the selections of the ring committee, and demanded to be shown the other designs previously rejected by the committee.

As might be expected, mayhem resulted, with the selection of the ring design undecided, and the faith of the class members in their officers unjustiafiably shaken.

This wouldn't be so bad if the juniors were choosing just a design for their own class ring, but the design they choose is slated to be the official school ring, with a long-term contract let to the company of their choice.

It's a bad way for the juniors to start out their year, split over such an important question as this. But it also should serve warning to them that the good of the class must be held above personal feelings or individual profit—and that class officers are to be worked with, not against.

Why Bring That Up?

This paper would certainly be the last one on campus to treat the Student Council with the "ho-hum" attitude of indifference. And now that this year's Council has taken steps to show its intentions of great activity, we want to be the first to offer encouragement.

The first flurry of the Council is treating with some things that are needed on campus —things to which the Council ought to turned its attention long ago.

In cases in the past, such Council activity has been met with little or no results—to the effect that the Council sank lower and lower in the respect of the student body.

But with this action, and its effects already seen on campus the Council begins commanding the respect which it is due. Let's hope the Council members keep up working in this vein, and really begin to represent the students as they should.

Exchange Student Replaces Blaesi

By George Ferguson

On September 21, 1951, three hundred fifty happy, eager young men and women debarked from the Swedish vessel Anna Salen, in New York. They blinked in astonishment at the skyscrapers and the traffic of the great metropolis. An official welcoming committee was on hand to greet them.

Two weeks earlier, they bade farewell to their parents and relatives in Germany, and were now stepping ashore in the New World, for the first time in their lives. For them, it would be a year of new experiences and study in the United States.

Remember Blaesi

Many Villanovans will remember our German student of last year, Hubert Blaesi, of Bruchsal, Baden, who was without doubt one of the most popular European visitors to study here in recent years. When Hugh returned home in June, he left behind him a host of American friends, who were very sorry to see him go.

Our new guest from the Continent this semester is also from South Germany. Walter Rupprecht is a Bamberger. Bamberg is the picturesque cathedral town on the Regnitz River, about 40 miles north of Nurnberg. It is in the Oberfranken district of Bavaria.

Fortunately, it was spared entirely during the wartime conflagration, and today remains in all its baroque glory to delight tourists from all parts of the world.

Walt, who is 20 years old, is a serious-minded, mature young man, apparently with a born capacity for leadership and an affable, fun-loving disposition, which is already winning him an increasing number of American friends. It can be seen, then, that he is very much like his predecessor Hugh.

WALTER RUPRECHT
Studying at Villanova

A graduate of the Bamberg Oberrealschule for Boys, Rupprecht is enrolled as a special student at Villanova, under the Department of State exchange student program. He is majoring in Political Science and hopes to learn as much as possible about the American way of life while in this country. Upon return home, he plans to study law, with the ultimate goal of a career in the German foreign office.

Rome Visit

In April of 1950, Walter went on the Holy Year Pilgrimage to Rome, with his German Youth Group, Marian Student Sodality, of which he is a leader. The group was granted an audience with His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, during their sojourn in the Holy City.

Referring to his scholarship to Villanova, the Bamberg student remarked: "I am lucky to be here, and very happy for this wonderful opportunity." He related how the notice of foreign scholarships was posted on the school bulletin-board, like our Fulbright scholarships are advertised at Villanova. Twenty-five eager students applied, but after a series of exams and interviews, only five were chosen to go to America.

Americans On Ship

"We set sail from the Hook of Holland, the port of Rotterdam, on the 8th of September. It was a fine trip; we talked about America with American students returning home after spending their summer in Europe."

Walt further related how the ship caught the tail end of a North Atlantic hurricane, in the middle of the ten and a half day voyage. "I didn't get seasick" he declares proudly.

We at Villanova extend our heartiest welcome to Walter Rupprecht, and wish him the best of luck in his studies here. We hope that his visit with us will prove both profitable and enjoyable to him.

RECENT RETREAT OFFERED POSITIVE PATTERN FOR LIFE

By Jim Griffin

Villanova has had its first retreat. How good a retreat was it? Don't check back on the day of retreat to recall whether or not the priest was clever or entertaining, or whether his jokes were amusing, etc., etc.

Whether or not Villanova had a good retreat depends solely on whether or not Villanova is a better place because of it. No other criterion can reasonably be considered.

It might be better to ask: What was said at the retreat? Was anything worth while proposed, any scheme or suggestion that might point to a better Catholic life for Villanova men?

Affirmative Answer

The answer can be none other than affirmative. For this year's one day retreat offered an outline for sanctity; it pointed out the method designed by God and taught by His Church for spiritual growth to a mature union with God Himself.

Perhaps the unifying thread of the day's lectures escaped you. Perhaps the jump-off from that inevitable and incomparable gift of God's grace, and the resulting birth of the soul to spirituality, to membership in the mystical body of Christ—perhaps that starting point left you still in the grandstand watching the World Series game which actually was inconsequential by comparison.

And with the birth through grace, and life within the mystical body, growth of the soul progresses steadily and reaches its maturity in the participation in the Holy Sacrifice, The Mass, the offering of a God-man to his Father to expiate for the trespasses of His brother humans. Here on the altar with the entire Catholic world sharing in the sacrifice to the Creator, the Master of the universe—here the Christian spirit reaches maturity.

Final Step

But to further allow the growth of man towards God, to unite more intimately the man with the Trinity he adores, God has provided that final step, further than which none could go: Holy Communion, wherein man becomes one with his God, so that the body and blood, soul and divinity of the one mingle completely with the nature of the other.

How can the Catholic fail in his striving towards eternity? How can he tend in any other way, when the road is laid so simply for him? He needs only to set his course on this positive path, only to determine to make use of the natural developments which God has planned, and his future can go no other way.

TELEVISED CONGRESS SHOWS FLAWS IN LAWMAKER EFFORTS

By Jim Glavin

A new question is confronting the Congress of the United States. It is a simple, clear cut issue: "Should the proceedings of government be televised?"

Congress seems to be ducking the issue!

What is behind this hesitance of the lawmakers? Congress has its reasons. If it bans video it is in trouble, naturally, with the electorate. If it stamps "OK" on video it may be in more trouble—the voters will see the men they elect as they have never seen them before.

Fateful Week

The hesitant atmosphere can be traced back to a fateful week in the spring of this year. It was a week that saw buses empty, streets deserted and telephones go unanswered. The reason? For the first time the government was on parade—the Senate Crime Committee hearings were being televised.

It was a lesson in government that fascinated the citizens, who, with few exceptions, had never watched the men they elected at work, had never seen a real gambler, had never seen witnesses sworn in.

The drama on the TV screens that week was enriched with an entertaining cast. There were the Senators —the would-be heroes, and there were those investigated —the would-be villains.

Mixed Cast

But, video-viewers got their characters mixed. Or, did they? For the first time the people themselves could think —about their government— and the men they chose to run and regulate it.

For some reason, they chose their own heroes and villains. To most of the television audience, the would-be heroes wound up villains. Who? There was the apparently frustrated actor named Tobey, who proudly proclaimed he was an honest man from an honest state—New Hampshire. Somehow, New Hampshire was never investigated!

Soft - Spoken

Then, there was soft-spoken,, prudish Estes Kefauver, of Tennessess. He later reaped a fortune from a book, the material for which he garnered at taxpayers' expense. No, Tennessee wasn't investigated either.

There were others. Silver-tongued Herbert O'Connor, of Maryland, harsh-voiced Senator Wiley, of Wisconsin. No, Maryland, reputed mecca of crime, and Wisconsin weren't looked into either!

Heroes

The surprise heroes? They were the likes of Sidney Brodson, the suave lawyer-gambler who had basketball betting down to a science. He was indirectly lauded when a committee member asked him his prediction on a forthcoming game.

PASHA THE PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

Dear Yankee,

Having been on the campus for two years without creating even a mild social sensation, I find that I would like to meet a girl from one of the neighboring colleges, preferably Chestnut Hill. Could you please inform me as to how this feat might be accomplished?

Dejected

Dear Dejected,

This writer does not profess to be an authority on the subject, having had trouble in similar situations. However, might we suggest that you use the same procedure that is employed by many of your fellow students. . . . Just open your wallet and you'll find a college girl.

MEMO FROM TEA: It has finally happened! After its very successful Tea Dance the Rosymont Committee found a "Thank you note" in the mail box. . . . It was sent from this campus and was written in a langoowige that might readily be understood in the Blue Ridge area of Virginia. . . . It was a very thoughtful gesture and was certainly appreciated. . . . Does anyone know where DICK WINFIELD resides when not on Campus? The Philadelphia Inquirer went out of its way to describe the pedometer worn by a Roseland cutie.

LEAVE THE SHAKERS: The notice in the chow hall to the effect that no more sugar shakers are to be taken from the premises brought about a new fad on the campus. . . . Jerry McDonough was coasting around the tables emptying the contents into a paper bag. . . . Some guys always find a way out.

DROOP 'N DRAPES: After improving the lounge by hanging new draperies, Father Curran went in to look the place over the other day only to find that some droop had tied a pair of them in a knot in order to get more light. . . . Some men have absolutely no consideration for others. . . . Don't know if the individual was taught that at home or not. . . . The lounge will also have a soda fountain installed, along with a sandwich machine. . . . The Droop can get some of his cohorts together and really have a fine time. While we're on the subject, let's keep the lounge for relaxation and do away with the afternoon lunch hour that is becoming the rage. . . . The day-hops go home to a comfortable abode after hours but the residents have to depend upon the lounge for enjoyment.

SEEMS LIKE OLD TIMES: Was just going through some old "Villanovan" copy came upon the following headline: STOPPER PASSES TO RAIMO FOR ONLY TALLY OF GAME—Fullback takes throw on goal line to break losers five game winning streak. . . . That was in 1937 against a highly favored Detroit team.

Procurator Gives Program Of Renovations On Campus

Father Curran Announces Plans For Austin Hall Lounge

By Al Hennessey

A program of vast improvement and renovation on and to the campus was revealed by Rev. John Curran, O.S.A., college procurator, in a "Villanovan" interview last week.

The procurator pointed out that the extensive repair work seen on campus these days is being done to, "keep Villanova beautiful." He commented that the beauty of the campus is a source of pride common to the priests, alumni and students of the college.

The extention program of improvements has been sponsored by the Very Reverend Provincial Father Joseph Dougherty, O.S.A., and the Definitory. It is being done in conjunction with the administration of the college.

Austin Lounge

Father Curran, speaking first on the subject he thought would be of most interest, reported that, "With a desire to give resident students a pleasant atmosphere in which to relax as gentlemen, the college has undertaken, at great expense, the redecoration of the lounge in Austin Hall."

New tables and chairs are to be placed in the lounge. New draperies, already installed, are a part of the renovation. The procurator promised the television set in Austin Hall would be repaired and placed in a special television room to be located in the rear of the lounge.

This room will be equipped with "coke", cigarette, candy machines, and, the procurator hopes, a sandwich machine. The sandwich machine contemplated by the procurator, is one that heats specific sandwiches.

Field House

Father Curran reported that one of the major elements in the renovation phase of the present program is the complete overhauling of the college field house. The building has already been brick-pointed. The plaster on the walls of the interior has been chipped away, and "Guinte," a plaster, has been sprayed on in its stead.

The three large windows on the front of the field house have been replaced with glass blocks. The procurator said that the blocks are so constructed that the sun's rays are refracted upward toward the ceiling on the inside.

Swimming Pool

Father Curran also announced that major improvements in the swimming pool, located in the field house, have been one of the big items in the building's renovation. All windows were removed from the pool area and replaced with glass blocks.

Ventilation will be provided by a system of forced circulation in the pool areas. In addition, a new ceiling has been put over the pool, which will eliminate condensation and deaden sound. It is composed of a newly-developed gypsum product which was sprayed on.

The entire pool area will be painted with a new paint which will resist water deterioration, common to swimming pools.

Road Improvements

The new procurator, who has gone quickly about the tasks confronting him after having assumed his position last summer, stated that the campus roadway from the Commerce and Finance Building to the Spring Mill Road entrance to the campus, will be scarified, rolled, regraded, and resurfaced. A new road will be built from the west end of Alumni Hall to the Library, continuing from that point in a circular fashion to St. Mary's Hall. This road, as well as the old roads which are to be widened, will be eighteen feet in width. All the roads are to be "black-topped."

New paths are listed to be constructed behind Alumni Hall, running from the library building to the east and west ends of Austin Hall. In addition, the road now existing behind Austin will be re-opened.

Grotto Removed

Due to the widening of the road from Alumni to the Library it will be necessary to remove the campus grotto.

Campus Landmark To Be Removed

THE GROTTO OF OUR LADY, a familiar landmark on the Villanova campus is being removed as part of the college-wide renovations now taking place. A road extending from Alumni Hall past the library to St. Mary's Hall will pass through the site.

A new shrine, to be constructed at a yet-to-be-announced site, is being planned by a committee.

The statue of St. Augustine, presently located at the grotto site, will be placed on a stone and granite pedestal at the junction of the road leading from Alumni to the Library and the path from the Monastery to the Library.

Dormitory Renovations

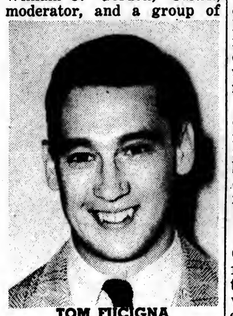
The Barracks buildings have been painted inside and outside, and O'Dwyer and Simpson, in the "Dom" group, have been stuccoed. Mendel Hall is another dormitory that has been renovated recently. Rooms in Mendel have been replastered and rewired, and the building will be painted on the interior during the Christmas Holiday.

The tower, lone remaining one, was removed from Mendel. The stonework at the top of the building is being refinished to match the surrounding buildings' stonework.

The Cafeteria has been repainted, and new drapes have been placed in it. Also, metal radiator covers have been put in the student "chow-hall." Inside of the kitchen has been repainted and some new equipment installed.

New Wall

A wall is scheduled to be constructed around the back portions of Good Counsel and Mendel Halls where deliveries are made to the refectory. The procurator asserted that the wall would be of concrete block construction.



In conjunction with the construction of the new heating plant across the Pennsylvania tracks, a new elevated railroad siding is to be built, leading to the plant. It will be for the delivery of coal to the plant.

National IR Comm. Replaces Industrial Relations Club

Area Colleges Combine Efforts; Plan Labor-Management Series

The campus organization known in the past as the Villanova Industrial Relations Club has given way to a new nation wide organization, The National Industrial Relations Commission.

In a short meeting last Wednesday afternoon, Rev. William J. Gordon, O.S.A., moderator, and a group of interested students laid the ground work for the formation of the Villanova Chapter of this highly spirited group. Father Gordon outlined plans for talks to be given by many outstanding personalities in the field of Labor Management Relations.

TOM FUCIGNA
Heads Council Investigators

The advantages of knowledge concerning the ever mounting problems of labor-management is pointed out to be highly desirable to everyone interested in the field of industry.

Combined Meetings

Don McCourt, Regional Chairman, has set up plans for combined meetings of all the Catholic men's and women's colleges in the Philadelphia area; and also relayed the invitation extended to the Villanova I.R.C. members, from St. Josephs College to attend their Symposium on Industrial Relations.

All Villanova students are invited to become active members in this new, up and coming Commission. An organizational meeting will be held this evening at 7:15 p. m. in room 201 C&F.

Campus Needs

In other business transacted at the meeting, Tom Delaney announced, "All dates on the social calendar have been moved or cancelled until December 1, due to repairs on the Field House. No definite dates have been set for any affairs as of October 18."

Rev. George J. McLaughlin, O.S.A., Student Council moderator, stated that new furniture and possibly a sandwich dispenser would be forthcoming in the Austin Hall lounge.

Thanks to Koenig

The group passed a vote of thanks in recognition of Carl Koenig's work on the Orientation and Spirit committees.

Four spectators attended this second meeting; the next meeting of the Council is set for Monday, October 29, in 215 Mendel at 7:30. A report on the progress of Tom Fucigna's committee is expected at that time.

SPEECH CLINIC

A Speech Clinic for the benefit of students suffering from speech defects is now in operation on campus under the direction of Mr. Joseph T. Jonas, assistant professor of English.

Mr. Jonas makes no charge for this service. All interested students should contact him in his office, room 108 Belle Air Hall.

New York Alumni Sponsors Dance

The Villanova Alumni Club of New York will hold its annual Thanksgiving Dance at the Hotel Statler this year, it was announced last Thursday. The date is set for Saturday, November 24, with dancing from 9 till 1 o'clock.

Tickets for the occasion can be obtained from Tom Cullen (Wayne 2613-W) or John Thompson, Good Counsel Hall. Prices are set at $4.00 for students and $5.00 for alumni.

DPE Has Speakers, High Pledging

Villanova's business fraternity, Delta Pi Epsilon, held its business meeting last Tuesday, Oct. 16, in the C&F building.

A motion was placed on the floor and passed that the fraternity pins be changed. This project will be under the direction of Jack Sherry. Father Gordon, O.S.A., moderator of the organization, introduced the fact that at future meetings speakers will be presented for the purpose of entertaining and informing the members.

Many New Pledges

Plans were discussed as to how the group would go about pledging and initiating prospective members. There are approximately 70 students in the Sophomore and Junior classes who wish to enter the fraternity.

Don Briggs, president, stated that preparations for some charity have been made. This is to take the form of financially aiding a home for mentally retarded Catholic girls in Downingtown.

The Seton Hall cross-country team visited Villanova for a dual meet, Saturday, and left with nothing more than a Cooke's tour of the Villanova countryside. The boys from South Orange were completely outclassed and found themselves on the wrong end of a 16-39 score.

New Course Record

Fred Dwyer and John Joe Barry, who always seem to be doing things together, finished in a tie for first place. Their time for the five and a half mile course was 29:17.4, which is a new meet record.

Thus, for the second time this season, Jim Elliot's IC4A champs made like twins when it comes to crossing finish lines. In third place, trailing Dwyer and Barry, was Artie Klepper, followed closely Jerry Utter. Bob Gerlach of Seton Hall squeezed into fifth place, with Bob Finan of Villanova in sixth.

Moynahan Ends Scoring

By this time, Seton Hall's coach, Johnny Gibson, was probably wondering what happened to his team, because Bart Moynahan raced across the finish line for seventh place, ending the Villanova scoring.

The Seton Hall team finally showed up only to be chased across the finish line by freshman Guy Speciale of Villanova.

Seton Hall put in a good race up to the two mile mark, but from there on it was all Villanova, thus handing the Pirates their first defeat of the season.

Klepper Third

Something, of course, should be said about Artie Klepper's fine performance. Artie was a 4:25 miler in high school, but developed a bad knee in freshman year, which has hampered him up to now. Saturday, Artie's third place finish proved to everyone that this is going to be Artie's year, and we think he wants everyone to know it.

Manhattan Next

The team next meets Manhattan, perennial dyed-in-the-wool track champions, Saturday, October 27th at VanCortlanot Park in New York City. The outcome of this meet should decide our chances in the IC4A championship in November.

The summaries follow:

'Cats Face Houston Cougars Away On Saturday Night

On Saturday night, October 27, Villanova's rampaging Wildcats meet a rough bunch of Cougars from Houston University deep down in the heart of Texas. The 'Cats, one of the nation's most travel-hardened squads, will probably be a favorite over the Texans in the first football contest ever staged between the two schools.

The Wildcats need to be on guard, however, because although Houston is not, as yet, a 'name' school, they are a good, strong outfit. Houston is a typical case of a small school having growing pains.

This year they entered the tough Missouri Valley Conference and, thus far, have shown that they are far from being out of place in such company. The Texans have split their first four games, having beaten tough little Texas Tech, conqueror of Texas Christian, and Detroit, a Wildcat opponent on November 10th.

Lost to Baylor and Tulsa

They have lost to two top-flight teams, Baylor and Tulsa. Baylor is one of the Southwest Conference's tougher squads and Tulsa, who plays the Wildcats on December 1st, is generally considered the best team in its section.

Even in losing to Tulsa, the Cougars showed their offensive power by scoring four times. The Texans have good team depth, size and spirit and, also have plenty of experience. Like most Southwestern schools, the Houstonians emphasize the offensive phases of the game. This accent on offense is quite natural since football in the Southwest is notoriously wide-open.

Good Halfbacks

With the veteran Gene Shannon and young Bob Snelson leading the attack from their halfback posts and with a big, young, aggressive forward wall, the boys from the Lone Star State can prove to be quite rough. As a matter of fact, the Cougars have three practically equal lines that can be interchanged without disturbing the status quo.

As for size, the top six tackles all tip the scales at better than 200 pounds. This can't be considered unusual because the whole starting line, and most of the reserves, weigh 200 or better. The Cougar line may lack individual stars but this is no indication that there is any lack of quality up front.

Play Out of Split-T

Houston uses the split-T formation, popularized by Coach Bud Wilkinson at Oklahoma, in order to give more power to their attack. The split-T, of necessity, needs one great running back and the boys from Houston think they have such a character in the much talented Gene Shannon, who is being groomed down in the Southwest as an All-American prospect.

Frosh Win Again

15 points, the Freshman team had already won. However, this did not diminish the ardor of either team; witness in the first half a player from each team was ejected for playing a little harder than the ref thought was necessary.

The Frosh kicked off and then after the first couple of plays it looked like they were going to take it as they had pushed the Sophs practically back to their own goal line. However, on the third down Heller ran to the right side and rifled a 25 yard pass to Kenny, who made a spectacular diving catch.

Ricciani Scores

This was as far as they got, though, as the rugged Frosh line forced them to kick. But the next time the Sophs got the ball the Frosh pass defense lapsed for one play. Heller faded back and pitched one 35 yards down field to Ricciani, who took it on the dead run and weaved his way, untouched, 25 more yards to paydirt.

Bow 35-13, For First '51 Loss Parilli Passing Big Factor

By Bud Russo

Villanova took its fourth spin on the wheel of Football fortune and came out on the short end of a 35-13 score last Saturday night. Lady Luck who has been so close to the Villanova team failed to make the plane as the Blue and White left for Lexington, Kentucky. Playing before 35,000 fans the Blue Grass Wildcats pinned back the ears of the Main Line Wildcats, for the fourth straight time.

It was All-American Babe Parilli along with fullback Bill Leskovar, who did the great majority of the damage. Babe Parili passed the line backerups crazy with his professional like passing, completing 11 for 23, four good for touchdown passes went to his 210 pound end, Meilinger. Big Bill Leskovar showed his utter disregard for the Wildcat's much publicized line as he ripped off large chunks of ground all night.

Outstanding in defeat was Bill Brannau who despite being behind most of the night, kept the offensive going with his passes, gaining 132 yards this way, even though his pass protection was unusually poor. Six foot seven Ray Rigney came into his own in this game, foretelling possibly his future as an outstanding offensive threat.

Houston Game Broadcast

The Saturday night game with the University of Houston will be broadcast at 8:55 P. M. over Station WIP, 610 on the dial. Jim Leaming will do the play by play account for the Philco Company.

Haner, Addiego Score

Ben Addiego, Bill Bedesem, Bob Haner, Red Colleta and Bill Greif did the offensive chores in the backfield, Addiego and Haner each scored a single touchdown for the Main liners.

Hegarty, Tomko, Trunzo, Liotta, McNicholas, and Coughlin were the more outstanding players on defense.

Villanova opened up the scoring column first by marching fifty yards. This touchdown was set up by a pass from Brannau to Rilo, who reached the fifteen. Two plays later Ben Addiego took it over from the twelve.

Meilinger Ties Score

Parilli then proceeded to bring Kentucky back, with a 24 yard pass to Meilinger. The score was tied before the first quarter ended.

The second Kentucky score was added when Parilli passed again, this time to Clark, for 25 yards.

Kentucky Leads at Half

Before the period ended Parilli put his team out in front by 3 touchdowns as he did a repeat performance with another seven point toss to Meilinger, for 24 yards.

The Wildcats came back the second half, starting from the 22, they marched 56 yards to the Kentucky 22, when they were stopped by a pass interception. By a series of line bucks and passes, the Blue Grass boys scored again, when Meilinger crossed the goal line for the third time on a pass from Parilli to make the score 27 to 7, as the boot was good.

Villanova Fumble Costly

Villanova immediately fumbled the kickoff on the fifty and Kentucky took over. The Kentuckians proceeded to march once more down field. This time a fifteen yard penalty on Villanova helped them in their bid, and five plays later, Larry Jones, who is one half of the pair that makes up the Jones Twins, went over from the two.

McNicolas Intercepts

Villanova got their chance to score again when Joe McNicolas intercepted one of Parilli's specialties and went all the way to the five yard line before being tackled from behind. The Wildcats failed in their initial try and the ball went to the rival Blue and White, who fumbled two plays later.

With four minutes and 28 seconds left Villanova tried to get another drive started. Brannau proceeded to throw passes to Rigney, Rilo, and Addiego for gains. However, Bill Leskovar proved to be adept in defense as well as offense as he snared one out of the air to kill the drive. The game ended with the ball in Kentucky's possession.

SPORTS CHATTER

What Price Glory?

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

The peaceful and quiet slumber that goes with having an incognito football team was broken rather rudely last Friday morning by an article appearing in the "New York Herald Tribune".

The article that is mentioned is the piece written by Irving T. Marsh in his column "College Viewpoint" entitled "QUEER CASE OF VILLANOVA, PROPHET WITHOUT HONOR". In this Mr. Marsh, one of the most respected sports scribes in New York, discussed a point dear to the hearts of all Wildcat rooters—why does Villanova receive so little attention, footballwise?

Written before the Kentucky game it showed how we had won three straight games from Army, Penn State and Alabama and were already being mentioned as a possible bowl candidate. He went on to show that despite this we receive as much attention in our own area—the Philadelphia area—as does the oldest child in a family of ten children.

Good Teams From Small School

He pointed out that Villanova turns out good teams in all major sports, that in football, especially, we play a tough, a very tough schedule considering the fact that the total enrollment is below 2400 students. The fact that we have a top-flight team with such players as Addiego, Haner and Brannau and have a new coach in Art Raimo and that also we have a good academic standard was all shown.

This writer takes the liberty of quoting one paragraph directly from Mr. Marsh.

"In a spirit of honest inquiry, what's with Villanova? There are Philadelphians (non-alumni, too, and we listened to a couple of them the other day) who are completely taken by the Wildcats. The oddity of the situation is, at least, intriguing."

He goes on to mention our N.C.A.A. Sinful Seven episode a few years back and farther down he caps the whole article off with a question—"Can it be that Pennsylvania dominates Philadelphia to such a degree that no other football team can attract much attention".

Bulletin a Bit Late

On the same afternoon Ed Pollock of the "Evening Bulletin" devoted his entire column to Villanova (the first time this year). Mr.Pollock had so, so many good little things to say about Villanova. Even the headline of his column was entitled "National Recognition for Villanova".

Mr. Pollock went on to show how after the Main Liners victory over Alabama their stock in the nationwide polls began to shoot up so that we rated twelfth among the major colleges of the country. Said he, "the Wildcats are now in the front ranks of the mighty, where they have belonged from the beginning".

If the Philadelphia writers contended that we belonged there from the beginning they certainly kept it to themselves long enough. Perhaps they would have released their blessing upon the Wildcats at some more opportune moment like a quarter moon or a player's birthday. Coming as it did on the heels of Mr. Marsh's New York article it was, to say the least, surprising.

The "Inquirer", following its tradition on Villanova, said nothing.

Situation An Old One

These articles, of course, appeared before the Kentucky game so that they now have to be viewed in a slightly different light. There will be those (there always are) who claim that Villanova is finished because of the trouncing they received at the hands of Kentucky and the papers might just as well go back to devoting added space to the girl's high school soccer matches as happened before.

However, this lack of proper attention is not a malady that is new this season or that can find its panacea in one defeat. This ailment reached far beyond that. It inflicts all sports at Villanova and has done so for a good many years. The case of Paul Arizin is a fine example of this. It took a group of national writers to uncover the fact that the Wildcats had a basketball player who was perhaps the best in the country playing right near Philadelphia before the local press took up the chant for Paul the Tall.

Even a more recent proof might help. What can be more recent than the Sunday morning papers? Pennsylvania, an Ivy League institution, steeped in tradition and possessing a less than average one and two record met the non-nationally recognized Columbia Lions in a game at Franklin Field last Saturday.

"Franklin Field Illustrated"

As a result the Sunday morning papers came out appearing like the Sunday supplement of the Franklin Field Illustrated. One paper, which is famed for its machine gun camera, carried seventeen individual pictures of the fray plus a banner eight column headline on an inside page with a interview by George Munger, head Red and Bluer.

Don't think that you have to win to get your picture in the paper! Penn lost to Princeton and that same paper which carried seventeen photos in victory, carried sixteen in defeat.

It will be quite interesting to see how Villanova is treated in the local press now that we have been beaten. In fact our treatment by the local press is always intriguing, and to quote Mr. Marsh, a bit "puzzling", too.

Bob Haner, Top Team Scorer Adds To Fullback Fame

By Joe Corcoran

"As fine a fullback as Villanova ever had". "A wonderful blocker in addition to his line-crashing abiilties". "His defensive talents, exhibited so effectively last year, are often overlooked."

These comments, representative of the many plaudits heaped on him by thletic director Bill Connelly and coaches Art Raimo and Ed Michaels, ably describe Bob Haner, the latest in a long line of stellar fullbacks that have graced our Main Line campus.

Louisville Boy

After one year of varsity seasoning as Pete D'Alonzo's understudy, the easy-going Kentuckian has come into his own as a foremost candidate for pre-graduation All-American laurels. A blocking back in his high school days at St. Francis Xavier in Louisville, Bob made the switch to his fullback post with little difficulty, and, in two years has mastered the position. Breaking fast from scrimmage, Haner moves like a fullback until he's into the open where he assumes the broken field skills of a halfback.

Leading Team Scorer

Bob leads the Wildcat pointmakers with 41 to his credit. He garnered 30 of these on touchdown thrusts and the remainder through the medium of his near-perfect toe — the toe which has failed him only twice this season on the attempt for the seventh point.

Bob, also the regular 3rd baseman on Xavier's baseball squad held down the first-string blocking assignment for two and one-half years. He co-captained the club in his last season with Otto Knop who, last fall, was chosen as "Little All-American" center from the University of Louisville.

Mixed Michigan Bid

Haner turned down offers from at least two other—and better known institutions in order to come to Villanova. His highschool mentor, Ray Bear, tried to get Bob to go to Michigan where Bear had played with the present Wolverine coach, Bennie Oosterbaan.

The University of Kentucky next moved in with an offer. Bob still frowns good-naturedly about it as he recalls, "They wanted me to play guard!" The Brother from Mount St. Joseph's in Baltimore who sent John Geppi to Villanova was also responsible for Haner's arrival here.

Likes Pro Ball

The 19 year old Education junior expressed a desire to "take a crack at pro ball" when his collegiate career is ovr. With his tremendous drive and the enthusiasm gained from playing football "for fun," Bob should be able to fit smoothly into the attack of any of the pro squads.

While only one of the cogs in the Blue and White attack, Haner's crushing drives through the line tighten the opposing defenses, allowing Bill Brannau to send his thrifty halves, Ben Addiego and Dick Bedesem off the tackles or around the flanks, or to wing one of his aerials behind the drawn-in defenses.

Wnated This One

One of the biggest disappointments in Bob's football areer came last Saturday night when the Villanova Wildcats played the Kentucky Wildcats. This was the first time that Bob played in a Villanova football uniform before the folks from his home state. If he ever desired victory it was Saturday night.

New Moderator To LKD Frat

Fr. Laverty New Here Fesco Names Heads

Rev. Joseph Laverty, O.S.A., who joined the faculty at Villanova only last semester, has been named moderator of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity. This announcement was made by President Ed Fesco at the fraternity's second meeting of the current scholastic year, which was held last Tuesday.

Fesco opened the meeting by reading the Constitution and By-Laws of the fraternity and explaining them to the members. He requested that all members become familiar with them so that they will understand more fully what is being done by the fraternity.

Brunner Report

Ed Brunner, Student Council representative, reported that there was considerable uncertainty regarding the Interfrat Ball as a result of the repairs presently going on in the field house.

In accordance with the fraternity by-laws, Fesco appointed an initiation committee to arrange for a time, place, and method of initiation.

'53 Operation Yule Prepares Activities

Chairman Di Vittis Sets Early Dec. Date For Students Convenience

"Operation Yule," Villanova's own day to play Santa Claus for the orphans at St. John's, is ready to begin its 1951 activities, Chairman Art DiVittis announced yesterday.

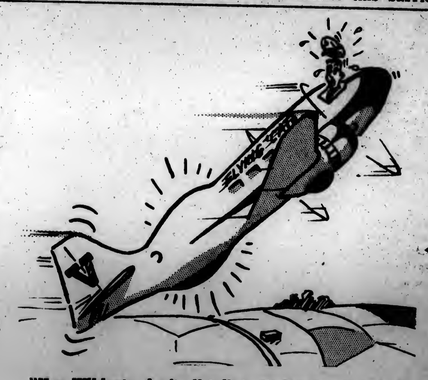
Started in 1948 when an unidentified student asked Father Grimes for permission to take one of the boys to see Santa Claus, Operation Yule has grown to be one of Villanova's finest young traditions.

In that first year a loosely organized committee managed to arrange for about one half of the Johnies to be taken out. It was mainly through the efforts of the football players and veterans that this came about.

Everyone Visits

In 1949, with a fine committee under the direction of Frank McDonald and Armenn Walsh, more students than there were orphans turned out, and 100 percent of the boys visited Santa and enjoyed a day with the men of Villanova. Besides the outing that year, a party was also held at the orphanage a week later, and every one of the boys received a present, purchased from the donations of the students here.

This year, because of the early Christmas vacation, the outing is scheduled for December 1, with the party set for December 12.



Dayhops Urged

Chairman DiVittis especially urges dayhops to take a more active interest this year, because they usually have more ready access to transportation than the residents. Also, the football team, always a mainstay for the outing, will be away playing Tulsa.

ART DIVITTIS
Operation Yule Chmn.

The reason for the early date this year is because of the difficulty encountered last year when the outing was held the Saturday before vacation. Many of the students who would ordinarily take out the boys, left early to work in the post office at home. The December 1 date was decided on to eliminate this barrier.

Belle Masque Prepares Play

Father Krupa Directs "Life Is A Dream"

The Belle Masque fall play, which a week ago was a mass of jumbled cues and patient directions, is gradually emerging for pre-Christmas production in the tradition of "The Hasty Heart," and all the other memorable Belle Masque successes.

"Life is a Dream," a 17th century adventure drama, is the story of the court of King Basilius of Poland. The part of His Majesty is to be played by Bernard Coyne. The play is basically concerned with the intrigue and romance which surrounds the life of the king's son, Prince Sigismund, portrayed by one of the Belle Masque's experienced actors, Jim Clarkin.

Tom Hayden is cast as Clotald, Prince Sigismund's tutor, who grooms him from childhood, for a career as a sovereign. Bob Allen and George Crist, who have both previously appeared on the Villanova stage, join with actresses from Rosemont College, Joan Daley and Eileen O'Brien, to complete the court of King Basilius.

Rosemont Art

Peggy Smith, a Rosemont College art major, has designed two detailed period sets, which, when completed, promise to give a strikingly realistic background for "Life is a Dream."

Rev. William Krupa, O.S.A., as director, will be at the helm of the production staff. Assisting him will be Business Manager Bill Vincent; and Stage Managers Gerry Battle and Don McCourt.

Chesterfield Reps

Campus Merchandising bureau of New York announced the appointment of William Lemmer and James Gallagher as campus representatives of Chesterfield cigarettes for the current semester. Lemmer was campus representative during last year.

Villanova has yet on conquer the Golden Hurricanes of Tulsa University. In the two previous games the Wildcats were blasted 21-19 and 27-7.

Beta Gamma Debating Soc. Schedules Seven Debates

Interested Men Invited to Join Discussions

Mr. Joseph T. Jonas, assistant professor of English and moderator of the Beta Gamma Debating Society, informed the "Villanovan" today that the society is already in operation.

It meets every Monday from 4 to 6 p. m. in the Seminar 1 room in the library. The purpose of the society is to develop debating ability; all students who are interested are invited to join.

Last night's meeting was occupied with the nomination of new officers and revision of the society's by-laws. Mr. Jonas says, however, that new members are still welcome.

Open in February

Though the debating season officially opens in February, Mr. Jonas has planned a series of practice debates with the following colleges; Rosemont, St. Josephs, La-Salle, and Loyola University. Invitations for debates have been sent to Bucknell, George-

Dr. Gero's Paper Gains Recognition

Dr. Alexander Gero, member of the Villanova Chemistry Department, has submitted a paper to the Journal of Organic Chemistry. Entitled "The Electronic Structure of 4-Hydroxyphenacylamines and the Stability of a-Aminoketones," it appeared in the August 1951 issue of the Journal.

Inspiration for the research work came while Dr. Gero was still employed in industry. After 17 years of industrial work, he left his lucrative position in favor of the teaching profession.

Field House Is Prepared For Soph Cotillion

After college authorities arranged with the Field House contractors to make the auditorium ready for the Soph Cotillion on November 9, dance chairman Steve Berry and his committee heads continued their interrupted plans for the first major social event of the year.

Booster sales will close tomorrow. Berry announced at a meeting of committee leaders last Wednesday that sales so far had been disappointing. To put one name on the program as a booster costs only fifty cents, Berry pointed out, adding that for the same price one could put his first name and his girl friend's first name under the Booster list.

Tickets at $2.50 per couple are on sale in the Pie Shop daily from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., until November 9, reported Tony Pearson and Joe Kenny, chairmen of the ticket committee. Tickets will also be on sale the night of the ninth at the Field House, they said.

"We feel that we can obtain better speakers, better and more diversified topics, and more interest by presenting independent lectures on current topics, delivered by experts in their fields," explained Forum Chairman Bruderle.

Fourth Year

This evening will open the fourth forum year. March 3, 1949 was the inauguration date of the forum. That evening Mr. Bruderle introduced Mrs. Catherine Doherty, first speaker ever to address the Villanova Forum.

This evening's speaker, Miss Bentley, is well qualified to speak on her topic. A member of the Communist party in this nation less than five years ago, Miss Bentley cast aside her Communist beliefs and has since become a renowned witness against American Communists.

A graduate of Vassar, Miss Bentley has also studied at Columbia University and at the University of Florence, Italy.

"Out of Bondage," the autobiography of Miss Bentley, was recently completed and will soon be published.

Large Turnout Expected

One of the largest forum audiences in several years is expected by the forum chairman this evening. "We have secured an expert on a very current topic," commented

Council Committee Reports On Reforms

Moving rapidly in its first week of existence, the Student Council committee undertaking campus reforms has reported some progress in every field which was assigned investigation. Tom Fucigna, committee chairman, revealed at the Council meeting last night that the following steps have been taken:

1. Parking lots. Action to relieve congestion and repair parking areas is now under way. Gravel or cinder fill will be acquired by college authorities in the very near future; the area opposite the Field House is under special consideration.

2. Cafeteria hours. Fucigna stated that Rev. John Curran, O.S.A., College Procurator, is in favor of the motion to open the cafeteria at 11:15, but wishes to ascertain, through a resident student ballot, how many students would actually benefit from the change. (Previously, it was the opinion of a number of Student Council members that the 11:15 opening would better accommodate students with mid-day classes and would serve to eliminate the 11:30 cafeteria line.)

3. Luncheon milk service. Acting immediately on Junior Class President Paul Sollami's motion to serve milk at lunch, the committee set to work and within four days, milk was, and will continue to be, available at every meal.

4. Book Store investigation. As a result of his own findings, Fucigna reported that the Book Store is in the throes of "much needed reorganization, and they (the Book Store staff) hope to see favorable results soon."

5. Mendel Hall Phones. Pay phones on third floor Mendel were removed by the Bell Telephone Co. during the renovation and plastering of that floor. College authorities notified the company three weeks ago, requesting re-installment of the phones. Currently, the situation is in the hands of the Bell Telephone Co.

6. Cafeteria Menu. Quoting Father Curran, Fucigna said, "There is no necessity whatsoever for printing a daily menu. From the present, it looks like there never will be one."

7. Cafeteria clean-up. Fucigna stressed that maintaining a clean cafeteria is the student's own responsibility. He advised, "Leave a clean table when you leave. More positively, student artists have been asked to design the "Keep Your Cafeteria Clean" posters.

In this same regard, he reported that Father Curran has no complaints about students taking milk from the cafeteria to their rooms, but he does object to the practice of leaving milk in the bottles to spoil. Father Curran asks that the bottles be washed out and returned when empty.

Aiding committee chairman Tom Fucigna in his work are Student Council members Edward Brunner, Carl Koenig, and Mike DeSantis.

"Operation Yule" Sets Double Goal: $1500 & 500 Men

"Operation Yule" will have a two-fold objective this year. Arthur DiVittis, drive chairman, stated the goals as, 1) raising of $1500 for the annual party and, 2) getting a minimum of 500 students to take out the boys of St. John's on December 1, annual outing day.

Publicity Chairman Jim Glavin, who revealed DiVittis' double goal, also announced last night that Pete MacEwen, collection chairman, had completed plans for the collections.

Collection Nov. 5

MacEwen and his committee, according to Glavin, will begin taking up collections in religious classes November 5. Each class will be canvassed three times; each man is asked to contribute twenty-five cents to each collection. MacEwen said that if each man meets his seventy-five cents quota, the goal of $1500 will be easily reached.

Chairman DiVittis also revealed his committee chairmen last week. In addition to Glavin and MacEwen, they are: posters, Jose Matton; refreshments, Bob Lovelace; toys, Fred Malloy; and Hobo Hop, Chic Heiser.

Dormitory Canvass

Glavin announced plans, also, to get students to sign up for the drive. The committee in charge will canvass each dormitory for students willing to co-operate in the outing; in addition, he reported day-hops will be requested to sign up in the Pie Shop.

OPERATION YULE publicity men Joe Matton and Jim Glavin discuss posters with Rev. Joseph Kemme, O.S.A., Junior class moderator, as the committee begins its campaign for the December 1 activities.

Follow the Leaders

November second of every year is a day set aside by Catholics throughout the world to commemorate the feast of All Souls Day. This year it falls next Thursday, and has a special signficance for students of Villanova College, because five of our number have died in the service of the country since the last All Souls Day.

Last May 29 Lieutenant Robert Munday, U.S.M.C., Villanova '50, was killed by an enemy mine in Korea. On June 29 Captain Peter Kite, also of the U. S. Marines and the Class of '50, died in a California plane accident.

Lieutenant William H. Diana, U.S.N., Villanova '49 was killed in a crash in Alaska on August 31 last. A member of the present Senior Class, Sergeant William Gaul, met his death with the Marines in Korea on September 15, just as his former classmates were returning to studies for the current semester. And even more recently, on September 30, Lieutenant Edward McCune, U.S.A.F., Villanova '49, perished in a plane crash in Oklahoma.

All these men were at Villanova when those in the present graduating class were freshmen. Many of us were in classes with them; some knew them personally. All of us had passed them on the campus at one time or another.

Now they are gone.

There may be men at Villanova today who will be called to follow these former classmates in the very near future. Yes, you or I may be going to meet death in a year or two hence.

It is a frightening thought, not a very pleasant one, but as a practical matter it might be well to reflect on it now that All Souls Day is here, and consider how well we are prepared.

These men were all leaders. They were leaders at Villanova and leaders in the service—four of them officers and one a sergeant. They were leaders when it came to giving their lives.

On All Souls Day we might well offer prayers for those who were so close to us as members of the Villanova student body—and pray that we will benefit from their example and also be leaders—when it really matters.

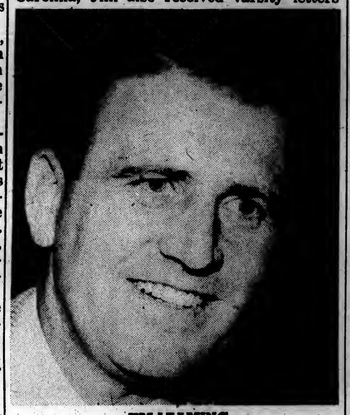
Sports Director Leaming Five-Letter Man, Coach



By Otto Fohl

A dark cloud of disappointment hovered over the campus of Villanova when the college football schedule was announced last year. With the prospect of two home games in view, Villanova followers resigned themselves to be content with the brief resumes of the games in the local newspapers.

This dim prospect was brightened, however, with the announcement that WIP in conjunction with Philco would bring a play-by-play description of all the Wildcat's contests. The task of broadcasting the Mainliner's feats was assigned to the Sports Director of WIP—Jim Leaming.

Experienced Sport

Jim, a local sports personality, has had a wealth of experience in the field of sports. A tackle with the famous Tarheels of North Carolina, Jim also received varsity letters for basketball, track, wrestling and the ever rough lacrosse. Incidentally, he is one of the very few Tarheels to boast five varsity letters.

After receiving his degree in 1942, Jim was called by Uncle Sam to offer his talents in the U. S. Army. It was in the Army that Jim was to accomplish one of his greater feats, that of coaching a fine Army Special Services football team. It boasted such present luminaries as Roscoe Hansen of the Philadelphia Eagles, Sherman Howard, New York Yankees, Frank Tonner, halfback star of the Columbia Lions, and Herb Carey, Captain of the Dartmouth eleven.

Coached in Army

It is no wonder that this splendid array of talent received the many plaudits of the GI's in Europe. However, his laurels do not rest here, for in 1946 while at the helm of Holy Spirit High School in Atlantic City, his young spirited gridsters acquired their first South Jersey football crown.

Jim who is well known for his sportscasting on the WIP-WFPG, Atlantic City-Mutual Broadcasting System, has broadcast play by play action of every football power in the Philadelphia area. He has provided commentaries on television or radio for PMC, Delaware, Temple and Pennsylvania.

Jim's entry into the sportscasting field in 1947 was rather an upsetting one. On the same day that Jim was describing the play by play action of P.M.C., Mrs. Leaming presented Jim with a new heir.

Night Broadcasting

Jim Leaming's coverage of the Wildcat contests is the best Villanova has enjoyed in several years. His continued praise of the Wildcats is inserted in his daily evening sportcasts over WIP at 6:30 P.M. Jim's enthusiasm for the Mainline eleven is reflected in a recent statement made over the local airwaves. "Villanova has a team that the priests, students and Philadelphians in general can well be proud of."

In Jim Leaming, we believe, Villanova has gained a new friend. We wish him continued success as an airwave athlete and a Philadelphia personality.

John A. Abbott, Planner, Plans Everything But The Final Quiz

By Bob Bellarme

John Algy Abbott, had made it a habit,
To plan every thing in advance.
He properly bathed, and carefully shaved,
When asked to a tea or a dance.

How sad to relate, that prudence so great,
Should fail when 'twas needed the most.
He died one fine morning,
without any warning,
And gave up an unprepared ghost.

INTEGRITY

Have you ever thought about what you're going to say to the Judge when you meet Him in the celestial courthouse? For just a minute think about that day when He asks you for your lifetime ledger book. Will you pull a John A. Abbott?

"Here, God, are my lifetime accomplishments—I had scores of people I could call workers and lodge brothers. I even was introduced to Ava once. Usually I was invited to parties because I was the guy that made them click—I had a million-dollar personality.

Sharp Dresser

Girls always looked upon me as a Beau Brummel, a sharp dresser. I was an active member in the Elks and civic club and was an honorary member of the Dodger Symphony. I left my family well-fixed with a five-figure bank balance. That's it, Lord, and oh yes, in case you're interested, I gave a dollar in the collection basket on Sunday."

Still Burning

Boy, was Abbott in for a shock. Was he sore. In fact, he's still burning over it. He thought he had figured out all the angles. But his brief had been valueless. Why?

When you stand before God to render your final report He will not ask you:

How popular you were during life; How many parties you went to; How well-dressed you were; How much fun you had for yourself; How many clubs you belonged to; How big a bank account you had.

Take Inventory

He will ask you how well you worked at the job of living. Did you fulfill the requirements (duties and obligations) of your particular state in life. In other words, were you a good student, a good doctor, a good parent? That's the 64-dollar question.

Take an inventory. Try balancing your books. Ask yourself whether or not you are a good student. Is your spiritual development keeping up with your intellectual growth? If there is a deficit make it up—take in morning Mass and avail yourself of the opportunities for confession at that Mass. Start climbing the path to His house now so that when that heavenly butler, Peter, answers your knock he'll be able to say "Welcome — He's expecting you."

Webster Required To Change 'Nutty Name' To Rhyming One

By Bob Allen

Nona Igarglesome was not a pretty girl.

But she was a girl, and, for this, Webster breathed a prayer of thanksgiving, as she danced right off his toes into his heart.

There was something about her—a certain nothingness that Webster had found in other girls, but, with Nona, there was one important difference. She was willing to blend her nothingness with Webster's in an attempt to achieve something. What it would be, neither was willing to guess at.

Looking across at Webster, Nona phrased an appropriate and gently inquisitive question. She sighed, "Whyncha change that nutty name a yours, hah?"

Webster smiled understandingly and played the gentleman, replying, "Well, I know that 'Webster' is an odd name, but Mom and Dad rather like it."

"Not' Webster'," she shrieked, "'Twomp,' you idiot! Change the name 'Twomp'! It's making me the laughing-stock of the campus."

Recalling that they had just met, Webster retorted weakly, "But, Nona, 'Twomp' is a fine name, and I don't see how you can complain—er—considering that your name—er—well, that is—"

Nona stopped dancing and, drawing herself up to her full four feet, replied, "Young man, if you happen to be referring to 'Igarglesome,' it is the finest of old, American names. Why, whenever it is spoken, you can hear the sound of brooks and the singing of birds."

"I know, Nona, but—"

Placing her foot gently, but firmly, in Webster's mouth, Nona continued wildly, "Just listen: Igarglesome, Igarglesome, Igarglesome, Igarglesome. . ."

Two days and 7000 "Igarglesomes" later, Webster nodded "Yes" as gently as possible, so as not to injure Nona's foot, and the two sat out for small claims Court.

"You have your pick of three beautiful and distinctive names," she said. "Henceforth, you will be either 'Webster Die Zwillingsbruder,' 'Webster Abd Allah ibn Yasin,' or 'Webster Schlum'."

Webster drew his head out of his pocket and collapsed dejectedly on the Courthouse steps. He said weakly, "I can quarrel no longer, Nona. 'Shlum' it must be."

"Darling Webster," she queried, "why do you prefer 'Shlum'?"

"Because it rhymes with 'Igarglesome'," he chortled romantically.

THE PASHA PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

SAM JOHNSON JOTTINGS: While looking over an assignment in one of the many English three hundred courses last week, we found some very interesting Johnsonisms which, although written some two centuries ago, might readily be applied to this modern era in which we live. . . . Of course, the language of Johnson, in order to be more easily understood, had to be translated into the vernacular of the present-day college level. . . . It is apparent that the writers and readers of today have deviated from the abstract and have ventured upon the threshold of linguistic realism. . . . Here are but a few examples that might illustrate this point: "My sight was dazzled, my cheeks glowed, my perceptions were confounded." . . . Isn't it much simpler to state "I was clobbered"? "I returned home covered with academical laurels and fraught with criticism and philosophy." . . . Nowadays a Villanovan would say "I passed Logic, Ma." . . . "A young woman newly arrived from the 'Country,' who lived for five weeks with great regularity and became by frequent treats very much favorite of the family." . . . I took a gal home from Rosemont and the folks think she's the greatest thing since television."

SNAP, POPPLE, KRACLE: How many readers remember those boyhood days when the fad in vogue was flippin' picture cards of famous Indians, war heroes, and battle scenes? Well, men, your kid brothers will probably be engaged in a similar pastime in the near future. . . . A bubble gum concern has started the card campaign once again, however, they will use football heroes from the various colleges instead of Chief Pontiac and his tribe. . . . Nick Liotta will be the first player of the Villanova squad to hit the paste boards for the coming flippin' season. . . . Others on the squad will follow shortly thereafter, since pictures of the entire team will be forwarded to the company. . . .

VILLANOVAN VARIETIES: With a new name and a cast composed of service personnel from the Philly area, Bob Whalen stages his "Piper Heidsieck 98" down in the City of Brotherly Love. . . . The new tag is "Circa 98," but the bouncy rhythms, and the clever script that were first presented on this campus in the Spring of 1950 remain unchanged. . . . George Noake, another personality familiar about this campus, did the directing for this production.

CHESTNUT HILL GOES UPPITTY: The Mask and Foil Club, the theatrical group at the Little Red School House in the wilderness, is staging a production of "The High Ground" on November 2nd and 3rd. . . . This is the play from which the successful flicker "Thunder on the Hill" was taken. . . . It will be the first time that this particular play will be in the hands of an amateur cast. . . . It should prove itself very interesting and all Villanovans are asked to support it. . . . It has to be good—the title fits the surroundings so appropriately.

POISON IVY UPRISING: In an article, by Stanley Woodward, the November issue of Sport magazine tries to fathom the reason for other Ivy League schools boycotting Penn in next year's schedule. . . . It seems that Mr. Stassen attributed it to Penn's playing a Catholic school. . . . One of the Ivy League graduate managers disagrees with him. . . . "This Stassen has a nerve hinting we are anti-Catholic. There is a big Catholic college with a good football team ten miles from Franklin Field and Penn has been giving it the freeze since football started. Why doesn't Stassen play Villanova?" . . . Yes, bring on your old big Blue and Red, Mr. Stassen—we'll show the Ivy League that they ain't so tough fer other teams.

RETURN CARDS NOW

Yesterday Rev. Edwin Grimes, O.S.A., Chaplain, reminded students to fill out and return All Souls cards before November 1. Several students have yet to pick up the cards in his office.

Departed souls named on the cards will be remembered in every Mass offered in the College Chapel during the month.

Placement Service Plans Interviews With Companies Of Seniors' Choice

Mr. George Harris, director of Villanova's Placement Service, has announced that different industries and businesses are constantly sending literature concerning opportunities for graduates, company policies and general employment information to the office.

Register Now

Interviews with companies of their choice are available to all seniors merely by registering with the Placement Service now. Special forms are available for interested men to fill out, and from these, a confidential report is made out on the student, which is kept on file even after graduation.

These reports stress the academic standards, personal facts, experience, and recommendations of past employers and faculty members of the man in question.

Perfect Aim

In the past, Mr. Harris stated, the school of engineering has placed every man registered.

Representatives of various companies will be on campus for interviews this year between February 24 and May 27. However, completed forms must be returned to the placement office prior to the Thanksgiving recess.

As much time is needed to process these forms, it is urged that men desiring these interviews avail themselves of the opportunity as soon as possible.

To Register with the Placement Service:

1. Pick up, not later than November 9, three registration forms and the 3x5 card. List three faculty members to be used as references and three companies of your choice.

2. Return the completed 3x5 card and forms, with a recent picture on each form not later than November 21.

The Placement Service office is located in room 102 Mendel Hall.

MR. GEORGE A. HARRIS, center, Director of placement service at Villanova, discusses job opportunities with Mr. Maynard M. Boring, manager of Technical Personnel Division of General Electric Co., and Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Dean of the College's Commerce & Finance School.

Belle Masque Drama Group With 'Mama' At Rosemont

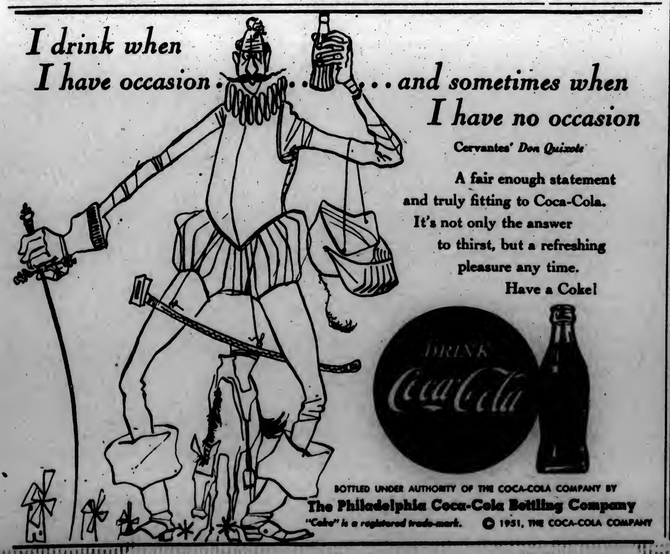
Six Belle Masquers are helping to launch the current inter-collegiate dramatic session this Friday night, in the Rosemont College Jest and Gesture presentation of "I Remember Mama."

When the play opens on November 2nd, Mimi Heffernan, who plays the lead role of "Mama" will be backed by a supporting cast of twenty-three. The Villanova contingent includes John Larkin, John Fitzgerald, Al Hevey, Tony Della Rocca, Don Davis and Mike DeSantis.

Broadway Hit

"I Remember Mama" was originally produced on Broadway by Messrs. Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, starting its long run in the fall of 1944. More recently, the play's natural humor has been captured in a network television series, starring Peggy Wood.

Miss Barbara Smith, director of Rosemont's Jest and Gesture Club, with the help of her cast and production staff, has been successful in overcoming many dialogue and setting difficulties, which are inherent in the production of a play of this type.



Student tickets for the Friday and Saturday performances may be obtained from any of the Villanova men in the play, or from the Rosemont College Auditorium Box Office.

Science Photography In Library Exhibit

LIFE Pictures Will Be Shown Featuring Works of Goro

College Library has arranged a showing of PHOTOGRAPHING SCIENCE, one of a series of photographic exhibitions prepared by the editors of LIFE Magazine, beginning next Thursday and continuing through November 15.

The exhibition consists of eighteen photographs by LIFE'S Fritz Goro. Enlarged and mounted on eighteen panels, each of the pictures records an important moment in the history of scientific achievement.

Pioneer in Field

Mr. Goro, one of the pioneers in photographic science, has also pioneered in devising methods to photograph the illusive manifestations of science. As against the two dimensional effect of microphotography, he has developed what he calls "macro-photography," which takes tiny objects below the point of vision and photographs them in their environment.

Mr. Goro is credited with being the first to photograph much scientific phenomena, and his historic photograph of atom splitting made in 1939 is included in this exhibition of his work.

Special Equipment

Many of the exhibition photographs were made with specially built equipment and often involved Mr. Goro in months of preparation. The drama of some subjects is increased, owing to original photographic magnification and to subsequent enlargement of the panels to exhibition size.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

POOR PAUL was eggzasperated because every chick on campus gave him the bird. They told him: "We're all cooped up!" Then one day his roommate said: "The hens avoid you beak-cause your hair's messy, you dumb cluck! I don't know feather you've heard of Wildroot Cream-Oil or not, but you better fry it—er, try it! Contains soothing Lanolin. Relieves dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil—and now the gals think he's a good egg! Better lay down a few poultry cents on the nearest drug or toilet goods counter for a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. And ask for it on your hair at your favorite barber shop. Then the girls'll take off their hatch to you!

DiVittis issued a warning to all Villanovans last night concerning the rapidly approaching December 1 date. The chairman commented, "The outing is the only part of the entire drive the students are asked to give their time to.

"There are but 22 days of school until December 1. I ask you to not put it off."

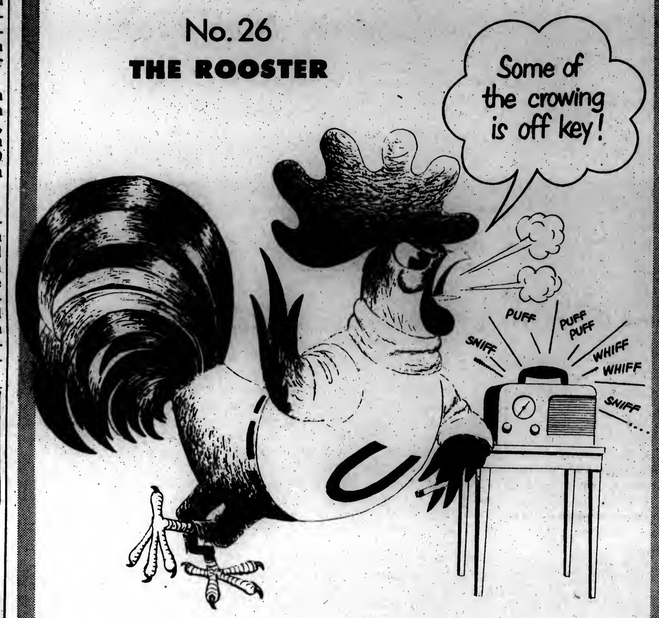
Hobo Hop head Chick Heiser has not yet completed plans for the dance held annually to raise funds for the drive.

T&T Plans April 23rd Show

Turf and Tinsel Club will raise the curtain on its annual musical comedy on April 23. The date of this year's show was announced at the initial meeting of the Turf and Tinsel Club, October 22, in the C&F auditorium.

Bob Whelan, athletic secretary of the college, will again provide the music. Of the three scripts to be submitted for the play, one is already being considered.



The 1951 production will be the fifth consecutive for Turf and Tinsel. Members have hopes that it will not only be the best production, but also the best year as a club.

Due to the small turnout at the first meeting, Rev. Michael O'Donnell, O.S.A., club moderator, stated that nominations for offices would be postponed until the next meeting, to be announced in the near future. Tom Fucigna will continue as president, in the interim.

Wildcats Gouge Houston Cougars, 33-27; Harriers Drop Decision To Manhattan

Barry and Dwyer Finish First and Third in Fast Time

By Jim Guthrie

John Joe Barry, "the Balincurry Hare", continued on his winning ways by finishing first in the Villanova-Manhattan dual cross - country meet, held last Saturday, at New York's VanCortlandt Park.

Despite this individual victory the Wildcat team went down to defeat 24-35 at the hands of the Manhattan Jaspers. In losing this meet the Mainliners have now a 2-2 record for 1951.

Fast Time

Barry, along with Freddy Dwyer, who finished third in the race, dominated the grueling five-mile jaunt from the start and John Joe led the entire way. Barry's time for the distance was a brisk 26:41:8 and this had many of the old timers looking up the record books to see if the transplanted Hibernian had broken the record for the distance.

William Lucas of the victorious Jaspers was second only four yards behind the winner. Fred Dwyer, who all season has been finishing hand-in-hand with Barry was almost a minute behind the first two finishers.

Five Straight Jaspers

After Dwyer came five straight Manhattan finishers and this proved to be the margin of victory. In third place for the Wildcats and ninth in the total finish was sophomore Bart Moynahan who was closely followed by Bernard Finan, a freshman Wildcat. Artie Klepper finished the scoring for Villanova.

Even Record

Previous to this meet Villanova had lost to Army in the season's opener and then had defeated Navy and Seton Hall. The cross-country team will be idle now until November 19, when they again travel to Van Cortlandt Park for the IC4A's.

Co-Captain Nick Liotta Leads His Team Mates

By Mark DeMarco

Did you ever read any of the pre-season selections? If you are a fervent pigskin fan, you undoubtedly have. And did any of you see the name of Nick Liotta? No! Why? This is because Nick is an 'old school' All-American, a throwback to the days when those two vanishing qualities—versatility and stamina—were essential components of a true All-American.

Sixty Minute Player

Nick Liotta is a sixty minute guard in a day when most squads have an offensive platoon, a defensive team, a kickoff eleven, a kickoff returning group, etc. This endurance permits Nick to outplay fresh men who go to and from the bench every few minutes for a rest and thus sets him apart from the specialists that dominate the game today.

Leads Team Play

Nick is a steadying influence in a rather young and inexperienced Wildcat line. When the pressure is greatest it is only natural that the newcomers will look to the battle-tested veterans for leadership. This leadership Nick can and does supply. This quality is something that is not easily put on paper, but it does vitally affect the tides of battle.

The sportwriters and commentators may not readily recognize Villanova's existence, but when opposing coaches and players select their all-opponent teams, Nick is hardly ever neglected.

The greatest praise a player can receive is for a referee or other official to remark favorably on the quality of his play after a game. Nick has earned this tribute by virtue of his own particular brand of play; hard, tough and aggressive, but clean.

Born in Everett, Mass.

Dominec Liotta was born in Everett, Massachusetts, a little more than twenty-four years ago.

Nick is a graduate of Everett High and thus follows in the path of Coach Art Raimo and former star fullback, Ralph Pasquariello, who came to the Main Line institution from his home town of Everett.

There was a slight interruption in his education, as Nick spent three years in the U. S. Army paratroops. It probably is his affinity for the enemy's backfield that got the rugged New Englander into this branch of the army.

Has Eye on Pro Ball

Sturdy Nick is a senior who is eligible for a Bachelor of Science degree in Education this June. After graduation, Nick would like to take a fling at pro football and, as the various pro clubs select their future performers on the basis of true merit and not because of an excessive amount of publicity, a guard by the name of Liotta will be in great demand. When his days of active participation end, Nick wants to return to his native Massachusetts to coach.

Add these qualities plus a certain necessary amount of speed and you have a great lineman. Since Nick stands out in all these varied things that have been mentioned, he must, of necessity, be a real line standout. This tremendous accumulation of abilities are Nick's claim to fame and substantiate the view that he is a real All-American.

Only time will tell if he gets the recognition he deserves.

Villanova Regains Winning Ways; Brannau Outstanding

By Bud Russo

The Villanova Wildcats matched heads up football against a strong Houston ground attack to win a close 33-26 ball game at Houston last Saturday night.

Taking advantage of Houston's mistakes Villanova took a 20-0 half time lead, only to have to come back and fight off a rampaging Houston club which put cross four touchdowns in the second half.

Brannau, Addiego, Rilo Outstanding

Leading the Main Liner's attack was Bill Brannau who passed for two touchdown's and completed 7 out of 11 passes. Ben Addiego and Joe Rilo starred offensively as Ben carried and passed for two touchdowns, and Joe crossed the double line twice on completed passes.

On defense it was Faragalli, Ceveri, Liotta, Gildea, Tomko, Morello, Kershaw, Leichweiss, and Coughlin.

Shannon, Excels for Houston

The Houston team was sparked by Shannon, who gained 158 yards and scored three touchdowns, and quarterback Clatterbuck.

Paul Tomko's interception on the 46, which was run to the 20, set up the first Wildcat score. Ben Addiego then took it across in two plays, the latter a three yard buck. Haner's kick was blocked.

Farragali's Tackle Pays Off

On the first play after the kickoff, because of Farragali's tackle, the ball was rumoled into the air, where Ceceri caught it and went 45 yards for the second touchdown.

The Cougar's started a 75 yard drive that was halted on the Villanova 3. The Wildcats got out of this hole on an exchange of kicks and interceptions, Gildea taking it to the Villanova 47. With 5 seconds left in the half Brannau faded back and threw a pass to John Giordano for the third score. Haner's boot was good.

Houston Thunders Back

The second half brought the wrath of Texas upon the Wildcats, as the Cougars capped a 56 yard drive with a 25 yard touchdown run by Shannon to make the score 20-7, as the boot was good.

The Main Liner's, lead by the passing of Brannau and Addiego's running, came back to score on a pass to Joe Rilo. The extra point failed an the score was 26-7.

The Cougars again clawed their way to another six pointer, culminating a 75 yard drive which was completed as the quarterback sneaked over from the 2. Houston then was behind by 13 points.

Liotta Recovers Fumbeld Kick

The fourth quarter opened with another break for the Wildcats, as Liotta pounced on a fumbled kick. Then on a pitchout from Brannau to

I-M Hoop Entries Are Set to Close On November 1st

The intramural basketball season which saw a record number of teams participate last year, is scheduled to begin November 5. Mr. Powers, I-M director, urges all managers to submit with him a list of the players, the name of the team, and the league in which they are to perform before the November 1 deadline for such entries.

New Barracks League

A slight change has been made in the Leagues this year. The "A" and "B" Leagues will still exist, but instead of the "C" League, a "Barracks" League will be formed providing competition among the four barracks. The number of leagues in the dayhop division will depend upon the number of teams entered by their managers.

Alumni gym will not be the only scene of the intramural contests. Due to the fact that freshmen have been made eligible for the varsity this year, there will not be a freshman basketball team. Thus, in place of the usual freshman game which preceded each varsity contest, it is planned at the present time to stage an intramural league game.

Toppers to Defend

The Alumni Toppers will be defending their title, won last year by a margin of 55-47 from the Rumrunners in the finals of the annual "All Villanova Basketball Tournament."

The Rumrunners led by Harry Short and Bob Lazzara could not cope with the all-around brilliance of Larry O'Hearn who poured in 26 points.

Team Entirely Back

The Toppers will again have the services of O'Hearn. Jude O'Donnell, another man instrumental in the Toppers' crown will also be back, along with Bill Decker, Jim Moore and Bill O'Brien. Competition will not be lacking; however, as the Fedigan Big Five, runner-up to the Alumni aggression last year in the "A" loop, will again field a fine team, in spite of the loss of such stars as Bill Lemmer and Tom Brennan. Austin will have to be considered in the running with their wealth of new material.

Strong Dayhop Loop

The dayhops should again provide good basketball as evidenced by the fact that for the last two years a dayhop team has managed to reach the finals of the tournament when put in competition with the resident teams.

SPORTS CHATTER

AT THE HALF

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

It was John Kiernan, the famed sports writer and major domo of "Information Please", who wrote a few years back of "Saturday's Madness"—the game of football.

It is hardly believable that Mr. Kiernan had the football season of 1951 directly in mind when he wrote that famous article but he must certainly have been thinking of one just like it.

Besides the usual points of interest that are attendant with the gridiron year such as upsets, new coaches, unbeaten squads and the rest we have this year such newsy little tidbits as the threat of bigtime gambling being exposed in football and the outright complaining of schools on the playing tactics of their opponents.

Gambling Talk Old Stuff

Coming out at the same time with the exposee of Adolph Rupp's Spotless Three was the talk in various circles that football might have been affected by the same breed of vermin. However this same variety of talk has been going around since Goliath blew his famed ten-rounder to L'il David, and definite proof will have to be brought out before we can believe it.

Besides the threatening clouds of gambling is the talk that has been coming out of the mid-West for the past two weeks about the roughness of the opposing teams.

The two big examples are Johnny Bright's broken jaw and the rupture of relations between the Universities of Marquette and Tulsa. The latter is of more interest to Villanova fans as the Wildcats are set to meet the Golden Hurricanes on the first of December.

It seems that in this affair both coaches blamed the other squads of unnecessary roughness throughout the game and a few days later they mutually agreed to end the relations which had another year to run.

Tulsa Has Reputation

It is a bit odd but it also seems that Tulsa holds the collegiate record for the most number of yards penalized in one season—1086 in 1950. Houston found the same situation when they played Tulsa earlier in the year, but in America you're not guilty till convicted and the old court house should be jammed on December first.

As far as Villanova is concerned the season is half over and many people seem to think that the first half would be the hardest. The team has met Army, Penn State, Alabama, Kentucky and Houston and few football followers would have believed in early September that the Wildcats would emerge from these games with an impressive four and one record.

It is probable that we have met the tougher teams on the schedule and the remaining four might all land in our win column. There is an old rule about not jinxing a team by predicting outcomes of games before they are played but it hardly seems possible that Detroit or Boston will give us much trouble. Detroit has a 2-4 record and one of these victories was over Boston.

Two Year Streak

Boston College is in the midst of a losing streak that dates back to 1949 and Villanova probably won't spoil their fun. A new change of coaching up there and a predominately sophomore squad is what the Wildcats will meet when they travel up to Beantown on the seventeenth of November.

It is the remaining two games of the season which will cause the Raimo charges some concern. Louisiana has a four and two slate but the two setbacks came at the hands of undefeated Maryland and Georgia Tech. The Bayou lads have always been tough for us and the game coming at the end of the season might give us trouble.

Tulsa will be our final opposition and some thoughts on that fray have already been gone over in some length.

This would also be a good time to look over our own team and see just how we stand. A quick glance at the statistic box on page 5 will produce some very interesting figures.

In the points scored department we have a good lead — 128 to 101. However after that the team seems to go down a little in other branches. The twenty-two first downs that Houston made against the Wildcats on Saturday night put the oponents ahead in that column 87 to 76.

In yards gained rushing we have an impressive lead but in our passing yardage we fall back. However, the completion average is one point better than the teams we have met. The team's punting is also good with a 38.8 average to the opposition's 27.4. In the penalty department the Wildcats still hold a marked superiority of almost 250 yards.

'Cats Beat Houston

Addiego, who passed to Rilo, the Cat's scored for the fifth time, and lead 33-13.

The Cougars were not to be stopped yet as they scored on a 65 yard march in eight plays. Houstonians came back with their fourth touchdown with only 44 seconds left in the game, to make the final score 33-27.

Fedigan, Toppers Mendelcases Win I-M Grid Frays

In Thursday's single game Art DiVitis starred for the Alumni luminaries as they downed the Fedigan Dragons 8-0. DiVitis made a touchdown and a safety in scoring all his team's points.

Mendelcases Stop Simpson 6-0

Three games on Monday saw Mendelcases top Simpson 6-0, the O'Dwyer Clowns edge the Austin Lions 2-0, and the Troopers squeezed past the Ramblers 7-6.

Fedigan Floored 12-0

On Tuesday Paul Sollami threw two scoring passes, one to Bill Farrell and the other to Joe Billeria, as Good Counsel dumped the Fedigan Flyers 12-0. Tuesday also was the occasion of the Crudes first win as they beat the Fedigan Dragons 12-7. Art Fullan and Bob Kaiset were the scorers for the Crudes while Joe Masuch scored all of the Dragons' points.

The Sophs won their third straight Wednesday when they blanked the Toreadors 12-0. Jim Ward threw both T. D. passes to Bill Murphy.

Toppers Win 13-0

In what was probably one of the most important games of the week, the Alumni Toppers beat the Alumni Characters 13-0. Both teams went into the fray with clean slates. Jim Moore scored the first one for the victors and Joe Driscoll passed to Larry O'Hearn for the second. Both teams looked good but the Toppers were more polished.

In addition to the Austin and Mendel leagues, a new one called the American League, has been formed. Its members and their standings are:

N. Y. U. Offers Law Scholarships

American college seniors with keen intelligence, integrity and a zest for public service can pinch themselves awake if they are dreaming of a three-year law school scholarship with all expenses paid according to an announcement today by Dean Russell D. Niles of the New York University Law Center.

It actually happened last year (first year of the awards) when twenty seniors from all over the United States became the recipients of Root-Tilden scholarships.

They are receiving $2,100 yearly ($1,500 living expenses and $600 tuition), and will continue to receive this for three years if they maintain scholarship requirements.

Distinguished Grads

Named for two of the distinguished graduates of the N.Y.U. Law School (founded 1835), Samuel J. Tilden and Elihu Root, the bequests come from an anonymous donor seeking to encourage the "training of outstanding lawyers in the American tradition." Elihu Root (class of 1867) was Secretary of War, Secretary of State, and a United States Senator. Samuel J. Tilden (class of 1841) was the lawyer who smashed the Tweed Ring, Governor of New York, and by popular vote elected president of the Hayes-Tilden controversy.

Practically every top-ranking senior man on the 1951 American campus is eligible to apply for the Root-Tilden Scholarships if he is between the ages of 20 and 28 and a citizen. Application must be made to: Dean of the Law School, New York University Law Center, Washington Square, New York, New York.

A meeting will be held by Mr. Powers with all basketball officials tonight at 7:15 in room 215 Mendel Hall.

Frank Cauz Delivers Story of Life at Teachers Language Meeting

Frank Cauz, president of the Spanish Club at Villanova, addressed the Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, at their first meeting, held last Friday night in Mitten Hall, Temple University.

Cauz spoke of his early boyhood in Spain, complimenting the principal speaker, la Sra. Asensio, on her speech. He remarked that Sra. Asensio had spoken of the region where he had lived for a short time.

Spent Youth in Spain

Cauz was born in New Jersey. When he was three, his family went to Spain, returning five years later, at the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War.

He attended Perth Amboy High School, Perth Amboy, New Jersey, where he was a member of the school band and orchestra for four years. He also played with several dance bands in the Perth Amboy area. Currently Frank is playing with the Villanovans.

After graduating from High School, Frank enlisted in the U. S. Navy, serving as a corpsman for twenty-four months.

The Association is a new organization formed as a local supplement to the National Association of Spanish Professors.

Election, Talk by Rupprecht Hi-Lite German Meeting

Election of officers and an address by Walter Rupprecht, German student studying here at Villanova, will feature the second meeting of the college's German Club tomorrow night at 7:15 in the Blue Room of the field house.

At last week's meeting, nominations of officers took the spotlight. John Burkhard, treasurer of the club last year, was appointed temporary chairman until definite elections could take place.

Walter Rupprecht, a political science major hailing from Bamberg, Germany, is studying here under the State Department exchange student program. He will give a talk on his native land, followed by a discussion period with the club members.

Another Junior Week Event Is Planned By Class of '53

Another name has been added to the long list of Junior chairmen, but the affair that he will conduct is yet to be determined. This newest chairman is Frank Whalen, member of the C & F School.

As disclosed by President Sollami at the last class meeting, Whalen's duty is two-fold. The first assignment Whalen has is to canvass the members of the Junior Class, in order to find out what activity would be most popular for the open date in Junior Week, Thursday, May 8. Once the event has been determined and approved, Whalen will take charge and begin planning for it.

Although the Juniors will have class that day, an event is planned for the evening. Any concrete suggestions will be put to vote before the entire class.

FRANK WHALEN
Committee Chairman

Last Thursday night all the chairmen of Junior activities met with the President and laid plans for the affairs of Junior Week. The St. John's Orphanage party was the main item of business as this activity takes place in the early days of December.

Applications Taken For N.R.O.T.C.

Villanova Battalion Third in Country

Those interested in taking the nationwide "regular" exams in December, may obtain application papers and information booklets from the executive office in John Barry Hall.

To qualify, applications must be sent before November 17.

Students are eligible to take this examination if they are physically qualified and will not have reached their twenty-first birthday prior to the first year in the program.

One of Largest

The Villanova College N.R.O.T.C. unit, which is one of the largest units in the country, has set a record with an all time high in its enrollment this year.

Some 395 midshipmen comprise almost one fifth of the college students at Villanova.

Of this number, it is expected that three ensigns will be commissioned at the end of the semester, with sixty more to be commissioned into the Navy and Marine Corps in June.

This year's freshmen class is the third largest one of all the fifty-two colleges in the country.

Lectures Given

Captain James R. McCormick, U.S.N., has been giving a series of lectures in nearby high schools for the purpose of enlightening the students to the advantages of the N.R.O.T.C. in college. Usually accompanying Mr. McCormick, are several midshipmen who tell of their summer cruises and relate their experiences as middies.

Several senior midshipmen from this unit left last week to deliver speeches in several high schools in Hartford, Connecticut. Other seniors have gone back to their own high schools to do the same.

'Yule' Collectors Begin Work In Religion Class This Week

"Operation Yule" began its collections yesterday in the various religion classes.

Collection Chairman Pete MacEwen, driving toward a goal of $1500 set by Drive Chairman Art DiVittis, had his men canvassing the religion classes in an effort to get twenty-five cents from each man in each class.

Collections

MacEwen and his committee intend to take three collections in each class, asking twenty-five cents from each man at each collection. "If we can obtain the seventy-five cent quota from each man," MacEwen remarked, "our task will be easy. If the 2000 students come through with their quota our goal will be met."

Chick Heiser, chairman of the dance planned by the drive committee to raise funds, reported that while plans were progressing for the affair, he would have no announcements about it until next week.

Sign-Up

DiVittis repeated his request to students last week, that they sign up to take out an orphan on the annual outing day, December 1. "We're aiming particularly at dayhops," the chairman stated, "transportation difficulties are more easily met by them."

The date of the annual party for the orphans at St. John's is set for December 12 this year. The $1500 the committee is aiming to raise, is to finance this venture.

500 Men

The drive chairman has set a goal of 500 men for the annual outing day. Resident students are being canvassed in the dormitories for this outing, while dayhops have been requested to sign up in the Pie Shoppe.

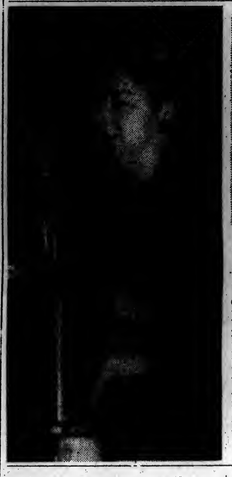
Soph Cotillion On Friday Will Have Football Theme

Fieldhouse Is Converted To Gridiron As Preparations Near Completion

"Football" will be the theme of this year's Sophomore Cotillion this Friday night, Nov. 9, in the Field House, reported George Colon, chairman of the Decorations Committee. Dancing will be from 9 to 1.

Colon said that the dance floor would be laid out in the form of a football field, with 10-yard markers along the sidelines, and a goal post at either end of the floor. One goal post will be decorated blue and white, signifying Villanova's colors, and the other will be red and white, Detroit's colors.

At the far end, over the bandstand will be a huge plasterboard football silhouette. Pennants of different college teams will adorn the side walls.



Tickets

Tickets for the informal dance cost $2.50 per couple, and will be on sale in the Pie Shoppe daily from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M. until the ninth. There will be a ticket booth open on the night of the dance, although it is the hope of the ticket committee that almost all the tickets will have been sold by then, said Tony Pearson, chairman. Pearson stated that he was pleased with the sale of tickets so far, and that all indications were for a successful dance.

Program

Joe Kenny, program committee chairman, said that the program will be dedicated to the football team, in keeping with the Cotillion's theme.

The dance committee, led by George Eberle, has signed the Villanovans to play for the dance. Refreshments have been arranged for by Tim Cole's refreshment committee.

TWO PEOPLE that figured prominently in campus news this week are Steve Berry, above, and Miss Elizabeth Bentley, left. Berry is chairman of the Sophomore Cotillion which will be held this Friday night in the field house, while Miss Bentley was the principal speaker at the first lecture of the 1951 Villanova Forum last Tuesday night.

Miss Bentley Addresses Largest Forum Audience On 'Communism In U.S.'

By Jim Glavin

"Communism is a threat only because we are fighting against it and not for something. In the last analysis our only hope is our faith. Communists are willing to die and go to jail for their faith. Are we willing to do likewise for our faith?"

Miss Elizabeth Bentley, former Communist espionage agent in the United States, brought to a close her address before the Villanovan Forum last Tuesday night with those words. Miss Bentley spoke on the topic the "Communist Threat in the United States," to open the 1951-52 forum in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

FORUM SPEAKER. Miss Elizabeth Bentley, receives the greeting of Villanova College from president, Very Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., before her talk last Tuesday evening in the C&F Auditorium. Miss Bentley's speech on "Communism in the U. S. A.", delivered to a capacity audience, inaugurated the current year of Forum presentations.

Soph Blazers Are Discussed By Council

Student Council members left last Monday's meeting having accomplished little, but with the promise of a far stormier session at the next regular meeting on Monday night in 215 Mendel at 7:30 P.M.

The troublesome issue which loomed at that time concerned the right of the Sophomore Class to buy its blazers a year earlier and whether the Council had jurisdiction in deciding such matters. Discussion was shelved pending official notice.

Tradition

Developments since then indicate that because the matter involves school tradition, it must rest with the administration, not with the Council, according to Rev. George J. McLaughlin, O.S.A., Student Council moderator.

at the meeting, the Mendel Bulletin and the Schola Cantorum were admitted to the Council.

Local Alumni Hold Homecoming Party After Detroit Game

It promises to be a full weekend for social Villanovans and alumni. In addition to the Sophmore Cotillion in the Field House on Friday night, and the Detroit game in Shibe Park the following afternoon, the Philadelphia Club of the Alumni Association plans an informal "Alumni Homecoming" at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel following the game.

Room Reserved

George Harris, Alumni Secretary, reported that dining and dancing facilities of the hotel at Walnut and Broad Streets, Philadelphia will be available to guests. According to Harris, "A room has been set aside by the Philadelphia Club where Villanova alumni and friends can get together after the game."

He stated that no admission will be charged and that reservations are not necessary. Villanovans and their guests are welcome.

'Beat Detroit' Rally Thurs.

"What's the good word?" "Beat Detroit!" will be the theme of the evening this Thursday night, when the Student Council's spirit committee stages its third evening rally, at 7:30 on Mendel Field.

Promising the largest "get out and win" gathering since the gigantic Army rally, the committee last week completed preparations for the event which will begin the long "homecoming week-end."

Carl Koenig, chairman of the spirit committee, is endeavoring to obtain the college marching band for the occasion. He promised that the members of the varsity would be present, along with head coach Art Raimo, assistant coaches Ed Michaels and Alex Bell.

Youth Will Serve

Every once in a while someone comes up with an analysis of this "younger generation"; the old timers sit back, and with an omniscient puff on the pipe of experience, review the foibles of the "kids" just as they would analyze the performance records of a stable of racing fillies.

"Time" magazine is the latest contributor to this noble experiment, with a feature article this week, sometimes sympathetic, half chiding, on the fate-smitten people in the 18 to 28 age group.

"Youth," decrees the writers "is waiting for the hand of fate to fall on its shoulders, meanwhile working fairly hard and saying almost nothing . . . Youth's ambitions have shrunk . . . They are grave and fatalistic . . . conventional and gregarious." All of which can be readily accepted as true; this is the sympathetic part.

But "Time" is swinging blindfolded when it decrees in the conclusion of the article, "The best thing that can be said for American youth is that it has learned that it must try to make the best of a bad and difficult job, whethere that job is life, war, or both . . . You cannot say of them 'Youth Will Be Served', because the phrase suggests a voracious striking out from security, wealth and stability. The best you can say for this younger generation is, 'You Will Serve.'"

And this latter phrase suggests to our minds a question, "Is that ?"

As is admitted even by "Time", the younger gereation has no intentions of serving the monster of a world fashioned by the oldtimers, but rather, serving something above this creation.

Sure, youth will serve, but it has taken its own ideals; this "serious, confused, disappointed" generation has chosen the better course, and we feel it is something to be proud of, rather than chided for, no matter what "Time" and the rest of the oldtimers say.

And for further treatment of this same subject, we suggest a look at the "Lynx", on the presses a week before "Time" hit the campus, and due out early next week.

Finance Professor Started Here In '27

Congratulations are in order for another of Villanova's most respected and best known teachers. Mr. Patrick J. Dougherty, Professor of Business Adminsitration, has just completed twenty-five years of outstanding and loyal service to this college.

Professor Dougherty has played an important role in the development of the school of Commerce and Finance, to its present high calibre position. In 1927, he was commissioned by the college to establish the original Villanova extension school, in Los Angeles, California. He remained in Los Angeles for several years as director and member of the teaching staff of the school.

First World War Vet

Mr. Dougherty was born in Jeansville, Pennsylvania, and received his early schooling at nearby Hazelton. In 1918, he went overseas as a member of the 6th U. S. Marine Regiment, American Expeditionary Forces. While his regiment was in training, he served as an instructor in bayonet tactics. In France, he fought on the Western Front, and was wounded in action there.

In 1924, the professor was graduated from Temple University, and received his M. A. degree from the University of Pennsylvania, in 1938. Since his appointment to the faculty of Villanova College in October, 1926, he has taught Money and Banking, Corporation Finance, Foreign Exchange, Security Markets, Investments, and Modern Financial Problems. At present he is instructing Commerce and Finance students in Statistics and in Finance.

School Has Grown

"It is an amazing thing how the school has grown since 1926," Professor Dougherty declared, as he gazed out upon the vast campus grounds, from his office window. Commenting on the outstanding Wildcat football team this year, he continued: "I have seen a good many fine coaches at Villanova, but in my estimation, the present coaching staff is far superior to any that I have seen operate around here."

Brother A Diamond Star

Mr. Dougherty's brother, Michael J., was a member of the Wildcat football squad, as well as the baseball team, from 1915 to 1917. He is now an airline official, in charge of equipment at New York's La Guardia Field.

The professor resides in Llanerch, Pa., with his family. His son, Terrence, is an NROTC sophomore, here. The "Villanovan" staff joins with members of the faculty and student body in extending sincere congratulations to Mr. Dougherty, on the occasion of completing twenty-five years of notable tenure in office.

Time To Renew Old Membership Which Has Slipped By Neglect

By Bob Bellarme

Depressive Don went to a psychiatrist to get the word, He was told to become a student of Freud.

You see, this is the favorite reply,

Since a chronic depressive wants to know why.

You've probably met him. He's the guy with a face a mile long. You ask him how he is and you get the usual reply, "Oh, I'm as well as can be expected." Brother, get your ear tuned because then it comes . . . the Depression Blues.

The Memphis and St. Louis have nothing on Don's tearjerker melody. He's down in the dumps, things aren't going smoothly, he's worrying about his studies. He's got a "don't know where I'm going, don't know where I've been" feeling. His life is an empty one.

How Things Look

Let's see how things look on the surface. He's got a steady girl at a local college. His Dad regularly sends him a check. A ready-made job awaits him after he finishes his police duty for Uncle Sam. Superficially, he's set. But wait, let's get a look inside. His soul is black. He can't remember the last time he went to Confession, the spiritual cleaner. What a chump.

Confession: the answer to his problem. But he is afraid —it's been so long. However, a priest lights up with joy when just one sheep has returned to the fold. He's just fulfilled a heavenly commission.

Wrong Again

"I'd floor the priest with what I've got to tell." Wrong again. The priest is on a sturdy chair. He's a good listener, nothing shocks him. If you are truly sorry and determined to avoid sin again, absolution restores you to God's favor.

"I'll have to say the Stations eighty-five times and the Rosary fifty." A tough penance if you didn't deserve it. But it's mild compared to what you have to gain. A mortal sin deprives you of a passport to heaven. When your ship departs isn't it better to be listed among the passengers for Paradise than to be fuel for an eternal fire. You can get a first-class berth because you've got "connections," you know the right person . . . a priest.

Return now as a member in good standing of two prominent clubs: the Communion of Saints and the Mystical Body of Christ. Its members haven't got time to be depressed. They know they have something. They can handle anything that comes up. They have a generous sponsor and His grace is always flowing. If your membership has slipped, renew it with a good Confession.

PLAY GOES ON

Actors Without Stage Face Problems For Belle Masque

ITEM: Due to redecoration of the Field House and Villanova's crowded social and athletic schedule, the Belle Masque Dramatic Society has been unable to secure use of the Gym stage for its fall production.

Wanted: One covered wagon: 90'x30'x20'. Or, one empty swimming pool, same dimensions.

Purpose: For new Belle Masque Dramatic production, "Life Is a Dream."

According to the Front Office, because of Field House commitments, production is a bigger dream than life.

Play is about the 17th Century Polish Court. Drama group, at this stage of the game, would settle for an old tennis court.

Author Calderon originally wrote in Spanish about the Polish and was translated into English. If Masque Players wait for the O. K., they may have to deliver it in Russian.

Between Dances at Cotillion

Belle Masque has a choice of three production dates: January 1, 1973, August 33, 1952, or November 9, 1951, between dances at the Soph Cotillion.

Cotillion program would read like this:

Intermission music by Belle Masque.

At piano, King Basilius. (Greatest thing since Count Basie.)

On drums, Astolfo, Duke of Muscovy. (Duke of Ellington's old Grandad.)

Sax provided by Rosaura, a lady of Muscovy.

On trumpet, Clarion, her servant.

Sigismund, the chief character, is a prince, brought up as a savage monster. In his off-the-shoulder leopard skin, he could make Rosemary Clooney look like Lana Turner, not that she has far to go.

Then, Sig could do an encore at the Seminary Guild Variety Show and save money all around.

Villanova men, dancing with dates, would probably never notice stage work. Most think the sound of their voice is music, anyway.

Date Still Poses Problem

But Belle Masque's problem lives on. Where to put the play on?

Students are behind it. School paper is behind it. Faculty is behind it. But nothing is under it.

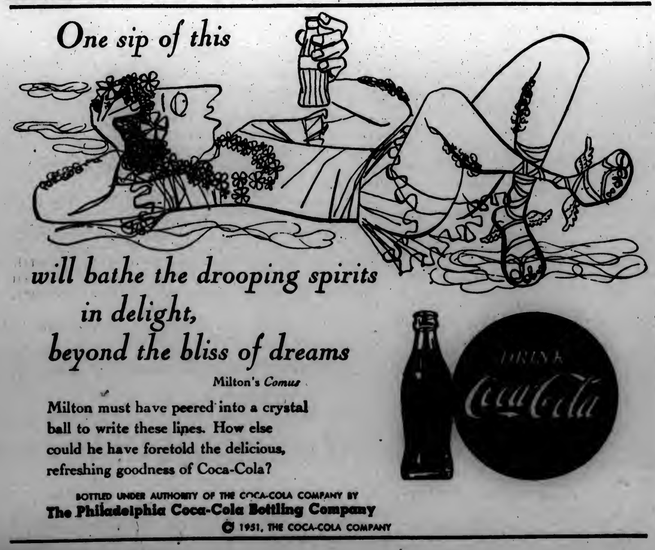
First guy having any comment other than, "I saw a stage goin' West," kindly deliver goods to third floor Alumni Hall, fourth window from east corner.

PASHA THE PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

YE OLDE PIE SHOPPE: Athough the men attending Villanova have no trouble whatsoever in comprehending difficult formulas and equations, very few have been able to understand the peculiar characteristics and idiosyncrasies which envelop those who are employed in the College Store. . . . No one can understand the reason for the cashier putting all the change into the Chesterfield plate when the patron is holding his hand in a position to receive it directly from her pinky. . . . No matter how one tries, the silver will always hit the plate before it touches the finger tips. . . .

And who on this man's earth can understand the redheaded hamburger hustler who always has a sunny snarl and a groggy greeting when you ask for a chunk of ground beef. . . . How about the youngster who puts on that sheepish expression when a guy asks for a milkshake at 2 P.M.?



HOUSTON HILARITY: One of Ben Addiego's teammates pulled quite a stunt on the fleeting one while in Houston. . . . Imitating one Sam Crawford from the Houston Herald, the buddy put on a Southern drawl and asked the halfback to meet him in the little ole lobby in order that he might take some pictures. . . . A half hour later Ben was still waiting by the newsstand. . . . Did Nick Liotta ever use Haner's shoulder blade to cut that apple?

FORUM FOLLIES: The Villanova Forum opened its season last week, and the director was greeted with a capacity crowd. . . . So much so that Mr. Brudele had to call upon "gallant" Villanovans to relinquish their places. . . . One of the seminarians made a witty when Mr. Brudele made his request. "We can't give up our seats. . . . We're the soul of the corporation." . . . Continued support of the Forum should be given since it gives one an opportunity to view present day troubles through the eyes of authorities.

ROSYMONITES: We were browsing through that new and different All-American paper, The Rambler, a few days back and found some items in the news that need clarifying. . . . Gals, the nurses do not attend classes during the day. . . . It's strictly an evening affair. . . . Guess the writer of a poor girl's Hedda Hopper column will have to think of another reason for the sly grins that are prevalent on this campus. Many of the young co-eds were modeling fashions at Strawbridge and Clothier's. . . . As a member of our copy staff remarked, "It must have been in the glove department."

CULTURAL CASTING: Villanova's Augustinian Guild has something in the wind that will prove interesting to those who like good music and entertainment at a reasonable price. . . . Plans are now being made with the Main Line Symphony Orchestra through Captain McCormack, who is on the board of directors for this organization to present a program in the Villanova Field House. . . . A "Name" will be starred and the proceeds will go to Father Coffey's Seminary Guild. . . . The orchestra will unveil its talents on December 2, at the Radnor High School. The admission is free.

ORPHANAGE OUTING: Beginning this week, Villanovans will be asked to contribute to the "Operation Yule" program which is to be sponsored by the Junior Class. . . . It will be an opportunity to help our little brothers who are dependent upon the Villanova men. . . . You might keep in mind the late Father Flannigan's motto that greets you at the Boy's Town Entrance. . . . "Gosh, no, he ain't heavy, he's my brother."

College's Marching Band Adds Color To 'Cat Games

by Joseph Mascuch

As soon as the football season is on its way, the cry, "Strike Up the Band" is heard again. The hot dog and cold beer are a part of baseball; the marching band is a part of college football.

Twice this year the sixty members of the Villanova Marching Band have taken to the field, accompanying Villanova's much traveled football team to West Point and to Allentown. Each time they have added to the color and the spirit of the sport.

They have paraded before their fellow Villanovans and the other thousands who have viewed the games.

Timing and Precision

After the Detroit game performance Saturday the band will have appeared on the turf for approximately forty-five minutes and for every minute on the field they have practiced for almost an hour and a half. Like the members of the football team, the band has labored over timing and precision. They have studied their marching formations, drawn as detailed as a football play, and have gone through the formations until each member was satisfied. They have practiced the musical score, ironed out the sore spots and marched out, a well conditioned ensemble.

In view of the tremendous job that had to be done and the limited time in which the task had to be completed, the way the band has shown itself has been satisfying and gratifying to those who have labored toward its perfection.

Fr. Burns, Thiel Lead

The Moderator of the Villanova Band is Rev. Joseph Burns, O.S.A., who was a violinist with the Main Line Symphony Orchestra before entering the priesthood. Mr. Paul Thiel, who is also the Musical Director at Radnor High School, is the director of the band.

Mr. Thiel, who has been associated with the Villanova Band for eighteen years, is working for his doctorate in Music. Thomas Pasha '52 is the Concert Master and the student director, with a musical background which includes having had his own band in Detroit.

Marching Musicians Cheer Wildcats

IN "V" FORMATION, these loyal sons of Villanova play their hymn of praise, leading the stands in the "Alma Mater" during the halftime of a recent football game. The band will complement the NROTC in its usually dazzling form Saturday at the Detroit game.

These are the men who guide the band members through the year and who emphasize that the splendid cooperation of the members has made the marching band the praise-worthy organization that it is.

Concert Band

Because the Marching Band season is so short, a greater stress is put on the Concert Band. The Concert Band is as much traveled as the marching band, having played the local colleges, the Alumni Association in Pittsburgh and in Lawrence, Mass., this past year. The band, which starts practice for the '51-'52 concert season this month, hopes to give concerts in Atlantic City and Staten Island this year.

We express our thanks to an organization that has represented Villanova more than any other organization on campus, for a job well done. We can now look forward to a new concert season.

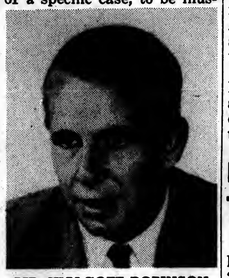
Forum Lists Next Speakers

Rev. Hughbert Schiffer, S.J., who was at Hiroshima when the first atomic bomb was dropped, will be the next speaker in the current Villanova Forum series. He will speak December 5 on the topic "I was A-Bombed."

Charles Bruderle, forum chairman, who announced last week the appearance of Father Schiffer, reported that this year's forum will consist of five lectures.

The chairman added that Mr. William Henry Chamberlin, New York Times foreign correspondent, and a contributor to the Christian Science Monitor, would be the third forum speaker. Mr. Chamberlin will talk on January 10, on the subject of "How We Lost the Peace."

The first lecture, "The Communist Threat in the U. S.," delivered by Miss Elizabeth Bentley, was held last Tuesday evening.



Advertising Executive Speaks To Marketing Club Meeting

Walcott Robinson, Arndt Co. Official To Address Group Thursday

Walcott E. Robinson, account executive for the John Falkner Arndt advertising agency, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Villanova Marketing Club, this Thursday, November 8.

Mr. Robinson, specialist in travel accounts for the Arndt advertising concern, will speak on "The Role of an Advertising Agency in a Marketing Program." The talk will be highlighted by citation of a specific case, to be illustrated with the help of visual aid material.

Speaks to Marketers

Door Prizes

The Marketing group announced that an innovation will mark the meeting. For the first time there will be awarded various door prizes. The prizes will be in the form of tickets to the dinner or luncheon meetings of the American Marketing Association in Philadelphia.

A short business meeting will be held by the college group preceding the arrival of the speaker. At that time final plans for the year's activities will be made and new members will be accepted. All dues of the members are scheduled to be paid by that time.

The club has a field trip listed for the near future. The actual nature and date of the excursion is to be decided at the meeting.

PKP Frat Smoker Tonight In Mendel Hall

Phi Kappa Pi fraternity is holding a smoker tonight in 215 Mendel. The highlight of the event will be movies of recent Villanova football games. Refreshments are to be served.

The planning of this event was announced at a meeting of the fraternity last week. Stan Karminski was named chairman of a committee to investigate the possibility of having an engineering open house in the college sometime in the near future.

Year Book Staff Completes First Phase of Work

The Belle Air yearbook is rapidly taking form, as evidenced by both the many campus groups seen posing for the photographers during the last few weeks, and the hustle and bustle in the yearbook office in Mendel Hall.

At the staff meeting last week, Editor-in-Chief William Lohr displayed the completed "dummy," and from the new arrangements and ideas it contains, the 1952 Belle Air should prove to be among the finest yearbook ever published.

During this meeting it was announced that the first deadline the yearbook will have to meet will be December 10. At this time the senior section of the book must be completed and forwarded to the printer.

Senior Histories

Because of this deadline, it is essential that all seniors who have not yet completed their senior histories, do so immediately. Failure to fill out such a form will mean that only the name and address of the erring senior will be run under his portrait.

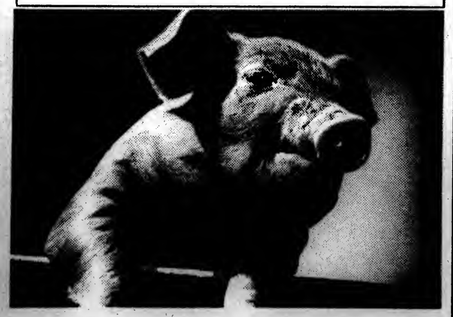
Though the deadline is actually passed, Lohr suggested that the few men who have failed to pose for their senior portraits contact him immediately, and perhaps it will not be necessary to exclude them from the yearbook.

Because of the amount of work that is required to prepare a successful yearbook, Lohr let it be known that there is always room for anyone interested in any field of yearbook work. If you wish to join the staff, drop into the office in the basement of Mendel Hall at your earliest convenience.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 27...THE LYNX

This sporty student really teed off on a long tirade when he found himself stymied on the "single puff" and "one sniff" cigarette tests. "They're strictly for the birdies!" said he. He realized that cigarette mildness requires more deliberation than a cursory inhale or exhale. Millions of smokers concur — there's only one true test of mildness and flavor in a cigarette.



It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

After all the Mildness Tests . . .

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

WHENEVER SHEEDY gave a gal the glad ham she turned up her snoot. Poor Paul took pen and oink and wrote a litter home: "I'm sty-mied. All the gals think I'm a boar. To get a date is a pig's feat!" His mother wrote back: "Even a dullard like you should know enough to borrow his roommate's Wildroot Cream-Oil! It's non-alcoholic. Contains soothing Lanolin. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test. Makes your hair look neat and well-groomed." That was the pig-me-up Sheedy needed. Now he's imporkant . . . hogs and kisses all the girls. Better try Wildroot Cream-Oil yourself. Get it at your favorite drug or toilet goods counter—and ask for professional applications at your barber chop!

VILLANOVA MEETS DETROIT AT SHIBE PARK THIS SATURDAY

Wildcats' Home-Coming Game With Traditional Rivals; Lead in Eighteen-Year-Old Series, 11-5-2

By Harry Anger

At Shibe Park on Saturday afternoon at 2:00, the Wildcats of Villanova will take on Dutch Clark's oft-beaten Detroit Titans. The boys from the Motor City, although they have lost four of six decisions, are nevertheless a tough foe for the Mainliners.

The Villanovans, if they are to stay on top in the East, must make a good showing against a young and green Titan team.

The Detroit attack is led by fullback and co-captain Mike Goggins. Goggins, who is averaging 5 yards per carry, is one of the better backs in the Midwest. Running beside Goggins at right halfback will be Ron Howarth, who scored eight touchdowns last season.

The rest of the backfield is made up of Tony Bartalo, a junior from Caledonia, N. Y., at left halfback and Soph Ed Gornak at the quarterback post. Gornak, playing his first season of varsity ball, completed 7 out of 15 passes against Notre Dame.

Line Lead by Four Veterans

Four veteran Titans form the nucleus of a fine line. Big Pete Bonnanni is a holdover at left end in the defensive platoon. Alongside Pete, the Detroiters have another experienced performer in tackle Dan Kerins.

The offensive line is led by co-captain Joe Kutz at right tackle and 230 pound Stan Gondek at the left guard spot. Behind this quartet the Titans have fine sophomores in tackle Cas Krol, a Detroit boy, and guard Vince Vicario, who carries his 235 pounds on a 5'8" frame.

The punting chores will be handled by Jim DeBoyer, a nineteen-year-old freshman, out of Algonac, Michigan. DeBoyer, who is an excellent prospect, may also see action at the offensive left halfback post on Saturday.

Detroit 2 for 6

The Titans won the season's opener with Toledo, 34-32. They were then beaten by Houston, 33-6; Notre Dame, 40-6, and Drake 26-6, on successive Saturdays. Their second victory of the season was a 19-13 win over Boston College. The following Saturday the Oklahoma Aggies took them in tow, 20-7. They took Bradley, 7-6.

'Cats Lead in Series

The Shibe Park meeting on Saturday will be the 19th in a series which began back in 1931. The Wildcats hold a wide edge, having won 11 of the games. The Titans took 5 and 2 were tied. Last year's 18-7 Titan victory was their first over the Wildcats in 5 years.

GAME BROADCAST

The Villanova-Detroit football contest this Saturday afternoon will get a play-by-play treatment over station WIP with Jim Leaming, sponsored by the Philco Corp. Broadcast time: 1:55 p. m.

U.P.-V.C. to Play 13 Games in Season's Double Headers

By George McCann

Pennsylvania and Villanova will again entertain Philadelphia and the vicinity with a schedule of thirteen doubleheaders. The season at the Palestra will open December 8 with Maryland and St. Francis providing the opposition for Penn and Villanova respectively.

Columbia and Notre Dame

After Penn's Palestra opener with Maryland, they will take on such fine aggressions as Yale, January 5; Princeton, February 9; Navy, February 16; Columbia, February 23; Notre Dame, February 26; and Cornell, March 8.

As can be seen, the Ivy-League teams will undoubtedly supply most of the better competition. The Columbia game will be particularly interesting as it will not only pair together two outstanding centers in Jack Molinas and Ernie Beck, but may also decide the Ivy-League Title.

Undefeated in '50

Last year Columbia dropped Penn twice to take title and finish with an undefeated season for its regular schedule. Another Ivy-League, Cornell, the last team to meet Penn at the Palestra will find an improved team looking for revenge for two defeats in the previous season.

These and other Penn contests should contribute to the fine quality of the preliminary games preceding the Villanova games.

LAMBERT TROPHY

Villanova, by virtue of its 4-1 record, is second behind Princeton in the race for the 1951 Lambert Trophy, symbol of Eastern football supremecy. Princeton has 996 votes as compared to the Wildcat's 988. The award is finally determined by a vote of eastern sportswriters at the season's end.

Harriers Prep For IC4A Title Meet On November 19th

The Villanova College cross-country team, under the tutelage of Coach Elliot, is now practising for the forthcoming IC4A championships to be be held on November 19, at New York's Van Cortlandt Park.

Best Wildcat Team

Led by the Wildcat's two-pronged scoring punch—John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer—the team will enter the meet with the best Villanova squad ever to compete in the race.

Rounding out the scorers for Elliot's charges will be Art Klepper, third in the New York University meet, sophomore Bart Moynahan, and freshmen Jerry Utter, Bob Finan and Guy Speciale.

Two and Two Record

The team has so far compiled a two and two dual meet record and now awaits the IC's to round out the season. The season was opened against Army, and with less than a week's pratice the team bowled 28-40.

The season's record was evened up the following week when Navy fell 25-30. Two weeks later the Violets of NYU faded to a 16-39 count. Manhattan took the Wildcats over 24-35.

Main Line Hoopsters Open Their Season December 1st

'Cats Will Try to Better Last Year's Record of 26-6 With a 28-game Schedule of Which 7 Are Newcomers

By Joe Corcoran

The Villanova court squad, hampered by the problem of practicing on alien courts for the past month, inaugurates its 28-game hoop schedule at the Field House December 1st when the Wildcats entertain the New York Athletic Club.

Team Will Go to Sugar Bowl

Al Severance's forces, hopeful of equaling and perhaps surpassing last year's mark of 26 triumphs in 32 attempts, travel to New Orleans during Christmas week for another crack at the Sugar Bowl laurels which escaped Arizin & Co. two winters ago. Vying for honors in the Mardi Gras town with the Blue and White will be host team Kentucky, the perennially potent St. Louis Billikens, and Brigham Young, victors in last spring's National Invitation Tourney.

7 New Teams on Schedule

The Mainliners are at home—either at the Field House or the Palestra—for their first five contests, four of which introduce new clubs to the Villanova schedule.

The N.Y.A.C. and St. Francis, Gannon, and LeMoyne Colleges, are the early season newcomers; later in the campaign, the Blue Hens of Delaware, Xavier of Ohio, and Connecticut's Ucons invade the Wildcats' lair.

'Cats Face 9 Gruelling Days

Next to the Sugar Bowl trek, the roughest part of the regular season should be the nine days between the 19th and 28th of January. The Severance men engage North Carolina State on the 19th in what may be the top game of the winter for both schools, especially since Everett Case's Wolfpack knocked the 'Cats from the N.C.A.A. tourney last March after having succumbed to the Blue and White twice before that year.

Seton Hall, with "bigger and better than ever" Walter Dukes, follows the Southerners into the "hall that Penn built and Arizin paid for." Two nights later Villanova journeys to Pittsburgh to meet Duquesne. The games between our Wildcats and the Iron Dukes have crescendoed to a mighty rivalry since the exploits of Tall Paul vs. Chuck Cooper were written into the books.

Team Plays at Palestra Again

Appearing against the Mainliners as half of the Palestra twin bills, will be Fordham's Rams—the first quintet to boast of a verdict over last year's club, Louisville—as part of a home and home series, Boston College, Xavier, Siena and St. Bonaventure's.

The Bonnies game, usually a tight, possessive affair, closes out the schedule on March 8th. Scattered throughout February are return engagements with N. C. State, Seton Hall, and Duquesne.

Several Old Opponents Dropped

Among the missing from last winter's opponents are Army, Princeton, Toledo, Tennessee, Detroit and William and Mary.

The seven games listed for the Field House get underway at 8:30, following the 7:00 intra-mural tilts. Tap-off for the Palestra contests is 8:00 for the opener and 9:45 for the nightcap.

SPORTS CHATTER

DOWN THE YEARS WITH DETROIT

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

At precisely 2:00 P. M., this Saturday afternoon, after the NROTC band has given out with the National Anthem, and the Homecoming Day crowd at Shibe Park has settled down to a long afternoon of football, the nineteenth meeting between Villanova College and the University of Detroit will get underday.

Let's go back, let's go down through the years and try to recall some of the happenings, the thrills and the heartaches that have resulted when these same two squads have met before.

Let's go back to 1931, to a rainy, windswept and cold football field—Detroit's University Field—on November 14, 1931. Harry Stuhldreher had brought his Villanova team all the way to the Motor City to play the Titans of Detroit under Charles "Gus" Dorais.

"Knute Rockne Day"

Perhaps it was ironical, perhaps it was poetic, but this day was the day that the football coaches of the nation had designated as "Knute Rockne Day", in memory of the famed Notre Dame coach who had been killed a few months earlier in an airplane crash.

Here was Harry Stuhldreher—one of Rock's famed "Four Horsemen of 1925". Perhaps that was his greatest team.

Here was Gus Dorais, the man who in 1913 had teamed up with Rockne to write football history upon the windy plains of West Point, by inventing the forward pass.

Here these two men were—two football coaches—and we wonder what they were thinking during the memorial services at the half time.

Stuhldreher did not have a good team that year. They finished the season with a 4-3-2 record and one of those ties came on that very afternoon. In what was termed one of the minor upsets of the day, the '31 Wildcats held Detroit to a scoreless tie. The field was so muddy, the ball so wet that not a single forward pass was thrown by either side during the entire game.

Home and Home Series

In 1935, the teams had contracted to meet each other twice in a home and home series. This was the final year for Harry Stuhldreher at Villanova before going on to greener (?) pastures at Wisconsin.

The first game was on November 2, at Detroit and, in what was called a major innovation of the day, the game was telephoned to the college and heard over giant loudspeakers set up in the gymnasium.

We entered that game as the outstanding team in the East. We had been unscored upon in five games while running up a total of 137 points. Eddie Michaels was captain that year and Art Raimo and Alex Bell were also on that team.

What the fans heard as they gathered in the gym that afternoon for the telephoned game must have startled them. Here were their invincible Wildcats being beaten by the mediocre Detroit eleven. When the game ended the score stood 19-15 in the Titan's favor.

Homecoming Day was the next Saturday and the Main Line Stadium was packed with alumni and students yelling for revenge. The papers said that the Villanova team was a "clawing, ripping, tearing pack of Wildcats". It was a close fray with the score tied up until the final minute of play.

Andy Stopper faded back to the 30-yard line and fired a perfect pass directly to Tony Sala who was deep in the end zone for the winning touchdown. This marked our first victory over Detroit since the series started.

In 1937 both teams entered the game undefeated, in our case unscored upon. With ten minutes gone in the first period Andy Stopper, the hero of the '35 game faded back and threw a forward pass to the waiting hands of Art Raimo, for the only tally of the day on either side. The lines on both teams cemented and neither team could score, in fact, on one occasion the Wildcats stopped the Detroit team on the one foot line.

'40 Was A Dark Year

Going into the game in 1940 the Titans had lost five straight to Villanova, but in each game they had outplayed the Wildcats and in each game they had lost by only one touchdown. This was the year that they wanted revenge and they were playing a poor Villanova team.

Early in the second quarter Al Gherquire carried over for Detroit and they were on their way. Hayes' field goal supplied the other three points and the final score read 10-0 in Detroit's favor.

There have been many more games and many, many more thrills in this series. There have been a good deal of one-sided victories—practically all in Villanova's favor—and there also has been many squeekers like the one plyed in the late thirties.

This series will be resumed on Saturday afternoon and just who will be this year's Gherquire or Stopper or Raimo or Sala cannot be foretold. What can be foretold is that if the Wildcats have any pretentions about ranking and recognition, this fray will be one of their best chances to show it.

I-M Football in Full Swing, Two Teams Stand 4-0

NY Alumni Dance Scheduled

The Villanova Club of New York has scheduled its annual Thanksgiving holiday dance for Saturday evening, November 24.

Jerry Sellinger, who graduated from college last June, is the chairman of the affair. Jerry reported last week that the dance will be held in the Hotel Statler. Dancing will be from 9 P. M. until 1 A. M.

Tickets for the affair for students are $4.00 per couple. The dance will be strictly informal.

Tickets on Sale Now

Student tickets for the dance are now available from either Tom Cullen or John Thompson, student representatives of the New York group. Cullen and Thompson urged the students intending to attend to purchase their tickets as soon as possible. They reported that a sizeable turnout is expected for the dance, an annual affair on the Thanksgiving week-end by the New York club.

Miss Bentley Talks at Opening 1951-52 Forum

Largest Crowd

Attired in a grey suit and black hat, the ex-Communist agent addressed the largest audience in the four year history of the forum. Chairman Charles Bruderle estimated the crowd, that was "SRO" ten minutes before the opening, at seven hundred.

Miss Bentley opened her topic with these remarks: "Our country can face any danger that threatens it from without, but the threats from within are much more dangerous."

"Bootleg Religion"

Delving into the problem from within, the speaker stated that the chief difficulty for Americans is to grasp the fact that the so-called "good people" can be and are Communists, and dangerous ones. She said that Communism in this country is, and must be regarded as a "bootleg religion that has captivated people."

She commented that a lack of religion has fertilized the seeds of Communism in many people. Tracing her own history along these lines, Miss Bentley said that "I knew something, but not enough."

"Strategic Age"

The speaker asserted that it was particularly men and women at the high school and college age, which she called the "most strategic" age, that Communism strikes. "Communism approaches young men with worries about humanity, but once these young people accept the philosophy of Communism they go in the party and quickly lose their idealistic outlook."

On the subject of those who are in the party and their lives, Miss Bentley avered: "Communists develop an abnegation of self. It becomes 'party first.' Often you have to give up personal relationships and ambitions to stay in the party."

Communists live by a philosophy of "any end justifies the means if the end is good for them," she asserted.

Want 'Intellectual'

"Communists want the so-called 'intellectual,'" Miss Bentley advised. She commented that in addition to giving a respectable look to the party, the so-called "intellectuals" are the best source of espionage agents for the party.

Referring to her personal experience within the party, the speaker continued: "Espionage is the most gruelling work anyone could have. It's a life of the hunted. It is a constant worry. Agents do this work because they believe in the cause BUT it does create many nervous wrecks."

Pose As Republicans

She went on: "When I was active, we had agents in the OSS, four or five. We had them in the Pentagon and Treasury. They were told to pose as Republicans to fool people."

Lynx Literary Out Next Week

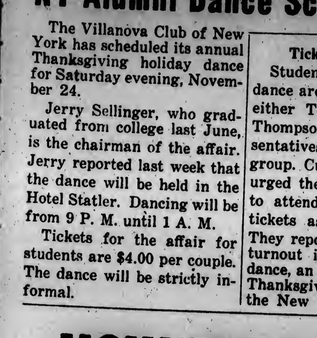
College Magazine Prepared Early

The Lynx, the college literary magazine, will be released to the student body on or before November 15. This will be the earliest release of the Fall issue of the quarterly since its foundation four years ago.

And a glance at the contents suggests that it will set more records than just being first. The magazine contains several interesting short stories, poems, and essays. Lt. Robert Munday, first Villanovan to die in Korea is the subject of a biography by Jim Mason.

New Features

There is also an innovation called, "Square Span," complete with time reading tests, and an interesting rundown on Villanova football from 1894 to date, including what had been the story of the Army jinx.



When you add the art work of Bob Beers, Eugene DelConte, Tex Houston, and Bill Lohr, and a new style of layout, to the already interesting issue, it looks like there should be quite a few happy comments around November 15.

Editor Bob Quinn made it known that the Lynx is a magazine written by, and for, the entire college, not just a particular school. If there is anyone who would like to make any contributions, they need only to see Quinn, or leave their name in the Lynx office in the Commerce and Finance Building.

Middies to March at Game

Fancy Drill Team In Halftime Show

The Villanova NROTC unit, with last year's championship fancy drill team, and the Villanova College band will provide half-time entertainment for the Detroit football game.

Early Saturday morning the group will leave the campus, and ten buses will take them to Broad and Lehigh Streets. From here, they will parade to Shibe Park.

350 March

Battalion Cmdr. George Crist will lead the Middies, 350 strong, onto the field 20 minutes prior to the game. At half-time the drill team will be put through their paces under the leadership of ex-Seabee Robert E. Crevere, a freshman midshipman from Muskegon, Michigan.

Master Sergeant Francis Despegehel, U.S.M.C., one of the most outstanding drill experts in the country has been supervising the drilling of the squad every morning for the last few weeks.

NROTC DRILL TEAM, will show its championship form during halftime of the Detroit game Saturday. The 41 man squad has been practicing marching formations during early-morning drills for the past month in preparation for the halftime show.

Library Gains Rare Books Donated By Father Hickey

Five rare books have been added to the ever-growing collection of the Villanova College Library. The books were donated to the library by the Most Reverend Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., Prior General of the Augustinian Order who maintains offices in Rome.

"Incunabulis"

In library circles the books are referred to as "incunabulis" which means that the books were printed when the printing industry was in its infancy (before 1500).

Included among them is a book attributed to the pen of Saint Bonaventure, printed in Florence, Italy in 1493. Another is a Latin work on the Trojan War by Dictys Cretensis. This was printed in Venice in 1499. The five books will be found in the display case opposite the circulation desk in the library.

SELECTIVE SERVICE

Midnight last night was the deadline for the December 13 selective service college qualification test. The next test will be given next April 24, and application deadline for this date will be March 10, 1952.

Operation Yule Opens Drive For Men To Escort Orphans

DIGGING DEEP. Pete MacEwan, Operation Yule collections chairman, passes the familiar plastic box around in his religion class as fund raising campaign got under way last week.

With three weeks to go before the Operation Yule outing, Chairman Art DiVittis has announced plans for the registration of men to take part in the December 1 program.

Dayhops who intend to take out orphans will be able to sign up in the Pie Shop, starting this week. Blank forms will be placed there for their convenience.

Resident students who desire to cooperate in this phase of the Operation can sign up with the representative in their dormitory. DiVittis announced these men to be as follows:

Fedigan—Cummin Clancy; Mendel—Gene Serra; Austin Jake McDermott; Doms—Dan O'Connell; Alumni—Art DiVittis.

Furthering plans for the outing, the Yule committee announced that Wanamaker's Greek Auditorium will again be the site of the noon-day gathering. Accommodations for 250 orphans and their escorts have been made. The proceedings will begin promptly at 11:30 when Santa Claus will make a half-hour's appearance and candy will be distributed to the boys.

Rosemont Setting For Belle Masque

Weeks of searching by the Belle Masque for an auditorium in which to present their fall play, have finally paid off. Thanks to Mother Mary Basil, S.H.C.J., Dean of Rosemont College, Villanova's players will present "Life is a Dream" in the Rosemont Auditorium, on the evenings of November 29, 30, and December 1.

Tickets for the play will go on sale today in the Pie Shop at 9:30 a.m., and will be available until the evening of the play. Also, starting today, tickets may be purchased from any of the Belle Masque members.

Practices Continue

For weeks, Belle Masque rehearsals have been going on under a "fog of apprehension." Due to the repairs on the Field House, there was no available place in which to present the play.

However, at the decision of Rev. William Krupa, O.S.A., Belle Masque's director, rehearsal of the complicated duel and court room scenes continued. Nevertheless, conditions were bleak, with neither an opening date nor an open stage in sight.

Cast United

There is at least one beneficent result of the multitude of problems which have besieged the presenters of Villanova's fall play. Bob Allen, Belle Masque's president, pointed it out when he said, "that successful weathering of all difficulties together has so united the entire production company, that they can not help but pull together to give their audience an evening of genuine enjoyment."

In order to accommodate Villanova students who wish to bring friends from other schools to the performances, the ticket committee has decided to extend the student rate to include all Main Line campuses.

Despite the ever-rising production costs, prices will remain at the traditional level of seventy-five cents for students, and one dollar for general admission.

28 Seniors Are Honored By Collegiate 'Who's Who'

November 27 Convocation To Recognize Men

Twenty-eight Villanova seniors received national recognition for outstanding academic and extra-curricular activity when they were enrolled this week for listing in the 1951-52 "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

Nominated by a special committee of clerical and lay members of the faculty and administration, the seniors will be listed in the forthcoming edition of the publication. Villanova College annually joins with over 600 institutions of higher education in honoring outstanding members of the graduating class.

Convocation Nov. 27

For special recognition President Very Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., plans to devote the scheduled convocation of the student body November 27 to honoring the group. At that time he will present special honor certificates from "Who's Who" to each of the 28 seniors.

In considering the members of the Class of '52 for nomination, the faculty-administration committee judged the qualifications of each candidate in regard to scholastic excellence and sincerity, leadership and participation in extra-curricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the College, and promise of future usefulness to business and society.

Thirty last year

Last year thirty seniors were enrolled in "Who's Who" under the Villanova quota. Since this quota is determined in large part on school enrollment, there was a decrease in nominations this year corresponding to the drop in total College enrollment.

The school of Arts and Science leads the current listing, with its students accounting for half of the Villanova nominations. In this group seven students are science majors, three English majors in the Arts division, two education school majors, and one Naval Science major.

Current Graduates

Commerce and Finance had eight of its business administration students included in the listing, and the school of Engineering had seven of its students accorded the honor.

Twenty-seven of the students will graduate with

HOLIDAY

This will be the final issue of the Villanovan until Tuesday, December 4.

Because of the midterm exams this week, there will be no issue next week.

The Thanksgiving vacation from November 22 to 25 inclusive, also allows no time for a November 27 issue.

Deadline for the December 4 edition will be Thursday, November 29, at 3:00 P.M.

Art Contest for Paintings, Photos of Campus Scenes

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., the college librarian, has announced the opening of the third annual Junior Week Art Contest to be conducted by the library. Entries of paintings, water color or oil, and photographs may be submitted by any Villanova student.

Theme of the photos or paintings must in some way be related to the Villanova campus, either campus scenes, personalities or activities. In order for any entry to be considered it must be on some aspect of Villanova life.

Entries will be judged by a committee of faculty members. The prizes to be awarded will be:

3 First Prizes at $15 each
3 Second Prizes at $5 each
3 Third Prizes of Honorable mention

The winners will have their work reproduced in the Belle Air.

Seniors Plan For Weekend

Now that the Sophomore Cotillion has already marked a successful opening of the social calendar, the Senior class is ready to take over, and making plans for the next campus social function, the Senior weekend on February 22 and 23.

Senior Class president Phil Brennan announced that the Class of '52 Dinner-Dance will take place Thursday evening, the night before Washington's birthday. The following day, Friday, the Senior Prom will be given in the Field House, and on Saturday evening of the weekend the basketball team will play Duquesne in the Palestra.

Junior Ring Vote Unanimous Final Selection This Week

The contracting company for the new standard class ring was selected last Thursday evening at a meeting of the Junior Class. A unanimous vote by the Juniors was cast for the firm of Loren & Murchison.

Although the Juniors have shown their preference by this vote, the final choice will be determined by a joint student-faculty committee. The Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., disclosed that the committee will be guided by this vote, and only if the Class vote violently differs from that of the committee will another choice be necessary.

Student Committee

The student committee includes Bob Lovelace, Paul Sollami, and Don Blaha, with Father McLaughlin, Rev. John Vrana, O.S.A. and Rev. Joseph Kemme, O.S.A., comprising the faculty committee.

Council Election

The second item of business carried out by the Class was the nomination of a new Student Council Representative from the Education School. The nominees, James Moser and Angelo Yossa, will be voted on at the next class meeting.

The last matter of business was a report by chairman Art DeVittis on the progress of Operation Yule, most pressing of the Junior activities at the present time.

Christmas Already

We haven't heard "der Bingle" give out with "White Christmas" yet, and Gene Autry still has "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" locked up in the corral for a few weeks.

In fact, at the present, most of us are looking forward to the Thanksgiving respite, and then after that we'll start thinking seriously about Christmas.

But let's not forget that Christmas for the gang down at St. John's is in exactly nineteen days. And it's a Christmas that depends entirely on the men of Villanova. Not just 500 or 1000 men, but EVERYONE.

The goal, as we've been telling you for the past two weeks, is $1500 and 500 men. So far, the collections have been a little less than encouraging. The first week yielded only $150—10% of the goal—and there's only two weeks to go. Surely seventy-five cents per man is not too much to ask. It's only the price of three packs of cigarettes, a movie at the Suburban.

Is some orphan going to be left without a present because we couldn't dig a little deeper? Another collection will be taken up in your next religion class. You can make this a final, successful effort.

The drive for the 500 men to take out our "little brothers for a day" begins this week. Former years have set a tradition in this matter, so let's live up to it again, and put this goal over the top right off the bat.

Yes, Christmas will be a little early this year, but it is THE Christmas for the Johnnies.

It is their chance to see Santa Claus; their Christmas party; their big day. It's your chance to help them out. DON'T LET THEM DOWN.

THE OLD GRAD

GAME RETURNS ALUMNI TO OLD COLLEGE DAYS

By Frank Gobes, '51
Ex-Editor, the "Villanovan"

College life is something you don't forget in a matter of minutes after diploma-giving ceremonies. Whatever there is about life on the Main Line for four years, men who have gone out in the wide world just can't pass over the days with the Blue and White.

Homecoming on campus, with the Wildcats meeting Detroit, brought back quite a few ol' Villanova Grads. Whether in the service, business or graduate work Villanova still remains a wonderful experience.

Mike Marshall, presideint of the class of '50 returned to take a taste of cafeteria food, and he should be a connoisseur working as a salesman for a meat packing firm. Neal Fahy, still making his name writing, (now for the garment industry publications), was on hand for Saturday party-making.

Army life has claimed Paul Jannuzzo, Dave Hanlon and John Morris of the '51 class. Dave and John will attend language school in California before entering OCS for which Paul is also scheduled.

"Skip" Keenly and Steve Keiss returned from their pursuits in future learning to say that Frank Mascoli and Bruce Taten are at present in law school. Jay Murphy awaiting a call from his "Uncle" reported during one of the Saturday evening get-togethers that Mort Semmer was working in the smokey city, Pittsburgh.

Among Marine officers going through Basic School at Quantico were Jack Rowe and Frank Gobes on hand for the weekend. They mentioned newlyweds Harry Range and Dick Hartman besides John Weglicki Tom Flynn, Gil Hazard, Bill "Rollo" Breninghouse and John Carroll among the training leathernecks.

Mess Becomes Beauty Spot Showing Up World

By Carl Nicholas

Pat wanted a small garden in the worst way. One day while walking, he noticed a vacant lot with a battered fence around it. He peaked in . . . it was a sight!

Empty beer bottles and rusty tin cans were littered all over the place. The tiny plot was loaded with briars and thistles and burrs. Bits of glass and rock would make the soil hard to work.

But Pat was game. He cleared the rubbish, cultivated the soil, planted the seeds.

Hard Earned Crop

Several months later he was gathering his hard earned crops into a basket—the fruits, flowers, and vegetables—when the parish priest passed by, stopped, and remarked, "Now, Pat, isn't this a beautiful garden with the help of God."

Pat thought a moment and replied, "Yes, Father, but wasn't it one heck of a mess when God took care of it Himself."

God does not take care of the world directly. He works through flesh and blood —human beings like you and me. He depends on us to carry His word and works to a needy world.

Expression, Speech Clinics Specialties Of Prof. Jonas

By George Ferguson

Summing up recent advances in departmental work at Villanova, Mr. Joseph T. Jonas recently said "the college has gone rapidly forward, especially in the English department." Mr. Jonas is an Assistant Professor of English, specializing in Public Speaking and Speech Clinic work, here. Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., is head of the English Department.

From the time that he first joined the faculty in 1926, Professor Jonas has achieved outstanding accomplishments in both his Public Speaking course and his Speech Clinic.

Organized Expression

While studying at the Graduate School of the University of Pennsylvania from 1921 to 1925, he organized a course in Oral Expression. This was done under the guidance of Dr. Yocum, of the U. of P. School of Education faculty, who was then teaching Organization Material for Courses of Study.

Believed to be the only one of its kind in the United States, Oral Expression is a full sixteen year course. It includes eight years of elementary school, four of secondary school and another four years of college.

The college section is divided into four parts: Basic Principles of Speech and Short Speech, in Freshman year, Theory and Practice of Debate and Parliamentary Law, in Sophomore year, Practice of Oratory, Oratorical Composition and History of Oratory, for Juniors, and a "Speech Arts" Seminar for Seniors.

Philadelphian

Mr. Jonas was born in Philadelphia and attended the Gesu parochial school there. He was graduated from St. Joseph's College Preparatory School in 1911, and received his A. B. degree in 1915 from St. Joseph's College. He later attended the National School of Elocution and Oratory, an accredited undergraduate and graduate school in Expression, and was awarded his M. A. degree from St. Joseph's in 1918, and his Master of Oratory degree from National School of E&O in 1927.

In September of 1926, Professor Jonas came to Villanova College, to organize speech courses. At that time, all classes and departments were segregated. The Arts School was the only one in which Public Speaking was taught for the full four years. "We would like to see a real speech department organized at Villanova," the professor stated; "Temple is doing a very fine job in this line."

Starts Belle Masque

In 1929, Mr. Jonas was requested to take over dramatics. The result was the "Belle Masque Players." In addition, he formed the "Book and Gavel Debating Society." These two were combined the following year, to create the "Villanova Literary Society."

Professor Jonas has written and produced several plays, the most outstanding of which was the Passion Play, "The Triumph," written for and produced by the Cathedral High School in Trenton, N. J., with a cast and chorus of over three hundred. Another was "College Inn," a comedy produced by the Belle Masque Players.

Concerning the players, he declared: "I feel that there is a great need for a suitable setting for the fine dramatic work being done by Father Krupa and the Belle Masque, in the form of a small theatre."

Free Time Clinic

In addition to his regular duties, Mr. Jonas has established speech clinics for students with defects in speaking. There are presently nine clinics operating, with twelve students taking advantage of them.

This work is done in both the professor's and the boys' free time. They are working on stammering, impure voice, and foreign accent. Mr. Jonas is also involved in a research problem dealing with a permanent and rapid cure for stuttering.

"We've gone a long way in the problem of speech, in helping the student with defective speech to overcome his defect," observed Mr. Jonas, in conclusion, and he added: "I feel that this is due to the cooperation of the faculty."

PASHA THE PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

WHAT'S WHAT WITH WHOM: As any fool can plainly see, we found it necessary to rearrange the feature page this week due to the presence of the big wigs at the top of the page. . . . This col'm had to be pushed down to the bottom of the page because of the wheels which dominate the top of the sheet. . . . The above is a fine collection of men who are majoring in the school of the dance, mimbly-peg, and basket weaving. . . . The fotos will make excellent targets for the various dart games which are prevalent throughout the campus.

MY COUNTRY TIS OF THEE: Looking over the newspapers that come into our office through the collegiate exchange, we found another paper that has hit the All-American rating. . . . The Immaculatan monthly tabloid has attained this high honor. . . . The Villanovan reached the heights of first class under the leadership of Jim Gallagher. . . . Some individuals might not consider this much of an accomplishment, however, there is quite a difference between assembling a weekly newspaper and gathering gossip for a monthly scandal sheet. . . . Congratulations are in order, therefore, for both Rosemont and Immaculata as well as the Villanovan for fine work in their respective fields of journalism.

MONDAY MORNING MALADY: The Soph Cotillion sign in the Pie Shop last Monday Ayem. . . . No car, no raccoon coat. . . . To which someone appropriately added. . . . No girl, no money, no nothing. . . . The poor forlorn, sleepy-eyed faculty member who was wandering about the corridors of C&F looking for a room in which he might conduct his class. . . . Seems that there was no heat in the Belle Air structure. . . . Two of his class members couldn't make the class due to frost bite.

BELLE MASQUEING IT: After last week's wonderful and timely article regarding the desperate straits in which the theatrical society found itself, we find that Father Krupa's group will take to the road in a fashion similar to that of the old tent shows. . . . The Belle Masque will give its presentation of "Life is a Dream" in the gym of the little school across the tracks. . . . Many thanks to Rosemont for giving this outstanding campus an opportunity to present a play which under the direction of Father Krupa is bound to be a huge success. . . . If the termites haven't given up the gym altogether, however, we might find that "Life is a Dream" will really be up in the air.

LITERARY LYNXING: The first issue of the campus mag Lynx will be out today. . . . This col'm advises the student body to obtain one of these copies for a real evening's entertainment in reading. . . . Pay particular attention to Bob Quinn's article regarding this generation. . . . It tops that of "Time" mag by far. . . . Considering the fact that this is the first time in the history of the Lynx that a C&F'er is the editor we are surprised to find that it comes forth as a literary mag and not in the form of the "Wall Street Journal."

CAMPUS CONFUSION: Has anyone answered for the plague that hit the green last Wednesday? Perhaps that last sentence needs clarification. . . . Guess the only things green on this campus were the men themselves. . . . Have the men in Austin Hall taken their shots as yet or has the janitor been around lately to take care of the premises?

Class of '49 Grad Speaks to A.I.E.E. On Engineering

The Villanova College section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers had as guest speaker last Wednesday night Mr. Herman Diesel, '49. He spoke on the "Problems Concerning the Industrial Electrical Engineer."

In his talk the recent Villanova graduate emphasized the problems that one meets in the transformation from student to engineer and the means that may be best used to cope with them. After his speech Mr. Diesel answered the many questions that came to the minds of the members.

Mr. Charles Magee, representative of the AIEE to Villanova College, then spoke to the members about the meetings that the parent organization holds at the Engineers Club in Philadelphia. He explained that the students would benefit from attending these meetings and urged that they attend. He offered to assist the group in any project that they should undertake.

'Flying Wildcats' Magazine Story

The November 10 issue of the "Main Line Magazine," which is now on sale at local new stands, is carrying two feature articles about Villanova.

One, entitled "Wildcats With Wings," written by Stephen G. Hopkins and Albert Erlich, discusses the problems confronting the Wildcat football squad as it travels about the country by air. This feature story consists of a three-page spread complete with pictures.

The second story is contained in the column entitled, "Along the Mainline." This story is derived from interviews with coach Art Raimo.

In order to prepare these articles, the authors consulted with the entire coaching staff, viewed movies of the various Wildcat games, and sat in on the discussions which followed these pictures.

LKD Fraternity Initiates 32

The Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity initiated 32 new members last Tuesday evening in Commerce and Finance basement. President Ed Fesco was in charge of the initiation and the smoker that followed.

Past President of L.K.D., Murray Seitchik, '51, attended and expressed pleasure with the manner in which the affair was conducted. He thought that the addition of syrup and cornstarch to the usual painting was an improvement that should continue.

After cleaning themselves up as best they could the new members enjoyed sandwiches and cokes and the ludicrous appearances of each other.

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke, on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments. Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

Detroit Falls To Second Half Surge, 26-7; Tackle Boston College Away On Saturday

Braves Field Ready For Meeting With BC's Clipped Eagles

By Harry Anger

Villanova's much-traveled Wildcats are on the road again, when, on next Saturday afternoon, up in Boston, they take on the Eagles of Boston College.

This battle will be the seventeenth meeting between the two schools. Villanova has a two game winning streak, but the Eagles hold a slight edge in the series. Since 1922, B. C. has won eight games; Mainliners seven, and one was tied.

Blemished Record

Mike Holovak, a former B. C. great, has taken over as the new head coach, but he has had little more success than his predecessor, Denny Myers. Big Mike found out that he inherited a "sinking ship." Last year under Myers the boys from Chestnut Hill failed to win a single game in their ten-game schedule.

So far in 1951 with Holovak at the reins, they have won only one game. This victory came two Saturdays ago against an undermanned Richmond team.

The Eagles' shortcoming last year was lack of speed. This season, however, lack of speed is the least of Holovak's problems. The lost zip has been found in Joe Johnson and Dick Zotti, two gazelle-like sophomores. With these speedboys at the halves and bruising John McCauley at fullback the Eagles are strong across the back of the "T".

GAME BROADCAST

Play-by-play of the Villanova - Boston College tilt Saturday afternoon will be broadcast from Braves Field by Jim Leaming on WIP, sponsored by the Philco Corp. Broadcast time: 1:25 p. m.

Songon Sub Needed

The big headache in the backfield is trying to find someone to fill the shoes of the departed Ed Songon at quarterback. Songon, one of the best all-around athletes ever to play for the Maroon and Gold, has been greatly missed these past two seasons. Perhaps the answer to the problem lies in Dick McBride or John McKinnon, but neither has yet shown the passing prowess of the great Songon.

Holovak has an adequate first-string line, but the reserves are green and inexperienced. Mike Roarke, the captain, is back again at one end and George Pollinger, a savage blocker, will hold down the other flank. Once past these boys, however, the material is made up of untried sophomores and freshmen.

O'Brien Entry

The 220-pound O'Brien boys, Paul and Henry, are strong points in the forward wall at the tackles, but the replacements lack the weight and experience to take on the stellar Wildcat line. The real weak point seems to be at the guards, where Pat Cacace, a 205-pounder from Waltham, Mass., is the only experienced holdover.

RUNNING 57 YARDS to put the Wildcats back in the lead, Bob Haner (30) picks up interference in the persons of Bill Hegarty (70) and John Giordano (82). A moment later Hegarty eliminated the last Detroit defender with an upending block and the husky Cat fullback stepped into the end zone.

Harriers Set For IC4A Run; Barry, Dwyer Are Favored

By George McCann

The highlight of the cross country team's season will come November 19, when Villanova will send a fine representative squad to Van Cortlandt Park, scene of the IC4-A championships.

Forty-five colleges, perhaps more, will send teams to the 5-mile course in the heart of New York City.

Individual Honors May Come

Villanova has small chance of carrying away team honors but individual honors may not be lacking. Among the first few finishers should be IC4-A champions John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer. Other featured runners in the race will include Dick Shea of Army, the favorite, Penn State's Bill Ashenfelter, William Lucas of Manhattan, and many others. He and Lucas are not new to the Villanova lads as they have previously been met in dual meets.

Michigan State Given Chance

A midwestern university, Michigan State is entered in this race, a predominantly eastern school affair, and is given a good chance to carry away team honors. Undefeated Army, winner of 5 dual meets and led by its IC4-A champion Dick Shea, will also be in contention.

Another strong school is Manhattan, possessing probably the most balanced team of all. It will be recalled that earlier in the season the Jaspers and Army handed Villanova its 2 defeats. Penn State, too, must not be taken lightly. This Pennsylvania school has always turned out good runners and this year is no exception.

Barry, Dwyer: Our Big Hope

Coach Jim Elliot, not possessing the team strength of other schools will have to count heavily upon his two champs, Barry and Dwyer. With strong performances from Art Klepper, Jerry Utter, and Bart Moynahan, Villanova could, however, finish near the top. Both Utter and Moynahan have shown marked improvement within the past few weeks while Art Klepper seems to be rounding into his old high school form. Two others, yet to be named, will round out the squad.

In considering the mere 2 and 2 record for Villanova's season showing, let it be remembered that these 2 losses were inflicted by 2 of the very best — Army and Manhattan.

An added incetive to the Villanova track team is the fact that a week after the IC4-A championships the NCAA championships will be held at East Lansing, Michigan. Whether or not team is entered depends entirely on their showing at Van Cortlandt Park, Nov. 19.

ALUMNI GAME ADDED TO SCHEDULE; GANNON OUT

The Athletic Department announced this week that tentative plans are being made for an Alumni Basketball Game to be held in the Gym early in December.

This game would feature Paul Arizin and other greats of past Wildcat Fives against the present varsity. All proceeds would go to the Stadium Building Fund.

It was also announced that the game with Gannon scheduled for December 12th, at the Gym, has been cancelled.

Haner Scores Three TD's As 15,300 Home Comers Root

By Joe Corcoran

Villanova's once-beaten Wildcats, dormant throughout most of the first half, surged back with three post-intermission touchdowns to gain a 26-7 verdict over the University of Detroit, Saturday at Shibe Park.

The victory, the Mainliners' 12th in the 19-game series with the Titans was viewed by a home-coming crowd of 15,300.

Haner Stars With 20

Junior fullback Bobby Haner, personally responsible for twenty of the 26 points, was the individual star of the contest. Haner, rebounding to his early season form after being held in the Kentucky and Houston games, sprinted 57 yards late in the third period for the markers which put the Cats ahead.

Bob's support came from the usual spots. Bill Brannau completed 7 passes for 143 yards, and added a fine game of quarter-backing to the cause; Ben Addiego raised his aerial record to two for two as the fleet halfback tossed to frosh John Giordano for the 'Cats' third score early in the fourth stanza; the defensive line, led by Nick Liotta, Joe Faragelli, Dan Simone, and Tom Gildae dropped the Titan backs time after time for heavy losses.

Villanova Scores Early

Raimo's charges started quickly, tallying their first touchdown before the contest was four minutes old. A Brannau to Addiego pass, with the latter making a marvelous grab at the 20, put the Wildcats deep in Detroit territory. Ben and Haner collaborated to advance the ball to the eight from where the Kentuckian slashed over. Tony Coletta's attempted 7th point was blocked.

Detroit took advantage of a 'Cat fumble to overcome the six-point deficit. Moving from the Villanova 31, Dick Neveux drove off guard for the remaining distance and a 7-6 half-time advantage.

Although the Blue and White defensive play perked up considerably in the third quarter, it wasn't until later in that period that the offensive platoon began to roll. Bob Haner, on a pitchout from Brannau, swept around his left end and raced the 57 yards for the score, with key blocks thrown by Simeone, Giordano and Frank Banas.

Sparkling Catch by Giordano

The Mainliners tallied again at the outset of the fourth quarter. Addiego, faking an end sweep, heaved his scoring pass to Giordano. The Malvern Prep grad, caught the ball as it bounded off the hands of the Detroit defender.

Tom Gildae's interception on the Detroit 20 set up the final Wildcat TD. Haner capped the four-play drive with an eight yard thrust through tackle.

Returning Wildcat Basketball Team Gains Strength

By Bud Russo

The Villanova basketball team, which made such a fine showing last year with a 25-5 record and an invitation to three post-season tournaments, returns for all purposes completely intact.

Tom Brennan, 6'6", an excellent all round player takes over the pivot again. Tom was second last year in total rebounds, assists, total points, and lead in foul attempts scored.

At forwards are Jim Mooney, co-captain, and Larry Hennessey. Jim, defensively outstanding, snared 455 rebounds. While Larry (lead the Wildcats in scoring with 780 points, of these 70% easily were distance shots.

At guards are Sam Glassmire Nick Maguire, Co-captain, and Ben Stewart.

Rounding out the team is Steve Gepp, 200 pounds of tremendous competitive spirit, who replaces Brennan.

Added to these are last year's freshman squad and this year's crop of eligibles, with some real outstanding talent, if high school honors can be taken at any worth.

With all this returning potentialities the season should prove a successful venture for the Wildcats of Al Severance.

Orange Bowl Releases Possible Teams For Post Season Game

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

To use the vernacular of a well-known broadcaster, "The pot is boiling high now".

We are now in mid November, the football season is two-thirds over ,the basketball season will begin in two weeks and th cross-country season is slated to end next Monday.

As far as the gridiron sport goes, the team has a 5-1 record with only three games remaining to be contested. Already there is heard from the distant South country the talk of post-season bowls and dreams of said gate receipts dance in the minds of athletic directors as candy does in the minds of kiddies.

Last week the people behind the Orange Bowl down in Miami let out the very interesting information that twelve teams were being considered for their shindig on New Year's Day. Mentioned in the list of possibles were Georgia Tech, Maryland, assorted Texas teams, Auburn, Holy Cross and VILLANOVA.

Two in the East

It is still far too early to even start to weight our chances, since the season has another month to go but at least it is good to see that this Main Line institute is being considered. If a team is to be chosen from the East it is a good bet that it will be either Holy Cross or Villanova since Princeton and the Ivy League look down their traditional noses at such games.

The victory over Detroit was won by a sufficient score to help boost our rating in the Lambert Trophy award and also our rating in the entire nation. At half time of the game last Saturday, there were very few fans in the stands who doubted the final outcome of the encounter. The only worry was that the win would be by such a small score that some prestige might be lost. Bobby Haner and Co. took care of that worry in short order after the second half started.

Winning Is Not Enough

It will be pretty much the same story this coming Saturday when Villanova meets Boston College at Braves Field. The winless and wingless Eagles of Boston College had a good winning streak of one game going earlier in the season when the University of Richmond was beaten. However, Clemson took care of that and it is doubted that Mike Holovak's Junior Birdmen will be able to get back on the glory road again on Saturday.

A few years ago Boston College was a national power in football but hard times befell the Jesuit school and beginning with the last game of the '49 season, going all through the '50 season and ending with the sixth game this year they were victoryless.

Not trying to be overconfident for the game, the Wildcats should win this one but winning it will not be enough. There will be no honor attached to beating a team that has won one game in its last nineteen attempts. The Raimo men must triumph by an overwhelming score to stir the sages who weekly concoct the national ratings.

Mr. Touchdown, O.S.A.

Bobby Haner has now gone far ahead in the personal scoring department. Mr. Touchdown, O.S.A. now spreadeagles the field with 62 points.

By the way, did anyone see the "Bulletin" on Sunday morning? It seems that their machine gun camera didn't go to Madison with the old Red and Blue after all. They carried twelve pictures of the Villanova tussle, hmm, hmm.

IC4A Run On Monday

Turning away from football we see that cross-country is about to wind up on next Monday. On that date the leading eastern colleges will compete in the IC4A's. To the reader who might be a little in doubt to what those initials stand for, they mean—Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America.

This organization is seventy-five years old this year but Villanova has only been a member of it since 1941 so our history of past performance in their meets is a bit small. The Wildcat's finest achievement in an IC4A cross-country meet occurred in 1948 when Browning Ross came in third in the final standings.

No Spectator Appeal

As a sport, cross-country probably has less spectator interest than any other one. About the only people who can get any enjoyment out of it are the runners and they get a little tired of it after three or four miles.

Actually, the sport of cross-country was started as a conditioner—and you can find no better one—for the coming seasons of indoor and outdoor track. It consists merely of running over a course of grass, dirt and in some cases, cement and rock for a specified distance. In college competition the distance is five miles and the best course in the East is the Van Cortlandt Park—the site of the IC4A run.

Both runners and coaches swear by it as the finest way to geth athletes into shape but you very rarely see a sprinter or a quarter miler who will be willing to run five miles.

The team that Villanova will send up next Monday is not expected to win team honors but it is quite possible that both Fred Dwyer and John Joe Barry may finish well enough to keep the rest of the team score down and place us among the first ten teams.

Mendelcases and Troopers Take 1st In IM Grid Races

By John Gillman

On Wednesday the 31st, the Sophs went into a first place tie with the Troopers by virtue of a 13-6 win over the Ramblers. Jim Ward tossed to Bill Murphy for the first T.D. and Rum Leompora got the second on a 20 yard dash.

Their stay in first place was short lived, however, as the Troopers won the Austin championship by beating the Sophs 12-0 in a driving rain.

Miller Brothers Star

The first touchdown was scored by Bob Heller on a 53-yard jaunt and the Troopers picked up the second when J. D. Tomlin pitched a strike into the waiting hands of Walt Miller. The running Bob Sandhaas and the sterling line play of Rich Miller were the main factors in the Troopers' victory.

McDermott Scores TD

Thursday afternoon another league champ was crowned as the Mendelcases became the king pins of the American league. They beat the Cribbers 6-0 on Jack McDermott's 60-yard runback of a punt. The passing of Jake Cugliotta was outstanding for the victors.

The winner of the Good Counsel-Toppers game yesterday will play the Mendelcases today to decide who will meet the Troopers Thursday for the All-Villanova championship.

Bowlers Begin Season

Last night a new addition to intra-mural athletics came into the limelight as the bowling league began its season at the Main Line Alleys in Rosemont, with four contests being scheduled. The three new teams are captained by Ralph O'Malley, Phil Mogna, and John O'Neill.

Turkey Trot Prizes

The Very Rev. Joseph Dougherty the Father Provincial has kindly donated several valuable prizes which will go to the winner and the members of the winning team, in the Turkey Trot Tuesday, Nov. 20. The event is scheduled for 4:30 on that date.

ATTENTION, BASKETBALL MANAGERS

League meeting for scheduling and rules interpretations will be held as follows:
Tues., Nov. 13—4:30—National and American Leagues (Dayhops)
Wed., Nov. 14—7:00—All dormitory Leagues
All meetings will be held in Room 213, Mendel. All managers must attend or be represented if their team is to play.

Marine Corps Commissions Offered To Qualified College Graduates

The Marine Corps this week announced its annual program for procurement of officers. In line with the planned increase in the strength of the Corps, no quota has been set for this year.

There are two programs open to college students or graduates. The Platoon Leaders Class is open to all physically qualified freshmen, sophomores and juniors between the ages of 17 and 21.

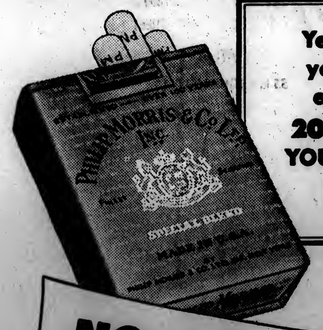
Summer Training

Those entering the program will receive two six-week training periods during the summer and will be commissioned 2nd Lieutenants upon graduation from college. While undergoing the summer training, they will receive the pay of corporals for the first six weeks and sergeants the final six weeks.

The second program is open to college seniors and graduates. The applicants must also be physically qualified and between the ages 20 and 27. Men enlisted under this program will undergo an intensive ten weeks training at the Marine Corps School in Quantico, Va., prior to commissioning.

Contact Capt. Tice

Candidates for both programs may be married and veterans are also eligible. Members of other reserve components will need conditional releases before they will be accepted.



Those interested in either of these Marine Corps Officer Training programs should contact Capt. Tice, USMC, at Commodore John Barry Hall at their earliest convenience.

620 Couples Jam Field House At The Sophomore Cotillion

Some 620 couples, a near capacity crowd, attended the 1951 Sophomore Cotillion last Friday night in the Field House.

The dance was the first social event of the "homecoming week-end," which included the football game and the alumni party afterwards at the Bellevue-Stratford.

TAKING TIME OUT from the night's festivities, Steve Berry and his date, Miss Joan Petrucco, pause to talk with Soph class Moderator, Rev. John R. Dunne, O.S.A. Behind them can be seen the unique centerpiece which featured an old Bearcat automobile.

Dancing to the music of the Villanovans, the couples were surrounded with evidences of the "Football" theme. There was a goal post over the main entrance and at the opposite end of the floor.

Auto Centerpiece

On the sidelines were 10-yard markers, and along the walls were pennants of various colleges. The centerpiece was an old car with two figures in it, representing two college students going to a football game.

Berry Grateful

As the strains of "Goodnight, Sweetheart" brought the dance to a close, Steve Berry, Cotillion chairman, thanked all his "hardworking committee men who did so much to make the dance the success it was."

He thanked especially those who had put in so much extra time erecting and arranging the decorations, and he expressed his gratitude to the administration for its cooperation in getting the Field House repair work done ahead of schedule so that the dance could be held.

Debating Society Begins Season With West Point

The Beta Gamma Debating Society will open the present season with a debate at 7 p.m., Nov. 17, with West Point. The debate will take place in 207 Mendel and no admission will be charged.

Tom Trettis and Charles Brown will argue the affirmative side of the question: Resolved: That the Federal Government should adopt a permanent program of wage and price controls.

At recent meetings the society revised its constitution and elected new officers. They are Carl Rahr, president; Bob Gerstung, vice president; Tom Trettis, corresponding secretary and Frank Cunning, recording secretary.

President Rahr asked that anyone interested in debating come to the meetings, which are held every Monday from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m., in seminar 1 of the library.

New Style 'Lynx' Out Today

The Lynx, the literary magazine of Villanova College, will begin distribution of their fall issue this afternoon.

The new issue departs radically from the pattern set by previous issues and, along with short stories, essays, and poetry, there are several new features.

"The Passing Years," by Jim Gallagher, gives an interesting rundown on the history of Villanova football, and Jim Mason has written a biography of Lt. Robert Munday, Class of '51, the first Villanova man to die in Korea.

Circulation Manager Kevin McCrane and his staff will continue their subscription drive about the campus. Yearly subscriptions for the quarterly are only one dollar.

Already beginning work on the next issue, Editor Bob Quinn requested that all potential authors get their contributions for the winter issue to him before the Thanksgiving holiday, so that the next issue may be released during the Christmas vacation.

GERMAN CLUB

The German Club will meet Monday evening, November 19, at 7:30 p. m. in the Blue Room of the Field House. A guest speaker will address the group.

Marketing Club Hears Two Prominent Advertising Men

A surprise speaker appeared at last Thursday's Marketing Club meeting and in collaboration with the main speaker, Mr. Walcott Robinson, helped to make it one of the most successful programs in the club's young history.

The speaker was Mr. Darwin Heath, treasurer of the Phila. Chapter of the American Marketing Association.

Together, the two men gave a core history of their promotion campaign for Drexel Furniture Company.

Mr. Robinson is a specialist in travel accounts for the Arndt Advertising Company, and one of the most well informed men in the area in this field.

Future Marketing Club projects, as announced by president Bert Sellier, include a field trip, tentatively set for Wednesday, December 5. The trip will include visits to Lit Brothers Dept. Store and the Curtis Publishing Company.

Door prizes, which were given away for the first time at Tuesday's meeting.

Sudden Death Of Liotta Brings Campuswide Grief

By Ted Sheehan
Sports Editor

Domenic "Nick" Liotta, co-captain of the 1951 football team and All-American guard, died last Wednesday in Delurey Hall on the Villanova College campus.

His death came just four days after the announcement of his selection on Grantland Rice's All-American team and at a time when he was enjoying his greatest success.

A Mass in memory of Nick Liotta will be offered at the request of the Senior Class tomorrow (Wednesday) at noon in the College Chapel.

In addition, the members of the Class of '52 have provided for permanent enrollment of their former classmate in the Augustinian Seminary Guild. With this, masses and prayers will be offered for the happy repose of his soul by priests and seminarians of the Augustinian Order.

Burial was held last Saturday in his home town of Everett, Massachusetts. The delegation representing Villanova at the service was headed by the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., Vice-President of the college and Moderator of Athletics; Arthur Raimo, head football coach; Eddie Michaels and Alex Bell, assistant coaches, and members of the football team.

The game with the University of Tulsa, scheduled for last Saturday at Tulsa, was cancelled, as was the annual alumni football banquet, originally planned to be held December 10.

Seen By Roomate Last

Liotta was last seen by his room-mate, Dan Simeone, at about 6 a.m. When he failed to return to attend any of his morning classes, a search was begun and the body was found by John Nevins, the team's assistant trainer.

Praised By His Coach

Nick was one of the finest football players the school ever had, and he probably rates as the best guard in the

6 Absent As Council Votes To Publish Absentee List

In a 90-minute session, complete with cries of "violation of freedom of the press," and the first non-unanimous vote recorded so far this year, Villanova's Student Council met last Monday night in 215 Mendel.

Both of these extraordinary occurrences centered about a motion asking the editor of the "Villanovan" to publish, if possible, names of absentees of the Council's semi-monthly meetings. The motion was ultimately carried, but not without some opposition and confusion of terms.

Meeting Absentees

(Those absent from the meeting included: Joseph Mullen, NFCCS representative; Edward Brunner, LKD; Robert Nosum, Sanctuary Society; Jerry Guarch, Belle Masque; Alfred Floria, "Villanova Engineer"; and Joseph Kenny, Sophomore Class president.)

The "Villanovan" editor, James Gallagher, figured in another item of business when the Council passed a ruling that "... (he) ... be allowed a proxy vote on the Council so long as the paper goes to press on the same nights that the Council meets."

Previously, the paper's editor was unable to attend meetings since they conflicted with his editorial duties.

Other Business

In other business, a motion was introduced to examine the possibility of installing coat-hooks in classrooms. Proposed by George Eberle, investigation of the move was placed in the hands of Reform Committee Chairman, Tom Fucigna.

Phila. Alumni Club Cancels Banquet

The Football Banquet scheduled for next Monday evening at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, has been cancelled.

The affair, sponsored annually by the Villanova Club, of Philadelphia, was called off due to the death of Nick Liotta, co-captain of this year's varsity eleven.

Mr. John Kelly was the chairman of the alumni committee handling arrangements for the banquet.

Mr. George Harris, campus alumni representative, made the announcement on campus of the cancellation.

Student Lounge Refinished, Open

The refurbished students' lounge was reopened last week for use of resident students.

The lounge, located in the ground floor of Austin Hall, has been completely altered in recent weeks. New furniture, reading lamps, and vending machines, containing soft drinks, candy and cigarettes have been placed in the lounge.

Arangement of the lounge now finds reading chairs, card tables, sofas and other leisure-time furniture in the large room. The small room at the rear of the lounge contains the vending machines, the television set and the ping pong table.

The lounge opens at 6 p.m. every day, and is open until 11 p.m.

JUNIOR RINGS

Junior Class President Paul Sollami and Ring Chairman Don Blaha announced last night that ring fittings for Juniors would be taken the week prior to Christmas vacation by a representative of Loren Murchison and Co. A small deposit will probably be required, Sollami said.

Witness To Speak On A-Bomb Topic

Second Forum Speaker Survived Atomic Attack

"I was A-Bombed!" Rev. Hubert Schiffer, S.J., will speak on that topic tomorrow evening at the second of the current Villanova Forum series. The lecture will be given in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

The speaker is qualified to speak on his subject, since Father Schiffer was at Hiroshima when the first atom bomb was detonated. He served in Toyko during most of World War II. Shortly before the end of the war his superiors moved him to Hiroshima for a rest, as they felt that Father Schiffer had already experienced too many bombings.

Speak on Experiences

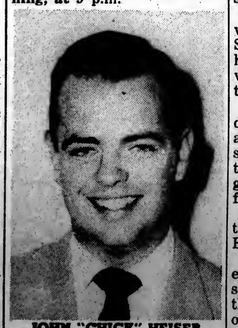
Shortly after his arrival in Hiroshima, however, Father Schiffer was to experience the world's most famous bombing.

The speaker will tell of his experiences during the bombing in his lecture, and the aftermath of the explosion.

Father Schiffer was born in Westphalia, Germany. He was ordained a Jesuit in 1934, and one year later was sent to the Orient.

Now Fordham Student

In 1947 Father Schiffer received permission from the Japanese Government, and American military commanders of occupation, to build an orphanage at Hiroshima. Japanese Sisters now are in charge of the orphanage.



The speaker is now studying labor-management relations at Fordham University, New York.

Hobo Hop Friday Benefits Orphans

The "Hobo Hop," an old-fashioned country style dance sponsored to raise funds for Operation Yule, will be held in the Field House Friday evening, at 9 p.m.

JOHN "CHICK" HEISER
"Mountain Style Friday Night"

Chairman "Chick" Heiser promised, "We'll have the best music in the history of the Field House. We have secured recordings of every outstanding band."

Heiser asserted that tickets will be available in the Pie Shop all this week, and that he has committee members canvassing the resident dormitories.

A prize for the "best dressed?" couple will be awarded at the affair. On the subject of dress, Heiser cautioned, "We're urging all the girls to join the fellows, and for both to wear dungarees."

Ed Corrini is in charge of the decorations for the affair. Ed has promised a "surprise."

Heiser, who happily reported an extremely large ticket sale, reminded all students that "this is a dance for the orphans. Don't let 'em down."

Tickets for the dance are $1.00.

Don't Be The First One

Next Saturday night crowds of Villanovans, following the Wildcat basketball team, will make their presence felt at the University of Pennsylvania's Palestra at the first of the annual series of double-headers. And it is a commendable object to make this presence as gentlemanly as possible.

But the end of last basketball season the "friendly rivalry" between students of Villanova and the U. of P. had developed into more of an antagonism, voiced through the cheering of both groups against both home teams.

Back at the beginning, it all started when a few students thought they would "liven up the place" by the cheering against Penn and Villanova. But home team cheering would liven up the place just as well.

And it will take only one little cheer Saturday to start things all over again. Let's not have one of the Villanova rooters be the first!

Nick Liotta A Great Guy

The usually loud between-class chatter lulled to a whisper. Within the small, shocked groups, one tried to convince himself that it wasn't true, that it was only a wild rumor or anything but the truth.

But the report had been verified. Nick Liotta, Grantland Rice's choice for All-American and every student's choice for All-Villanovan, was dead.

Truly Nick Liotta was All-American. To all who knew him, he was the perfect example of the ideals and virtues stressed at his Alma Mater. He gave his talents to lead his friends along the upward trail. And everyone was his friend.

Always the Good Word

He was a man of wit, a natural entertainer. He gave his time freely to spark rallies and student gatherings. He loved to ask his audience, "What's the good word?" And his audience loved to surprise him with "Nick . . . Nick Liotta!"

He was a gentleman. As he strode the campus, he cheerfully greeted those he knew and, with the same cheer, those who only knew him.

He was an All-American football player. He worked at the game to make the hopes and dreams of his coaches and fellow players come true. He played at the game for his own satisfaction and enjoyment.

In the manner of those people that have a genius for self-perfection, he berated himself for any of his own miscues — a missed block or tackle, a penalty which he had drawn. And in the tradition of all great leaders, as captain of the team he held himself responsible for a defeat while the credit for a victory went to the rest of the squad.

His strivings repaid him, for this year he was selected for top honors in the world of sports, along with the other greatest names in football across the country.

A Living Inspiration

He was a man of spirit and deep faith. We do not know what makes some men stand out above their fellows in exuding fervor and inspiration. But we know that some do. Nick Liotta was one of these men. His mere presence in a tight situation was enough to rekindle the determination of the team to rise up and overcome it.

Every Villanovan has thrilled at least once to Nick Liotta's ability, conduct, and disposition.

Every Villanovan is experiencing a deep feeling of loss as he realizes that this man among men is gone.

Every Villanovan has visited the chapel to pray for the happy repose of Nick Liotta's soul. They know that Nick would have done the same for them.

And, every Villanovan, from time to time, will look up from his work, stop his play, or interrupt his activitv, to gaze vacantly, and silently mourn Nick Liotta, a brother in Christ, a fellow Villanovan, and a great guy.

May he rest in peace with our prayers!

WHY? WHY? WHY?

Operation Yule, Phase I: --- "Mission Accomplished"

By Jim Glavin

Operation Yule completed its first phase Saturday, when the annual outing for the orphans of St. John's was held. The word Saturday evening was: Mission Accomplished. Awaiting further instructions. Signed, the Men of Villanova.

Further instructions were promptly forthcoming from Operation head Art DiVittis. He directed "We have completed the first half of our job. Half of the job remains to be done. The party for the orphans, December 13, will complete our operation. The collections being taken in religion classes are to raise funds for the party. Each student has been asked to contribute seventy-five cents. I am confident every Villanovan will come through with flying colors."

'Big Day'

But, in the minds of most of the orphans, Saturday was the big day! They went out with their big brothers. They saw Santa

BEAMING JOHNNIE meets Santa Claus in Wanamaker's Toyland during annual Operation Yule outing for orphans at St. John's Saturday. The tongue-in-cheek Villanovan in background was one of 400 college men who became Dads for a day

Claus. They went into the city. All in all, it was a day that will live long in the memory of each boy at St. John's.

It was a big day for the several hundred Villanovans who took out the boys, too. For them, as well, it was a day not to be soon forgotten.

'Why?'

The day began between 9:30 and 10:30 in the morning, when the men picked up their "charge for the day" at St. Johns, on 48 street. They began to get acquainted with each other on the trip into the center of the city. The word of the day became familiar on that trip, too. The boys would point here, point there, but always ask the same question, "Why?" For a group of college students, proud of their intellectual capacities, the Villanovans were kept on the move responding to that lone word.

Santa

Once in the city, the boys were taken for one of the big moments of the day—the visit to Santa Claus. Incomplete returns indicated that all the Santas still had their beards intact.

The Greek restaurant at Wanamaker's was the scene of all the noontime explosions, as the midcity store turned over its facilities to serving luncheon for the heroes of the day and their guardians.

Following lunch the program varied. Some went to a movie, although the frequently requested "Tarzan" pictures were scarce. Others made the rounds of the city.

'Mother'

One of the humorous highlights of the day beset one Villanovan who had a lady friend along on the excursion. When his little brother of the day looked up and called the lady companion "Mother," there were two red faces and some quickly turned heads.

The day came to a close at about 4 p.m. when the boys were returned to St. Johns, and the Villanovans, silently muttering "Why," bade them good-bye and "Merry Christmas" at the door.

Realist Jack Piles Jack Together After A Few Adverse Schemes

By Joe Keats

"If the price of alcohol goes up any more," Jack told me last October, "I'm going to give up smoking." (I like Jack, he's a realist.) "I can just about afford the necessities of life!" (These for Jack, are wine, women and song.)

Since I lost my pinochle deck (His main source of income) I haven't had a bit of luck. If things don't start going my way soon, I'll have to get a job!"

Came Long Way

Since our talk that day, Jack has come a long way, but it's been a hard road for him to travel. In one of the finer spots in town, Jack met a sharp individual who told him that he had called the second Louis-Conn fight. He had also called the Turpin-Robinson fight, picked the Giants to take the National League Pennant when they were twelve and a half games out. He had bought Man-O-War from a junk dealer who was using the horse to pull his wagon, that he had picked C.C.N.Y. to win both tournaments and that he had personally "fixed" the Truman victory over Dewey.

Although he is skeptical by nature, Jack allowed himself to be talked into being the campus representative for a million dollar scheme, the football pool. Jack's pool was hit hard the first week and so was Jack, by a number of irate sporting fans who desired their "points" even though the sharpie had suddenly gone on vacation.

Trampled By Elephants

Jack convinced the insurance company that he had been trampled by elephants on the campus, collecting double indemnity. This, he mailed to his creditors from the infirmary and in a week was back on his feet with a new idea. He had considered a number of plans for getting back on his feet financially and when I last saw him he was about to launch what he called a fool-proof operation.

If you haven't as yet met my friend Jack, I'm sure you will soon, because his new business depends upon you. This idea of Jack's, which he modestly admits is great, will make him the Vanderbilt of the campus.

Jack has formed the "Friendly Loan Corporation." It is his unique way of avoiding destitution. He borrows nickels or dimes from his friends and even his enemies if a big weekend is coming up. "This is all profit," Jack says, "because who expects to get back a nickel or a dime."

Here And Almost Gone Is New Advent Season; Make An Effort

By Bob Bellarme

We are once again in the season of the year in which men cast their eyes toward the future with its celebration of the Divine Birth.

Just as the Jews twenty centuries ago had their patient expectations of a coming Messiah more than satiated by a birth in a Bethlehem stable, so the people ever since then are each year, filled with great joy over the commemoration of that long-awaited miracle.

Consider Real Question

To say that they were, and are not, disappointed would be a gross understatement. Instead of wondering whether the event measures up to its anticipation, should we not consider the real question to be just the converse.

Disregarding the past, should it not be, "Do we of the present satisfactorily prepare ourselves for celebrating what is one of the greatest feasts of the year?"

Shouldn't we concern ourselves with asking whether our anticipation measures up to the actuation?

We all know the spirit desired for this time of the year —Advent, 1951. We all want to meet that spirit with our greatest energies. However, it would do well to re-emphasize what has always been considered too much for granted—attendance at daily Mass.

Presented On Campus

The opportunity for this religious habit presents itself on the Villanova campus. Presents itself as it will probably never do again during our lives. It's something for the Villanova "opportunist" to take advantage of while they may.

But, as is the case with every piece of advice, in itself it is absolutely useless. Its worth is measured solely by the effect which it causes—a worth which each Villanova student possesses, the energies contingent for realization.

It Has Arrived

While experiencing the capabilities, we also have the will to anticipate properly Christmas, 1951. Advent is not coming; it has arrived; and with it the time for a decision which will permit us to remember the 1951st birthday of Christ and the preceding weeks of anticipation with just contentment.

Again, it's all in your hands. How about making the effort?

MASSES ON SATURDAY

This Saturday, December 8, is the feast of the Immaculate Conception, a holyday of obligation. Masses in the College Chapel will be at 6, 7:30, 9, and 12 noon.

THE PASHA PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

STUDENT UNION: Men have been inquiring of the faculty members as to when the new Student Union will go into construction. . . . The most popular retort has been that as yet there isn't enough of the long green in the treasury. . . . MARK DeMARCO believes that if the school would stop building four lane highways to the Post Office, it might be possible to build the edifice somewhat sooner.

What would happen to the old Pie Shoppe if'n a large modern building were to take its place? . . . Louie would have to go back to barbering, or at least start some other clip joint.

HIGHWAYS AND BYWAYS: FRANK SCERBO has informed the colm'n that the smart money will be riding on the Jersey Turnpike around the 26th of December. . . . Frank Dailey's fabulous Meadowbrook will be dedicated to Villanova. On that night Ralph Flanagan will feature the school songs along with other salutes to the Main Line Campus.

EXCERPTS FROM THE NEW YORKER: Father McShea pleze 'scuse. . . . We went down New York way over the Thanksgiving Holiday to Samba at the Statler where the Villanova Club of that magnificent metropolis held its rather informal get-together. . . .

The Class of '52 was well represented. . . . However, BUD CONKLIN complained that there weren't enough table tops on the floor's perimeter. . . . BOB QUINN went home singing IN THE COOL, COOL, COOL, OF THE EVENING, while ANDY MARKEY was just glad to get home.

Many of the "Old Grads" turned out for the occasion among them TOMMY CLAVIN of yesteryear's football greats. . . . It was a wonderful party and we do hope that the Villanova Club will hire the same band for next year's affair. . . . We'd like to hear it.

LIFE IS FINALLY A DREAM: The Belle Masque went into production last week-end after overcoming difficulties that would have stimied many a Broadway producer. . . . Handicapped by the size of the Rosemont stage but ever thankful that they were afforded an opportunity to use it, the Dramatic Society presented an outstanding performance of their Fall play and once again Father Krupa and his charges proved that LIFE IS A DREAM.

OR IS IT A DREAM: That is what many orphans will be wondering if Santa Claus doesn't visit them around Christmas. . . . Y'see, kids don't think exactly in the way that you and I do because they believe that all the dreams of life can come true. . . .

Of course, being the big hard-hearted individuals that we are, we know for certain that all dreams of life can't possibly come true. . . . But we do know that with a little assistance most of the dreams of a child can be made real for them. . . . Yes, with our assistance the Little Johnnies can have a realization of their Christmas dreams. . . .

They are the same things you had in mind at the Yuletide when you were a kid—The tree, candy, presents, and the warmth that comes from a feeling that someone loves and cares for you. . . .

You, men of Villanova, can supply all that these poor raggamuffins desire and so desperately lack by supporting the HOBO HOP that is to be held on Friday night, the proceeds of which will go to help the Johnnies have a warm and happy Christmas. . . . REMEMBER—A MAN IS NEVER SO TALL AS WHEN HE STOOPS TO HELP A CHILD.

Belle Masquers Check Production Odds To Make Success Of Bad 'Dream' Play

By J. Kelly St. John

The members of the Belle Masque Dramatic Society placed their latest effort in the public's eye last week at Rosemont College. The play was a drama entitled "Life Is A Dream" written by Pedro Calderon de la Barca, the Spanish Shakespeare.

It was adapted from the Spanish, produced, and directed by Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., with his usual keen perception and foresight.

Unusual Difficulty

Father Krupa has always had to work under unusual hardships but this play was beset by so many obstacles that, for a while, its production seemed almost impossible. The Field House in its present condition of renovation made it necessary to postpone the play and, even after that, it had to be taken to the inadequate stage at Rosemont College located not fifty yards from the noisy Pennsylvania R. R. tracks.

Father Krupa, the cast and stage crew did a marvelous job in spite of all difficulties. They utilized every possible inch of space to give the sets as much depth as possible.

Superfluous Plots

"Life Is A Dream" was written in the 17th Century and the story, or I should say stories, takes place in Poland. The main plot surrounds a Prince banished to a hidden tower in the mountains after his birth. All this — because of a dream his father had. To the main plot are added at least six other sub-plots which are too numerous to explain.

James Clarkin portrayed the part of the Prince Sigismund, and held the audience from the beginning to the end. His delivery was faultless and his lines, always distinct, never wavered in tone quality or sincerity.

Crist as Saucy Jester

George Crist, playing the prancing jester, Clarion, was saucy and rollicking as he skipped and mugged his way through the play. Carrying the burden of the comedy, he did a fine job, as the audience displayed in their applause.

LIFE IS A DREAM is the conclusion drawn by Prince Sigismund, enacted by Jim Clarkin, right, during the Belle Masque's production of the play of that title for a three-day run last week.

Bernard Coyne, a freshman, made a startling debut as Basilius, the King. Coyne handled the part professionally and with distinctive grace.

Thomas Hayden did an excellent job as the faithful Clotald and Robert Allen was good as Astolfo, the pretender to the throne. Anthony Della Rocca, as a Chamberlain, played his offstage death scene with considerable gusto.

Unusual Treat

The female members of the cast were unusually good in this production. Joan Daley, as Rosaura, was charming, and Eileen O'Brien played Estrella with cold, quick human feeling.

After designing and making the scenery for the Villanova Auditorium, it had to be entirely redone on a much smaller scale for the stage at Rosemont. The stage crew should be congratulated for the resourceful sets.

Jerry Battle and Don McCourt should take a bow as co-managers of the production. They had a very smooth performance under heavy odds.

An old Belle Masque'er, Geo. Smith, came back and did an excellent job on the make-up for the play. It is this reviewer's opinion that the appearance in a part is almost as important as the spoken line and this cast certainly looked well in the parts that they portrayed so well.

LIFE Exhibit In Library 'Fine Arts Under Fire'

The College Library has arranged to show FINE ARTS UNDER FIRE, a photographic exhibition prepared by the editors of LIFE Magazine illustrating the work of Allied Armies in preserving and salvaging Western Europe's historic monuments and works of art in combat areas during World War II. The exhibition opened Saturday and will continue through December 15.

The American Commission for the Protection and Salvage of Artistic and Historic Monuments in War Areas collaborated with LIFE's editors in assembling photographs, many hitherto unpublished, from several sources.

Consisting of thirty panels of enlarged photographs, a short running text reveals the care of fine arts during the war and the methods, extent and variety of work carried on under the little-known program, unique in the history of war, for the protection and salvage of the cultural heritage of Europe.

Beginning with a few examples of the extent and type of damage to historic buildings during the war, the exhibition emphasizes the application of the Allied program for the protection of those monuments within the limits of military necessity, for the saving of whatever remained of war-damaged buildings and collections, and the handling of dispersed and looted works of art.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 29...THE HYENA

Hysteria reigned from the moment he heard the details of those quick-trick cigarette mildness tests. First he giggled . . . then he guffawed . . . wound-up rolling in the aisle! He knew that the "single sniff" test or the "one puff" test didn't prove anything! Millions of smokers have reached the same conclusion — there's just one test that really proves cigarette flavor and mildness!

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. No snap judgments! Once you've enjoyed Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

After all the Mildness Tests . . .

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

POOR PAUL was eggzasperated because every chick on campus gave him the bird. They told him: "We're all cooped up!" Then one day his roommate said: "The hens avoid you beak-cause your hair's messy, you dumb cluck! I don't know feather you've heard of Wildroot Cream-Oil or not, but you better fry it—er, try it! Contains soothing Lanolin. Relieves dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil—and now the gals think he's a good egg! Better lay down a few poultry cents on the nearest drug or toilet goods counter for a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. And ask for it on your hair at your favorite barber shop. Then the girls'll take off their hatch to you!

history of Villanova. Recently Art Raimo made the following statement about Liotta, "The boy is the finest collegiate lineman I've ever seen and he could make the first line of any professional eleven in the nation."

Liotta entered Villanova in the fall of 1948 and immediately distinguished himself as a guard on the freshman team. He came here at the behest of Raimo, who was then backfield coach under Jordan Olivar, and also comes from the town of Everett, Massachusetts.

Stars As Soph

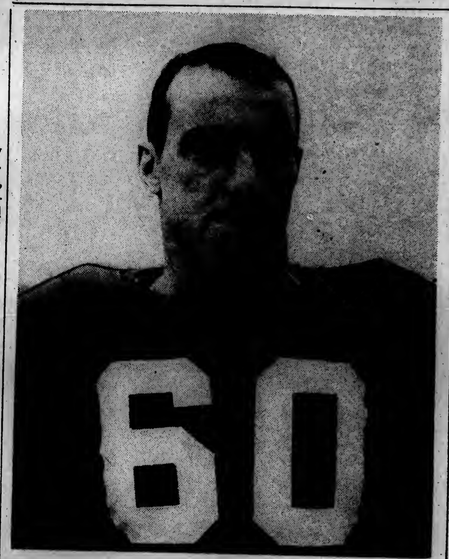
Nick had no trouble making the first string starting assignment in his sophomore year and he played on both teams—offensive and defensive—a feat which he was to do all during his days at Villanova. It was partly through his fine playing that Villanova had an 8-1 record that year.

In his junior year he was a mainstay on the team and again played both offense and defense. His tackling was phenomenal and some attention began to come to the shy guard. His feats in the game with St. Mary's in California, played in a veritable quagmire, helped the Wildcats to their fourth victory of the year.

Elected to Lead Team in '51

Because of his fine playing, leadership and sportsmanship, he was elected co-captain of this season's football team, along with Joe Rilo. Up to this season, though, Nick had not received too much attention in the sports world across the nation. This coming season was to be the one in which he would show the pollsters and other people who make up the selections that he was really deserving of their plaudits.

As the present season began Nick was in fine physical form and his cheering and encouragement to the team, which had become famous by this time, was louder than ever.



As the team downed Army, 21-7, to win their opening game, Nick was one of the stars of the game with his crushing, but always clean, defensive work.

Putting Penn State and Alabama under their belts, the team remained undefeated and talk of post season games began to take on some credence at the practice sessions in the afternoons and always Nick would be there yelling encouragement and praise to the team. He was a real leader.

Kentucky Loss Saddens Nick

Then something seemed to happen to Nick. On the following week the team met Kentucky and were soundly trounced. This changed things and it started to change Nick

1951 Squad Ends Season Compiles 5 and 3 Record

By Harry Anger

An outsider looking at the 1951 Villanova football season might think it was a mediocre one for a team with such great potentialities. It really wasn't though, when you consider all the obstacles the boys had to conquer.

The lack of a stadium too, brought about the late season downfall of the Mainliners. Our Wildcats were on the road more than Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey.

Even in the season's opener against the once-powerful Army the Wildcats showed the lack of depth that plagued them all season. Up at Michie Stadium behind the fine play of Bill Brannau and Ben Addiego, Villanova got off to a great start. They led 14-0 at the quarter, but seemed to tire as the game bore on. The Wildcats, it is true, won handily, 21-7, but still they didn't crush the Cadets.

In their next outing, not strictly speaking a road game, but nevertheless in Allentown, the men of Art Raimo took Penn State in tow, 20-14.

Tide Turned Against Tide

The Wildcats continued on their Cook's tour of America as they journeyed down to Tuscaloosa to take on the Crimson Tide of Alabama, and walloped them, 41-18.

The following week the trip South was not so pleasant. The Kentucky Wildcats behind the Great Parilli, handed Villanova its first defeat of the season, 35-13.

Cats Win in Heat

Behind the fine play of Joe Rilo, Ben Addiego and Bill Brannau, the Wildcats got back on the victory trail at the expense of the University of Houston. The game played in 89 degree weather, was a thriller all the way. The score was 33-27.

against the Titans of Detroit. Villanova trailed at the half, but the fine play of the entire team in the third and fourth quarters brought home the second stranght victory, 26-7.

Liotta Stars as Team is Upset

On November 17 up in Boston, the high-flying, Cats were involved in the upset of the day. On that cold afternoon the Eagles of Boston College, rallied to sink the Mainliners 20-13.

The lack of depth, the traveling, the injuries, and the tough schedule finally caught up with the Cats at Shreveport. On that afternoon Villanova suffered its worst defeat in the last three years. The team just could not get started. The big, strong, and more experienced L. S. U. Tigers simply bull-dogged us to defeat, much as a cowboy does with a steer. The score was 45-7.

Arizin-Hennessey Thursday Night in Alum.-Varsity Duel

By Carl Valenti

The question of Paul Arizin vs. Larry Hennessey may finally be settled this Thursday House as Villanova plays host day evening at the Field to a star-studded Alumni quintet.

The past and present scoring aces will match deuces as the 1951-52 Wildcats make their second appearance of the current campaign at 8:30 p.m.

On Saturday the 'Cats travel to Philadelphia where they meet St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., in the season's first double header as co-hosts with the University of Pennsylvania at Penn's Palestra. Villanova plays the first game at 7:30 and Penn will encounter Maryland in the nightcap.

Wolf, Ricca, Lord to Play

The Alumni, in addition to Arizin, will consist of such outstanding former Villanovans as Leo Wolf, Brooks Ricca, Tom Sabol, Joe "Toad" Hannon, Joe Lord, Bob "Maje" McDonnell, Art Spector and Bill Wood. Sherwin "Shy" Raiken, who is in service, may also play.

Wolf, Ricca, Sabol, Hannon and Raiken all finished their collegiate careers with the mighty Arizin in 1950. McDonnell, and Lord were members of the 1947 senior class and Wood graduated in 1943.

Paul's Record in Danger

"Tall Paul," whose collegiate scoring records are seriously in jeopardy since Hennessey has been around, should meet some real court competition from the present star of the Mainliners. Larry's sophomore record is superior to that of his predecessor, who is now the mainstay of the professional champion Philadelphia Warriors, and this meeting may be an indication of the future.

Gate to Stadium Fund

Admission to this game shall be $1.00 plus tax, for everyone—student and adult. All the proceeds will go to the Stadium Building Fund. In the preliminary game an intramural team will play the Temple University I-M champ.

Awards Heaped On Nick Liotta Before His Tragic Death

By Joe Corcoran

On the eve of his greatest personal triumph, Nick Liotta is dead. The stocky New Englander, whose features and easy-going manner made him the butt of so many campus comments, died a scant four days after the publication of his name on Grantland Rice's "Look" magazine All-American team.

This Was Liotta's Year

This was to be Liotta's year. Back in September, sportswriters throughout the country singled the Blue and White co-captain as a very possible "All" player. They looked to Nick to be the driving force behind the inexperienced Wildcat club. As the season progressed, Villanova lost its early-game momentum, but its stalwart guard surged on. According to many sources, he played the best game of his career a week ago Saturday against Boston College. The week before, home fans viewed Liotta at his incomparable finest in the victory over Detroit.

Was to Go to New York

Nick had been invited to New York early next week as the guest of "Look." Together with the rest of Rice's selections, he was to be honored with a gold wristwatch in recognition of his achievements at the magazine's annual banquet. Also on the agenda was a stint before the RKO-Pathe newsreel cameras.

It's all behind Nick now. Not only the Rice award, but his "All-American" choice by the Football Coaches Association, the All-Eastern selection by Collier's magazine, honorable mention from the United Press and Associated Press newsmen, too.

As the third Villanova representative to football's mythical teams, Liotta had been chosen to play for the East squad against the Western All Stars in San Francisco's annual New Year's Day charity game. He was also invited to don a Northern uniform in the North-South contest.

LIOTTA AND GIPP

Nick Liotta is the second person in the history of All American selections to be named to the team after death. The only player before that was the immortal George Gipp, of Notre Dame, who was named to the team in the early 1920's.

Co-Capt. Joe Rilo will receive Nick Liotta's posthumous All-American honors in New York this week. The presentation ceremonies will be heard tonight from 10:30 to 11 p. m. over WIP. They will originate from Leone's Resturant in New York.

SPORTS CHATTER

IN MEMORIAM

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

A Senior in the School of Education and a candidate for a degree of Bachelor of Science in June died last Wednesday in his dormitory — Delurey Hall.

His name was Nick Liotta.

There have been many tragedies and many deaths in the history of Villanova College but few have so surprised, so shocked, so saddened the campus as did the death of Nick Liotta.

A true gentleman and a true sportsman, an oddity in these days, he will be mourned by every Villanovan.

Yet, why are we mourning? Because he was an athlete—an All-American guard—or because he was a student?

His exploits upon the gridiron were known and admired, but to him — to Nick — his pride was not in football. He was not the type to be proud (and who had a better right to be?) and yet, there was one thing of which he was fiercely proud.

Nick never boasted — you don't have to when you are that good — when his talents as a football player were mentioned.

Took Pride in Studies

His pride was in his studies and he was forever learning, studying, working to better himself. Behind the bluff manner and the wise-crack was an inner self known to only a handful of people at Villanova and coming to light only after his death.

Rare was the occasion when he would not be seen walking about the campus without a book tucked under his arm. Nick had a favorite way of spending his free time, and with football and the rest it was little indeed. He would sit for hours in the library listening to classical music, understanding and enjoying every note.

Who would ever think that this rugged, hard-fighting lineman could tell you as much about Beethoven as he could about the single wing or T-formation?

This point was brought out vividly to this writer about a month ago when a staff reporter was sent to get a feature on Nick. The reporter returned not with a history of his football adventures but with a story of Nick's love for music and art, and the so-called finer things in life.

Nick made no mention in the story of playing professional ball — and he already had clubs contracting for his talents — but talked of his desire to be a teacher and coach. Nick told of his pride in being the football player with the highest academic average on the team. He asked us to write that. To him that was more important.

Unfortunately, the article was rewritten to bring out football at the expense of his real love. No one could ever think of him in that light.

"Bulletin" Tells of Nick

Earl Eby in his article in the "Bulletin" last Thursday brought out his love of studies very well. There probably was not another writer that knew Nick as well as Eby did and he told the story of complimenting Nick on his studies and rank in class. Nick is supposed to have said "Well, I'm not bad". To Nick that meant a lot, and it certainly was "not bad".

Nick was a leader on the football field and his presence on the field seemed to give new strength to the team in a game. His manner and way on the field changed from the manner that he had on the campus.

On the field or in the game, Nick wanted to win. He was a clean player and if football ever had a Lady Byng Trophy he certainly deserved it. The only regret that Nick had about playing football was that he might hurt someone and this was always in his mind when making a block or stopping an opposing player.

Loss to Boston Hurt

We will never know what was on Nick's mind those last few weeks. There is no doubt that the loss to Boston College in front of all his hometown folks hurt and upset him. He never really recovered from it. The Louisiana State game was the final straw.

This writer's last recollection with Nick occurred on Tuesday night when Nick was visiting some of his friends in Mendel Hall. Nick was in the room and this writer came in to congratulate him on being selected to Grantland Rice's All-American team and told him of the preparations being made in this issue for the coverage of the story.

It didn't seem to interest him and the wisecrack and laughter was gone from him. He merely sat there and said, "Yeah, yeah, thanks".

It is to his family — his mother and his brother and sisters that the grief must fall heavily upon. To them the school we are sure extends the deepest sorrows.

Had No Enemies

In writing a memorial it is customary to recall the fine points and friendships that the person made while alive. This writer can say with the greatest conviction that there was not a student or a teacher on the campus who disliked or ever had a bad word for Nick. He was a person intimately known by a few, liked and beloved by all. He had not an enemy.

When Villanova will have another All-American cannot be foretold. What can be told is that there never will be another Nick Liotta.

We miss you Nick; the whole school misses Nick!

Good Counsel I.M. Champs; Troopers Lose on Downs, 3-2

By John Gillman

In football, Good Counsel is the best at Villanova.

They took the Mendel league championship by beating the Toppers 13-0, on two long touchdown runs by Ted Labreque and Joe Billera. They then continued in their winning ways by dropping the Mendelcases in the first playoff game 14-0

Troopers Lead Late in Game

In the All-Villanova Championship they met the Austin Troopers and the result was probably the best defensive game of the season. The game was even practically all the way but with two minutes remaining, the Troopers were leading 2 first downs to 1.

Billera-Solami Pass Clinches Game

Then Good Counsel evened it up with a line smash by Billera, and in the next series of plays, fourth down Billera threw a pass to Paul Solami which was good for the winning first down. The game ended before another play could be run off and Good Counsel was I-M Champ.

Basketball Nat. Leag.

In the first game of the season the Ramcats took the Viz Eds 20-22. Vince Doyle of the losers, was high man with 12 points. The Spiders won their opening game by beating the "Double E" 24-20. The T-Squares topped the Royals 45-41. Borkowski was high man for the Royals with 16 and Usher and Kazmierzak got 14 and 13 respectively for the T-Squares.

American League

The Sophs romped over the Intellectuals 44-12. Frank Murphy, of the Sophs was high man with 21 points. The Haunts, with Hepburn getting 19 and Gaffney 18, tied an I-M record in beating the Martyrs 82-23. The Firehouse 5 edged out the Darts 54-49. Scottese was high scorer with 17 points.

Barracks League

The Shamrocks beat the Hebes 38-25. The Blue Eagles topped the Kingpins 38-32. DeRenzo scored 17 for the Blue Eagles. When the Redmen beat the Millers 64-29 they could have used Connelly's points alone and won. He got 37. The Hebes lost their second straight to the Jersey Jets 41-36. Leonard got 20 for the Hebes, while Loos and Heaman got 16 apiece for the winners.

B League

The Rumbums beat the Barnacles 24-23 on Brandon's last second field goal. The Mets blasted the Characters 79-36 as Fleming and Baum got 24 and 21 respectively. The Pistons topped the Mendelcases 29-20. The Hustlers beat the Bulldogs 51-32. Scully was high man with 21.

A League

The Cats edged the Bullets 30-27 as Mayok netted 14 for the victors. The Zips, with Paris scoring 18, won over the Hayseeds 44-27, and the Shamrocks topped the Marauders 48-39.

New York A. C. Falls 81-66 To Open Year

The Villanova quintet opened the season with its first win against an impressive New York Athletic Club by downing them 81-66 at Field House last Saturday night.

Larry Hennessey was top scorer with 11 field goals and three foul shots, making 19 points the first half, and ending up with a total of 11 baskets for 32 tries.

He was followed by Sam Glassmire who made 12, and Tom Brennan with 11. Jim Mooney was in his usual form, gathering in a top total of 13 rebounds.

Regulars Start

The starting line-up was Ben Stewart, Jim Mooney, Larry Hennessey, Sam Glassmire, and Tom Brennan. The tremendous depth of the team was shown when Devine, McGuire, Schaeffer, Gepp and Stahl were sent in for replacements and not only held their own, but piled the score up higher.

Hennessey opened the game with a jump shot, but N Y A C came back in a few minutes to lead 5-10. Then by some nice defensive play by Brennan and the outside shooting of Larry the game was tied at 12 all.

Lead at Half

The game never varied by a lead of more than two or three points till late in the second quarter, when the Wildcats took a 34-27 lead. The half ended 41-37.

In the second half, Villanova took a 52-44 lead on three beautiful tap-ins by Brennan. The game was never in doubt after this as the 'Cats spurted to a 61-46 command. At this point Coach Al Severance showed the power of the reserves and replaced his veterans in toto with the reserves.

These boys although not as polished, play a hard, determined game which garners the points, which was proven when the game ended 8-66.

Liotta Dies

also. On the way back from Louisville Liotta was quiet—a feat worthy of mention at any time.

By the time the team had gotten back and practice for the game with Houston began, Nick started to feel better and the gloom of the previous week's defeat was gone. He once again led the team.

Against Houston the team got on the winning side again and the trip home was lightened by Nick's clowning and joking. The regalia bought by the team at Louisville the week before was brought out and no one would have known that this was the same team that had been a defeated squad the week before.

The two-week rest did the team good, but there was still something bothering Nick. Just somehow he was not as jovial as before. An injury to his nose had scraped off all the skin, but kidding him seemed to do no good. There was definitely something on his mind.

Loss to Eagles Heightens Gloom

It was the upsetting loss to Boston College in front of his hometown folks that proved to be too much for Nick to endure. He never rallied from that, and until his death the smile, the joke, the good nature was gone. Nothing now could raise him from his gloom.

In the Louisiana State game last week the line was completely outplayed, as was the rest of the team. Nick was missing his blocks as was the rest of the line.

The humiliating 45-7 loss proved too much. Nick never spoke on the entire trip up from Shreveport. He was nearing the end of the road. On Monday and Tuesday of this week Nick was still silent, even in class where he was forever eager to learn, he was silent.

On Wednesday morning it all ended. Villanova lost a great student, a great leader, and off the field and on, a great guy.

Sugar Bowl Pairings

The pairings for the Sugar Bowl basketball tournament, to be held on December 28 and 29, have been made and Villanova meets St. Louis University in the first game. The winner of this game plays the winner of the Kentucky - Brigham Young game for first place honors.

Boston College, LSU Beat 'Cats 20-13, 45-7

Villanova lost its second game when the Boston College Eagles upset them 20-13 at Braves Field.

The Wildcats scored first on a Brannau-to-Bedesem pass but the Eagles came back to tie the score 7-7 at the half.

Boston rebounded to score twice in the final half while the Mainliners did it only once. Liotta blocked a punt and Joe Jerry fell on it in the end zone for the TD.

Father McGuire Commends 28 Seniors Honored in Collegiate Who's Who

Presentation of 28 seniors named to the National Collegiate "Who's Who" highlighted the mid-semester students' convocation in the college Field House last Tuesday afternoon.

The meeting, one of the most poorly attended in recent years, also heard an address by the Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., college president.

Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activities, served as chairman of the convocation. The Invocation was delivered by Rev. Edward Dwyer, O.S.A. College Dean.

Father McGuire introduced each of the seniors honored by "Who's Who." "The diploma granted by Villanova is granted to students who have successfully completed the several prescribed courses and exercises of the college," the President commented.

"These 28 men have been outstanding in those exercises," Father McGuire added.

"My congratulations go to each of them and to those of you here who will succeed them next year and in other years," he concluded.

Brazilian Officers Inspect N.R.O.T.C. Midshipmen

ADMIRAL de MACEDES SOARES, right, chief of the Brazilian Naval Commission in Phila., inspects the Villanovan Midshipmen at their Fall inspection. Accompanying Admiral Soares, are Capt. J. R. McCormick, Rev. Edward McCarthy, O.S.A., and Midshipman George Crist.

The personal flag of a foreign officer flew above Barry Hall for the first time last Tuesday when Admiral Genson de Macedo Soares, head of the Brazilian Naval Commission in Philadelphia, inspected the college's N.R.O.T.C. battalion.

Accompanying Adm. Soares were Captain P. Bosisio, commanding officer of the Brazilian cruiser Tamandare, Capt. James R. McCormick, Professor of Naval Science at Villanova, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the college, and Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O.S.A.

The Tamandare is the former U.S.S. St. Louis, aboard which Capt. McCormick served for three years during the war.

Prior to the review the visiting officers were taken on a tour of Barry Hall and were high in their praise of the fine installations on Villanova's landlocked ship.

The unit's fancy drill team, Fourth Naval Dist. Champs, entertained the reviewing party with some examples of close order drill, following the inspection.

Upon leaving, Admiral Soares left the midshipmen with this motto: "In pace, para bellum" — "In time of peace, prepare for war."

Music Seminar to Present "Messiah"

The third Music Seminar in the current series will be held Monday at 7 p.m., in the Library Music Room. Selections from Handel's renowned "Messiah" will be played.

The semester's program of the seminars will come to a close with the fourth seminar January 8. Featured on that date will be "Carnival of Animals," "Pictures at an Exhibition," and Mozart's famous "Musical Joke."

Notes on each selection will be given during the seminars.

Spivak Set For Sr. Prom

Band Is Signed For Feb. 22

Charlie Spivak, the "man who plays the sweetest trumpet in the world," will bring his top-flight orchestra to Villanova to play at the Senior Prom February 22.

Bob Beers, Belle Air Ball chairman, and Jeff Rioux, band chairman, inked a contract with the William Honney agency of Philadelphia last week to bring this "big name" group to entertain at the annual function of the Senior Class.

Formal announcement and additional details will be given by Senior Class President Phil Brennan at a forthcoming meeting of the Class of '52.

CHARLIE SPIVAK
Playing for Senior Prom

"Name" Band

Spivak, a long-time standard among the "name" orchestras of the nation, is known for his radio and television appearances, as well as extensive recording work. Notches in his musical belt include a 20th Century-Fox picture, "Pin Up Girl," Universal studio's "Follow the Boys," and a flock of box-office records created at the Paramount and Hotel Statler in New York, the Palladium in Hollywood, and other top spots.

Born in New Haven, Conn., Spivak got his first trumpet while still in grade school, and later studied under George Hyer, a member of the New Haven Symphony.

Although his family had slated him for a career in medicine, Spivak took to the brass, and when Paul Specht, then one of the country's outstanding bandleaders, offered him a job, he signed.

Played With Pollack

While going through the beginning phases as a bandsman, Spivak played with Benny Pollack, the famous Dorsey brothers and Ray Noble. On his own musical wings, Spivak became the highest paid free-lancer in radio, playing on the Ford Symphony hour, Kate Smith and Fred Allen broadcasts.

Spivak got his first big engagement at the Glen Island Casino, jumping off place for more than a dozen of the nation's top bands, and only a few miles from his home in Connecticut.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker at the Congress will be Francis P. Drolet, S.J., who will deliver an address on "The Assumption of our Lady and its Implications for Catholics."

Father John Maher, O.S.A., religion instructor at Villanova is to moderate the "Marian Theology" section of the program. Two Villanova students are taking part in the exercises. Leroy Kendall is to deliver a paper on "Mass with Mary," while Richard Winfield will present "Mary and the Liturgical Cycle."

MEN OF VILLANOVA

Every true Christmas greeting should be a message of Peace. The angelic chorus which testified from the heavens to the great fact of the birth of the Son of God in magnificent song conveyed to mankind the message: "Glory to God on the Highest and on earth peace to men of good will." Peace is the fruit of the Incarnation and is the property of men of good will.

Christmas is as good a time as any to manifest before God the good will which is a prerequisite for Peace. A sincere attempt on the part of many, who as yet know no God, to discover Him is a surer step toward peace than a search for means to disprove His very existence. A Communist knows, he says, that there is no God. An American should be initially distinguished from the Communist on this basic tenet.

An attempt too on the part of those who believe in God to concentrate more on living according to such belief would be worthwhile evidence of the good will which is the forerunner of peace. In this attempt, all Villanova men can join to help make America a nation of men of good will.

My message to you this Christmas suggests the thought that you share your heritage with your fellow Americans. Perhaps through you the Light of the World will dispel the darkness in which the world is enshrouded. Perhaps through you others will return to Bethlehem to see for themselves that this indeed is the Son of God Who was born in a cave. Perhaps through you others will hear the song of the Angels: "Peace to men of good will." Through your efforts perhaps men will return to Christ—and to Peace.

May the Peace of Christ dwell in your hearts, your homes, and in our country this Christmas Day!

Father Schiffer Talks To 400 On His A-Bomb Experience

A stirring personal narrative of one of the more frightening aspects of modern warfare deeply moved an estimated audience of 400 last Wednesday night, as Rev. Hubert Schiffer, S.J., spoke on the topic, "I Was A-Bombed." The lecture, in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium, was the second of the current Villanova Forum series.

Father Schiffer displayed no physical effects of the first injuries he suffered when the first atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima on August 6, 1945. His talk centered about his before; during, and after reactions to the blast, which leveled over 6 square miles and killed 200,000 people.

Born in Germany

Following an introduction by Mr. Charles Bruderle, forum chairman, Father Schiffer related his experiences in Japan prior to the bombing. Speaking with a distinct German accent, Father Schiffer, born and ordained in Germany, revealed that he was transferred from Tokyo to Hiroshima to escape the aerial bombardment that the Japanese capital was undergoing. Once in Hiroshima, his time was spent caring for the pre-atom bomb casualties of that city.

Blinding Light

The most dramatic moment of his narrative was the description of the A-blast itself. At 8:15 A.M. on that day, he said, while reading in his Hiroshima rectory, "a tremendous, frightening light filled the room.

A split second after, it seemed that something, or rather, someone hit me with a long tree! Suddenly, I was flat on my stomach. . . . I could hear nothing, I thought I was deaf. It took me ten minutes to recover my sight and hearing."

Following his complete recovering in Tokyo in 1947, Father Schiffer returned to Hiroshima and started construction of an orphanage. It was a group of Buddhist priests who approached him, asking for permission to erect in the center of the ruined city

Christmas Program Begins With Visit From Rosemont

The holiday spirit which is enveloping the Villanova campus with a warm glow will be kindled a little higher tomorrow night when the Glee Club of Rosemont College visits the campus to present their annual Christmas program at evening chapel.

The annual Christmas message from the college president, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., will also be delivered during the services.

This visitation by Rosemont will continue a tradition begun back in 1943 when Rev. E. T. Grimes, college chaplain, invited the girls over to serenade the campus.

Courtesy Returned

Marines and Navy men stationed here during those war years reciprocated the following night with a surprise visit to the Rosemont campus.

Thus two customs were founded; the Rosemont visit here, and our own Glee Clubs' visit there, which this year will also take place tomorrow night.

Thursday night the college band and Glee Club will present their annual Christmas concert for the Villanova students, faculty, and friends. It is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium. Following this, the groups will tour the campus and serenade the various dormitories.

Christmas Vacation

The Christmas vacation will extend from December 17 to January 2, inclusive.

The next issue of the Villanovan will be published on January 8. All copy for this issue must be in the Villanova offices no later than 3 p.m. Thursday, January 3.

Christmas Lights

The school's Christmas lights, one of the most beautiful displays in the Philadelphia area, are being put up this week, and the maintenance department of the college hopes to have them in operation before the vacation officially begins at noon on Saturday.

Although the lights will not be as numerous as in former years, the main buildings and points of interest will be decorated.

NFCCS 'Frolic' Set For Mid-January

A Field House with all the trappings of winter will be the site of the "Jack Frost Frolic," the annual dance sponsored by the Villanova chapter, National Federation of Catholic College Students, January 11, 1952.

Tickets for the first social event scheduled for the new year went on sale today. LaRoy Kendall, general chairman of the dance, announced that the price of admission is $1.50 per couple.

Dancing from 9 to 1

The Villanovans, college dance band, have been contracted for the evening to play between 9:00 P.M. and 1:00 A.M., said Kendall. Courtney Fleming, NFCCS band chairman, handled the arrangements. Dress will be informal.

Assisting Kendall in planning the mid-winter affair is Ed Kearney; Chick Heinbolt is in charge of refreshments.

Christmas Blessings . . .

With this, the last issue before the Christmas vacation, the editors and staff of the Villanovan wish to send a twofold greeting.

To the faculty, students, and friends of Villanova we extend our most sincere wishes for a blessed and merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

In these troubled times especially, the true meaning of Christmas is brought home to us with more force than usual. During these few weeks the prevailing spirit of peace and good will makes us realize more deeply the pitiful lack of it during the other eleven months.

And we realize that there is an answer to all the troubles afflicting the world today, for through the rampant commercialism of the modern Yule season the message of the Child Jesus once more gives us renewed hope.

So again, Merry Christmas, and may the bright star of that first Christmas lead you ever closer to Christ during the coming year.

The other half of our greetings is a little out of the spirit of things, and takes the form of caustic comment and Yuletide Jeers

From a discussion by Red Smith of the Daily Princetonian's comment on the alleged attempt to "Get Kazmaier" in the Dartmouth game:

"Chances are we shall not achieve the millenium until the use of marijuana and typewriters has been stamped out among undergraduates. Pending that happy day, the effuvium of juvenile journalists should be confined strictly to the campus."

—(Views of Sport, December 4, 1951)

Well, well. One can never tell these days what sort of hysteria is likely to appear in a sports column. We ask you: "Was Mr. Smith frothing at the mouth when his flashing fingernails hit the keys to type out these words?" (We ask this realizing full well that marijuana is an undergraduate addiction, far, far below the stature of a Smith.)

Was there "dirty football" in the Princeton-Dartmouth game? We do not know, and we choose (unlike Mr. Smith) to remain within our province. Whether there was or not, one thing is certain: Red Smith's ideas (???) proved nothing, and indicated little, except that Red Smith will listen to no tales of "dirty football," especially from under — (How humiliating the word suddenly seems!) graduate journalists.

Mr. Smith, however, granting his point all possible justice and consideration, hesitates not at all to employ "dirty journalism" to establish it. Perhaps this is indicative of something he missed in his days as an undergraduate non-journalist. (No, no, such an eminent man never could have come from our marijuana-smoking ranks!)

One might venture to sum up: Some people think clearly, and some people think clearly about sports. And yet a problem remains: How does Mr. Smith think?

Past Christmases Should Model for This Year's

Little Tykes Enjoy Gay Feast Blythely Making Others Happy

By Otto Fohl

Christmas carols in the air, holly decorated thoroughfares, the jingle of a bell by the corner Santa Claus, and the hustle and bustle of Christmas shoppers—all these are significant of the approach of the greatest holiday of the year, Christmas.

As we look forward to our holiday recess, we recall those happy memories of our childhood Christmases, that we cherish so dearly.

First Glimpse

Remember the first glimpse you caught of ole St. Nick? It probably was in the local department store, where on a makeshift throne, a jolly elderly man with a ersatz white beard and attired in a moth ridden red velvet suit, listened to the joyful requests of the excited youngsters. It was on his lap, with a quiver in your voice and a watchful eye on your parents, that you asked for your heart's desires.

Being told by Santa, that certain conditions were to be fulfilled in order to merit those prize possessions, you took the guise of an angelic cherub until that long awaited day was to arrive. More cereal was consumed and more soap used in those days that followed than in all the months gone by. No sir, you weren't taking any chances of being forgotten on Christmas eve.

Finally Morning

Finally, after years and years, (as it seemed), the night of nights, Christmas eve, was at hand. With anxiety and hope that you might not be forgotten, you scurried off to bed in hope that the night would pass by quickly. But the magic of sleep couldn't work its wonders for this was the longest night of the year.

Weariness finally conquered over all and tired little bodies were found to be sound asleep. At the break of dawn, you scampered downstairs. In the living room, under a gaily decorated tree, you found presents galore. Your face all aglow from complete happiness, you found that all your dreams had come true.

This indeed was your world of joy, this was your happiest day of the year. Little did one realize then, that on this day of joy, the importance of receiving should have been superceded by that of giving—giving to the Christ Child, whose birthday you were celebrating.

Spread Same Joy

But sad to say, in a few days, those precious gifts that you so earnestly prayed for, were scattered and broken. The spirit of Christmas which you held in your heart was lessened, not to return for another year.

Happy days weren't they? Those childhood memories will always be revered because of the pleasure they gave us. In a few days, we will be reunited with our families for the holidays. Let us spread that same joy and happiness to our parents and loved ones, that was afforded us when we were young. With joy and good will in our hearts we will always have a Merry Christmas.

REMEMBER

This Year Celebrate Christ's Death With Sincere Wishes And Gifts

By Jim Griffin

"Chestnuts roasting on an open fire. . . ."

Lots of people have lots of ideas about Christmas: What it is, what it does, what it means. Most Americans think of trees, spun round and round with multi-colored lights, of boxes, stacked and piled, and wrapped in green and silver foil.

They think of children, nieces, nephews, neighbors—they think of electric trains and teddy bears. They think of the holiday gatherings with family and friends, of a pleasant dinner . . . and afterwards a pipeful or two. For everybody is happy around Christmas, and everything is especially enjoyable.

Not Excepted

And Christmas, 1951, will be no exception. In many homes there will be an empty place at the table to dampen the joy, but there will still be joy, as there must be: it's the American way.

What a shallow-minded land we live in!

Christmas was before America, and will be long after the American way has sunk beneath the ruins of five later and greater civilizations. And Americans, for some strange reason, choose to hide it in sparkling lights and dazzling wrappings, and to celebrate it for what we have made it.

Choose Wrong Factor

Christmas is Christ's birthday, the anniversary of the day when the first step was made on earth towards the reinstatement of humanity with God. And we choose to celebrate it as the day when Johnny gets the record player he had wanted so long, when Rosemary gets her new fur coat.

We choose to de-emphasize the important factor, the reason why.

The picture may be overdrawn. Millions of devout Americans genuinely enjoy Christmas for, and because of, what it is. They exchange gifts among themselves as a means of expressing the joy they deeply and sincerely feel. They lay special emphasis on making children happy, fully aware that Christmas was the first day of Christ on earth, and that he spent it as a baby.

Remember Others

They remember those less fortunate than themselves, and through their charity bring gifts to Christ, through His least ones. They never become confused: They seek the new-born King, and the glitter of street lights will not hide the star.

Let us hope the picture is grossly overdrawn, that not a comparative few, but the vast multitude of Americans will discern the elementals through the roar and glitter of commercialism. And let us be quite sure of our hope—at least in the daze of our individual selves.

AT LAST

Homeward Trip Tries Poor Stude's Mind: How To Go Faster Sooner

By Joe Mascuch

In just about three more days, Christmas vacation will be upon me and my room mate can stop cutting notches in the window sill with his teeth. I wouldn't say that he has looked forward to this vacation, but he never unpacked after Thanksgiving.

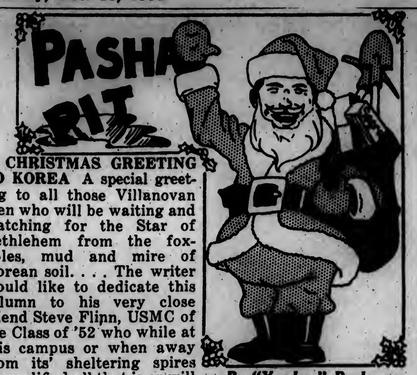
Come to think of it, the only time he looked happy these past few weeks was the day his orphan took him to see Santa. Yes, it will soon be time to dust off the text books and put them in the closet for safe keeping over the holidays, along with my "gooseneck lamp."

Nick's Loss Our Gain

I can just see us on Thursday night, him knawing his last notch and me tossing my laundry into a suitcase. We shall pack everything. Gordon Nick's loss will be our gain.

Friday will be the biggest hand-shaking day since class elections, as Villanovan bids farewell to Villanova. My Roomie and I will get to see them all leave, too. We have six classes and "twice the number of times the class meets a week, minus one" cuts. We would have stuck around for chow anyway, so it really doesn't matter.

Green Feast



Immediately after our feast in the "green room" there will be the heavy sloshings of our white bucks across the campus, headed for the Paoli Local, which will have just left. (We should have little trouble making the station this year, with the snow fences absent. I'm expecting a blizzard December 15th.) This will leave my roommate and I an hour or so to "understand" each other more fully and add, in that manner, to our college life.

Penn station will be a mad house. The place will be crammed with human beings who work in Philly, read the P.T.C. ads and still travel by Penn. R. R. Roomie and I shall wait on the lower level, which is much less crowded, while our train leaves from the upper level. (Our suitcases will have grown heavier by now and we shall curse taking along the sugar shakers from the chow hall.

Seat Search

With grim determination we shall board the New York bound train and fight our way from car to car in search of seats, ending up in the last car, which will not have left the Broad Street Station.

In keeping with our tradition of three years, we shall stand in the vestibule, sway from side to side, and as the sun slowly sets over Pennsylvania, bid farewell to college for the next twenty-one days. (Not that I've counted them.) We shall spend those twenty-one days getting into shape for our return trip.

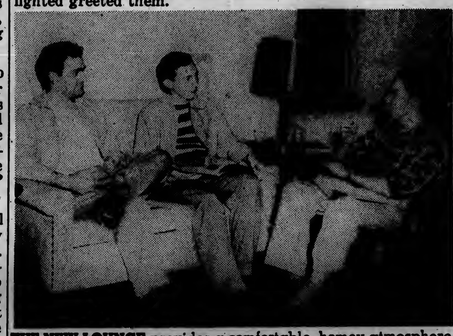
By "Yankee" Pasha

A CHRISTMAS GREETING TO KOREA A special greeting to all those Villanovan men who will be waiting and watching for the Star of Bethlehem from the foxholes, mud and mire of Korean soil. . . . The writer would like to dedicate this column to his very close friend Steve Flinn, USMC of the Class of '52 who while at this campus or when away from its' sheltering spires exemplified all that is or will ever be desired of a Villanova man. . . . A Happy Christmas and a very Happy New Year to you and your buddies, Steve, and may next year find you home once again among those who love you and whom you love.

ST. JOHN JOLLITY: A very warm and happy Christmas to the little tykes of St. John's Orphanage from all their big brothers of Villanova. . . . May God's blessing be yours through this Yuletide Season and may your years be filled with the warmth and goodness which welcomes you at the birth of Christ. . . . A special thanks to all the men of Villanova who helped make the Yuletide dreams of the Johnnies come true. . . . YOU DIDN'T FORGET TO HELP A CHILD.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE: A sincere holiday greeting to all of the surrounding sites who have put up with the wordy phrases which have been issued forth from this typewriter. . . . Santy, to Rosemont with its strict nine o'clock permission, please bring about a quick revision. . . . And to Immaculata, the school in the sticks, give it a fast-moving subway and a new bag of tricks. . . . As far as Chestnut Hill is concerned Santy ,we have a new poem, after we write it we'll all head for home. . . . T'was the night before Christmas at Chestnut Hill. . . . Not a creature was stirring —There never is!

SPECIAL GIFTS TO VILLANOVANS: The Pie Shoppe gave a puzzle gift to all freshmen on campus. . . . It took the Seniors four years to figure their way out of this Main Line eatery. . . . Now that the maze has finally been solved and the solution handed down to the yearlings, the Pie-Shoppe has devised a new labyrinth to the already confusing life of a Frosh by adding to outlandish structures to the edifice. . . . What we can't fathom is — Are they endeavoring to make it more difficult to enter or to leave the College Store?



GOODBYE '51, WELCOME '52: In this topsy-turvy world, it is difficult for anyone to predict what is to come about in the year that lies ahead. However, we know that we are armed with two very important weapons no matter what crisis might possibly arise. . . . These are our American heritage and our Catholic faith. . . . Keeping this in mind we are bound to make a success of what ever fate may prove to be ours. . . . Leaving you with this thought. . . . May I wish you all a very MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR.

Re-Opened Austin Lounge Fills Need Of Residents

Father Curran Lists Rules For Evening Loungers

Recently a completely refurnished Students Lounge was re-opened in Austin Hall. A few curious resident students, on their way to the pie shoppe after evening chapel, saw lights on in the lounge. They peered in the windows, then cautiously opened the door and walked in.

What they saw when they entered was something resident students have long hoped for, but never thought would come about. A lounge as completely neat, clean and well-lighted as the old lounge was unruly, unkempt and poorly lighted greeted them.

THE NEW LOUNGE provides a comfortable, homey atmosphere in which the residen students can spend their leisure time. Easy chairs and recreational facilities make it one of the most popular campus spots.

Father Curran Responsible

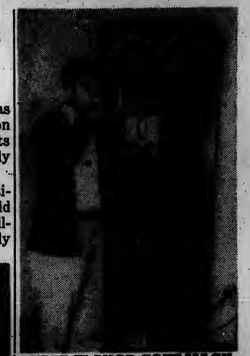
Rev. John Curran, O.S.A., Procurator of the College, is the man primarily responsible for the renovated lounge, as well as for other campus improvements this fall.

Father Curran commented last week that the old lounge had been badly abused by the students. Furniture had been ripped and otherwise destroyed, he pointed out, adding that the daily "trash collection" contributed by dayhops' lunch remains, added nothing to the atmosphere of the lounge.

Up to Students

"Any abuse of the lounge or its contents," Father Curran stated, "will result in its being closed. It's up to the students to keep it opened."

The Procurator pointed out that five rules have been set by the college authorities regarding the lounge. The rules mentioned by Father Curran are:



1) Use pertains to Resident Students only.

2) Rooms will be open from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. excepting Saturdays and Sundays. The rooms will be open from 1 p.m. until 11 p.m. on both Saturdays and Sundays.

3) Students may entertain friends and relatives in the lounge whenever it is open.

4) No furniture is to be moved about or transported within the rooms or outside the room in which it is located.

5) Whatsoever deliberate destructions of furnishings occurs will be severely punished. The students have been given the facilities of these rooms to relax and to entertain in a gentlemanly fashion.

THREE-FLAVOR COKE MACHINE is one of the main attractions in the television room

Please do not abuse the desire of the college to afford students a suitable and comfortable lounge.

The large lounge room has been refurnished with simulated leather reading chairs, reading lamps, several leather-type sofas, captains chairs and tables.

Sandwich Machine on Way

A smaller room at the rear of the lounge now contains the television set. In addition, cigarette and soft drink vending machines are now located in this room. Father Curran remarked in the interview that "candy and hot sandwich machines are now in transit" for placing in the lounge. Also, the table tennis table is located in this room.

A large drapery has been placed in the front of the lounge. Father Curran said that a mural of sporting events will be hung on the back wall of the lounge. It will be composed of photographs of baseball, football, basketball, and track events at Villanova.

Residents Jam Lounge

The improved lounge took short time to become a favorite with the resident students. It had been opened but a few days before the resident clientele had it jammed.

From the viewpoint of the resident students, the lounge is probably the most important renovation of the many that have been accomplished by the college authorities this fall.

Beta Gamma Debaters Split In Meets With Army, Temple

Beta Gamma Debating Society of Villanova dropped a one point decision to West Point November 17 when they debated the question: Resolved: The Federal government should adopt a permanent program of wage and price controls. Villanova's debators took the affirmative in this discussion.

This debate was unique in that it inaugurated the society's new policy of obtaining judges from among its members. Three men have been trained for this position and must give a critique of any debate they judge with reasons for their decisions.

On December 1, Charles Brown and Mark McCormick represented the society in a tournament at Temple University and won 3 out of 4 of their contests. Eugene Kennedy, another Beta Gamma member, aided in the judging at the tournament.

65 to Take Draft Test Thursday

Approximately 65 Villanova students will take the second Selective Service Qualification Test this Thursday morning in the C&F auditorium.

This is a great decrease from last year when almost 500 students signed up for it.

Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., Dean of the College, expressed a hope that many more will take it when it is given again in the spring. "These tests are not easy," he adds. "Last year a great number throughout the country failed."

The outcome of the tests determine a student's standing in the draft, and his chances of continuing in college.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 30 ... THE SQUIRREL

This nimble-minded nutcracker almost tumbled for those tricky cigarette mildness tests. But he worked himself out of a tight spot when he suddenly realized that cigarette mildness just can't be judged by a mere puff or one single sniff. Smokers everywhere have reached this conclusion—there's just one real way to prove the flavor and mildness of a cigarette.

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. No snap judgments. Once you've enjoyed Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

Wildcats To Play In Sugar Bowl Dec. 28; Conquer St. Francis, 94-86, At Palestra

Schafer Taps in 25 As Teams Set High Score Record

By Bud Russo

In their first Palestra appearance this year Villanova took a 94-86 decision from St. Francis of Loretto, Pa.

This combined total of 180 points was a "record" and was helped by means of a seventeen minute first quarter, due to mechanical failure of the official clocks.

Two Freshmen Outstanding

The outstanding players on the floor were two freshmen, one, 6 foot 2 Bob Schaffer, who led Villanova with 25 points, and the other, 6 foot 5 center of St. Francis, Maurice Stokes who not only scored 32 points, but took charge of both backboards admirably well. Had St. Francis been more accurate, they might have scored an upset.

Frank's Use Zone Defense

The first quarter finally came to an end with the Wildcat's in front 36-30. St. Francis used a zone defense which cut down the effectiveness of Coach Severance's weave tactics.

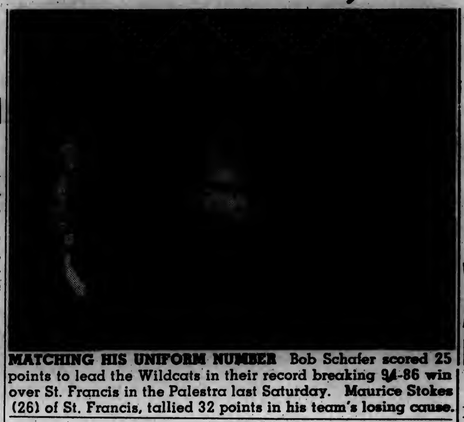
However, Mooney hit 5 times from the outside to keep the 'Cat's ahead. In the middle of the second quarter the Frank's took a 46-45 lead. Villanova held on and then went ahead 52-49 as the half ended.

In the second half Villanova was never headed, by the end of the third quarter they led 71-65. In the final quarter the Main Liner's kept their edge and won handily 94-86.



Low for Hennessey

One of the evening's surprises, along with the seventeen minute first quarter, was the seven points that Larry Hennessey came through with. This was the lowest total for a game that the quiet Weschesterite has had since he was shut out at Princeton last February.

MATCHING HIS UNIFORM NUMBER Bob Schafer scored 25 points to lead the Wildcats in their record breaking 94-86 win over St. Francis in the Palestra last Saturday. Maurice Stokes (26) of St. Francis, tallied 32 points in his team's losing cause.

Honors Heaped On Eleven In Post-Season Selections

By Harry Anger

Football is all over for another year, and most of us are beginning to concentrate on the Basketball team; but, before we forget, let's look back over that sturdy bunch of Wildcats who did a fine job this past fall.

One of the brightest young stars to appear in the East in quite a few years was Villanova's Ben Addiego. This flashy sophomore was an offensive stalwart both in the air and on the ground.

He was honored twice by the Maxwell Club as the outstanding back of the week. His stellar play won him an honorable mention on the Colliers All-East team, and a starting berth on the All-Catholic All-American team.

DeRose Makes Collier's Team

The big guy from Stone Harbor, New Jersey, Joe DeRose, was another standout in the Wildcat lineup thrcughout the season. Joe's savage blocking won him the center's job on the Colliers All-East squad.

Joe Rilo, Bill Hegarty, and Bobby Haner all received honorable mentions from the football coaches who made the selections.

Le Moyne, Mount Saint Mary's, Iona To Be Met in Holiday Encounters

By Carl Valenti

This Saturday, December 15, Coach Al Severence and his Villanova hoopsters will trek to the Palestra again to meet the Dolphins of LeMoyne College. The contest commences at 7:30 p.m. and Penn will oppose Swarthmore in the final.

The boys from Syracuse should prove to be a formidable rival, for only last Wednesday they lost to powerful Seton Hall by a scant seven points.

Led by Dick Shea

Coach Tom Niland's charges will be led into action by Dick Shea, the new offensive star.

Fred Sheridan, 6'7" is the big man of the squad. Other notable performers are co-captains Hand and Jenkins assisted by Ray Staeker and Fred Byers. Though LeMoyne's school history is short indeed, the Dolphins are rapidly coming into their own in the basketball world. This may be their season to fully blossom out.

The following Wednesday, December 19, the Mountaineers of Mount St. Mary's make their annual descent from the hills of Emmitsburg, Md., to take on our Wildcats in the Field House. Their new coach, Bill Clarke, has a strenuous rebuilding task since the team was hard hit by graduation and withdrawals.

Ryan May be Ace

The sole returning starter is Ted Kachnowski, a dependable scorer and an excellent floor man. However, 6'5" center, Jerry Ryan, might very well become the offensive ace of the Blue and White.

The starting five, which will average over six feet, is completed by Jack Rochford, 6'4", Jack Mazoureux, 6', and Ned Powers, 6'2". Jim McKeon, back after a year's absence, is also expected to see plenty of action as is Jack Denman.

Gaels Could Prove Tough

Villanova's first "away" game of the season will be held Saturday, December 22. At that time the Mainliners travel to New Rochelle, N. Y., where they will meet the Iona College. The Gaels, with a number of returning lettermen, figure to be a tough hurdle along the track of success for the Severencemen.

Meet St. Louis In 1st Game; Dwyer Out Of Mile Run

By Joe Corcoran

The Villanova court squad, for the second time in three years, journeys to New Orleans during the last week of this month in another attempt to annex the Sugar Bowl tourney's basketball crown.

All-American Paul Arizin, and his mates displayed the Mainline colors down there in 1949, only to drop a pair of tight decisions to Southeastern conference members, Kentucky and Tulane, on consecutive nights.

Varsity Defeats Alumni, 66-61, Raiken Nets 14

Last Thursday night at the Field House Villanova won its second game of the season by a 66-61 margin over a star-studded Alumni five. Larry Hennessey led the way for the victors as he scored 12 points.

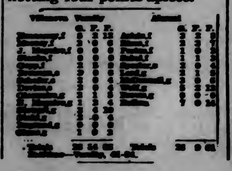
Shy Raiken was high man for the evening, however, as he scored seven field goals for a total of 14 points.

Villanova led 7-11 at the end of the first quarter and was never headed. They were sparked through most of the second quarter by the fine play of Benny Stewart.

Hennessey On Bench

In that stanza Coach Al Severence used his entire first team with the exception of Larry Hennessey. The reason was probably to see how the team would work without Larry, but Ben Stewart and Nick Maguire took up the slack very well.

The Alumni looked very good, and with a little more practice could have made it a rough evening for the 1951 edition of the Wildcats. The outside shooting was very good with Leo Wolf, Joe Lord and Art Specter all hitting on long set shots.



Arizin Used Sparingly

Paul Arizin, although he was used sparingly, nevertheless impressed everybody with his great rebounding and the little shooting he did.

The play of Maje McDonnell had the crowd laughing throughout the entire game. In the fourth quarter Maje was at his best. In that period the whole Alumni quintet joined in the horse-play. Little Maje led the way with his fancy ball-handling, and his stiff-legged dribbling.

Frosh Used

Al Severance still was experimenting with his lineup and again was giving the freshmen a good chance to make a showing in college ball. Schafer and Devine again saw considerable service, both netting four points apiece.

An unfortunate note was sounded for Villanova in the Sugar Bowl when it was announced that the invitation extended to Fred Dwyer to compete in the mile run at the Bowl's track met would have to be passed up.

The same knee and leg ailment that sidelined the indoor-outdoor mile champion during the second half of the cross-country season has not sufficiently healed and Fred will have to sit this meet out.

Vieing for the hardwood laurels with Al Severance's quintet, will be the 1951 N.C.A.A. tournament winners of Kentucky, Brigham Young's N.I.T. champs, and the St. Louis Billikens, who met defeat in last year's Invitation meet at the hands of the Utah Mormon school.

'Cats Meet St. Louis

The drawings, announced last week, match the 'Cats with St. Louis and B.Y. against Kentucky. The following night, on the 29th, the winners will exchange baskets for the title after the other pair has settled the 3rd place squabble.

Bob Haner To Captain 1952 Gridiron Forces

Bobby Haner, was elected captain of the 1952 football team, by a vote held last week of the returning letterman for next season. He was the choice over the seven other eligible juniors.

This season Bob accounted for 42 points and scored all of Villanova's points at the Penn State game.

He was chosen for the AP all-Pennsylvania team, and got honorable mention on the Collier's all-East eleven.

Bobby is a Junior in the School of Education and comes from Louisville, Kentucky. He replaces co-captains Joe Rilo and the late Nick Liotta.

North-South Game Bid Accepted by Joe Rilo

Joe Rilo, co-captain of the 1951 football team, has accepted an invitation to play in the annual North-South football game on Christmas Night. The game will be played in the Orange Bowl in Miami.

The last time a Villanova player was in this game was back in 1949 when Ralph Pasquarello won the Most Valuable Award for his services in the yearly fracas.

SPORTS CHATTER

Sugar Bowl Prospects

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

The football season, like the cliche Arab has folded its tent and sneaked away, only to leave basketball the center stage, or to be technical, the center court.

Villanova has already played three games with teams of varying ability and have three more and the Sugar Bowl awaiting them before the Christmas vacation ends. By that time it should be clear just how the '51 campaign will turn out, barring upsets.

As is the usual affliction, the pre-season dopesters got out their yearly scratch sheets, much to the amusement of the fans.

Cohane Tries Again

Tim Cohane, probably following editor's orders, made his contribution and it deserves some kind of notice. Mr. Cohane believes that Villanova will end the season as the eighteenth team in the nation. It might be interesting to note that in his selections last year Timothy the Sorcerer made no mention at all of Villanova.

If we could come from nowhere to two post-season tournaments last year our chances this year should be much better.

Al Severance, who has an uncanny sixth sense in the acquisition of ball players, has come up with a team this year that must please the old Squire of Berwyn no end. The entire squad is back from last year plus last year's freshman squad and five yearlings, who are showing themselves to good use, so far.

Freshmen Given a Chance

Severance ,in three games to date has been using his freshmen over the regulars, and is starting to cause some speculation. Two in particular, Jack Devine and Bob Schafer, have played in every game.

Schafer caused quite a bit of excitement in the Palestra last Saturday night in that hopped-up point fest against St. Francis of Loretta. The 6-2 frosh from Philadelphia's Roman Catholic High School dumped in 25 points for the evening.

The other member of the freshman one-two punch is Jack Devine. Jack is also a local boy, hailing from West Catholic. There are some people who claim that Devine and Schafer will become another Hennessey-Glassmire combo, but they can't agree which will be which.

Turning from the players to the schedule we see that three "breathers" have been inserted in the schedule before the Sugar Bowl tournament at the end of the month. Mt. St. Mary's and Iona may not be classified the Kentuckies of the North but still they aren't too easy.

We played Saint Francis last Saturday with the same thought and they were able to score 86 points from Villanova. The elongated first half might be some excuse but it can't explain every thing.

In LeMoyne, though, the story is a little different. This Jesuit learning establishment, situated in Syracuse, is only five years old and has had little time to build up an athletic reputation. However, LeMoyne played Seton Hall awhile back and the Hall with "Bigger and Better" Walter Dukes included, were only able to beat them by seven points, 55-48.

The Boston College football fiasco is still far too fresh in our memories to go around ruling out small schools as breathers. If the team has a 6-0 record when they go to New Orleans they should be quite thankful.

New Orleans Hopes

In the Sugar Bowl, our drawing of St. Louis was probably a good thing, since Kentucky is a team you would hardly like to meet at any time. Brilliant Bill Spivey has had an operation lately and it is still a question whether or not he will be able to lend his service to Adolph Rupp's "poor picked-on boys." With all respects to Bill we hope he isn't ready to play.

The mistake that many people make about the St. Louis Billikens is that their Golden Age passed when Easy Ed Macauley transferred to the Boston Celtics. Coach Ed Hickey does not do too much propaganding but word reaching this desk is that the Billikens are good, very good, and capable of giving anyone a lot of trouble.

Looking optimistically farther into the future of the New Orleans fracas we see the Mormons of Brigham Young. Those fine disciples of polygamy's patron saint are currently touring the East in preparation for their Christmas vacation. They stopped off at Ned Irish's temple of spotless sportsmanship—Madison Square Garden—to engage the Indians of St. John's. The result was disastrous for the visitors as they went down to defeat by fourteen points. Last Saturday night, the Mormons defeated Niagara in Buffalo, 53-48.

Same Old Knee

Going from basketball to track at the Sugar Bowl our luck has seemed to worsen. Fred Dwyer has received an invitation from the Sugar Bowl committee to compete in the mile run at their Track Carnival, but he had to decline. The same knee and leg injury that had pestered him for some time has not healed sufficiently.

By the way, why didn't the committee invite John Joe Barry, to their cinder feast? Barry, by virtue of his Olympic ventures would be a drawing card down at New Orleans. Especially when Dwyer had to scratch from the meet they could have given the invitation to another Villanova man.

Anyway we can worry about all these things later, right now, let's all have a Merry Christmas.

A League

Last years champions, the Alumni Toppers, started off their season by trouncing Good Counsel 60-18. They were led by Decker and O'Hearn who had 17 and 14 respectively. The Cats also kept their slate clean by edging the Troopers 33-31. Mayok had 18 for the winners.

Dom's Natiello Scores

The Doms won their opening game the hard way. Fred Hiegle fouled out of the regulation contest leaving the Doms with only four men. But when the game went into sudden death overtime Bob Natiello scored the most important of his 22 points to take the win for the Doms. Raab had 14 for the losers.

The Bullets beat the Shamrocks 54-38 as Bergen and Begley got 25 between them. Begley dropped in 16 for the Shamrocks.

B League

The Bombers stopped the Rumdums 31-26, thanks mainly to the 16 point output of McCune. The Mets continued their winning ways in swamping the Barnacles 76-36. In two games the Mets have averaged 77.5 points to their opponents 36. Fleming, Baum, and McMahon had 19, 18, and 18 in the rout.

Mendelcases Beat Engineers

The Mendelcases beat the Engineers 40-27 as Gus Healy got 13 for the winners. The Hustlers, with four men scoring in double figures, romped over the Characters 68-44.

Barracks League

The Shamrocks topped the Green Horns 52-30 as McDonald and Mulcahy got 30 points between them. However, Dink of the losers was high man with 17. The King Pins couldn't have made it any closer when they beat the Millers 42-41. Simonic had 17 for the Millers.

Loggi High Schorer

The Redmen stopped the Bombers 39-26, but Loggi of the losers was high with 10 points. The Jersey Jets stayed in first place by dropping the Blue Eagles 45-30, Heaman and Cahill scored 35 of the winners total.

National League

The T-Squares won over the Vandals 52-39, with Sproule tossing in 23 for the victors. Young had 17 for the Vandals. The Viz-Eds playing two games on successive days were just barely beaten out by the Rouals 53-52 as Borkowski got 20 for the Royals.

Viz-Eds Set Record

However, the next day they came back with a vengence and set an I-M record in romping over the Spiders 85-24. Doyle had 36 and Florio and Ranft got 17 apiece.

American League

The Darts beat the Martyrs 59-32, as Matecki, Becotte, and Ricciani got 23, 14 and 13 points, respectfully, for the victors. Three of the Martyrs starting five fouled out. The Aces led by Donato and Cimino edged the Rum Runners 43-39.

Belleville Wins Turkey Trot

Bill Belleville was the individual winner and Barracks 2 took team laurels in the first annual Turkey Trot. The first five finishers were: 1, Belleville; 2, Higgins; 3, Trunzo; 4, Nugent; 5, Berch. The team standings were: Barracks 2, 33; Mendel 48; Alumni 59.

Eleven Honored

Philadelphia's own Joe Fargalli and the Pride of Louisville, Bobby Haner, were both named to the Associated Press All-Pennsylvania team.

Liotta Named All-American

The selection of the late Nick Liotta to the Look Magazine All-American team made him the first Villanovan to receive such an award in thirteen years. Nick was also named by the U.P. and Colliers to the All-East team.

He had accepted a bid to play in the annual Shrine East-West game on New Year's Day. He was truly a fine gentleman and we can think of no one more deserving of the honors he received.

John Joe Barry Tenth, Team 22nd, In I.C.4A Jaunt

By Jim Guthrie

The Villanova College cross-country team concluded its 1951 season with its performance in the forty-third annual IC4A championship held at Van Cortlandt Park in New York.

Run Without Dwyer

Villanova, led by John Joe Barry, entered the meet without the services of Fred Dwyer, who was sidelined with pulled tendions in his leg. This loss hampered the team, which normally would have finished fifth or sixth, but had to be satisfied with twenty-second place in a field of forty-one colleges.

Barry seemed to be in contention for the individual honors up to the four mile mark. It was here that Shea of Army challenged John Joe for the lead, and the ensuing mile was too much of a strain on the slim Irishman, who consequently had to settle for tenth position.

Bernie Finan running his best race of the season scored second for Villanova.

LOWLY PLEDGES of the "illustrious Delta Pi Epsilon Fraternity" pose in their initiation regalia during the last week of dogging prior to their formal acceptance into the fraternity.

Those strange looking creatures walking around campus this past week wearing straw hats, spats, canes and signs were only pledges for the Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity.

Ted Pryzbylowski, chairman of the initiation committee told the pledges at a meeting held last Tuesday night that the final touches of "hell week" would be added Saturday afternoon when all the pledges would gather at the square in the center of city hall. He also told the pledges that the initiation this year would be much different from those of previous years.

About fifty students were chosen as pledges. Of these, a select few will become full-fledged brothers in the fraternity. The finale of the week of initiation will be tonight, when there will be a formal swearing in of the remaining pledges. Prizes will be awarded to the pledge having the best paddle.

On Tuesday night at the meeting of the regulars, orders were taken for fraternity pins. The pins this year will be of a new design and will cost $8.50. ,

Preparation of Winter Lynx Begun

The Lynx, campus literary magazine, began preparation today for the Winter issue. Editor Bob Quinn requested that all potential contributors contact him before Friday.

So as not to interfere with final exams, the final deadline for all manuscripts will be immediately following the Christmas vacation. All contributions should be typed double space on one side of the page.

Circulation Manager Kevin McCrane announced that the policy of offering the Lynx to the students on a per copy basis, successfully inaugurated with the latest issue, will be continued. Furthermore, subscriptions will be offered throughout the year at the usual rate, running for any four consecutive issues.

Consuls Visit Spanish Club

Doctor Manuel E. Moreno, consul from Chile, was the main speaker at the Spanish Club's annual Spanish Night, held last Thursday in the C&F Auditorium.

The large audience included diplomatic representatives from most of the Spanish-speaking countries. Among the distinguished guests were: Don Louis Villaba, consul from Spain; Don Carlos A. Moncayo, consul from Colombia; Don Guillermo Rodil, consul from Venezuela; and Don Francisco Serrano, consul from Costa Rica.

De Tal Arbol (A Chip Off The Old Block), a play written and produced by Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., moderator, was the feature of the second part of the night. Priscilla Navarro and Marsal Bruma played the leading roles in the comedy. They were supported by Jose Jimenez, Elisabeth Tarleton, and Marion Daly.

The night was divided into two parts. The first was featured by Dr. Moreno's speech and included some selections on the piano by Theodore Garcia, and a variety of songs by the Spanish Glee Club. Tom Terranova and William Houston entertained with the song "Preguntarle a las Estrellas".

Frank Cauz, president of the Club, acted as master of ceremonies. Refreshments were served to all between the two parts of the night.

Exams Are 13 Days Away; Retreat Is Moved To Easter

Christmas vacation is a shallow six days in the past, but already study-minded Villanovans are counting the ninety-one days remaining until the Easter recess commences April 9.

Things aren't that bad fellows! A brief respite is in the offing—in only twenty days! It's the annual break for second semester registration, scheduled to begin this year on Monday, January 28.

The ever-popular final examinations have been set for the week of January 21-26 inclusive; registration for the next semester follows right on the tail of exams, beginning on Monday, the 28th. Second semester classes will commence on Monday, February 4.

Sr. Class Meeting Date Is Changed

Because of a conflict in schedule with the Villanova Forum Thuresday night, the Senior Class meeting will not be held on that night, as was announced in the last issue of this paper.

Senior Class president Phil Brennan has not as yet chosen an alternate date, but intends to call the meeting during the week immediately preceding final examinations.

At the class meeting final arrangements for the Senior Weekend, February 21-24, will be announced.

Retreat Changed

Missing from this year's "between-terms" schedule is the annual four-day retreat. The retreat has been moved back to the first four days of Holy Week this year, directly preceding the Easter recess.

After the classes get under way for the second semester, the first break will come the week-end of February 22-23-24. Friday, the 22nd, is Washington's Birthday and a school holiday—thus the three day weekend.

Approximately a month following this brief break will come the mid-term, listed for Saturday, March 29.

The third in the current series of Villanova Forum lectures will be presented Thursday night, January 10 in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium as William Henry Chamberlin, world traveler, newspaper correspondent, editor and author delivers his address on "How We Lost the Peace." The program will start at 8:30 p.m.

Mr. Chamberlin's long career as a writer and observer includes a stint as editorial contributor to "Wall Street Journal," and as contributing editor of the "New Leader." As foreign correspondent for the "Christian Science Monitor," he has seen service in the Soviet Union, France and the Far East.

Thursday's appearance on the Main Line will mark a homecoming day for Mr. Chamberlin. Born in Brooklyn, he received his early education at the Penn Charter School in Philadelphia and went on to graduate from Haverford College as Bachelor of Arts in 1917. The honorary degree of Doctor of Letters was conferred upon him by his alma mater in 1943; he received a Doctor of Law Degree from Middlebury College in 1948.

In addition to his work with Philadelphia and New York newspapers, Mr. Chamberlin has contributed to the "Manchester Guardian," "Harper's," "Atlantic Monthly," "The American Mercury," "The Sign," and the "Russian Review."

As a serious student of world affairs, he is the author of "Russia's Iron Age," "The Russian Revolution," "Japan Over Asia," "The World's Iron Age," "The Russian Enigma: An Interpretation," "The European Cockpit," and his latest book, "America's Second Crusade."

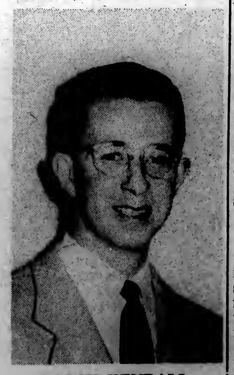
Deadline For Aptitude Test This Thursday

The National Insurance Aptitude Examination, a free test to determine a prospective salesman's ability for marketing intangibles, will be held on campus Wednesday, January 16, according to George A. Harris, college placement director.

Deadline for filing application for the exam is this Thursday, January 10. All applicants must register with Mr. Harris in the placement office, Room 102, Mendel.

Available to All Seniors



The Insurance Aptitude exam, explains the placement director, is recognized by all insurance companies as an accurate indication of a prospective employee's success in the insurance selling field. The test is available not only to business students, but to all seniors interested in taking advantage of the free service.

Time and Place To Be Set

Mr. Harris will announce the definite time and place for taking the exam in the next edition of this paper. Since he is allotted a limited number of examination copies, only those seniors who register by Thursday will be eligible to take the test.

Winter Motif Set For NFCCS Frolic

Final preparations are now being made by all committees for the Jack Frost Frolic, in anticipation of the event this Friday in the Field House, Chairman LaRoy Kendall announced today.

LAROY KENDALL Mister "Jack Frost"

Sponsored by the Campus Chapter of National Federation of Catholic College Students, the dance, according to Kendall, promises to be a social success for those who attend and a financial success for the NFCCS, in view of the advance ticket sale and the expected last-minute demand for tickets.

Winter Motif to Prevail

Kendall advised that admission to the affair is $1.50 per couple. Comment was refused regarding the decoration of the Field House for night, although it is known that a winter motif will be employed in keeping with name of the dance and the season.

Dancing 9 to 1

Kendall also stated that dress for the evening is informal, refreshments will be served, and that the Villanovans, college dance band, will supply music for dancing between 9:00 p.m. and 1:00 a.m. Tickets can be purchased in the Pie Shop or from any member of the campus NFCCS.

Committee chairmen working on the Jack Frost Frolic with Kendall are: Ed Kearney, assistant chairman; Courtney Fleming, band; Charles Heinbold, refreshments; Al Hevey, tickets; and Tom Stengele, publicity.

Seniors Must Register With Harris By Thurs.

Deadline for seniors to register with the college placement service has been set for Thursday, January 10, by George Harris, placement director. Registration forms are available in his office, Room 102, Mendel.

Fordham Hands Cats Third Defeat, 71-66, Before 6700

The Fordham Rams, using the same script that worked so well for them last year, defeated Villanova, 71-66, before a packed house of 6700 people at the Palestra last Saturday night.

The Wildcats, smarting from the Louisville debacle two days previous, led at the quarter and half but relinquished the lead to the refreshed Rams early in the third period.

From that point on the lead changed hands nine times before Fordham was able to get a substantial margin. With two and a half minutes left in the game, the Maroon forces spurted ahead on three bas-

WHERE IS GOD AT VILLANOVA?

Just about everyone has been taking literary pot shots lately at a Buckley named William for his analysis of Christianity's deemphasis at Yale. The little blue covered volume has appeared on students' bookshelves around the campus, and in the hubbub of intellectual discussion about how things are "at Yale and all those other schools" one important item is being glossed over very nochalantly.

At non-Catholic colleges such inattention to God, while deplorable, may be expected. But at Villanova, an institution dedicated to Catholic education, apathy towards religion is not only unexpected and deplorable, but outright sinful.

And although no one will become "heretical" enough to recognize it, this deemphasis of religion does exist at Villanova. Just because there is no benighted Mr. Buckley to tell us so does not mean that it is not present.

Yes, young man, it is possible, even easy to lose your soul at Villanova—and you don't have to close your eyes or bludgeon your conscience to do so.

In fact, as an ordinary young Catholic you probably have to exert just as much determination to keep your faith strong here at Villanova as you would at one of the "other places."

In the first place, all college students, no matter where they go to classes, are per se cynical and subject to universal disbelief. When a person learns that all the nice childhood legends about George Washington are false, it is extremely difficult for him not to take the attitude that "nothing is sacred."

And the one thing that is sacred, religion, is taken all too much for granted, not only at Villanova, but throughout the Church. We're all friends in this cross-topped tower, everyone belongs to the same club, and there is seldom an occasion for dissension.

While among these friends who profess the same doctrines, there is never an occasion to defend our beliefs. Hence, we don't defend them; never learn how; and when an occasion arises outside our bastion of Catholic Truth, our ignorance brings us doubt.

At least at Yale a sincere Catholic has the chance to strengthen his faith by constantly defending it.

Of course, the student is only partially to blame when he doesn't find the opportunities for strengthening his faith in the religion courses being taught him. But that is a weak excuse when you realize that the salvation of each man's soul is his own individual problem, one that he must overcome to bring his life to its proper end. On the road to heaven a crack-up is never the other guy's fault.

Sure. we've got God at Villanova, just as He is with the rest of the Catholic Church. All you have to do is find Him for yourself.

New Grad Director Spurs Local Groups

By George Ferguson

With the appointment of Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, O.S.A., as Director of Alumni Relations, Villanova has taken a big step forward in the organization and encouragement of local alumni organizations.

Since the 1890's, when the first local alumni club was founded in Philadelphia, more groups have gradually been formed throughout the country. Other early ones include New York, Connecticut, and Boston.

Real Encouragement

As the alumni began to settle in various locations, the school tried to encourage the formation of a local alumni organization. With formation of the post of Director of Alumni Relations, or Liaison Officer, the school has given a practical demonstration of encouragement for such activity.

Father O'Donnell, the new Liaison Officer between the school and the alumni, is a veteran of the Second World War. He served as a Naval chaplain with the Seabees, in the Central and Western Pacific. His duty stations included Hawaii, Guam, and the Marshall Islands. While at Guam, he was instrumental in forming a Villanova Club.

Alumni Enthusiastic

With regard to the new clubs, Father O'Donnell stated: "The main thing is that alumni in various sections of the country are enthusiastically getting together to organize local alumni chapters — that is a good, healthy sign, as far as the alumni in general are concerned."

The Director went on to say that "aside from the organization plans, where no alumni chapter exists at the present time, the alumni themselves, in general, are showing a decided interest in two drives which are for the benefit of Villanova College.

The first of these drives is the Loyalty Fund (Endowment Fund) Drive, and the other is the formation of a scholarship fund in memory of Rev. Francis Ludwig, O.S.A."

Works with Board

Already the Board of Governors of the National Alumni Council of Villanova College has approved and encouraged this scholarship fund. Each local club has a representative on the board.

As new branches in other locations are inaugurated, Father O'Donnell's duties are to contact them, and give them the help and encouragement which may be required. These duties do not conflict with those of Mr. George Harris, Alumni Secretary, and do not involve public relations.

Library Curator

In addition to his work as a faculty member and liaison officer, Father O'Donnell is the Curator of the college library and the Moderator of the Turf and Tinsel Club.

As Curator, Father keeps posted on the developments at Villanova; history, posters, awards, and other memorabilia. He is also responsible for keeping the library's seasonal displays up to date.

He proudly relates that among the various historical items preserved by Villanova College Library are General Sherman's uniform, and the front door key of the first building on the original campus.

Powerful New Defense Falling Flat When Used As Big Security Help

By Bob Bellarme

A skunk when provoked retaliates by exuding an odor which is disagreeable to most people. Venom from the bite of a poisonous snake has a deadly effect on an attacker.

Humans shy away from these two creatures. The skunk is left alone because of the uncomfortable effect he can produce. Poisonous snakes are avoided since their antagonism can prove to be killing.

Mouth Diarrhea

Some fellows think that they have just as powerful a defense mechanism which can be turned on and off at will. When they are annoyed, cornered or stumped they resort to hurling invectives at the disturber of their peace. Gutter language is their weapon for those who would challenge their security.

Many fellows suffer from this diarrhea of the mouth. Their vocabulary is limited to filthy, foul expressions. Somehow or other they have the mistaken idea that dirty language is a sign of virility and manliness. They feel they are becoming "one of the boys." Convention and propriety are not for them. They want their speech to stand out and to be disgustingly forceful.

Repulsive Sound

Actually, their language is as repulsive as the skunk's odor and as harmful as the snake's venom. Decent individuals shy away from a fellow who cannot control his tongue. He enters a rather low note into the conversation of a group. He is like the one bad apple that reduces the standards of all those in his group.

Pick Up Thesarus

With your traditional New Year's resolutions make one that you will make every effort to keep. Resolve in '52 to clean up your speech. As a Catholic college student keep in mind that the same tongue that enables you to speak also receives the Body and Blood of Christ in Holy Communion. You want it to be one that is worthy to receive Him.

If you find that you've a limited vocabulary and that it is necessary to resort to bad language in order to keep up a conversation pick up a Thesarus and become acquainted with it. Study a best seller, the dictionary. You'll find that you can impress more people with a "twenty-five cent" word correctly used than with one that you'd expect of an uncivilized individual.

Low Moan Helps

When you find it's necessary to let off some verbal steam the old counting to ten sometime helps. Get a friend to help you reach that astronomical figure if it is necessary. Letting out a low moan also helps to relieve the tension provided there are no strait jackets around.

Hold Your Head

Holiday Post Mortems View Events In Leap Year Daze

By Joe Mascuch

The "battle of the bottles" is over and as the casualties stagger back to the campus for a long needed rest, we begin to realize the necessity of rehabilitation for the "Holiday Veteran."

Accustomed to plush living for the past few weeks, the average Villanovan is faced with the problem of adapting himself to his old environment. He must content himself with living a "sheltered life" again.

All Gone

The holidays are no longer an excuse for dropping in on friends for a quick drink and a bit to eat. Once again man must have money to exist and this miserable state of affairs will persist for at least another fifty-two weeks. (The conversion from Canadian Club to Ortlieb's is a violent one and should be made slowly and wisely).

No Humphries' Here

Big meals of turkey, with all the dressings, are a thing of the past, as a number of us must have realized by now. Mystery-balls are now the main course of the well balanced meal, bread supplying the dressings. Gluttony is a physical impossibility and we should be thankful for that, if for no other reason.

The New Year is here and our '51 resolutions have been pushed aside by our '52 resolutions. As for myself, I made a number of resolutions this year, with the hope of carrying at least one of them out. Sometimes the old will power just doesn't work.

Stay Loose

The year of '52 is a dangerous year for the men of Villanova who want to keep their freedom. I have learned from reliable sources that this is a leap year! With so many girl's schools in the area, you can see the precarious position this puts the eligible Villanovan in and for only twelve months. Suggest that you hide in the Hamburg Hearth every afternoon and evening, lest you meet a fate worse than death?

If these reminders haven't yet been able to sober the reader up to the fact that the holidays are over, I have just one more argument.

I am now fully aware of the fact that the concentrated period of "Twenty Questions" is drawing near. Yes, test time is just around the corner. This last statement so impresses me that I think I'll drop my pencil right now and see if I can't find my books somewhere around the campus. I'll need them to know which exams I'll have to take.

PASHA THE PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

POST HOLIDAYING: The men living in the Watertown vicinity returning to the alma mammy via snow-shoes, sleds, and still damp barrel staves. . . . The Ben 'n Yettery selling more than its share of tomato juice, milk, and b-l-a-c-k coffee. . . . The men shying away from the Thursday morning meal in order to partake of a tempting bowl of aspirin, side dish of Alka-Seltzer, and French fried Pepto-Bismol. . . . One fellow claimed that he was so stiff New Year's Eve that he thought he had been drinking starch. . . .

One Villyknowvan was watching the ball atop the Times Building and it wasn't until an hour after midnight that he was informed that the ball fell down and didn't shoot up. . . . Seems he had been standing on his head. . . . Would have been perfectly all right if he hadn't gone around shaking everyone's foot at twelve.

SPORTLIGHT: All the Christmas sports have returned to the campus wearing their newest South Street ready-mades. . . . Yes, those pseudo-Ivy-Leaguers returned in a triumphant cloud of machine-knitted argyles, and hardy array of colorful cravats. . . .

Perhaps, the most outstanding gift on the campus was presented to HANK TIHANSKY. . . . He received a vest that was apparently fashioned from a pool table top. . . . His mother told him that the more he will wear it, the more he will like it. . . . He's been wearing it to bed for a week and still hasn't acquired a liking for it. . . . Another Fedigan Haller received a shirt for Christmas but complained that the neck was too small . . . of course, he had his head in a buttonhole. . . . The best Christmas card award goes to the little freshman (JASPER by name) who received a cute little note from his girl while he was at home and she was here. . . . "Dear Jasper, please hurry back to me. Jim doesn't kiss me like you do, Bob doesn't hug me like you do, Joe doesn't spend as much money for me as you do. Darling—PLEZE hurry back."

CULCHER CRAZE: As was noted in this col'm some time ago, the Main Line Symphony Orchestra will display its talents at the college Field House Sunday, February 24th. . . . The proceeds from this performance will go to the Greater Villanova Building Fund. . . . It will afford all those participating in the Senior Weekend activities an opportunity to partake of a bit of culcher. . . . The program will consist of musical selections along the lines of those presented for the Boston and Philadelphia "Pops."

NFFCCSSFFCCSSING: The NFCCS will hold its first social event of the season this weekend when it presents the "JACK FROST FROLIC" or "OUT IN THE COLD AGAIN." . . . It promises to be quite an affair according to all reports. . . . The decorations will be quite novel for the sweat 'n sway. . . . They're going to pile snow in the center of the gym.

FEBRUARY FROLIC: The Seniors are getting into the full swing of events for their Senior Weekend, at present by making their final preparations for the Dinner-Dance and The Prom. . . . They have reversed the usual procedure this year by putting the Dinner-Dance before the Prom. . . . This will enable all making the weekend to witness the Villanova-Duquesne game at the Palestra on Saturday evening. . . .

The Dinner-Dance will be held at the Broadwood Hotel in the Main Ballroom. . . . Tickets will be put on sale the 4th of February both at the Pie Shop and Mendel Hall. . . . All Seniors are asked to begin now in making arrangements for tables. . . . There will be dancing throughout the entire evening to the music of Leo Zollo and his orchestra. . . . PLAN NOW FOR FEBRUARY.

Pills to Pitches

Sr. Ball's Spivak Traded Black Bag For Trumpet Case

Medicine almost took away from the Senior prom this year's name band. Charlie Spivak, contracted to play for the Belle Air Ball February 22, had been chartered by his family for a medical career.

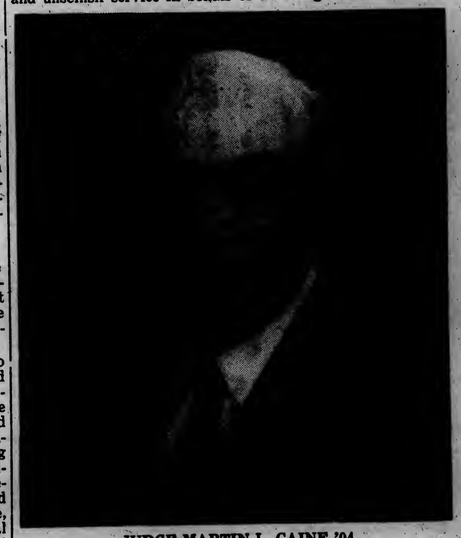
When still in grade school Spivak got his first trumpet, which was tiny and not of the best quality, but which helped in detering him from the pill-and-patches industry. He played with the determination of a youth striving for the big break.

Glenn Miller Backing

Paul Specht, then one of the country's outstanding bandleaders, offered him his first job which he kept for five years. This was the beginning of the big break.

When he felt ready to organize his own band Spivak was given much encouragement from the late Glenn Miller. Glenn told him he had all the ingredients necessary for a winning combination. Success followed quickly with engagements at the Glen Island Casino in New Rochelle, jumping off place for several of the nation's top flight bandleaders, the Shamrock in Houston, Chicago Theatre and the Palladium in Hollywood.

Movie Appearances



Spivak's band has made two movie appearances, "Pin-Up Girl," and "Follow the Boys." This seems to be a logical sequence for a name band which has had considerable success with the College men and women of the nation.

"Downbeat" magazine recently honored the Spivak band for its soft, danceable melodies, rating it as one of the sweetest bands of the land. This type of music is particularly difficult to get from name bands in many cases.

Judge Caine Wins Loyalty Award; Athlete, Nat. Figure

The Villanovan Club of Philadelphia has named Judge Martin L. Caine of Naugatuck, Conn., as the 1951 recipient of the annual "Loyalty Award."

This award is presented annually to an outstanding Villanovan College alumnus for "zeal in alumni matters, valuable service and loyalty to the college alumni association and unselfish service in behalf of all things Villanova."

JUDGE MARTIN L. CAINE '04
Winner of 1951 Alumni Loyalty Award

Turf-Track Man

Usually presented at the annual football banquet, the award was presented to Judge Caine at a dinner at Stamford, Conn., on December 18, because of the cancellation of the football banquet. Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., college president, made the presentation.

While at Villanova, Judge Caine was a member of the football and track squads for four years, and was captain and manager of both teams in '03 and '04.

He was the first Villanovan to run in a track meet sponsored by the Intercollegiate Athletic Association when the college was first admitted to that body in January, 1904.

Ran 440 in '04 Olympics

Rounding out his collegiate athletic career the following summer, Judge Caine ran the 440-yard dash for the U. S. Olympic team in the 1904 games.

After his graduation from Villanova, he went to Yale Law School from which he graduated in 1908, and was admitted to the Connecticut Bar Association the following year.

Elevated to Assembly

Following a brief term of private practice, the Judge was elevated to the Conn. General Assembly in which he served four terms, and in 1923 was named prosecutor for the local Municipal Court.

In June 1935 he was named Asst. General Counsel for the National Bituminous Coal Commission in Wash., D. C., after serving six years as judge of the local Municipal Court.

Two years later he became Asst. General Counsel for the Social Security Bureau in Wash., D. C., in which capacity he served for two years.

At present Judge Caine is serving as Corporation Counsel for the local Municipal Government, a position he has held for ten years.

Classmate of Fr. Hickey

While at Villanova he was a classmate of the Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., Prior General of the Augustinian Order.

His son, Leanord M. Caine, was graduated from Villanova in 1934 and is now associated with his father in the law firm of Caine and Caine.

Auditions Open For T & T

'Jessica James' Is 1952 Play Entirely Original Production

Initial auditions for this year's presentation of the Turf and Tinsel Club were held prior to Christmas vacation. The show, an original, is entitled "Jessica James." It will be presented April 23-26 inclusive.

BOB WHELAN
Presenting "Jessica James"

Following the organization's custom, the book will be written for the group by a student. However, this year, for the first time, the musical score will also be written by students, under the guidance of Mr. Robert Whalen. In all the previous presentations of T&T, the music and lyrics were prepared by Mr. Whalen.

The auditions held last month were for speaking parts, solos and the chorus. George Noake, director of the show, ran the auditions. He has assembled the last five T&T productions.

Solo Openings

Despite the fine turnout at the first audition, Mr. Noake has announced that there still remain a few openings for soloists. Also still wanted, according to the club, are men for the business staff. Those desiring to audition for solo parts, and those who are anxious to join the business end of the group are requested to watch the bulletin boards for further announcements.

Mr. Noake reported that those who signed up at the first audition will be notified of rehearsals by post-card.

The Easter recess will begin immediately following the conclusion of the retreat, the morning of Wednesday, April 9. It will run from April 9-14 inclusive, classes resuming Tuesday, April 15.

Ninety-one days? Cheer up! Minus the Saturdays and Sundays, the time for the onrushing final exams, registration days, a long-week-end in February, and the retreat — there are only fifty-two class days until Easter recess.

Data On Jobs Available In '51 Handbook

All students—and especially those who are undecided about the selection of a major or of next-semester courses — can get a great deal of helpful information in the 1951 edition of the Occupational Outlook Handbook, according to Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin.

This publication, prepared by the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics in cooperation with the Veterans Administration, contains up-to-date information on the facts needed in career planning for more than 400 occupations.

Data on immediate and long-range employment outlook will be of special interest to college students since America's mobilization efforts in the last year have changed employment prospects for nearly every job in the country, whether or not it is related to defense.

These data, together with those on training requirements, may help students make a wiser selection of a major and courses.

The Handbook (BLS Bulletin 998) will soon be available in the library or placement or counseling office on many a college campus, as well as in the nearest public employment service office.

Personal copies of this 575-page, illustrated Handbook may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C., for $3.

Villanovans with even a passing interest in the New Deal and its after effects will find Mr. Chamberlin's address more than enjoyable since a great part of it will be based upon "America's Second Crusade." It was this book which raised "fits of stratospheric emotionalism," as Chamberlin said in a defense of the book, among pro-Roosevelt book review circles.

AIEE Hears Noted Engineer

An address by Mr. Arthur Brainerd, head of the U. S. delegation to the International Committee on Illuminating Engineering, highlighted the December meeting of the joint chapter of the AIEE and IRE.

Mr. Brainerd's timely talk stressed the differences that exist between European and American thinking and the difficulties brought about by them.

Two Groups Merge

"Europeans," said Mr. Brainerd, "are mainly interested in fundamentals, while Americans are interested in the application."

This was the first formal meeting for the new joint chapter of the two societies. Bill Neely was elected Corresponding Secretary for the IRE branch at an earlier meeting.

With the merger of the groups all electrical engineers may be members of the same campus organization.

Bell Air Ball program chairmen Frank Garvey and Louis Oberle and the members of their committee will begin today to solicit patrons and donors for the dance program.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 31...THE MOUNTAIN GOAT

He thought they were trying to make him the butt-end of a joke when he was asked to judge cigarette mildness with a mere puff of one brand and a quick sniff of another. The fancy foot-work didn't dazzle him! He knew that the pinnacle of pleasure comes from steady smoking . . . and that there is only one test that gives you enough time to permit conclusive proof. Smokers throughout America have made the same decision!

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

Christ Is High Man

High man for the evening was Fred Christ with 18 points, followed by Ed Conlin with 17.

For Villanova, Larry Hennessey and Nick Maguire had 15 points apiece on 6 baskets and three free throws. Mooney had thirteen. Brennan and Glassmire followed with 11 each. On baskets, Hennessey hit 6 for 21 and Maguire had 6 for 17 as did Mooney. On free throws Larry had 3 for 3 and Nick 3 for 4.

After leading, 14-10 at the first quarter, partially due to Nick Maguire's three baskets, the lead was stretched at one point to 20-12. With five minutes to go in the half Fordham tied it up at 24-24.

Again it was Maguire to the rescue as he sunk three field goals and two free throws to make the tally 36-30 at the half.

Indoor Track Season Opens Saturday In Washington

By Jim Guthrie

The 1952 indoor track season will get underway this Saturday night when the nation's capital will play host to the annual "Washington Star" games. The Wildcats are sending down a representative team headed by John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer.

(Although the season opens on Saturday for the team, Fred Dwyer began the season last Saturday night at the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus Meet. Fred won the handicap mile in the good time of 4:21:4. He started from scratch).

The Villanova College track team will make its local debut at Convention Hall with its appearance in the Philadelphia Inquirer meet January 18.

Eight Lettermen Gone

Coach Jim Elliott has lost eight lettermen from last year's squad. This year's version includes a host of freshmen and sophs who are all in the running for a starting position.

The mile and two-mile relays were the heaviest hit via the diploma route. Pete Simigin and Jim Riordan are the two mainstays on the mile foursome. Sophomore Joe Gaffany will probably get the nod for the third position with the remaining man not yet chosen.

Deep In The Half

Freshmen Guy Speciale, Jerry Utter and Bernie Finin will handle the duties in the half mile events. Along with Artie Klepper and Bart Moynahan, Coach Elliott will come up with a winning two-mile combination.

In the distance events, Fred Dwyer and John Joe Barry are head and shoulder over everyone else. Last year Dwyer captured both the indoor and outdoor I. C. 4A mile crowns, while Barry turned the trick in the two-mile event.

Wheiler A Transfer

Ray Wheiler a transfer student will become eligible after the first meet. This gives the team additional strength in the mile and half-mile events. Last week Wheiler placed second in the mile at the Junior A. A. U. meet in New York. His time was a very good 4:27.

Cummin Clancy will throw his weight around in the shot and discus events. Clancy is a heafty fellow who has a lofty heave and because of this fact, he gained the I. C. 4A laurels in that heaving contest. The schedule is

Hennessey Nets 67 Points In Breaking Cousy's Record

By Joe Corcoran

With Larry Hennessey sweeping to incomparable heights on both evenings, the Blue and White of Villanova alternately lost and gained decisions at the Sugar Bowl's basketball tourney during the holidays.

After the Billikens of St. Louis dropped them from the undefeated ranks—a four-point, 73 to 69, affair—on Friday night, the 'Cats whipped last spring's N.I.T. winners, Brigham Young, by a 72 to 58 count the following night.

Larry Topples Cousy Record

Hennessey, easily the outstanding individual in the tournament, broke Bob Cousy's one game scoring record in the first contest, tallying 31 points on 14 field goals and three fouls. That mark lasted exactly 24 hours as once again the New Rochelle junior donned his prolific scoring togs.

In scoring his 67 points, Larry won the Most Valuable Player Award from the Sugar Bowl writers. This is the second time in the last three years that a Villanova player has won the award. Paul Arizin won the "trophy" two years ago.

Actually, there is no trophy as the title is one that the sports writers vote to the player who, in their opinion was the most outstanding during the two-day tournament.

Half-time score—St. Louis 45, Villanova 37. Free throws missed—Glassmire, Stewart; Brennan, McGuir, Mooney, Koch, Steiner, H. Lillis, McKenna.

Brigham Young's Cougars were helpless in watching 17 of Larry's 35 shots find the cords. With a pair of fouls thrown in, Hennessey garnered 36 markers, the tournaments one game standard and its two game record.

The St. Louis contest, matching the Billiken defense and deliberate ball-handling against Villanova's more open style game, was close from the start. Hennessey's first five goals, mostly the two-handed jump that Larry has come to favor over his set shooting, paced the Mainliners to a 20 to 18 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

Billikens Lead at Half

At the intermission, Ed Hickey's club left the floor leading by eight points and the game threatened to break wide open. The second half featured the jump shots of Tom Brennan, as the lanky center boosted the Wildcats into a momentary, 51 to 50, lead.

Sugar Bowl Tourney

The engagement with Brigham Young in the consolation round provided Hennessey with the opportunity to bolster his already amazing personal record book. Larry notched five two-pointers in the opening stanza, added another nine tallies before half-

Palestra Is Host To Creighton Game Wednesday Night

Villanova's on-and-off five will play host tomorrow night to the forces of the University of Creighton and then later in the week travel to Allentown for a Saturday night meeting with Muhlenberg.

Tomorrow's Creighton game will be played as the first game in a Palestra double header with Pennsylvania going against Delaware in the nightcap.

This will be the third meeting between the two schools and Villanova holds a decided two and nothing advantage in the series that began during the '49-'50 campaign. In that year the Wildcats triumphed 84-63 and last year it was the same story to a 61-42 score.

Last year the Blue Jays had a disappointing 9-18 record but they played some of the best quintets in the nation. This year they are undertaking a twenty-two game schedule which includes such teams as Kansas, Loyola of Los Angeles, Philips 66'ers, Drake, Lawrence Tech, Marquette, Beloit, Seton Hall and Villanova.

Creighton has five returning lettermen, an outstanding crop of sophomores and three freshmen forming the nucleus of their squad. On the other hand, graduation hit the Blue Jays rather hard. Francis "Ick" Miller, their top scorer, left them along with Mick McClelland and Bill Boedeker.

The Blue Jays opened their season with a win over Buena Vista, but after that they ran

UP Selects Al Severance To Coaches Poll Board

Moving to rank him in his rightful place among the nation's court tutors, the United Press, earlier this winter, named Wildcat mentor Al Severance to its board of coaches which weekly rates the country's outstanding quintets.

The "Judge," in joining the select group of 35 coaches who participate in the listings, replaced Clair Bee of the late L. I. U. squads. His selection, while an indication that Villanova has finally arrived in the "big time," courtwise, is even more of a tribute to Al and his ability to mesh the material on hand into a well-schooled squad.

SPORTS CHATTER

1951 In Review

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

Like the unwelcomed relative that stayed too long, the year of 1951 has left and with it goes a year well worth forgetting. In the college sports world in general this was a year of uncertainty, scandal and more scandal.

Villanova, with plenty of uncertainty, but no scandal, engaged in almost seventy sports contests of one type or another. Besdes these there were numerous other developments away from the field that caused much attention.

Without doublt the untimely death of Nick Liotta comes to the fore when the year is discussed and beside it all other events seem to pale in importance. Except for his sudden passing the year was not too unfortunate for Villanova.

Let's go back over the year and take one final look at '51 and then bury it forever in the limbo of past events:

January—N.C.A.A. beats colleges to the draw by dropping their Sanity Code . . . Fordham surprises every one by upsetting Villanova, 52-44, in the Palestra . . . Indoor track season opens with John Joe Barry announcing that he is not in shape. No one believes him . . . N. C. State beaten, 66-64, in jammed Palestra . . . Manhattan gets the scandal derby underway with a two man entry.

February—Barry still talking shape . . . Scandal derby field enlarged as New York catches on to the game . . . Villanova runs into trouble and loses three straight to Toledo, Princeton and Seton Hall . . . 'Cats, still surprising, beat Army by 20 (in basketball) . . . Fred Dwyer caps fine indoor season by winning the I. C. 4A mile run.

Irish Says, "No"

March—It's tournament time and once again Ned Irish is presiding . . . The N. I. T. (Ned Irish Tourney), despite the 'Cats 25-5 record, pick such powerhouses as Beloit and Lawrence Tech for their yearly boodle bowl . . . Villanova gets invitation to N. C. A. A. tournament. Loses to N. C. State . . . Bradley invites team to their tournament in Peoria . . . Football practice starts with Jim Leonard . . . Everyone now believes Barry.

April—Football practice continues . . . Baseball season underway and in third game of the season Villanova beats Pennsylvania, 10-0, to surprise everybody but Penn . . . Loyola falls the same way . . . Track team runs in Seton Hall and Penn Relays.

May—Barry, having said nothing about shape in three months wins the I. C. 4A. two-mile run as do Dwyer and Cummin Clancy in the mile and discus, respectively . . . Villanova, continually surprising, loses to Penn, 8-5 . . . Benny Moskal's double in the 11th beats N. Y. U., 5-4 . . . Freshmen allowed to play on varsity teams, announced by the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference.

June—Jim Leonard, admitting that his first love is really the soil, resigns as football coach to devote full time to his asparagus patches . . . Not a single college scandal breaks during the month.

July—Art Raimo accepts post as head football coach and signs contract. No mention is made in the contract of asparagus . . . Raimo appoints two former greats at Villanova, Eddie Michaels and Alex Bell, as his assistants.

Out You Go

August—Football practise begins for season's opener against Army . . . West Point announces a cribbing scandal, which practically wipes out the Cadet football team, for the biggest mass expulsion since the time of the Arcadians.

September—Army, living up to their late August predictions are helpless and Villanova downs them, 21-7, for our first victory over the Cadets since 1915 . . . College authorities announce the dropping of the highly popular 150-lb. football team for the 1951 season. "Since Bill Connelly is president of the league, we plan to stay in it" . . . No freshmen football, either, because of the new eligibility rule.

October—Cross-country team, after losing to Army, beat Navy, 25-30, as Barry and Dwyer tie for first place . . . Football team continues on undefeated by beating Penn State and Alabama . . . Honeymoon ends as Kentucky, fighting off their latest scandal charge, swamps the Wildcats 35-13 . . . Get back on the winning road the following week against Houston . . . Basketball practice begins with entire team returning from last season.

November—Basketball schedule announced, with thirteen games at the Palestra . . . Detroit beaten, 26-7, in annual Homecoming Day game at Shibe Park . . . At this stage of the season, Villanova is rated second choice to get the Lambert Trophy, symbolic of eastern football supremacy . . . Always good for at least a surprise, the Wildcats are upset by Boston College . . . L. S. U. does the same thing the next week . . . Death comes to Nick Liotta on the eve of his selection to Grantland Rice's All-American team . . . The campus shocked and final game with Tulsa called off.

December—Basketball opens with a win over the New York A. C. . . . St. Francis, also . . . and LeMoyne . . . Iona, too, after a scare . . . and Mt. St. Mary's goes peacefully . . . Bill Connelly reelected to head 150-lb. league . . . Hennessey scores 67 point in two Sugar Bowl games to break all kinds of records.

There are seven men on the team who are 6-4 or taller with John Tobin leading the way. Tobin stands 6-8 and weighs 225 pounds. He plays center. Bill Heyden is 6-6 and weighs 240 pounds.

Heyden has scored 57 points in four games so far to be the team's high scorer. He is particularly good in the free throw circle, where he has netted 21 shots on 27 attempts. Behind him, Paul Gradoville, Eltoi Tuttle and Ed Cole have 39 points apiece.

On Saturday night the Wildcats will travel up to Allentown to meet the Mules of Muhlenberg.

Louisville Swamps 'Cats, 90-68; Worst Defeat Since '49

By Carl Valenti

The Villanova Wildcats started the new year off on the wrong foot last Thursday night when they absorbed a 90-68 shellacking at the hands of a very strong Louisville quintet.

It was the most humiliating defeat suffered by the Mainliners since two years ago when Villanova lost to Loyola of Chicago by 32 points.

Billy Sullivan was given the assignment of guarding Larry Hennessey and did it so well that he held Larry to six points in the first half. It was Ben Stewart and Tom Brennan who took up the slack by keeping the 'Cats in the game with their timely baskets.

In the second quarter, however, with the visitors trailing by one point, Bob Lochmueller and Sullivan started on a spree which found Louisville ahead 33-26. Another surge and the Kentuckians led at halftime 46-34.

Villanova rallied early in the third period coming within six points of the pacesetters but Lochmueller again took things into his own hands tossing in six quick counters and personally was responsible for 13 in that quarter. After that Louisville dominated the remainder of the contest.

Brennan played a fine defensive game limiting the opposing centers to a total of five points. Lochmueller took game honors with 26 and Stewart was high for Villanova with 21.

1952 Belle Air Meets First Deadline Theme and Dedication Announced

YEARBOOK PLANNERS relax after meeting the first deadline that meant half of the 1952 Belle Air is in the hands of Campus Publishing Company. College Editor Bob Quinn, Photo Editor Joe Mascuch, Sports Editor Lou Oberle, and Editor Bill Lohr consider pictures for next deadline at a session in yearbook office.

Bill Lohr, Editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, announced this week that the yearbook met its first deadline during the recent vacation.

This part of the annual publication contains the sections on senior histories, religious life, and campus activities. These sections, comprising more than half of the edition's contents, have now gone to press.

The theme of the book this year will be "nunc age," meaning in Latin, "now do something." In conjunction with this, the edition will be dedicated to Our Lady of Good Counsel, special patron of the Augustinian Order.

Lohr especially commended Jim Conway and Al Dugas for their untiring efforts in the photography work for the yearbook.

He also expressed his gratitude to the associate editors: Jack Redmond, layout; Lou Oberle, sports; B. Quinn, college; Ed Fesco, activities; Joe Mascuch, photography; Jim Gallagher, copy; Bert Sellier, business manager; and Jim McDonnell, circulation manager.

The next deadline for the Belle Air will be the end of this week and the final one will come some time in February.

Modern And Romantic Music Feature Of Phila. Orchestra

Old favorites, and music that may well become new favorites, have been programmed for the concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra on Friday afternoon, Jan. 11, and Saturday evening, Jan. 12.

The romantic Dvorak and the dramatic Liszt are represented by probably their most famous and enduring works; the distinguished American composer and critic Virgil Thomson by one of his most engaging compositions, and Han Haug, a Swiss composer not widely known in the United States, by a work completely new to orchestra audiences.

Dvorak's "New World"

The Dvorak work is the unfailingly charming Symphony No. 5, in E minor ("From the New World"). This composition, with its wonderful second movement which has almost become an American folk song ("Goin' Home") ranks very close to the top among favorite symphonic works with American audiences.

Liszt will be represented by his symphonic poem "Les Preludes," a short but highly dramatic work that has not only won an established place in the symphonic repertoire, but, in part at least, has become familiar to millions of Americans through its use as identifying music on one of the most popular of radio programs.

Suite from "Louisiana Story"

Thomson's work is a suite drawn from his highly successful "Louisiana Story," and is called simply "Arcadian Songs and Dances." It was inspired by, and to some extent based on the music of the "Cajuns," those present-day descendants of the Arcadians whose tragic story was immortalized in Longfellow's "Evangeline."

The concerts will open with Han Haug's "Passacaglia." The Swiss composer's work is to be heard at these concerts for the first time. Conductor Eugene Ormandy "discovered" it during a visit with the composer in Switzerland last summer, and on his return to America brought the music with him.

Career Conference In Feb.

Placement Opportunities Will Be Discussed

Business and professional opportunities for Villanova graduates will again be discussed this year at the third annual College Career Conference, scheduled for February 7 by George A. Harris, placement director.

Although the definite program will not be announced until next week, Mr. Harris has announced that all seniors will be free of classes that day to attend the morning and afternoon sessions of the conference.

During the morning "The Interview" will be the topic under discussion, and talks for the afternoon have been planned on "Rewards and responsibilities connected with a position."

Several prominent speakers from various fields of industry and business will lead the discussions, according to the usual program instituted during the past two conferences. In addition to the Villanova seniors, about 100 representatives of business, education and industry and a number of school vocational counsellors are expected to attend.

GEORGE A. HARRIS
"What's the job you want?"

Seniors Free to Attend Day Long Sessions

The purpose of the conference, according to Mr. Harris, is to bring to the campus representatives of business, education and industry to supply to the senior information that will be useful to them when they leave school to seek employment.

Last year's Career conference, held just one year ago in the Commerce and Finance auditorium, met unprecedented success with total attendance by the seniors in the Class of '51.

Deadline for seniors to register with the college placement service has been set for Thursday, January 10, by George Harris, placement director.

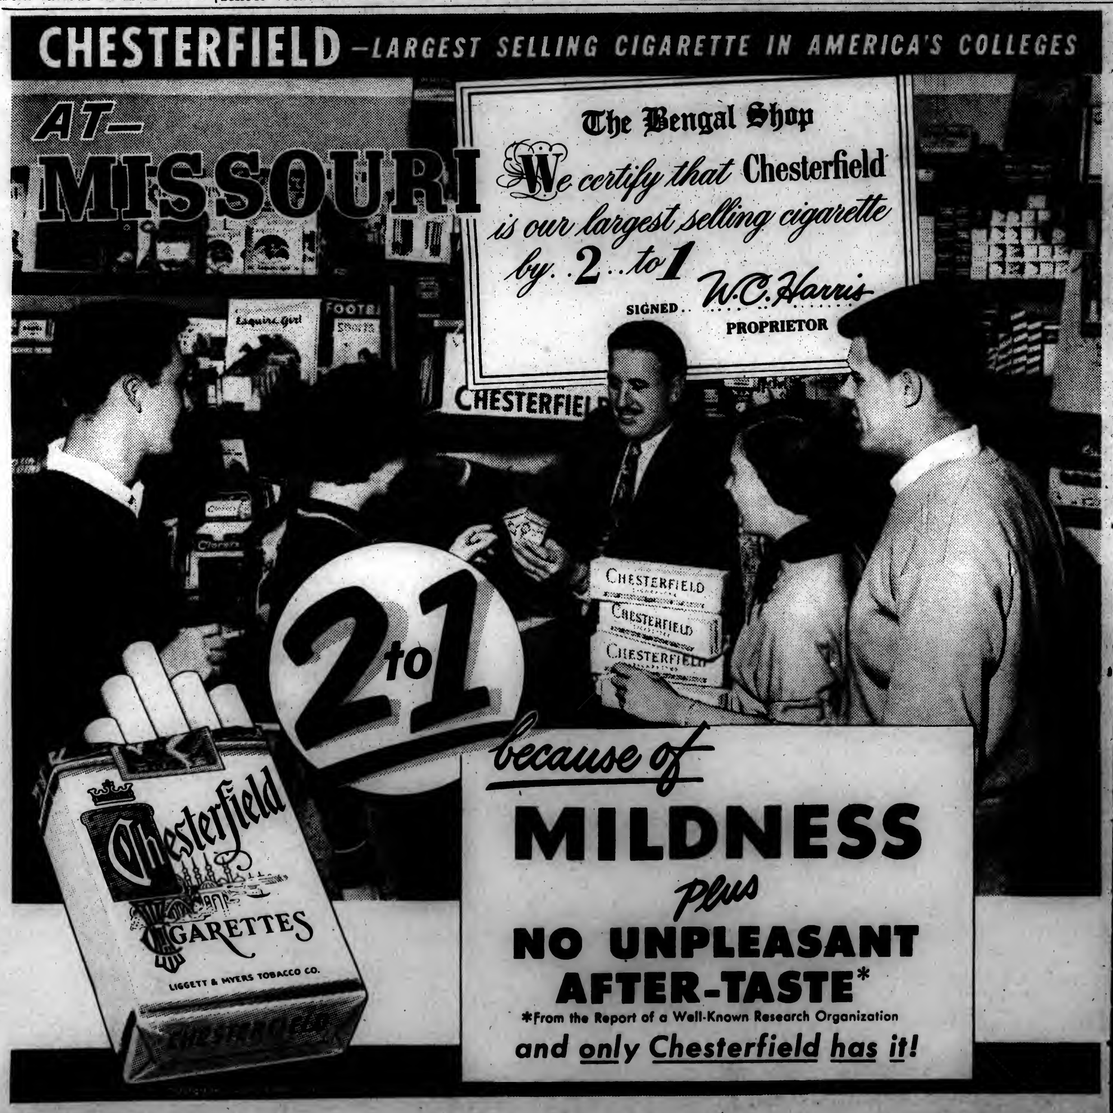
Under the new requirements, the holder of any baccalaureate degree will be considered educationally qualified for the OCS program for training and service as a general line officer afloat or in the Navy shore commands.

Math Requirement Lifted



Previously there had been a minimum mathematics requirement for OCS applicants. Besides the "unrestricted line" category, there are specialized groups within the officer candidate program, each requiring specialized education. Men selected for these specialized programs are given duty assignments in line with their educational backgrounds.

Men who qualify for the "unrestricted line" school at Newport attend for four months before receiving their commissions. Then they are obligated to serve three years of active duty in the Navy.

In the specialized fields the training at Newport is for two months, followed by special training at other centers for additional periods. In the special categories graduates in engineering, business administration, mathematics, physics, chemistry, and other technical fields are being sought.

Retirement Of Liotta's '60' Is Voted By Student Council

Instant, unanimous approval greeted a motion to retire the numeral "60," the number worn by Villanova's late All-American guard, Nick Liotta, at the first 1952 meeting of the Student Council last Monday night.

Members of the 1951 football squad sponsored the move which was formally proposed by Senior Class President Phil Brennan. Little opposition is expected in the Council's effort to have "60" retired from Villanova football.

Longer Hours Sought

Other business transacted at the meeting at which not one non-member spectator was present included a series of propositions dealing with the library. Council president Tom Delaney appointed a committee to seek longer library hours prior to examinations, the opening of the building on Sundays and availing the use of the library seminars to all students.

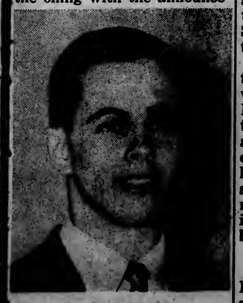
Also sought by the committee is the right of the entire Council to meet in one of the seminars to conduct its business.

Coat Hooks in Belle Air

Following a petition made at a previous meeting to install coat hooks in classrooms, Reform Commission Chairman, Tom Fucigna, reported that this action will be taken in Belle Air Hall in the near future. Fucigna also stated that the reopening of the swimming pool in the Field House has been delayed because of further construction work on the pool ceiling.

The date and time of the next Council meeting were changed to Monday, February 11, at 7:05 p.m. Place will be announced the week prior to the meeting.

EASTER RECESS



The college administration announced a misprint in the student handbook in regard to Easter recess recently, after publication of last week's story in this paper.

Classes will resume following the recess on Thursday, April 17, instead of on Tuesday, April 15, as erroneously announced in the handbook, and in the "Villanovan" last week.

Sr. Prom Reduces Price Of Tickets

Good news to potential Senior Prom trotters came this week in the form of an announcement by Belle Air Ball chairman, Bob Beers, that bids for the February 22 dance have been reduced to five dollars. Formerly all major campus dances had charged a minimum of six dollars per couple.

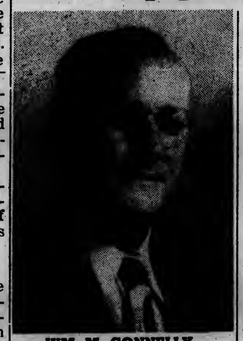
Further progress by Beers and his committees is also in the offing with the announcement that the Belle Air Ball theme will be "On the Town." The Field House will be transformed into a metropolitan locale for the annual Senior Class function.

ROBERT BEERS
Belle Air Ball Chairman

Patrons Wanted

Program committee chairmen Louis Oberle and Frank Garvey began last week soliciting patrons and donors for the Prom booklet. With tickets going on sale immediately after the inter-term recess, the Belle Air Ball is taking shape as the outstanding attraction of the four-day Senior Weekend, February 21 through 24.

Reduction in the cost of tickets, according to Beers, was made possible for the Prom by the recent lifting of the 20 per cent Federal amusement tax on school and civic functions. Rather than keep the same price and absorb the profit, the Prom committee is passing on the saving to members of the student body who will attend.



Future Dances Affected

According to Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of student activities, the new tax law will be effective for all future campus dances and social functions.

In carrying out the theme,

Wildcat 'Kittens' Back In EIL After One Year Layoff

By Bud Russo

A long waited announcement has finally come from the Athletic Office, stating that next Fall the 150 pound football club will again take the field after a lapse of one year.

There was no mention of the schedule, the coach or any other qualifying statements. These are expected to follow shortly.

Great Favorites

The 150 pound team, always a great favorite with the college student body, this year was a paradox. It headed the league in regard to the fact that Bill Connelly was elected president of the league. But yet, we didn't submit a team for competition.

This snafu was brought on by the fact that early last Summer after a league consultation it was decided, due to the emergency situation in the country that a goodly number of the students would be working for Uncle Sam and therefore it would be best to drop the competition for that year.

However, it was soon seen that the manpower shortage never developed. Villanova was asked to submit itself for a schedule, but the administration was powerless, since funds to be alloted are voted for before school starts. Thus the Kittens had no monetary backing. It was decided, therefore, to let the team go for one year.

Connelly Re-elected

Bill Connelly, who is Villanova's Athletic Director, has again been elected president of the league for next year.

The Kittens for the two years prior to this gave an excellent account of themselves. In 1949, they were Champions of the Eastern Inter-collegiate 150 pound Football League.

They beat Cornell, Princeton and Rutgers. However, they lost to Navy. In their final tilt with Penn, both teams had identical records. With the Championship at stake, Villanova won, to be the first team other than Navy to win the title since 1934 when the league began.

Career Conclave To Review Jobs With Government

The third annual Career Conference on Thursday, February 7, will bring two important topics under discussion.

The morning session will deal with "The Interview". Constituting this program will be three short talks on preparation for the interview, what the employer looks for, and what the student can expect.

Following these talks there will be a panel discussion on the subject followed by questions from the audience. J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the Engineering School, will be chairman for this discussion.

The topic for the afternoon session will be "Government Service as a Career". The main address will be delivered by the Honorable Benjamin F. James of the U. S. House of Representatives. Rev. Edward J. McCarthy, O.S.A., Dean of Villanova's Extension School will be chairman for this session. A board of four men, prominent in the Civil Service field, will make up this panel.

Seniors will be excused from classes for the conference, but it is compulsory that they attend.

NEXT ISSUE

Because of the final exams scheduled for the week of January 21, this will be the last issue of the "Villanovan" until February 12. Deadline for this issue will be 4 P.M., February 7, in the Villanovan office.

Seniors to Elect Man to Council At Meeting Thurs.

Election of one Student Council representative from the Arts school and discussion of final preparations for the oncoming Senior Weekend are on the agenda for the Senior Class meeting this Thursday evening at 7:30 in the C&F Auditorium.

Class president Phil Brennan announced this date after cancelling the original meeting scheduled for last week because of a conflict with the Villanova Forum.

Nominees Approved

Four Senior Arts students have been nominated and approved by the usual administrative channels to fill the Student Council seat that has been vacant since the beginning of this semester. The nominees are Robert Beers, Joseph Mascuch, Joseph Newberry and Louis Oberle.

Final Ring Orders Taken Tomorrow

Juniors will have their last chance to order class rings tomorrow, January 16. Chairman Don Blaha urges all Juniors who haven't as yet done so to order their rings tomorrow or else they will have to wait until next year.

Representatives from Loren-Murchison will be in room 222 Mendel from 10:30 A.M. until 2:30 P.M. A deposit of $5.00 will be required with each order.

Blazers Next

Following the arrival of the rings, come the Junior Blazers. Bob Quin, Chairman of the Blazer committee, has asked that all men positively ordering Blazers leave their names with him. Boxes will be provided in the Pie Shop in which the names may be dropped or prospective buyers may leave their names in room 134 Austin.

MEN WANTED

We'd take women or little children if there were any around, but the idea is to get about six ambitious people to work for the circulation staff of this paper. Check with Joe Mullen in the "Villanovan" office, basement of C&F, this afternoon (Tuesday).

Grandstand Coaches

Just last week one of our local compatriots in collegiate journalism, the "Temple News" created a stir of publicity for itself—and at the same time left itself open to criticism—by indulging in a practice all too common on campuses these days — grandstand coaching.

In football season it's called Monday morning quarterbacking, or second - guessing at other times of the year. And usually it's good for the sport, except when the grandstand coaches assume omniscience and forget that the ones actually playing the game were the fellows on the field, not the ones in the stands.

We don't damn the 'Temple News' for its accusations against Bill Mlkvy's teammates — whether they were true or not. That's not the purpose of this editorial. But we would like to use this incident to point up a very similar circumstance of grandstand coaching followed by unjust criticism that is prevalent on the Villanova campus.

Only out here, it's not against the players, but against the coach. There's been too much comment to be ignored lately to the effect, "What's that guy Severance doing, anyhow?"

Of course, these queries come to our ears not after the cagers have been racking up a winning streak, but only after they have dropped a game or two (witness the "petition" circulated on campus among a very small but not so select circle after the Fordham loss).

So everyone loves a winner—and that's just why this Severance sedition surprises anyone with a mind not made hysterical by a couple of lost games. In fact, as shown by his sixteen year record at Villanova's head basketball coach, Severance is a winner—with the count definitely in his favor.

LETTERS

At The Editor

Dear Editor:

Someone is either blind, or he's closing his eyes.

I don't know who wrote last week's editorial in the Villanovan; I really don't care. But it is surprising that anyone who has been at Villanova for even a short time could compose a statement so riddled with inaccuracies, so torn with implications which one might politely call "erroneous."

Reaction or Thought

The question springs to mind: Was this a spur of the moment literary performance, written perhaps in a moment of reaction against something or other, or was this a thoroughly thought-out statement, pondered over, considered and reconsidered?

How can an intelligent man state that religion is de-emphasized at an institution where confessions are heard three times daily, where Masses are offered for the students both morning and noon of every day? How can it be easy for a Catholic to lose his soul when chapel exercises are conducted four evenings a week to encourage his devotion, to remind him of his duties, and of the overabundance of facilities available to him for the performance of them?

How can he say that it is easy to lose your soul here without closing your eyes and bludgeoning your conscience, when the chapel stands smack in the center of the campus, reminding, almost pleading every passerby to stop in and spend a few moments with Christ—for whom alone this whole institution exists?—when at each change of classes the corridors are sprinkled with men wearing the habit of the Augustinian, selfless men who give their lives here to Catholic education, who constitute the "living endowment" so modestly referred to in the catalog?

Confused With Defense

This man evidently confuses Catholicism with the defense of Catholicism; religion, with religion courses. He hints that a Catholic would be better off at Yale where "at least he would have a chance to strengthen his faith by constantly defending it" than he is at Villanova where he has the chance to nourish it by constantly practicing it.

We Can't Miss

The editorialist was way off base. We've got God at Villanova. He doesn't run after us, it's true, but we can hardly pass an hour without some reminder of His Presence; nor a day without an indication of his standing invitation. We can't miss Him—unless we close our eyes and bludgeon our consciences.

(Signed) James Griffin,

Senior, Science

(Editor's Note: The correspondent's statements are as true as those contained in the editorial, but the correspondent is himself "off base" by evading the issue.)

Exam Stand

Evidence Of Finals Brings Several Study Methods For Higher Grades

By Joe Mascuch

Villanovans once again are conspicuous by their absence in the finer spots along the Main Line. Where are the happy - go - lucky cliques of intellectuals who gather in the coffee-shops for aesthetic discussions of the finer things in life? Where are the quartets that sing "College Days"?

No, they are not hibernating, they are merely studying. This is only one of the evil effects of exam week.

A most important part of taking examinations, besides having a pen and pencil, is knowing your subject. This "Knowledge" can be gained either by studying during the school year or by a practice affectionately known as "cramming." "Cramming" is by far the most popular method, so our discussion shall be limited to that.

The clever lad with the paper and pencil who has discovered that this process takes twenty - four hours need not check his figures. Yes, it does take time.

Sore Spot of Cramming

This "time clause" in the practice of cramming is one of the sore spots. There will always be the desire to sleep on the part of the Crammer, but this can be overcome. This is our second step.

A number of methods have been devised by those who went before you to keep awake, so let's use this secondary source to advantage. I have found that taking down the bed and storing it in the closet helps to no end. Removing all chairs and desks is helpful too. You can stand and walk and study. This keeps the blood circulating and the patient awake.

'No-Doze'-'N'-Coffee

A hot cup of black coffee, followed by a cigarette and two "No-Doze" pills, repeated every ten minutes keeps one on his toes and gives you a little break from the books. It is not the most healthy diet, but it does get results.

Each day and night that you cram, keeping awake becomes a greater problem. This problem usually reaches its zenith in the middle of each exam. If you can keep awake, you have it licked, so come prepared with a "No-Doze" or two and a flask of hot coffee.

Relax and Fail

The golden rule of taking exams is relax, not go to pieces. Don't loose your head until after your last final. No prof is out to fail you, it only seems that way. Only you can fail yourself and you'd be surprised how successful you can be at it.

The average three hour exam only calls for six hours of writing. All you have to do, is keep awake and write all that you have ever learned. Some of those little bits of useless knowledge you possess may pertain to the course. (Don't bother reading the questions, you'll only be confused!)

Adolph Says

Propaganda Makes Heaven Appear As Hell: Which Is Reason For Care

By Bob Bellarme

The late Adolf Hitler once remarked that successful propaganda can make a nation see heaven as hell and utter misery as paradise. The devil does this too. He makes us pessimistic when we should be full of optimism. Psychoanalyists and fortune tellers are doing a booming business today. They are thriving on the pessimism and cynicism of those who are looking for a Utopia here on earth.

Only Live Once

This is an age of atomic destruction, so let's enjoy ourselves, it's later than we think. Eat, drink and be merry is the order for the day. We only live once.

But that's the catch. Of course life is short but it's what comes after that counts. If we're not careful we may be gathering the coals for the fire we'll burn in later.

Future Cloudy

Granted that world conditions are such that we might become discouraged and depressed. The future might be a little cloudy. But think back to Christ's times. His earthly life was not sheltered from the sinfulness of a fallen mankind. Yet He did not give up in despair, but rather the very sinfulness of mankind drove Him onward to the culmination of His mission, which was Calvary. He suffered and died so that the gates of heaven would be opened to everyone.

It is from Him that we learn the meaning of suffering. Undesirable conditions can be used as stepping stones to Heaven. The old but sound idea of "offering it up" takes on meaning. Despair becomes hope. A hope in the realization that anything we endure now for His sake is multiplied a hundredfold in our after-death reward.

A pessimist was once defined as a person who turns out the light to see how dark it is. Contemporary society has turned off the light of Christ's teachings. Man has become a god unto himself.

God is Out

God is not called upon to guide the work of the United Nations. He is banned from the public school classroom so as not to bother any confirmed atheists.

Only through a return to religion can we have peace and harmony among nations and men. We can't be pessimistic if we know there is a God. We need not worry if we accept His counsel. "Be of good cheer!"

One College Year Works Wonders On Green Frosh

By Joe Keats

Every fall star-eyed young men come from all over the country to our fine campus. For a year the Frosh are unique. But, give them a year, and oh, what a transformation!

The Frosh arrives at Villanova. He inspects the surrounding "female institutions" looking for a girl like mother. A year later, a Soph, he looks for a girl like mother—if mother happens to be Jane Russell!

The energetic first-year man is truly that in the matter of letter writing! He writes home each and every day. The experienced Soph? Ah, yes, a letter whenever he's broke.

Full of ambition, our Frosh looks forward to the days when, as a grad, he'll make "Who's Who." Maybe he'll even make the collegiate version as a Senior. But, a year later, a hardened Soph anxiously awaits the day he'll be summoned before the Kefauver committee.

A girl's outlook on the matter? Simple. Freshmen kiss their dates good-bye; Sophomores kiss them hello.

Then, theres' always the reason of why a man is in college. A Freshman? Why, he's adorning our campus in search of a "Villanova Education.'" Why else? But, a Soph? He's here because his sure thing on the game last week, at a 2½ point spread, failed to pay off.

Our naive Frosh believes the way to get good grades is to study hard; the soph who knows all the "angles" has decided by his second year, and very wisely so, that it is much better to sit next to someone who has studied hard.

These are the marvels of a year's transformation. Sic transit gloria mundi.

Installation of Archbishop O'Hara Viewed on TV; College Represented

Villanovans observed last Wednesday's holiday in honor of the installation of The Most Reverend John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., as Archbishop of Philadelphia in a number of ways. Not a few watched the telecast of the singularly impressive ceremonies of the enthronement coming from the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul in Philadelphia over WCAU-TV. Others caught up on much needed studies.

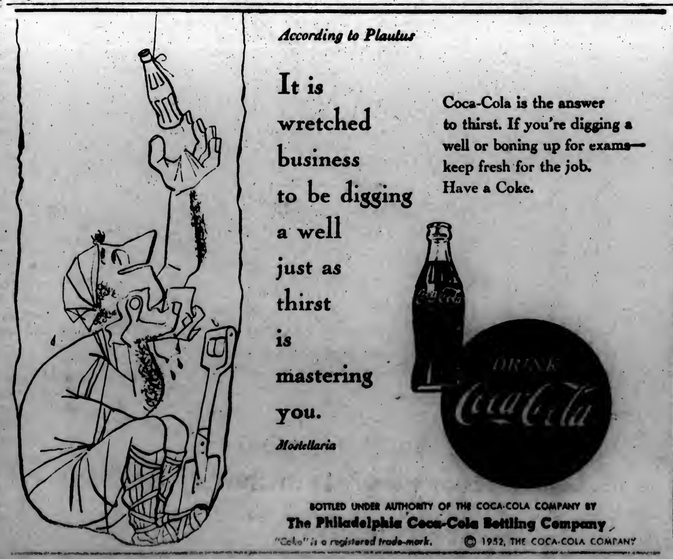
PHILA. DIOCESE NEW ARCHBISHOP, JOHN F. O'HARA, C.S.C.

College Represented

Among those connected with Villanova who were at the installation in person were the Very Reverend Joseph Dougherty, O.S.A., Provincial, the Very Reverend James Donellon, O.S.A., Prior, and the Very Reverend Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President.

As a result of Wednesday's ceremonies, Archbishop O'hara became the spiritual leader of more than 1,000,000 Catholics in Philadelphia and Eastern Pennsylvania. The new Archbishop, formerly president of the University of Notre Dame, was appointed to his new office in the Church by Pope Pius XII upon the death of Dennis Cardinal Dougherty last May. Archbishop O'Hara comes here after more than six years as Bishop of Buffalo.

Notre Dame Pres.



The 63-year-old prelate, who spent most of his youth in Montevideo, Uraguay, where his father was American Consul, attended Notre Dame and later Catholic University, in Washington, D. C.

Shortly after his ordination as a priest of the Congregation of the Holy Cross in 1916, the new Archbishop began his parish work at the Church of St. Francis de Sales in Philadelphia. After his local parish service, he returned to Notre Dame as an instructor and successively became Prefect of Religion and Dean of the College of Commerce. Archbishop O'Hara became the University's 12th president in 1934.

Army Delegate

The new leader of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia left Notre Dame in 1939 to become military delegate to the U. S. Armed Forces. He was consecrated a bishop on January 15, 1940, being raised to the titular rank of Bishop of Milasa. This is an honorary post, Milasa being one of the Church's earlier sees. On May 8, 1945, he was installed as the Bishop of Buffalo.

Archbishop O'Hara now has charge of a 144-year old See that embraces 5043 square miles in the counties of Philadelphia, Montgomery, Bucks, Delaware, Chester, Berks, Lehigh, Northampton, Schuylkill and Carbon.

Father McGuire Attends Meeting At Pentagon

Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of Villanova, is today attending the Orientation Conference in the Pentagon building in Washington, D. C.

Approximately eighty religious leaders of America are attending the three day affair, which was organized by the Honorable Robert D. Lovett, Secretary of Defense, who gave the welcoming address this morning.

The primary purpose of the Orientation Conference is to acquaint the group with the status and mission of the Department of Defense, in view of the extremely vital part played by the clergy of America in our military establishment.

Panels to Follow

A secondary purpose is to obtain the views of important American religious leaders in this regard.

This morning's session began with a review of the current military and political situation. Panels on the Army, Navy and Air Force by their respective Secretaries and Chiefs of Staff will follow today, tomorrow and Thursday.

Discussions dealing more specifically with moral and religious problems in the military will be included in the conference. Major General John M. Devine, USA, will speak to the group on "Character Guidance Progress in the Armed Forces" and Dr. Sherwood Gates, Office of Community Service Chief, will inform them about the "Civilian Community and Military Installations." Several Chaplains will also address the group.

Noted Catholic Leaders

Among the Catholic leaders expected to attend are His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman, Bishop Fulton J. Sheen and Archbishop John F. O'Hara, new Archbishop of Philadelphia.

Old Textbooks Sell At Reduced Rates

There may be a lot of books around campus that seem as if no one wants them, but John Bauman, Bookstore manager, has a lot he thinks might be of interest to some students.

The volumes are textbooks no longer used in the courses at this College, but which could be useful as reference works in a student's own library. Right now they are gathering dust and taking up space on the bookstore shelves. Bauman is offering them for sale "at very reasonable prices."

This week electrical engineering texts are available, and immediately after the beginning of next semester, texts on other topics will also be on sale.

Muhlenberg Beaten 107-81, As Team Hits Eighth Victory

Worst Defeat in Muhlenberg's History Witnessed by 2600 at Allentown's Rockne Hall; Hennessey Gets 30

By TED SHEEHAN
Sports Editor

Going over the century mark for the first time in two years, the Villanova basketball team crushed Muhlenberg, 107-81, before a jammed crowd of 2,600 at Rockne Gym in Allentown, Pennsylvania, last Saturday night.

It was the Wildcats' eighth win in eleven starts and was high-lighted by Larry Hennessey's 30-point total for the night.

The game broke three records as it was the highest score ever run-up on Muhlenberg, it was the highest score ever made by one team at Rockne Gym and the combined total was the highest for that modern field house, too.

Steve Gepp was second for Villanova with eighteen points via seven field goals and four foul shots. Glassmire and Mooney each had thirteen, apiece.

Villanova led throughout the entire contest as Brennan got the Wildcats away to a 2-0 lead. Stewart and Mooney started hitting and they soon had an 11-6 margin with 3:18 of the first period gone.

Mules Stop Kicking

After this the game ceased to be a contest as the losing Mules could only score 8 more points as the winners were totalling twenty to get a 31-14 first period jump.

Hennessey was unstoppable as he poured shots in from all corners of the court and on many of his shots the ball went straight through without even touching the rims. When Al Severance took him out with seven and a half minutes to go in the game he stood a good chance of breaking his year's high of 37.

Gepp Gets Seven

At the end of the second period Steve Gepp seemed to monopolize the scoring as he sunk a foul and then tallied for three baskets in a row to jump the count from 47-28 to 54-28. The Mules put on their own little drive, and it certainly was, as they countered for only six points and the score read 56-34 at halftime.

Kentucky Grid Game

Although the 1952 football schedule has not been completed, it is certain that Villanova will play Kentucky on September 20th, at Lexington, Kentucky.

It will be the fifth game of a series in which Kentucky has won every encounter. The score of the '51 game was 35-13.

NICK MAGUIRE, Wildcat co-captain, takes to the air with big Bill Heyden of Creighton in an attempt to retrieve Ben Stewart's (20) shot from the banking board. The Main Liners' fourth period spurt gave them a 79-61 victory over the Western five for their seventh victory of the season Wednesday at Palestra.

Track Team Out To Annex Liberty Cup At Inquirer Meet

By Jim Guthrie

The Villanova College track team makes its local appearance at Convention Hall this Friday in the eighth annual "Philadelphia Inquirer" meet.

For the past two years Jim Elliot's boys have run off with the honors in the mile and two mile events. As a matter of fact the Wildcats set the records for both these events last year.

This year the mile foursome of Jim Reardon, Pete Simigan, Joe Gaffany and Steve Hiddin will try to excel the record of 3:24 and thereby annex the Liberty Bell cup. Hiddin, by the way, is a freshman from Andrew Jackson High School in New York and already has shown himself to be tremendous varsity material.

Two Mile Relay

The two mile relay will also try to better their record time of 7:53.8. Led by Artie Klepper, the team also includes Jerry Utter, Bart Moyahan and Guy Speciale.

Ray Wheiler will toe the mark in the John Borican Memorial 1000-yd. run. Joe Gaffney has been invited to run in the 600.

Terrill, Speight Prove Fearsome ... Kukoy to Lead Raleigh Wolfpack

By Joe Corcoran

Villanova's thrice-beaten Wildcats receive an opportunity to vault back into national fame this weekend when coach Everett Case leads his North Carolina State Wolfpack into the Palestra for the opening engagement of the annual home-and-home series.

The Southerners, disappointing victims in three of their eleven contests this winter, will also be attempting to raise their ranking — from the high twenties to the top ten, a spot they normally occupy at this time of the year.

Revenge Operation

The visitors from Raleigh will be under a revenge attack from the Blue and White. Last spring, in the inaugural round of the N.C.A.A. tourney, the Severancemen dropped a five-point decision to the Ranzinoless Wolfpack after having edged them in two earlier meetings.

In the regular season affairs, won by Villanova, 68 to 61 and 66-64 in Raleigh and Philly respectively, "Bad" Sam Ranzino garnered a total of but 14 points against the sterling defensive play of Sammie Glassmire.

Conference Favorites

The Southern Conference titlists, heavy choices, incidentally, to capture their sixth straight league crown, are led, as in the N.C.A.A. playoffs by junior Bill Kukoy. As a substitute for the eligibility-benched Ranzino, Kukoy racked up 27 markers against the Wildcats, and 20 and 22 in the N.C. State losses to Illinois and St. John's.

Lee Terrill, Wolfpack captain and Bobby Speight, 6-7 forward, the returning starters, are bolstered by last year's top reserves, Paul Brandenburg and Bob Cook. Kim Buchanan, who averaged 23 points a game as a frosh, heads the list of tall bench strength.

Larry Top Scorer

Larry Hennessey, top point-maker of the first two entanglements, of the 50-51 campaign, will attempt to repeat his 33 point Palestra effort while 'fundamental' basketeer Sam Glasmire most likely will be assigned the task of guarding Kukoy.

Tapoff in this 'preliminary' clash is set for 7:30 with Penn's Quakers opposing Dartmouth in the afterpiece.

Creighton Downed, 79-61 in Last Period Barrage by Subs

Villanova, maddened by its two game losing streak, finally got on the right path and defeated a good Creighton team, 79-61, in the Palestra last Wednesday night.

Although they were leading at every quarter, the decision was in doubt until the final period when, with the regulars resting, the subs exploded for twenty points to down the visiting Blue Jays.

Larry Hennessey, playing for only 24 minutes, was high man for the victors with seventeen tallies, eleven of them in the first period. Game honors went to the visitors' Ray Yost and his 23-point contribution to the losing cause.

Lead 17 - 14

After trailing 1-0 at the outset on a foul by Paul Gradoville, Villanova piled up a 17-14 quarter lead, mainly with Hennessey's eleven.

Steve Gepp replaced Tom Brennan with three and a half minutes gone in the second quarter. A basket by Ed Cole and the Blue Jays took a 24-23 jump. Stewart tied the count at 24 all with a foul.

Sam Breaks Tie

Sam Glassmire later broke a 26-26 tie with less than five minutes to go in the half, and they were never headed after that point. The halftime score was 39-35.

In the third period Creighton came within 49-45 on two successive field goals by Ray Yost but their march was destined for failure.

3-Man Delegation Back From NCAA Convention

A three man delegation from Villanova, comprising Rev. Edward McKee, William Connelly and Art Raimo, arrived yesterday from Cincinnati, Ohio, where they were attending the National Collegiate Athletic Association Convention.

It was hoped at the convention to fill the remaining open dates on the 1952 football schedule. Among the matters taken up by the conferees were television control for football, post season games, and spring practice.

Wheiler Takes 1,000 Dwyer, Gaffney 3rd In Washington Run

Ray Wheiler's victory in the Touchdown Club's 1,000-yard run, and the third place finishes of Fred Dwyer and Joe Gaffney in the mile and 600, respectively, were the highlights of Villanova's scoring in the fifth annual "Washington Star" games, held last Saturday night, in the nation's capital.

Besides those individual honors, the one mile relay finished in third place and the two mile relay in fourth to round out the evening's board work.

The mile run was a thriller with little Don Gehrmann, formerly of Wisconsin and now the country's premier miler, finally nipping Fred

Seton Hall, Duquesne, N.C. State Pose As Coming Opposition

By Carl Valenti

The Villanova basketball team gets right back to work the day after exams are completed, Saturday, January 26, when Seton Hall and their All-American prospect, Wally Dukes, invade the Palestra, in the feature attraction of the evening. Penn opposes Bainbridge in the opener.

Duke's, 6'11" pivotman, is the tallest man ever to play for the Hall and he is one of the main reasons Coach "Honey" Russell is having a great season. Another is John Ligos whom Russell considers the most dependable on the club.

Duquesne Follows

The following Monday the Mainliners travel to Pittsburgh where they meet Duquesne in the contest that marks the halfway point of the season for Villanova. The Dukes, led by Artie Goldberg, have run through their first eight games without a setback.

Scranton comes into the Field House on Thursday, January 31. The Royals, with only two lettermen from last year, are having their troubles this year, and in their first eleven games they have been abl to salvage only five victories.

N. C. State Again

Once more on the road, the Wildcats visit Raleigh, North Carolina on Saturday, February 2, where they will meet N. C. State in their second duel of the season. Whenever the

INQUIRER MEET TO DRAW TOP RUNNERS

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

The Anicent and Honourable Fraternity of Thinly-Clads will make their only local appearance of the current indoor track season when the "Philadelphia Inquirer" holds its eighth annual banked-track carnival and splinter picking picnic this Friday night at Convention Hall.

As Art Morrow announces daily in his communiques about this coming track millenium, representatives from the various Eastern colleges and clubs, plus all the available track and field headliners will be competing on the Convention Hall boards.

With 1952 being an Olympic year, every meet, every race, every timing takes on added importance as athletes all vie with each other for the most coveted honor they could acquire —a berth on the American Olympic team.

As far as Villanova is concerned, the indoor season began last Saturday night with the running of The "Washington Star" Games. From the results of it Jim Elliot should have a successful season.

Besides the two reliables — Fred Dwyer and John Joe Barry there are now two other runners who deserve more than passing mention, due to their promising showings at the Washington meet.

Wheiler and Gaffney

Ray Wheiler and Joe Gaffney have shown the stuff that stars are made of. Wheiler won the Touchdown Club 1,000-yard run and has put himself in contention for the other cup races that are coming up later in the winter.

Gaffney, a sophomore from Philadelphia, and long talked of by fellow teammates as the boy to fill the vacated shoes of George Guida, was third in the 600-yard run. Joe is primarily a quarter miler but any distance from the 440 to the 600 is in his category.

Coming back to Dwyer, he has now proven himself able to cope with the invitation runners, as his exploit against Don Gerhmann, the nation's best miler, was seen last week. Fred is only twenty years old and has not even come close to reaching his peak.

To return to the Inquirer extravaganza, the entry list reads like a track and field all-star program. A run down of the list of competitors should make every cinder fan whistle.

In the big event of the evening—the Inquirer Mile—will be Fred Wilt of the New York Athletic Club, Don Gerhmann, formerly of Wisconsin and this country's outstanding miler, and Denis Johansson, the phantom Finn from Purdue. Add to this list Alf Holmberg, of Tennessee and Fred Dwyer (judging from his Washington performance).

Browning Ross In Two-Miles

The Lawson Robertson Two-Mile Run will have the Washington winner, Horace Ashenfelter, Curtis Stone and Browning Ross, former Villanovan, now of the Penn Athletic Club. John Joe Barry might sally forth in this event if his health permits but we would not make any predictions on Mr. Barry's maneuvers.

Ray Wheiler will probably get a last minute invitation to the John Borican Memorial 1,000-run on merit for last Saturday night. If he does he will be facing Roscoe Browne of the New York Pioneer Club, Reggie Pearman, formerly of New York University and Bob Chambers. Pearman won this event last year.

The same situation exists with Joe Gaffney in the 600. Although Joe didn't win the event last Saturday night, a third in that field is no disgrace. Running in the event Friday night will be a really star-studded field. Olympian Mal Whitfield, Herb McKinley, George Rhoden, Sam LaBeach, Hugo Maiocco and Cornell's Charley Moore have all accepted bids. In a race with these competitors we're afraid Joe will have to settle for less than third.

In the relays, Villanova will have more than passing interest since they have won both one and two mile relay crowns the past two years. The Wildcat quartet set a record in the one mile event last January, mainly on the sparkling quarter mile that Jim McKenna came through with.

The competition in these two events will be primarily the same that was encountered down in Washington plus the New York teams that were busy with the Metropolitan AAU championship on the same night.

Seton Hall and Morgan State along with Manhattan all have quartets capable of taking the Wildcats in stride. One point about the third place finish last Saturday for the mile relay was that they were running with Dwyer and Gaffney, both of whom had tough assignments earlier in the evening.

Manhattan has about eight runners who could make any mile relay team in the East. The only good thing about the Jasper team as far as Villanova is concerned is that only four of them can be used at once.

Georgetown Strong

In the two mile class, Georgetown is practically unbeatable with their team of Joyce, Boland, Voorhes and LaPierre. The Hoya four will probably take everything in sight that isn't nailed down during the season. Seton Hall also has a good two mile team as does Manhattan and Penn State.

If you are not doing anything this Friday a trip to Convention Hall should prove interesting, and if you are a track fan the meet is a definite must.

I-M Stars Down Lansdale, 70-31; Doms Tie for 1st

By John Gillman

The I-M All-Stars made it three out of three when they trounced Lansdale Catholic High School, 70-31. Beggy, Kirchner, O'Hearn and Hayman all scored in double figures for the Stars.

A League

With Joe Crossin netting 17 and Joe Bogner 15, the Troopers knocked off the Shamrocks, 46-36. Hayman, of the losers, also scored 15.

The Doms tied the Toppers for first place by beating the Mendel 4, 52-40, with Fred Heigl getting 19 points.

B League

The Pistons downed the Characters, 39-30 to remain unbeaten, in spite of Frank Neary's 16 points. Soley was high man for the winners with 9.

The Hustlers also remained in the unbeaten ranks as they beat the Barnacles 57-47. Scully had 17 for the victors while Laughlin got 16 for the Barnacles.

The Engineers took their first win of the season 35-26, over the Bulldogs, as Gallin got 14 points for the slide-rule boys.

Barracks League

This week saw two close ones in the Barracks league. In the first game the Greenhorns knocked the Jersey Jets from the unbeaten list by edging them, 49-47. Durk had 13 for the winners while Loos threw in 18 for a losing cause.

The second game saw the Blue Eagles win their first by just barely squeezing past the Millers, 36-35. DeRenzo netted 16 of the winners' total.

National League

The Viz-Ed's took their fourth win by edging the Vandals, 52-50. Joe Ranieri of the Vandals was high man with 24 points, while Vince Doyle and Florio had 20 and 18 for the winners. Doyle has averaged 25.6 points a game in his last three.

Also in the National league, the Ramcats ran roughshod over the Double E's, 58-25. Tourish and Zimmerman had 15 apiece for the Ramcats.

American League

The Firehouse 5 retained their unblemished record, 49-25, over the Intellectuals, with Tourish netting 17 for the winners. The all losing Intellectuals made it six in a row in their next game, bowing to the Rumrunners, 48-32, as Short and Brannau got 17 and 15 for the Rumrunners.

Seton Hall

Wolfpack and Villanova get together, plenty of action is on hand.

Three nights later Villanova plays host to Boston College at the Palestra. In eleven games, the Eagles have lost but two games, these coming at the hands of Seton Hall and Holy Cross.

Track Team

Two Mile, John Joe Barry represents the blue and white. His main rival in this attraction will be Browning Ross, former Villanova great who now wears the colors of the Penn A. C.

Coach Elliot has entered Fred Dwyer in the Inquirer Mile. The way Dwyer has been running the past few weeks ought to be assurance enough that he'll be among the top few crossing the finish line.

Wheiler

Dwyer on the last turn. Dwyer had sprinted ahead of the field when the gun sounded, announcing the final lap of the race.

Dwyer In Lead

He increased this lead to about five yards and it looked as if the IC4A mile champ was going to score an impressive upset when the Wily Badger put on his famous kick. He nailed Dwyer right on the final turn.

The effort by Dwyer to hold back Gerhmann was costly as Warren Dreutzler, following closely on Don's heels, also passed the tired Dwyer.

In the Touchdown Club 1,000, Ray Wheiler, transfer from Georgetown, and ineligible for Villanova until February, scored his victory in the fast time (for a flat Army floor) of 2:14.9.

Muhlenberg

there was fear that the team would let down as has been the custom lately but they kept steaming right ahead. The closest the Mules could come in that period was a twenty point 66-46 spread but Mooney, Brennan, Glassmire and Hennessey all sunk fouls to widen the breach.

In the fourth period Severance began to put the reserves in, they pelted the now groggy Mules with singular delight.

The 100th point came with about four minutes to go in the game and was made by Frank Stahl, a sophomore from Maysville, Kentucky. The final score read 107-81.

Ray Has No Trouble

Ray had little trouble in annexing his first big race of his collegiate career. His margin of victory was four yards and it could have been even more if the occasion had called Fort. Second was Al Buehler of Maryland and third was Walt Molineux of Brown.

Villanova's third individual star was Joe Gaffney, who finished third in the Evening Star invitation 600-yard run.

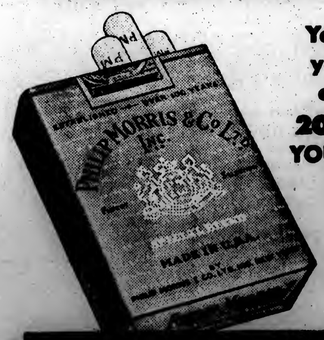
De Sabata to Direct Phila. Orchestra In Program Including 'Apocalypse'

Victor De Sabata, recognized as one of the most eminent of European conductors, will direct the Philadelphia Orchestra's concerts of Friday afternoon, Jan. 18, Saturday evening, Jan. 19. and Monday evening, Jan. 21.

Maestro De Sabata was for more than twenty years chief conductor of La Scala Operá of Milan, and his successes in the symphonic field, especially in recent years, have equalled his operatic triumphs.

He was for three years and more conductor of the world-famous Vienna Philharmonic, and has appeared as guest conductor with every important orchestra in Europe.

De Sabata has chosen a program nicely balancing the conservative and the contemporary, including the first performance anywhere of a new work, "Apocalypse," by Gian-Carlo Menotti — the first purely orchestral work by this talented young composer of "The Consul," "The Telephone" and other successful stage works.



By a curious coincidence, interesting at least to Philadelphians, the main event on De Sabata's program will be the Third ("Rhenish") Symphony of Schumann, inspired by the ceremonies of installing an archbishop at Cologne Cathedral. In view of the recent accession of Archbishop John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., to the archdiocese of Phila., the choice of this symphony is to be a particularly happy one.

300 Couples Attend 'Frolic'

Old Man Winter was lent a helping hand last Friday as 300 Villanovans and their dates turned out for the Jack Frost Frolic. They danced under a "snow flake-studded sky", most of which fell immediately after intermission. Music was furnished by the Villanovans, (five of them.) According to LeRoy Kendall, chairman of the N.F.C.C.S. sponsored dance, the attendance far exceeded expectations.

Students No Longer Get 30 Days To Enlist After Academic Year

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, today announced that Selective Service will not make any special provisions to give students 30 days after the end of their academic year to enlist in the service of their choice.

General Hershey explained that such arrangements are not necessary this year as the 1951 amendments to the Selective Service law provide that students are henceforth to be deferred instead of having their induction postponed. They will, therefore, have ample opportunity after the completion of their academic year to enlist in the service of their choice.

I-S Only Once

The 1951 amendments to the Selective Service Act provide that any student pursuing a full-time course, who was ordered for induction would, if he had never before been deferred as a student, be deferred in Class I-S until the end of his academic year, but he could receive only one such deferment.

Whether a man is classified I-S or II-S, it is a deferred classification, and not a postponement of induction.

Seniors To Elect

Because of Council by-laws which forbid any member from holding more than one seat in the organization, former representative James Gallagher had to relinquish the full-vote seat from the Class when he was named editor of the "Villanovan." Editors of all accredited campus organizations receive half-vote seats on the Council.

Dinner at Broadwood

Reports from the general chairmen of the three Senior Weekend functions are also to be given to the class. The weekend, with the Senior Dinner-Dance at the Broadwood Hotel, will begin Thursday, February 21, the eve of Washington's birthday, a free day. Thomas Pasha is chairman of this function.

The following night Robert Beers will present the Belle Air Ball, with music by Charlie Spivak, in the Field House. Saturday night of the weekend the Villanova basketball team faces Duquesne in the Palestra, and Sunday night brings the Main Line Symphony Orchestra to the Field House for a program of "pops" music.

Further details concerning tickets and other arrangements for these functions will be released in this paper after they are disclosed at Thursday's Class meeting.

Chamberlin Strikes New Deal, Russian Threats, In Lecture

By Dick Winfield

An outspoken survey of world politics with emphasis on the Soviet threat and New Deal bungling in meeting it comprised the evening's fare at the Commerce and Finance Auditorium last Thursday, when William Henry Chamberlin outlined "How We Lost the Peace." The address marked the third presentation of the Villanova Forum headed by Mr. Charles Bruderle.

Mr. Chamberlin, who observed the critical period of Communist Russia's development between 1922 and 1934, as foreign correspondent for the "Christian Science Monitor," pictured the enemy as presenting a triple threat to world security.

Eurasian Empire

He stated that Russia controls a "huge Eurasian empire,, the largest since the time of Genghis Khan, embracing the Soviet Union, China and one half of Europe, the satellite nations." Through terrorism and propaganda, he asserted, wholesale human slavery has been revived by Communism.

Perverted Ideas

Soviet Communism's threat as an idea, propagated by "an involuntary fifth column, so fanatical, so perverted to betray its own country," was stressed by Mr. Chamberlin.

The Red menace evinced in internal subversion in non-Communist governmets, especially through front organizations merits special attention and action, according to Mr. Chamberlin.

Numerous Blunders

"America's blunders in maintaining the peace," he said, "was typified at Yalta with appalling abandon of all the ideas of the Atlantic Charter.

WM. HENRY CHAMBERLIN, center, speaker at last Thursday's Forum, discusses post-war developments with Mr. Charles P. Bruderle, forum chairman, and Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A.

Other mistakes in U. S. policy as seen by Mr. Chamber included: Allied failure to capture Berlin and Prague; bribing Stalin to enter the Japanese war; a naive Roosevelt administration which concentrated too exclusively on the immediate enemy; depended upon Stalin as an ultimate friend; and the failure of the New Deal to use experts on Russia, depending upon the hunches of Stettinius, Hopkins and Alger Hiss.

U. S. Morally Stronger

Concluding with an appeal for alliances with non-Communist nations, use of psychological warfare, and a U. S. declaration nullifying the Yalta and Potsdam agreements, Mr. Chamberlin declared us morally stronger having a devotion that totalitarianism can never achieve.

See Name Band For Junior Prom

"Negotiations for a Junior Prom band are underway," according to Don Brown, chairman of the event. Brown added that he hoped "to be able to make an announcement in the near future concerning the acquisition of a 'name band' for the Prom."

Brown, in his first report on the Prom activities, annually the highlight of Junior Week, stated that the theme would be released in the Junior Week edition of this paper. As far as he and the committee members know, the theme has never been used at a college dance before.

According to the chairman, the ticket committee is "extremely optimistic." Brown commented that, "from all indications we can discern, the sale of tickets will pass the six hundred mark with room to spare."

Tickets for the Prom this year are $6, going on sale about the first week in April.

Prom, Dinner Dance Tickets Now On Sale

Preparations for Senior Weekend activities moved into high gear this week as tickets for the Senior Dinner-Dance February 21 and Belle Air Ball February 22 went on sale in the Pie Shop and other points on campus.

Ticket Chmn. Joseph Mascuch of the Belle Air Ball and Paul Pirhalla of the Dinner-Dance reported early returns heavy, indicating capacity attendance at both functions of the annual Senior Class celebration.

Pirhalla is currently in the Pie Shop from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. daily, selling invitations and accepting table reservations for groups of four couples at each table in the main ballroom of the Broadwood hotel in midtown Philadelphia.

All tables must be reserved before the evening of the event, and must be paid for at the time reservations are made, he advised. Invitations are $7.50 per couple.

On the night before the Washington's Birthday school holiday, the Dinner-Dance will present Leo Zollo and his orchestra for dancing, and a combo from the orchestra for dinner music. Dinner will start promptly at 7:30 p. m.

Changes In The Draft Law Affect Standing Of Students

Shortly before deadline time for last edition, the "Villanovan" received a four page statement from Major General Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, "clarifying" the draft law.

As is the case with most such statements, it was written in language that could be interpreted only by a lawyer and we could print it only in part. The Associated Collegiate Press, however, has broken it down to understandable language for us, and here, briefly, is how things stand:

There will be no more postponements, only deferments. That is, students who are called up for induction will be deferred until the end of the academic year. But students in this situation will be Granted only one deferment—after that they must enter the service.

"Don't Get Shook"

Gen. Hershey says that a student who gets his induction orders shouldn't get panicky. All he has to do is ask his dean to tell the local board that he (the student) is doing satisfactory work, and that this work began before he got his induction notice.

But remember: enrollment, acceptance and registration don't count. The important thing is actual attendance at classes.

Another Angle

The classification described above is called 1-S. There is also a 2-S classification. This deferment may be renewed each year, thus permitting the student to finish college before "going in." A 1-S de-

Debating Society Announces Plans For Seven Meets

Beta Gamma, Villanova's Debating Society, announced its schedule for the semester last week, which will be highlighted by participation in the Intercollegiate Debating Tournament in March.

Dr. Joseph J. Jonas, the group's moderator, reported that the activity for the semester will get underway Thursday, February 14. On that date Mr. Walter Klein, a new member of the college Economics faculty, will address the members on facts pertinent to the national question for collegiate debating. The question this year is: Resolved—That the Federal Government Should Set Up a National System of Price Controls.

In Washington

February 29 will be the second "big" date for the society. Beta Gamma will journey to Georgetown University of Washington on that day to engage the debating team of the foreign service school of Georgetown.

The Intercollegiate Tournament March 7, in Brooklyn, is next on the agenda for the Local Orchestra To Present Program In Field House

By T. A. Pasha

Curtains of the Field House stage will be raised on one of the most outstanding and entertaining musical programs ever to be presented at the Villanova Playhouse Sunday evening, February 24. On that night both the students and friends of Villanova will have an opportunity to hear The Main Line Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Louis Vyner.

The orchestra, a prominent Main Line function, will give its musical interpetations of selections from the works of Wagner, Mozart, Tschaikowsky, and Verdi, in a well planned, cultural program which will be educational as well as entertaining.

Conductor of this fine musical organization, Louis Vyner, has devoted his career to the formation and direction of community orchestras after a very successful and outstanding musical debut.

Mr. Vyner is a graduate of Curtis Institute of Music of Philadelphia and has distinguished himself by his close relationships as both violinist and director with Stokowski, Fritz Reiner, and Emil Mlynarski.

LOUIS VYNER
Main Line Symphony Conductor

He has conducted the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company and the National Youth Orchestra of Philadelphia. Mr. Vyner also had the distinction of being the first American to conduct the Warsaw Philharmonic Orchestra in Poland, one of the oldest orchestras in Europe.

Included on the program will be Miss Angela Giordano and Mr. Jan Gbur, two soloists who have achieved fame through their award-winning "Voice of Tomorrow" triumps, and their work in the operatic and concert fields.

Miss Giordano attended the Julliard School of Music in

Larry Hennessey Tops 1000 Mark As Junior Ace Eyes Arizin's Total

By Joe Corcoran

Unreeling a 16 point effort, Larry Hennessey, lanky junior forward of the Blue and White, climaxed his heralded "1,000-point" spree against the University of Scranton on Jan. 31st at the field house.

Unceremoniously held to a single foul marker as the Severance-men were thumped by Duquesne two nights earlier, Hennessey garnered his 11th tally of the night and the one-thousandth of his short collegiate career in the opening minutes of the third session of the Scranton fray.

SECOND 1000 POINT SCORER in Villanova's court history, Larry Hennessey receives congratulations and is presented with the ball by the four other members of the starting five after he topped the 1000 mark in one and a half seasons.

Jr. Blazer Orders Taken This Week

Bob Quin, chairman of the Blazer Committee, announced today that measurements will be taken tomorrow and Thursday for Junior Blazers. Fittings will take place in 112 Alumni between the hours of 1 p. m. and 4 p. m.

Majestic Clothes of Philadelphia, the firm producing the Blazers, requests a deposit of $5.00. The balance of the total cost which is $26.50 will be due on delivery. The firm also announced that any style is available and an extra plain patch pocket will be included with the Blazer. The delivery date is uncertain, but Quin said the latest date will be about a month after the orders are taken.

I'm The Jerk

I'm the jerk who drives my bucket of bolts to school every day, and instead of leaving it in one of the parking lots, I clutter up the campus roads by parking it outside the building where I've got classes. Sure, I can see the "No Parking" signs all over the place, but I park on campus anyhow. It's not that I'm lazy, just that I hate to walk all the way from the parking lot.

I know the campus roads are just about two lanes wide. And if I park in one lane it makes two-way traffic practically impossible. But if a driver doesn't enjoy an occasional game of wrinkle-fender he shouldn't have a license. And if the vehicle coming the other way happened to be a fire engine or an ambulance speeding to an emergency on campus, that would be so much more sport.

I get a big kick out of putt-putting up behind a big group of guys walking on the roads between classes. If I can get right on their heels without them hearing me, I give them a big blast on the horn. They jump out of their shoes . . . books fly . . . great fun. And on rainy days when I can splash mud on the same guys, it really makes coming to school worth while.

Of course, I know that all this can't last, because some day I'll get fined five bucks for breaking campus parking restrictions, and when that happens I'll be the guy to cry the loudest. Or when the tow truck surprises the campus some day, I'll do everything but put my head under its wheels to keep it from dragging my heap out to Wayne.

But until that happens, I'm not particularly worried about how much inconvenience I cause, about the fines or towtruck because—you know me—I'm the jerk.

One Giant Step

It's been so long since anything pleasant could be said about semester registrations that we've discreetly withheld comment. By after seeing the improvements put into effect for registration this semester, we couldn't help offering kudos to the men in the administration who brought them about.

What formerly had been a three or four hour ordeal on registration day was this time a matter of breezing through in twenty or thirty minutes. And to our understanding, there are even more improvements in the planning stages to make registration simpler, more convenient and agreeable process.

College deans and officials took one giant step at the recent registration. May we express the student appreciation and encouragement by telling all those responsible for this improvement, "You may take as many giant steps of that sort as you please."

Take a Notice

At the bottom of this column you'll find a letter written by an irate member of the cheerleading squad who is trying to stir up a little of the spirit that has been sorely lacking at basketball games. And our correspondent has every reason to be irate—as a member of the student body you ought to know why.

Thiis lack of spirit as shown in the student cheering is far from being a new problem, but lately it has sunk a new depths. The fault is hardly to be placed entirely on the student body, since it has been a long time since cheerleaders have made as much effort as Mister Tomonto is exerting.

But now you have some positive action. So how about making your own effort to support the eager cheerleader—and at the same time give the team the loud and sincere encouragement that you ought to be doing?

LETTERS

Where's The Spirit?

February 4, 1952

Dear Editor:

Prior to World War II Villanova was a relatively small college with an enrollment never exceeding 900 students. Then with the influx of military personnel here for training, the college assumed today's proportions.

Villanova possesses all the qualities of a good Catholic college. We have a fine campus, learned faculty, and more then adequate physical equipment. But the student body has noticeably lagged in this evolution from a small to large institution.

No one can deny that our administration has worked tirelessly to give us a continuous line of good athletic teams. In every field of endeavor Villanova occupies a niche far larger then our size would warrant.

Yet, even with this, the student body remains a spiritless group of school boys. There is a noticeable lack of enthusiasm for our teams, whether they are ranked nationally or not.

It means a great deal to a team to play before a packed house who is zealously backing them to the hilt. A player gets a great lift when the crowd roars after a tricky jump shot.

A little spirit could turn a talented basketball team with everything but a winning way into a powerful quintet.

In the few remaining weeks of the court season let us hope that the student body will roar its approval of a fine team from the first moment they appear on the court until the final buzzzer. The cheer leaders will be at the games. All they ask is a little cooperation.

Remember it is not too late to start a practice that will help to make your team a winning team.

Catholic Press Month

February Raises Short Question: 'What Magazine Do You Read, Sir?'

By Bob Steiner

Most people look upon February as the shortest month of the year and as the month in which the feast of St. Valentine is celebrated. However, for apostolic-minded Catholics, February is recognized as the period of the year designated specifically as Catholic Press Month.

Its supporters hope that during the twenty-nine days of February more people will become acquainted with Catholic periodicals and that their acquaintance will be continued and strengthened throughout the year.

Wide Variety

For Catholic college men there is a wide variety of Catholic magazines which are ideally suited to their particular scholastic needs and interests.

AMERICA, a Jesuit publication, aims to give its readers a weekly survey of the news with a balanced Catholic interpretation of current events. It contains editorials and articles on events and problems of current public interest: national and international affairs, education, population, rural life, liturgical movement, etc.

Book Reviews

It presents weekly articles on some phase of literature; meditations on the Gospel of the Mass; critical analysis of presentations on stage and screen; and reviews of books of present-day interest.

COMMONWEAL is a journal of Catholic opinion edited by Catholic laymen. It features a wide range of writers including many outstanding Catholic thinkers.

Explains Catholic Way

For a magazine which has vigor, youth and originality INTEGRITY is recommended. Edited by militant lay Catholics it points out false ideals in modern living and explains the Catholic way of life. It has many devoted friends and many vehement critics.

THOUGHT, published by the Graduate School of Fordham University, is a scholarly review of particular interest to graduate students in philosophy, letters, and social science.

For a critical appraisal of the latest books, reviewed from a Catholic viewpoint, BOOKS-ON-TRIAL is valuable.

Varied Reading

The CATHOLIC DIGEST provides a wide variety of wholesome and interesting reading gleaned from Catholic and non-Catholic publications. In a brief time this magazine has attained world-wide popularity and is published in English; five foreign launguages and Braille.

A popular illustrated magazine featuring fiction and current national developments is THE SIGN. Included among its many attractive features is a section devoted to a review of current movies, stage plays, radio and TV programs.

The magazines just mentioned are but a few of the many excellent Catholic publications. The Library Periodical Room has a wide a varied selection. For further information consult the Catholic Periodical Index.

Inside Look At Two Seniors Plotting To Make Ends Meet For Weekend

By Joe Mascuch

My room-mate and I have given up smoking, drinking, playing cards and eating in the Diner in our campaign to save money. We realized that the weekend "to live" is just eight days away and we had our accounting majors look over our books. They aren't balanced. All told, we owe three dollars. This is not enough "to live" on.

Our expenditures were a bit high for Junior Week last year, so we know what we are up against. The rising cost of living isn't helping us either.

Fedigan Is Barren

Just a peek at the future reveals increased costs. Last year our dates had beautiful corsages of Father Handran's tulips, but nothing is blooming front of Fedigan right now. We won't know for sure about this problem until we check the Botany Lab.

We were sports last May, but this year we'll have to economize. No staying at the Y.W.C.A. for the girls this time. We have a swell room picked out for them in a hotel near the city dump.

The girls will be here for four days too, so we won't be able to take them to Dewey's for all their meals. (Anyone know where you can get a good ham sandwich for fifteen cents?) We must cut corners somewhere.

My room-mate is a clever kid, and he set his mind to solving our problem. He thinks we may come out of the whole thing with our shirts. If we can pull a few strings, we may be able to check coats between dances at the Prom.

First of all, we're going to see if we can get a job waiting on tables the night of the Dinner Dance. (We have Union cards.) We could set up a special little table in the kitchen for our dates. It would make the whole affair more homey.

Really Living'

If the girls will chip in on the gas and we can get our blue suits cleaned, we can make it.

Roomie is very socially minded he just has to give a party after each of the affairs. A Day-hop friend of ours has a swell house in Philly, so we have the place already picked out. Yes sir, we're going to live!

Panel Guest At Annual Career Talks

MOST PROVOCATIVE speaker of last Thursday's Career Conference was Mr. Gordon M. Burlingame, vice-president of the Bryn Mawr Trust Co. On the panel for the afternoon session dealing with "Government Service as a Career," Mr. Burlingame offered the opinion of private industry, as contrasted to Congressman James' expression of the government viewpoint.

PASHA THE PIT

By "Yankee" Pasha

LOOKY I GOT ME A JOB: There was an excellent turn-out for the career conference last Thursday despite the fact that there were no admirals, generals, or majors present to give the men an idea of what they can expect at their interviews for future jobs . . . The chairman of the first session was quite put out about the question sent up to the rostrum by a student of realism—"When do we eat?"—

Of course, the gentleman had every reason to show concern at such a question. However, was it any more ridiculous than the others which asked such formal and important questions as—"Should I wear a bow tie or a fore-in-hand?" or "Should I take the initiative and shake the interviewer's hand?"

MAKE MINE ESSLINGER'S: Esslinger's (If you'll pardon the expression) Brewery is holding a contest which will find theh most outstanding player on the Philadelphia Warriors. . . . Since Villanova's "Greatest" is a member of this outfit we thought it would be appropriate for him to win this distinction. . . . Paul Arizin, of course is the man deserving of the award if any is to be given at all so let's all vote for the "Tall One" . . .

Just send a two-cent post card to Esslinger's, Chestnut Street, Philadelphia. We're sure that all those who remember Paul's Villanova court escapades will send in their vote as soon as possible.

PICTURE PICKING: During the vacation, the editor of this fabulous leading campus weekly and several of his cohorts had an opportunity to preview a picture entitled "For Men Only" . . . It concerns the running of frat houses on the campuses of the United States . . . It might readily be called "Take Care of My Little Boy" . . . It involves everything from hazing to murder and is certainly to involved to be enjoyed.

SENIOR SERENADE: The Senior Weekend is on the way, complete with all the trimmings that make such a social event outstanding as a last "fling" . . . It will open with the dinner-dance at the Broadwood on Feb. 21, continue with THE outstanding prom in Villanova history on Feb. 22, and finally end with the Duquesne game on the 23rd and the Main Line Symphony concert on the 24th . . .

These along with the various parties interwoven should have everyone in a gay mood for the following week of classes. Tickets for these affairs will be on sale in the Pie-Shop and Mendel Hall starting today . . . Everyone is invited to the Senior Week-end.

SURROUNDING SITES: Roseymont will have its annual pre-prom dance this week-end in the gym at the little place 'cross the PRR tracks . . . It will give everyone a chance to get acquainted before the social season really gets under way . . . There are some outstanding numbers in stock at this institution and all are advised to attend . . .

The Sophomores of Immaculata held a very successful Cotillion on Friday night . . . The gals finally had a chance to go to the city for an evening after milking cows all day.

At Chestnuut Hill the gals are preparing to greet the Villanova Band which will appear there in the near future. . . . Rumor has it that the vegetables have been put away along with the eggs and that all is in readiness for the concert appearance.

ST. PATRICK AND PHILLY: New York will have a rival in its endeavor to surpass all the world in its St. Patrick's Day parade . . . March 17th will find Philadelphia turned out enmasse for it's first Irish jig . . .

All the parochial schools in Quaker Town will turn out for a walk up the main drag . . . Villanova will be represented by its marching band and quite possibly by its Naval contingent . . . By the way, has anyone seen Irish Sweepstake tickets being passed around the campus? This is not gambling but investing in a worthy cause.

Lectures At Conference Predict Bright Prospects

Bright prospects for job futures and excellent opportunities in government service were proposed last Thursday for more than 400 members of Villanova's graduating class at the third annual Career Conference. Heading the list of more than one hundred impressive industrial, educational and professional leaders participating in the day-long sessions in the Commerce and Finance Auuditorium, was the Honorable Benjamin F. James (R.-Pa.).

Congressman James' address formed the keynote of some lively discussion during the afternoon session on "Government Service as a Career."

Discussion of the "Interview" highlighted the morning session of the Conference sponsored annually by George A. Harris, College placement director. Its purpose is to bring to the members of the graduating class firsthand information that will be useful to them when they leave school to seek employment.

Gov't Employs 2¼ Million

Citing the fact that the United States government is the world's greatest employer with two and a quarter million people people on its payrolls, Congressman James declared that government service offers to the young man opportunity, compensation and security which would not be available from any source of private industry.

His Honor is representative from the Seventh Congressional District and a neighbor to the Villanova campus.

"Soul Satisfying" Job

Congressman James' conclusion that there is no more "soul satisfying" job available than one in government service was given testimony by another member of the panel, John H. King, assistant chief in the Examining and Placement division of the Third U. S. Civil Service Region. Mr. King, a self-styled "ten year bureaucrat," bore out the Congressman's statement concerning integrity and opportunity in government service.

"Bombshell" Introduced

At this point a speech by an outstanding representative of private industry, Gordon M. Burlingame, vice-president of the Bryn Mawr Trust Company, presented what might have been a bombshell in the discussion.

CONGRESSMAN BENJAMIN F. JAMES, center, the featured speaker, George A. Harris, who arranged the conference; and Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A.

Refuting in part Congressman James' statements, Mr. Burlingame expressed his dismay at the apparent mediocrity in government which is considered by private enterprise as "a competing industry."

Enter Through Politics

Mr. Burlingame said that too many people today look for the rewards of government service before considering the concomitant contribution which must be made by the employee. Expressing belief that there is still such a thing as a "ruugged individualist," the speaker advised students to enter government from the political side, if at all, and not to "be satisfied with any job because it offers a pension."

Following this the Controller of the American Pulley Company, W. Randle Mitchell, reviewed the services offered by government to private industry.

President of the Middle Atlantic Placement Association, George N. P. Leetch, asked for students to consider government employment in the same light they would look on employment in private industry.

Resolution of the short-lived debate came from Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., assistant dean and chairman of the panel. Father Boyle recalled "a principle taught to Villanova students daily, the Catholic viewpoint that an honest day's wages demands and honest day's work."

Morehouse Chairman

The morning session of the interview, chairmaned by J. Stanley Morehouse, dean of Villanova's Engineering school, brought to the platform Fred W. Slantz, placement director of Lafayette College; George B. Thom, chairman of mechanical engineering department, Newark College of Engineering; C. Sumner Davis of Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Raymond A. Lesseig, of Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co.; J. S. Parkinson of Johns-Manville Research Center; and Edgar M. Stover, of Scovell, Wellington and Co.

Chem. Department Appoints Two Men To Teaching Staff

The Chemistry Department today announced the appointment of two new members to its staff. Newly assigned to teaching positions are Doctor Robert J. Brumbaugh of the Foote Mineral Company, Berwyn, Penna., and Mr. Frederick Forsgard of the University of Pennsylvania.

Doctor Braumbaugh received his doctorate at Penn and will serve as a part-time assistant in General Chemistry. Mr. Forsgard, who is continuing his work toward his doctorate will also aid the department in teaching Quantative Analysis.

Publication of the doctoral thesis of a member of the Chemistry Department staff was announced today. The Journal of the American Chemical Society published the work of Dr. Koob, written in conjunction with J. G. Miller and A. R. Day, entitled "Effect of Structure on Reactivity. V. The Amine Catalyzed Deadolization of Diacetone Alcohol." Dr. Koob explained that the material will aid in giving theoretical basis to organic reaction.

Talk on Railroads To Marketing Club

"The Role of Railroads in Marketing Today" with emphasis on defense mobilization, will be the topic discussed by a representative of the Eastern Railroads Presidents Conference at a meeting of the Marketing Club in the Commerce and Finance auditorium. The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, February 14, at 3:00 p. m.

Plans for the Marketing Club field trip to be held during the week of Feb. 25 will also be discussed at the meeting, according to Bert Sellier, Marketing Club president.

Draft Law

ferment on the other hand is a "one year" deal.

How does one get a 2-S deferment? Well, getting a score of 70 or better on the selective service college qualification test helps a lot. So does being in the upper portion of the class. Draft boards take both these points into consideration when passing out classifications.

Still Another

General Hershey says students who meet one or both of these qualifications can appeal to their state appeal board if they don't get a 2-S rating. Furthermore, 1-S ratings can be switched, in some cases, to a 2-S at the end of the academic year.

What about enlistments? The Army, Navy and Air Force have agreed not to accept any man for enlistment after he has been called for his pre-induction physical. "Most students", says Hershey, "completing their academic year in 1952 will have ample opportunity to join the service of their choice."

'150' Schedule Has Rutgers, Penn At Home; B C Eagles Checked, 72-67, In Palestra

'Cats Weather BC's Last Period Surge For No. Thirteen

Last Saturday night at the Palestra in the first game of a doubleheader, the Villanova Wildcats turned back a fight-Boston College team by the score of 72-67.

Steve Gepp was a surprise starter in place of Tom Brennan and performed notably off the backboards, although garnering only six points. Villanova dominated the boards and many of the shots by B. C. were wild heaves at the basket.

In the early moments, both teams were off in their shooting, but with the score tied at 6-6, Sam Glassmire duced two one-handers and the Wildcats were never again headed.

Jack Moran and Tony Daukas entered the Boston College lineup just before the end of the quarter and nearly sparked the Eagles to victory. Villanova led at the end of the first quuarter, 17-9.

33-31 Half Lead

Paced by the fine scoring of Daukas from the pivot, the Eagles gradually chopped down the Wildcats' lead and halftime found them trailing by only two points, 33-31. Ben Stewart kept Villanova in the game with twelve points in the first half.

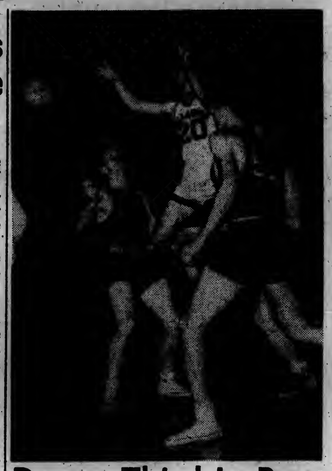
Starting the second half, Daukas bucketed three straight jump shots and Moran threw in a set to build up the pressure on the Wildcats. With four minutes remaining in the quarter, Villanova led 42-39 and the outcome was still very much in doubt.



Larry Tries Again

Then, Larry Hennessey, who had been inept in the first half, started to hit in spectacular fashion, blowing the game wide open as he connected on seven successive attempt. Boston College was behind at the end of the third quarter, 52-45.

The Wildcats spurted to a fourteen point lead as Hennessey, Gepp, and Bob Schafer each scored two baskets. The Eagles' pressure tactics began to pay off in points as they fouled repeatedly in a frantic effort to gain possession.

Dwyer Third In Baxter Mile; Mile Relay Second In 3:23:7

A second place for the mile relay, plus a third for Fred Dwyer in the Baxter Mile, counterbalanced by a last for Ray Wheiler in the Halpin 880, sums up the aactivities of Villanova at The New York Athletic Club's annual indoor games, at Madison Square Garden, last Saturday night.

Fred ran his usual good race, getting to the first turn in second place and staying there until the last seventy yards. The lithe junior trailed Joe LaPierre of Georgetown for the first half by two strides. Fred was clocked in 60.6 and 2:04.7 for the quarter and half.

Dwyer Sticks

By this time Fred Wilt was coming along and took the lead from LaPierre, with Dwyer right at his heels. With a lap to go, Wilt, Dwyer and Gerhmann (in that order) took off and it was not until the last half lap that Gerhmann was able to nip the Villanova junior. Dwyer's time was 4:14 as compared to the winning 4:10:4 effort.

Ray Wheiler, getting his times mixed, arrived at the Garden five minutes before the start of the Halpin 880 and had to pass up practise. The last place finiish was the worst the bespectacled sophomore has run in a cup race.

The mile relay of Jim Reardon, Guy Speciale, Pete Simigan and Joe Gaffney came second behind Seton Hall. Their time was 3:23:7.

Nationals Draw Track Team To Garden Saturday Night

By Jim Wrzesinski

Villanova will enter Madison Square Garden this Saturday with a thirst for the sweet nectar of victory when they compete in the National Amateur Athletic Union Indoor Track and Field Championships. This engagement will be the third of five Garden meets.

Fred Duels Wilt, Gerhmann

Fred Dwyer will again carry his old worn spikes to the scene of another battle among the three best milers in the country today. He promises to give Fred Wilt and Don Gerhmann a real run for their money. Add to this splendid array Denis Johansson, the Finn from Purdue, and you can see quite a battle shaping up.

In the mile relay Villanova will enter a team that will probably consist of Joe Gaffney, Pete Simigan, Jim Reardon, and Guy Speciale. They will meet formidable opposition from crack Manhattan, Seton Hall, and Fordham squads, Jim Reardon, on the squad last year, made a great showing for his quarter.

In the shot put Cummin Clancy will attempt to upset the World's Champion, Jim Fuchs. The blind and courageous Bill Bangert will display the form and prowress he showed very often while at Missouri.

Barry In Three-Mile Run

The unpredictable John Joe Barry will again be present to carry the Blue and White colors into the three-mile run. John came in third last year in the same race. This year he will be up against Curtis Stone and Horace Ashenfelter.

Ray Wheiler will run again in the 1000 aginst Roscoe Browne, Mal Whitefield, and Reggie Pearman.

Princeton, Cornell And Navy Away; First Game On Oct. 17

By TED SHEEHAN,
Sports Editor

Home games with Rutgers on October 17, and Pennsylvania on the seventh of November, plus away contests with Princeton, Cornell and Navy comprise the 1952 football schedule for the 150-lb. team.

According to the Villanova Athletic Office, which last week released this schedule, the dates for the away games are: Oct. 25—Princeton, Nov. 1—Cornell; and Nov. 14—Navy.

No Coach Yet

Although the schedule has been announced and all other plans are rapidly taking shape, there is still no word on the identity of the 1952 coach. (During the last year of the school's participance in the league—1950—Jack McConville held the tutoring reigns, but he has since graduated.)

In the scheduling, Villanova seems to have a slight advantaeg in that they are opening the season at home with Rutgers and will not play the toughest team in the circuit—Navy—until the last game of the season.

After opening at home against Rutgers, they will travel to the sacred sod (for football, anyway) of Old Nassau to tackle the baby Tigers of Princeton. In their last meetings, the Kittens trounced Rutgers, 26-0, but dropped a close one to Princeton, 31-26.

Cornell Lost, 7-0

A weekend at Cornell is next on the list. The Big Red are always dangerous and playing the game at Ithaca is no help. In their last contest, Villanova got by, 7-0.

Pennsylvania is the second home game of the season and if 1950 is any criterion the little Red and Blue shouldn't be too tough (they lost 38-0).

Navy Game Last

The season's finale will come on November 14, when the Middies of Navy play host to the Kittens on the Severn. Navy is always rugged and hold a 49-12 win in their last match.

The Easter Intercollegiate 150-pound Football League, of which Bill Connelly is president, has been running since 1934. There was no competition during '43-'45, and since then Navy has won the league championship every year except 1949, when the Villanova Kittens copped first honors.

Blue Hens Pecked By Tune of 68-61; Larry Scores 22

By Tom Egan

Threatened with a major upset by a hustling band of Blue Hens from Delaware, the Villanova Wildcats came from an early deficit, and held off a determined rally in the waning moments of the final quarter to win, 68-61, in a game played at the Field House last Wednesday night.

Hens Jump to Early Lead

The Delaware team, minus the services of their high-scoring forward, Ray Crawford, suprised everyone by jumping to an early lead in the first period. The Wildcats finally caught up on the scoring of Ben Stewart and led at the quarter, 17-14.

The two teams exchanged baskets throughout the second quarter, which ended on a long one-hander by Stewart, 35-33.

Delaware was hampered by whistle-happy referees and it became evident as the game wore on that several of them would foul out. The opening minutes of the third quarter followed the same pattern of the second quarter.

Louisville Returns To Palestra Sat., Rider Tomorrow

By Carl Valenti

Tomorrow night, Villanova plays host to the Rider College basketball team in the Field House. It was this same Rough Rider quintet that gave the Wildcats some anxious minutes last year before succumbing 62-48. This will be the only meeting of the two teams this year.

If they have a good night, the boys from Trenton might very well make things interesting for the Serverancemen.

The University of Louisville will meet Villanova in their second meeting of the season on Saturday, February 16 in the Palestra. In the nightcap, the University of Pennsylvania will engage the United States Naval Academy.

Changes on '45 Roster

Roger Mahan, sophomore from New Haven, Connecticut, has been added to the rooster of the varsity basketball team. Mahan played for Cheshire Academy before coming to Villanova.

Other changes on the team's rooster occured when Horst Klueger left to join the Navy, John Imgrund transfered to Stetson University and Frank Stahal left school.

NFCCS Plans Summer Tours To Europe For Collegians

Five student tours to Europe, sponsored jointly by the National Newman Club Federation and the National Federation of Catholic College Students, are available to Villanova students in 1952, according to Joseph Mullen, president of the Villanova NFCCS chapter.

Mullen stated that the tours arranged by the American Express—Catholic College Travel League, have been selected to fit school vacations.

Tour "A" will set off from New York, June 17, aboard the R.M.S. Mauretania. It includes stops at Cobh, Killarney and Dublin, Ireland; London, England; and Paris and Cherbourg, France. The price of this trip is $552.

Tour "B", which leaves from New York July 9 on the R.M.S. Queen Mary, will include visits to France, Italy and Switzerland. Cherbourg and Paris in France, Rome and Florence in Italy, and Montreux and Geneva in Switzerland, are on the itinerary. The round trip minimum fare for this excursion is $729.

Paris and Rome

The third tour, Tour "C", will embark from New York August 6. The Queen Elizabeth will transport the voyagers to Cherbourg from whence they will train to Paris. Venice, Florence, Rome, Naples, and Nice are also on the schedule of this tour. The minimum fare is $771.

Tour "D" will get underway from New York June 17, sailing in the R.M.S. Mauretania. It includes visits to France, Spain and Gibraltar. An interesting stop on this trip will be at the Shrine of Our Lady at Lourdes. Madrid and Seville are also on the itinerary. $321 is the minimum for this trip.

Return Trips

Tour "A" will return to New York on July 8, aboard the Queen Mary. Tour "B" makes its return August 12, the Mauretania doing the transporting. Tour "C", returning on the Queen Elizabeth, gets back to New York September 9. Tour "D" returns July 21, via the S.S. Independence.

The fifth tour, Tour "E", is a tour of Canada. August 20-26 are the dates of this tour, which has not yet had a minimum price set. Montreal and Quebec are on the list for this one.

Mullen said that all students at Villanova, interested in any of the tours, should contact him if they wish any further details about the trips.

Chem. Department Appoints Two Men To Teaching Staff

The Chemistry Department today announced the appointment of two new members to its staff. Newly assigned to teaching positions are Doctor Robert J. Brumbaugh of the Foote Mineral Company, Berwyn, Penna., and Mr. Frederick Forsgard of the University of Pennsylvania.

Doctor Braumbaugh received his doctorate at Penn and will serve as a part-time assistant in General Chemistry. Mr. Forsgard, who is continuing his work toward his doctorate will also aid the department in teaching Quantative Analysis.

Publication of the doctoral thesis of a member of the Chemistry Department staff was announced today. The Journal of the American Chemical Society published the work of Dr. Koob, written in conjunction with J. G. Miller and A. R. Day, entitled "Effect of Structure on Reactivity. V. The Amine Catalyzed Deadolization of Diacetone Alcohol." Dr. Koob explained that the material will aid in giving theoretical basis to organic reaction.

Talk on Railroads To Marketing Club

"The Role of Railroads in Marketing Today" with emphasis on defense mobilization, will be the topic discussed by a representative of the Eastern Railroads Presidents Conference at a meeting of the Marketing Club in the Commerce and Finance auditorium. The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, February 14, at 3:00 p. m.

Plans for the Marketing Club field trip to be held during the week of Feb. 25 will also be discussed at the meeting, according to Bert Sellier, Marketing Club president.

Draft Law

ferment on the other hand is a "one year" deal.

How does one get a 2-S deferment? Well, getting a score of 70 or better on the selective service college qualification test helps a lot. So does being in the upper portion of the class. Draft boards take both these points into consideration when passing out classifications.

Still Another

General Hershey says students who meet one or both of these qualifications can appeal to their state appeal board if they don't get a 2-S rating. Furthermore, 1-S rattings can be switched, in some cases, to a 2-S at the end of the academic year.

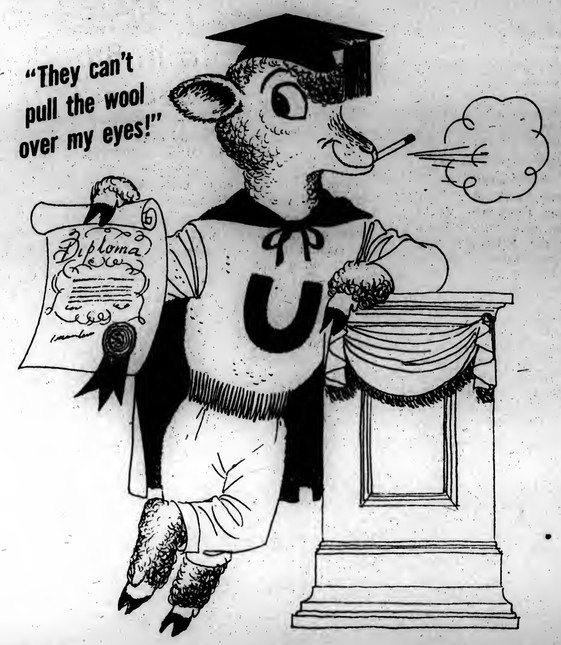
What about enlistments? The Army, Navy and Air Force have agreed not to accept any man for enlistment after he has been called for his pre-induction physical. "Most students", says Hershey, "completing their academic year in 1952 will have ample opportunity to join the service of their choice."

T and T Call Out for Dancers Tonight



With Turf and Tinsel's business and production staffs just about completely organized, the musical organization is now issuing a call for dancers to tak part in the April 23 through 26 production of "Jessica James."

All prospective chorines, in addition to any additional staff workers for the annual all-male musical comedy will meet in the Blue Room of the Field House tonight at 7:15 p. m.

George Noake, director of T&T shows for the past five productions, will conduct tryouts and begin preliminary routines after the short meeting. He has made notice also that the solo parts are not yet filled, and that anyone with interest and talent will be given aan audition.

'150' Schedule Has Rutgers, Penn At Home; B C Eagles Checked, 72-67, In Palestra

'Cats Weather BC's Last Period Surge For No. Thirteen

Last Saturday night at the Palestra in the first game of a doubleheader, the Villanova Wildcats turned back a fight-Boston College team by the score of 72-67.

Steve Gepp was a surprise starter in place of Tom Brennan and performed notably off the backboards, although garnering only six points. Villanova dominated the boards and many of the shots by B. C. were wild heaves at the basket.

In the early moments, both teams were off in their shooting, but with the score tied at 6-6, Sam Glassmire duced two one-handers and the Wildcats were never again headed.

Jack Moran and Tony Daukas entered the Boston College lineup just before the end of the quarter and nearly sparked the Eagles to victory. Villanova led at the end of the first quuarter, 17-9.

33-31 Half Lead

Paced by the fine scoring of Daukas from the pivot, the Eagles gradually chopped down the Wildcats' lead and halftime found them trailing by only two points, 33-31. Ben Stewart kept Villanova in the game with twelve points in the first half.

SPORTS CHATTER

Are They Really That Bad?

By TED SHEEHAN, Sports Editor

The paramount question in the minds of the people who attended the Villanova-Delaware game last Wednesday night in the Field House was, "Is Villanova really that bad this year"?

These same people had just seen a second rate team, (Delaware) minus its best player—Ray Crawfrod—and minus its three starters, out on personal fouls, come to within three points of Villanova with less than two minutes playing time remaining.

What was probably even more confusinig, these people had witnessed a week before, the making of a thousand points by a Villanova player. And if these people could think back even farther, they could remember that this was the same team that Villanova had last year, with the addition of some new freshmen who show some promise. The same team that received three tournament invitations.

It is good that the squad has "V-I-L-L-A-N-O-V-A" written in large letters on their unifroms. That helped to clear up a lot of doubt.

If these same people had gone to the Palestra to view the Boston College game on Saturday night, they probably would have fled the Penn sweat-center seeing double and yelling that Villanova has two teams—one they used for teams like Delaware and another for teams like Boston.

A more careful search would find that it was the same team; it was just the brand that was different.

They had just handled a team that had a very reputable 16-3 record before coming up against Viillanova. Handled them so well did they that the Eagles now have a 16-4 tally. In doing this Villanova had boosted its own sagging record to 13-6. Lets just go back over their past games and see what is what.

The first four teams played their scripts well and Villanova had a 4-0 record when they went to Iona. There, the second-rate Gaels put the fears of God and defeat into them and if it wasn't for some fine play—offensively and defensively—by Steve Gepp the team might not have been able to sneak by, 60-57. As it was, they will never have any more sheer luck than they had that night.

In the Sugar Bowl, the team put on a good show looking as well in victory as in defeat. So good, in fact, to get a tentative invitation for '53 if all went well during the rest of the season.

Then followed the disasterous Louisville game and a spanking 90-68 loss. In that game, the team had planned to fly to Louisville, but a storm forced them to go by train. What followed was a grueling 13 hour ride. Most players didn't sleep.

Bob Luchmueller isn't the best person to meet after a sleepness night.

Of Fordham—well, what can you say? They certainly weren't a better team than we were.

They showed brief brilliance running up over one hundred against Muhlenberg and continued on the right path by taking care of N. C. State. The Seton Hall game (and this goes for the second N. C. State game as well) was a two point affair. When two points are the margin of victory a game can go either way. As it turned out, the game went the other way. With the breaks they could have been wins instead of losses.

Duquesne is a better team than we are. Are they 22 points better? No. Their Jim Kennedy made 28; our Jim Mooney made 25. What might explain something of the loss is that after Mooney's 25 there wasn't another Villanova player who could come anywhere near that number and it's still a five-man sport.

Next came the Blue Hens of Delaware and the way they pecked at Villanova, one might think that the game was between Delaware and Ursinus. It is not that the team looked sloppy. They looked as if they were playing their best (perhaps they were), but is out best only seven points more than Delaware's best?

If they are to do anything it will have to be done now, starting last night with Seton Hall. After the Pirates comes Louisville. Al Severance will give his boys plenty of sleep before that game so the sleepness night routine won't go over too well.

Xavier and Duquesne follow up on the next shipment and their ability needs no tub thumping in this column. Siena is the first part of the Feb. 26 double header. The Indians latest adventuures include a neat 54-48 scalping of Fordham.

Connecticut and King's College—well, we might win.

In the season's finale the Wildcats face undefeated St. Bonaventure in the first part of a double header that pits Penn against Cornell. In the latest polls the St. Bonaventure team is rated fifth in the nation and Seton Hall, Duquesne, Siena and Louisville also have prominent positions in the expert's dope sheets.

So that's the schedule that lies ahead for Al Severance's bewildering group of dribblers. If they have any desire to get to any post season tournaments (and right now they have a single justification for their wants) they will have to get busy. Press clippings make nice scrap book items but they don't pass for invitations.

The team has the capabiliities, the talent and the class but unfortunately, up to now its has shown it head on only the rarest occasions.

Redmen Set Record By Score of 90-57; Zips Zip By: 81-69

By John Gilman

A League

The Troopers had little trouble in dealing with the Hayseeds 57-31, but they couldn't stop Pecora who got 17 for high man. Joe Bogner of the winners had 14.

The Shamrocks made a game of it but the league leading Toppers topped them 48-42, behind a 23 point performance by Larry O'Hearn. In a game which must have set some sort of a total points record the Zips outscored the Mendels 4, 81-69. Paris and Carrella had 22 and 20 for the Zips.

B League

The Mets continue mowing down the opposition. The last time was an 80-54 blasting of the previously unbeaten Hustlers. Jack Hopkins led the parade with 21 points.

Eliotmen Race In Four Meets Over Vacation

By Mark DeMarco

The Trackmen of Villanova have given a fine account of themselves in the various meets conducted in the past month. Fred Dwyer has shown that his earlier signs of promise were but a prelude to greater things to come.

Little Fred ran a strong third to Gehrmann and Wilt in both the Wanamaker and Inquirer Miles. He also ran fourth in the Hunter Mile. The night after the Inquiirer Meet, he won the Bishop Cheverus 1000 Yard Run in the time of 2:14.6.

Ray Wheiler ran a strong second to Roscoe Browne in the Inquirer 1000 and a good third to Browne and Mal Whitfield in the Millrose 880. These accomplishments label him as a force to be reckoned with in the future.

In the mile relay department, the quartet of Jim Reardon, Guy Speciale, Pete Simigan and Joe Gaffney have come in first at the Millrose and Boston K. of C. meets and second in the Boston A.A. Games.

year, the Cardinals swamped the Mainliners by 90-68 tally. Bob Lochmueller and company are compiling one of the finest season records in the school's history this year. They have proved that they are capable of meeting and beating some of the best quintets in the nation.

The Wildcats, however, will be playing in familiar territory and with the added incentive of revenge in the back of their minds.

Their brief rivalry, dating from 1949, shows the Kentuckians ahead 2-1. Villanova will be at their best in order to tie up the record.

Hennessey Makes 1000th at Scranton Contest in Gym

Play was stopped as the officials presented Larry with the ball to the joy of the 1500 viewers.

Hennessey thus becomes the second Villanovan to list his name among the 1,000-point artists. Paul Arizin, the incomparable jumb-shot specialist of two years ago, scored 1,593 in his three years of Main Line ball, after notching the one-thousandth near the start of his senior season.

"Hennessey the scorer," didn't reach his peak until the middle of his sophomore year. After a season with the frosh, when Larry shared high-point honors with Nick Maguire, the New Rochelle (N. Y.) product's over-the-head popping from behind the foul circle and two-handed jump shots became the trademark as the 'Cats swept thru' a 25 and 7 schedule.

Sets Two Records

Hennessey, himself, set two individual marks, nettting 306 field goals for a new collegiate standard and tallying 703 points—the scoring mark for sophomores.

His talents received nationwide recognition after the Sugar Bowl tournament in which Larry was awarded the most valuable player accolades as he scored 31 and 37 points against St. Louis and Brigham Young.

hind-the-back assist by Larry Hennessey, which drew the applause of the crowd.

Villanova then put together a string of twelve straight points and led at the end of the third quarter, 60-48.

Hens Left Out in Cold

The Blue Hens, despite the loss of three of their starting team on personals, fought back valiantly, pulling up to 62-59 with three minutes remaining to play. At this point the Wildcats called time out, and wisely elected to put on the freeze, led by 'Marques' Glassmire. Mooney and Glassmire sank clinching baskets to bring the final count to 68-61.

Villanova was led by Hennessey with 22, Stewart with 17, and Jim Mooney with 14. Delaware was paced by the game's high-scorer, Kruzinski, with 24.

Comedy Planned For March

Belle Masque Prepares To Present Silver Whistle

March 20, 21, 22 and 23, at the Villanova Field House, the Belle Masque Society will place before its audience a comedy by Robert E. McEnroe entitled, "The Silver Whistle".

The play, which enjoyed popularity on Broadway where it starred Jose Ferrer. dramatizes the situation which develops when a cultured and effervescent hobo feigns old age and enters a home for the aged.

In reality, he is only forty years old, but he desires to find out whether there is any use for living through the later years of life.

Rehearsals for the play began before the mid-semester recess. The director, Rev. William J. Krupa, O.S.A., has up to now, concentrated upon developing the peculiarities of old age in his character actors.

THOMAS HAYDEN
as "Oliver T. Erwenter"

Ten male and five female parts make up the cast for the "Whistle." As usual, Rosemont College has supplied the girls for the female roles.

Joan Therkauf, who portrayed Evie in "The Great Big Doorstep," has returned to play the part of Mrs. Sampler. Marie Heffernan, who will be remembered for her interpretation of the title role in Rosemont's "I Remember Mama," has accepted the role of Mrs. Gross. Jean Ward, another actress from "Mama," has taken the part of Mrs. Hanmer. The two newcomers from Rosemont are Ellen Purcell and Joan Hessert.

Tom Hayden In Lead

The male casting sets Thomas Hayden in the lead as Oliver T. Erwenter, Anthony Della Rocca as Mr. Beebe, Robert Allen as Reverend Watson, Mark DeMarco as Emmett, and George Crist as Mr. Cherry. Bernard Coyne, Donald McCourt, George Godlewski and Maurice Murphy constitute the remainder of the acting company.
